Most problems solved with YSU buildings

by Sherry Williams

Most problems plaguing the campus buildings have been solved, according to Nick Leonelli, director of campus development.

Leonelli said the problems with Bliss Hall and the CAST building were the contractor's fault and that these problems are corrected at the contractor's expense.

"What all these problems amount to is faulty construction that we catch up with, then force the contractor to do over at no cost to us or the state," said Leonelli.

When asked if Bliss has been built on unstable ground and if the roof on Bliss had to be rebuilt 3 times to meet with safety regulations, Leonelli said it was untrue.

But Leonelli did say, "Our problems with Bliss were mostly contractor's headaches. There were some other problems that weren't quite right in design that we did get corrected."

"The most serious problem dealt with some electrical switches that did not meet the state code. It was a question of the code interpretation at the time," said Leonelli.

These new electrical switches were put in, tested and cleared last week by the contractor. The ceramics department, which was unable to move into Bliss Hall, remains in Clingan-Waddell Hall. Leonelli said this wasn't a problem related to that department's inability to adapt their equipment to the electrical switches, but because the department's kiln does not fit in Bliss Hall.

Michael Mosley, head of the ceramics department, was out-of-town and could not be reached to verify that information for the Jambar.

The leaky roof on the CAST Building, which delayed the opening of the third floor of that building for some time, was corrected last summer. Leonelli said that now there are "only a couple of small maintenance problems that we have all over all the time."

Leonelli defined maintenance as those things that must be done to keep a building in shape and that problems related to maintenance may be the over-heating or over-cooling of a building.

Shortly after Maag Library, opened in 1976, the steps leading to the building from Lincoln Avenue began crumbling. Leonelli said this was also caused by faulty construction and that the contractor redid those steps.

Also, contractors are respon-

Parking cut by Stadium construction

New deck will hold 1,000

by Sharon Blöse

Although construction is set to begin this coming summer on the sports complex behind Beeghly Center, there will be available parking to compensate for the loss of space this coming fall.

According to Don Minnis, director of auxiliary services, "1000 parking spaces will be available in the new parking deck this fall." The new deck, located on Wick Avenue across from Maag Library, is slated for final completion by January, 1979. But partial occupancy of the deck will be available by fall quarter.

Students have expressed concern about the availability of parking when construction of the sports complex begins. They have been expressing this concern since spring quarter 1977 when plans for construction were first announced. The announcement at that time set the date for the beginning of construction for late summer 1977.

"We see no problems," said Minnis about the parking outlook for the coming school year, and added that there should be the "same space availability as this past fall (1977)."

With the 1000 spaces available in the new deck, the lot behind Beeghly will start to close, said Minnis. The entire lot will not be closed at once, but the closings will take place as space is needed for construction. Part of the lot will be used for parking until the space is actually needed for construction.

According to Leonelli, additional parking will be available in the future when the Animal House on Spring Street is torn down. "We have also acquired the house on Elm Street across from the Elm Street School. That's coming down, so that will add a little bit," added Leonelli.

Leonelli also added to Minnis' statement on parking by saying, "We will have sufficient spaces to make up our loss. We won't be using the entire area that the Sports complex will take. There still will be some parking adjacent to the expressway."

The A.P. O'Horo Construction Company, the contractor for the new deck, also currently is constructing a new parking facility for St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Minnis also reported that several lots were graded during spring

Council votes on removal; Kinsley will retain status

By Denise Lloyd

At Monday's meeting Student Council voted, during a closed session, not to remove CAST Representative Emily Kinsley from Council for missing more than the allowed number of Council meetings.

According to Student Council attendance records, Kinsley had not attended any Student Council meetings winter quarter.

Kinsley stated she had a class that conflicted with the 3:30 p.m. Monday Council meetings.

Student Council by-laws state that "attendance of Student Council meetings is required of all members. Absence from regular meetings in excess of two meetings per session (two quarters) except for reasons approved by both faculty advisors shall result in immediate dismissal from Council."

Dr. Sally Hotchkiss, Student Council advisor, stated that Kinsley told Hotchkiss and Student Affairs Dean Dr. Charles McBriarty, the other Council advisors, that she had a class which was scheduled during Council meetings.

Hotchkiss said, "We told her we would have to give serious thought" to her request to be allowed to miss more than two meetings.

"We did not tell her it was fine," stated Hotchkiss.

According to Hotchkiss, until Monday's meeting no one from Council had asked her what her decision on the Kinsley matter had been.

She said she was unable to tell the Jambar what she told Council about her decision because the decision was revealed during the closed meeting.

During the meeting, when the issue of Kinsley's case arose, Council voted to close the meeting on grounds that they would be discussing a personnel matter.

Counseling Center holds classes on self-development this quarter

The YSU Counseling and Testing Center at 615 Bryson St. has announced a series of seven self-development workshops for spring quarter.

The first workshop, Improving Study Habits, is a one-session, one-hour class designed to improve study approach through study habits and note taking skills. The classes are being given at four times, at 1 p.m., Monday, April 3; at 2 p.m., Tuesday, April 11; at 3 p.m., Wednesday, April 19; and at 4 p.m., Thursday, April 27.

A Women's Growth Group will be held from 10 a.m. to 12 noon on Mondays, beginning April 3. It is intended for women who want to become aware of themselves and who want to grow both inter- and intra-personally.

Another workshop beginning

April 3 is Assertiveness Training, to be held from 2 to 4 p.m. This group will allow each individual to practice new behaviors. If you allow others to make decisions for you and hide yourself, or if you dominate and ignore the rights of others, this group may be helpful for you.

A Personal Growth Group will provide an opportunity for group interaction. Interaction teaches the individual how to respond to every-day concerns more easily and to relate to others more effectively.

The Career Motivation Program is being held for one day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 29. This program is aimed at those students who have not made a career choice. Students with less than 45 quarter-hour credits might benefit from learning positive self-awareness and becoming aware of the range of choices available in various life styles.

How to Decide hopes to meet the changing needs of women by increasing their decision-making abilities and will meet from noon to 1 p.m. Fridays, beginning April 13.

Interviewing, Problems and Solutions is being sponsored in conjunction with Career Planning and Placement and will give students the opportunity to assess their values and career options. Students will also learn techniques on how to interview more effectively.

All workshops are free, but space is limited. Meetings will be conducted by members of the Counseling Center staff, including Dr. George E. Letchworth, Dr. William Convery, Susan M. Cochran, Harriett Guido. All sessions will be held at the Counseling Center.

sible for the now collapsed bricks outside the entrance to the new Arts & Sciences Building. The bricks collapsed when the contractor's trucks were driven onto the area.

Leonelli said, "The contractor is going to replace them. It's not costing us anything except the inconvenience of having to look at something that is not quite right."

Why do we seem to have so many problems with the contractors? According to Leonelli, "We don't have an abnormally large amount of problems with them."

Most contractors give a year guarantee on their work. During this year, Leonelli said the buildings are watched closely for problems. If anything at all goes wrong within this one-year period, the contractor is contacted immediately so that the problem can be corrected. Leonelli said this work has been paid for and it deserves to be corrected at the contractor's expense.

Student Council

Council, stated at the meeting that the information discussed during the closed session was not to be made public. He said he would have anyone who discussed the matter with someone not present at the meeting brought before Council's Disciplinary Board.

Carano said that he had asked the Council Disciplinary Board to hear the Kinsley case near the end of winter quarter.

According to Carano, the Board put their findings in the form of a motion. The motion asked Council to vote Monday on whether or not Kinsley should retain her seat.

George Glaros, president of Student Government, argued that such a vote was not necessary. According to Glaros the Council Constitution states that if three meetings are missed a person is automatically off Council.

Carano said it is a matter of interpretation. "I determined simply made a decision."

The most effective tampon is the most economical, too

Tampax tampons are made with a special, highly compressed material to give you maximum absorbency. What's more, unlike most other brands, they expand in all three directions—length, breadth and width—to conform to individual body contours. Which means there's far less chance of leakage or bypass.

And here's something else you'll like about Tampax tampons: the price. The economy-size package of 40 costs less—tampon for tampon—than any other brand.

So if you want a lot of protection at very little cost, open a package of Tampax tampons. We promise you, it's there.

A closed door

Council held a closed session Monday. This means that whatever happened behind that door on Monday is not public information.

In fact John Carano, chairman of Student Council, went as far as saying any member who divulged the happenings of the meeting would be brought before the Discipline Board.

The rationale for a closed session is that matters of personnel should not be conducted in an open meeting. Yet the guidelines for what falls under the heading of personnel seem to be very vague.

When asked exactly what could be considered a personnel matter, Carano stated "I guess if somebody is sneaky enough, they can put just about anything under the category of personnel."

So where does that leave the student body? Maybe if "somebody is sneaky enough" the students will be left with an elected body that is free to conduct an unlimited amount of business behind a closed door.

Student Council may need to be reminded that they are the personnel elected by the student body. Therefore anything they discuss in a Council meeting should be open to all the students.

If Council members continue to close the meeting room door on students they may eventually find that the student body has closed the election booth on them by electing to replace them representatives who feel they have nothing to hide from the students.

Responsibility

On Monday Student Council voted not to remove a member from Council for missing more than the allotted number of meetings.

The representative had not attended any meetings during winter quarter because of class conflict.

The Council seemed to feel that the excuse was a good one and so voted 16 to 1, with 2 abstentions, to keep the member on Council.

Yet the issue here is not whether or not the excuse for missing the meetings was valid or invalid.

The point is how well can a Student Council member represent the students who elected her if she can not attend the meetings?

Is the student body receiving the type of representation it deserves from someone who is unable to hear the matters brought before Council and who is never present to have any input in the actions Council takes?

The purpose of Student Council is to represent the student body. Any member who is unable to do this, no matter how good their reason, should be removed from Council and replaced by someone who can fulfill the duty.

Star-Guzzing

The other night I was out and looked up to the sky. There was no sun (there usually isn't at night), but the stars shone like candles in a cellar in Paris-if you know what I mean. Well, there I stood star-gazing, and I began to wonder if perhaps our futures are plotted in the stars. You know, horoscopes, and that. It was then that the stars began to spell out words, the words formed sentences, and the sentences made paragraphs. There were no grammatical or spelling errors in the sky! There it was, horoscopes. Let me tell you what will happen to you.

Aries-Be kind, generous, thoughtful, and don't walk on broken glass in bare feet. Beware of used car salesmen. Great sums of money shall come to you if you turn to a life of crime. You will fall down in the near future, and scrape your knees, so be careful!

Taurus-Don't take any bull. Beware of people with guns that are pointed at you. Say your prayers daily. Bake a coconut cream pie, smear it on your chest, and you will live long and prosper.

Gemini-Your temper will get the best of you, so control it. A man wearing a three-piece Scottish-knit suit will break the windshield of your car with a sledge hammer. Be calm, and shake his hand, compliment him on his good work. Keep cool.

Cancer-Beware of bookshelves. Don't eat carrots in the car. Soon you will have happiness. Take up knitting. Never point at anyone, it's bad manners. Chew food 40 times.

Leo-Buy a three-piece Scottish-knit suit and break the windshield of a Gemini's car with a sledge hammer. You will lead a full life. Don't lie, you're lion.

Virgo-Soon you will see a flower, but don't eat it. Have your fingernails filed. Do good in school. Soon you will know the secret of life-keep it a secret, big mouth!

Libra-Develop your sense of balance. Eat sauerkraut on Thursdays, and you will be regular. Don't write on the walls. Soon a person will enter your life and who will make you very happy, thank that person, and tip them 15%.

Scorpio-You will get very ill in the near future. Buy

Bayer aspirin. Four out of 5 doctors recommend sugarless aspirin for their patients who chew aspirin. The preceding was not paid for.

Sagittarius-Beware of your friends. They are all out to get you. At this very moment they are talking behind your back. They do not like you, they will get you. Other than that, things look good.

Capricorn-Brush your teeth between meals, and grow sunflowers in your bathtub. Use the word "effort" in every sentence you speak. Shine your shoes.

Aquarius-It is the dawning of your age. Take a walk across the state, and you shall return to find a new lawnmower in your kitchen. Love others more often with more intellect, and buy new bookcovers.

Pisces-Soon your grandpop will call you on the phone and ask for the recipe for brussels sprouts and mustard cake. Tell him you are making a new set of keys for the piano you plan to buy. He will cough twice. Put the phone in the refrigerator, and sit in a rocking chair. Comb your hair behind your ears. Beware of weird people in general.

That's it for the night's stars, and I'll keep an eye out for more horoscopes. Have a good drive home.

Red Cross is counting on you.

Gallery displays student art show in graphic design

The Art Gallery at the Kilcawley Center offered a well-displayed Student Graphic Design Show from March 27 through April 6. The show presented 27 artists who displayed 65 works of graphic art and design.

The unhampered use of clear, vibrant colors, subtle design and imagery and stark black-and-white ensembles were evident throughout the show. The effect of the attractive symmetry of the art was very pleasing to the mind and eye.

The use of color was most skillfully brought out in Darlene Lemme's calendar August and James Mallogs' album cover Rocky Mountain High.

The clean line of the letterheads, stationary, trademarks, and alphabets impressed me greatly, making special note of Guy Shively's gift certificate Ohio Van and Truck and the whimsical appeal of Audrey Przybylsk's stationary Tommy Toys, Inc.

Great thought and care must have gone into making the book covers and movie advertisements, for they were very expressive of the contents of the products. The choice and effective black and white photograph for the book The Family Plot by Mary Ann Murray, the beautiful imagery and color for the book Bread and Wine done by Diane Drapcho and Kevin Ellway's capture of the mysterious, intriguing mood of Murder on the Orient Express, were all very interpretive of the products portrayed.

ART EXHIBIT OPENS

An exhibit of the works of John Michael Downs will open at the Kilcawley Art Gallery on April 10 as part of the 4th anniversary of Kilcawley Center. The artist will be on hand for the opening at 4 p.m.

Downs presently serves as an editorial illustrator of the Chicago Sun Times after serving as illustrator for the Chicago

Daily News (which closed its doors March 4) since 1962.

Time, U.S. News and the wire syndicates have carried Down's work throughout the country.

He also freelances as a commercial illustrator for Kellogg's, Greyhound, the American Medical Association, United Airlines, McDonald's, and Morton Salt.

Although his first love is in the fine arts, Downs feels close ties with illustration.

Coming from a railroad family, much of Down's art work reflects his early background and love of trains. He grew up in the fishing villages of Northern Wisconsin.

Downs received his education at the Art Institute of Chicago.

Composer-vocalist Kahle

On April 11, KCPB's Coffee House Committee will present as a special attraction-the dynamic Nina Kahle. This event will take place in the Chestnut Room of Kilcawley Center and is free of charge.

Nina, a composer/performer whose excellent vocal and instrumental ability has captivated audiences in clubs and colleges throughout the country, has that special ability to make her music the music of her listeners.

She is an inspirational writer of songs which contain lyrics that are earthy, honest and a piece of reality. Her clear strong voice reminds one of Joni Mitchell, though she has a style which is hers alone. Nina accompanies most of her songs at the piano, though she also performs on the dulcimer and guitar.

She began her career playing the piano bars of her native Detroit. Eventually, with the help of her current manager, she got bookings on the college circuit and has performed, thus far, in 15 states. She prefers college audiences to those of bars and clubs because students attend her shows to be entertained.

Varner has won tournaments from Illinois and Florida to Texas, and has presented exhibitions all across the nation at colleges and universities.

'HOBBIT' PUPPET SHOW

by Lisa Rossman

Highlighting the Kilcawley Center Birthday Celebration will be a free on-stage performance of The Hobbit by the Hutsah Puppet Theatre for all J.R.R. Tolkien enthusiasts. One of the best sellers of campus bookstores is going to be brought to YSU on Wednesday, April 12. The mysterious, magical Tolkien tale will begin at 8 p.m.

This is a story of long ago, in the quiet of the world, when there was less noise and more green. It was the third age of Middle Earth, it was a time when the world was full of strange and wonderful creatures.

Tolkien's classic, a bold and enchanting adventure, is performed by over thirty almost life-sized puppets. Come and see Bilbo Baggins, Smaug, The Dragon, Gandalf, The Wizard, and all the other charming and not-so-charming creatures that make up the hobbit world.

Rusty Steiger, the puppeteer who has adapted and now directs this exciting art form, began making his own puppets, "because it was fun." He never had formal instruction. Over five to six years he developed puppets whose foam or liquid rubber faces catch the light in a lifelike way.

The Hobbit premiered at the First Chicago Center. Steiger then took the show on a tour of college campuses. "It turned out to be the perfect thing," he said; "for a long time I was looking for a show to tour colleges with, to present puppetry in an adult way, but have enough fantasy going for it. We've made the play as accurate, as close to the book as possible."

Steiger does another show, a musical of Tarzan, called Swinging Through the Trees, which gave his company, Hutsah Puppet Theatre, its name. Hutsah is a jungle word that can mean many things.

"One of the things that's exciting to me about puppets," Steiger said, "is you really have a license, as you do in cartoons, to create your own reality, your own world, where you can have whatever magic or rules you want. That's what the fun of fantasy is."

You, too, can engage in this world of fantasy by attending this performance commemorating another eventful year for Kilcawley Center.

friday ARTIST PALMER FEATURED

Jeree Palmer, formerly a member of the New Christy Minstrals and now a solo artist, will be featured in a Cabaret-style concert on Friday, April 14 in Kilcawley Center as part of the center's birthday celebration. The show will start at 8:30 and admission is $1.00.

Jeree, whose first single Flattery made quite an impression on the charts and in the discos, is a native of New York City. She began singing at an early age in Atlantic City, New Jersey, where her elementary education included the Performing Arts. Her summers were spent singing in a Baptist Church choir in Onancock, Virginia.

At the age of seventeen she returned to "The City" and attended the City University of New York, earning her degree. During her first year in college she entered the Miss Atlantic County Pageant and took home the Talent Award as well as the fourth place runner-up award. A direct outcome of this pageant was the lead role in a summer stock play, No Strings.

After college, she combined her talents by teaching and later becoming head of the Play School Department at New York Hospital and Medical Center for Joint Diseases. During the same period of time, she joined a theater group called the East River Players (having lead roles in several plays), and also freelanced as a singer in the Poconos, Catskills, and New York City at night.

Upon reading an ad for auditions for the New Christy Minstrels, her ambitious nature led her to jump at the opportunity and within forty-eight hours she was on the road singing with this group. The pace was hectic but rewarding and for three years she appeared, often doing solos, in small towns and big cities through the United States and in the Far East. Because of these years on the road, she now feels at home as a performer in any room with any group of people.

Top producer, musician and composer Thom Bell discovered her and introduced her to Buddy Allen (manager of the Spinner, Sister Sledge and Ronnie Dyson) who became her manager when she left the New Christy Minstrels to branch out on her own as a single artist. Buddy Allen, along with top arrangers Frank Owens and Harold Wheeler (the jazz musician who orchestrated The Wiz, put together an act for Jeree that she broke in at Host Farm, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Her versatility as a performer was proven when she appeared at the Apollo theatre (which is noted for its very difficult audiences and where she also appeared as an amateur) and was received enthusiastically there as well as at the Club Harlem in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Jeree has also appeared on the Tonight Show and the Mike Douglas Show.

Bluegrass band highlighted

Editor's Note: This is an excerpt from "Bluegrass" by Bob Artis, published by Hawthorn Books, Inc.

There was a band that appeared at one of the Carlton Hanev festivals near Reidsville, North Carolina. It was a very good, folk-oriented band called the Bluegrass Alliance, and guesting with the group (which included fiddler Lonnie Pierce, bassist Ebo Walker, guitarists Dan Jones and Dan Crary, and banjoist Buddy Spurlock) was a teen-ager in blue jeans that almost uprooted some of Hanev's newly planted shade trees, instantly putting the Alliance at the top of the bluegrass best-new-band list. They carried a wallop and were seen as the next big bluegrass band. Crary, an astounding lead guitarist, left the band to study for the ministry in his native Kansas, and Jones left to eventually wind up with Bill Monroe for a few months. Walker and Bush formed a new band, based on the concepts of merging the sounds of the bluegrass instruments with the beat and the feel of rock. They called their band the NEW GRASS REVIVAL.

It's still not clear (to me at least) whether the band drew its name from the movement or the movement from the band. It is clear, however, that by the early 1970s the movement had found a name: newgrass. New Bluegrass. Today if someone says to a bearded, long-haired musician, "Son, that ain't bluegrass," the picker can look him straight in the eye, smile, and honestly say, "You're right," and go right on playing.

The music is all around us, and the look and sound of the guy's F-5 get me a little itchy to pick. But on the way back we are sidetracked by a crowd gathered around an old Chevy van. On the back bumper, between the opened tailgates, sits a handsome kid of about twenty with thick shocks of blond hair cascading to his shoulders. It's Sam Bush of the New Grass Revival, and he's surrounded by about thirty people bringing the sounds of rock into bluegrass. Some like it and some don't, but it's certain that the crowd around the skinny, blue-jeaned Kentuckian is bigger than the crowd around anyone else out here in the field. It's interesting to note that rock superstar Leon Russell chose "Revival" as the warmup act on one of his tours.

Long hair and short hair, drums and cymbals. The older people filter away from the stage as the New Grass Revival breaks into a rocking rendition of Leon Russell's "Prince of Peace" with Sam Bush singing like it's the Earth's last day and Courtney Johnson taking five-minute ad-lib banjo breaks that nearly exhaust the mathematical possibilities of the three-octave modal-chromatic runs.

MUSIC REVIEW

by Roger Harned

"How many of you have heard Honegger's 'Symphony No. 2'?" ...How about the Bartok, "Piano Concerto No. 1"? ...Perhaps then Verdi's, "I Lombardi"? Such questions are quite familiar to music students and the answers painfully evident to the music faculty. In behalf of most music students, I plead a large degree of musical ignorance. We have heard too little music - a problem that can be remedied.

The best solution to this problem is listening to live concerts. Schedules of the concerts and recitals at YSU are available in the Dana office. These concerts are all free.

The Youngstown Symphony also has two concerts remaining for this season, including one scheduled tomorrow night, April 8. The final concert is scheduled for Saturday, April 29. Even though Student Government no longer funds ticket vouchers, which gave discounts to YSU students, tickets are still relatively inexpensive at $2.50 - $3.50, and may be obtained by calling 744-0264, or by purchasing them at the door. The Youngstown Symphony will perform one additional concert on Sunday, May 14, which will be free to the public.

You can hear the Cleveland Orchestra for only $3.00 any Thursday, Friday or Saturday, from now thru May 13. Tickets are usually available at the door or may be purchased in advance from the Severance Hall box office.

Radio provides our most readily accessible listening source. The only AM station in our area with any classical programming is WHHH-1440, which features classical music Monday through Saturday from 10:05 p.m. to 11 p.m. The FM stations that devote a major portion of their programming to classical music are WCLV-95.5, WKSU-89.7, and WYSU-88.5.

WKSU's classical programming is: Sunday, 11 a.m. - 8 p.m.; Monday - Friday, 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.; and Saturday, 2 p.m. - 6 p.m. (The Chicago Lyric Opera). WYSU begins its day at 6 a.m. (7 a.m. on weekends). The classical music continues until noon until 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Saturday's music resumes at noon until 2 p.m. National Public Radio's program of recorded live-on-tape chamber music festivals will air from 3 p.m.-5 p.m., with more music 6 p.m. - 7 p.m. The programs from 8 p.m. - 1 a.m. include Broadway musicals, folk music, jazz and old radio shows. Sunday evening features organ music at 6 p.m., the Boston Pops at 6:30 p.m., opera 8 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. and new recordings from 10:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.

WYSU will present live coverage of the Metropolitan Opera National Council final auditions from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, on Sunday, April 9, beginning at 1:30 p.m. The auditions have launched the careers of many young artists, and have provided the Metropolitan Opera with some of its finest singers, including Robert Merrill, Richard Tucker, Grace Bumbry and Shirley Verrett. The traditional winner's concert will also be aired over WYSU on Monday, April 17, at 10 p.m. Beginning April 23, the Chicago Lyric Opera will be aired at 8 p.m. on Sundays.

WYSU's weekday afternoon schedule is devoted mostly to music from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m. The music continues after the news from 6:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. On Monday, 8 p.m. - 10 p.m. features the New York Philharmonic Orchestra; Tuesday at the same time, the Boston Symphony; Wednesday, the Chicago Symphony; and Thursday, the Philadelphia Orchestra. Friday, 8 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. is the Library of Congress chamber music concert, followed by tapes of recent YSU concerts (including most of those reviewed in this column). Tuesday and Thursday, 10 p.m. - 11 p.m. is devoted to vocal music.

Remember the three compositions I mentioned initially? They can all be heard on WYSU next week, along with the Rossini "William Tell Overture," the Schumann "Symphony No. 4," Haydn's "The Seasons," Mahler's "Symphony No. 8," and more. A complete program listing is available at WYSU in CAST or by the materials center in Bliss Hall.

Alpha zeta holds tea
Sorority stresses 'Unity in Service'

"Unity in Service" -- this is the goal of Gamma Sigma Sigma, a national service sorority that was established to unite young women in the spirit of helping others. Alpha Zeta, one of the many Gamma Sigma Sigma chapters, is located at the YSU campus.

Alpha Zeta members have been involved with many projects serving both the campus and the community. Such projects include reading for the blind, helping at the blood banks, working with the Toys of Love program, visiting area hospitals and nursing homes and adopting little sisters through the Youngstown Big Brother/Big Sister program.

One of Alpha Zeta's most outstanding projects involved the "Pitch-In" campaign held at YSU. Last year the chapter placed first on the local level of the competition for their clean-up project. They then entered the national competition where they placed second and received a $500 scholarship for YSU.

Another unique part of Gamma Sigma Sigma is the alumnae chapters. The alumnae chapters enable the graduate members to stay active in the sorority for many years. Youngstown is fortunate to have a large and active chapter, which continuously serves the community.

On Monday, April 10 at 7 p.m. Alpha Zeta is having a get-acquainted tea at the Pollock House. If you are service minded and wish to become involved in this organization, president Christy Craig and all the sisters invite you to attend. If you are interested but unable to attend the tea, you can contact Deanna DeFilippo at 747-5534 or Christy Craig at 746-6361.

break. The lots improved were S-6 behind Beeghly, S-8 on the corner of Elm and Spring Streets,

S-13 between Bryson and Spring Streets and F-3 on Bryson near the counseling center. "A lot of pot holes were filled in" and general lot conditions were improved, said Minnis.

Plans are being made to start blacktopping the parking lots termed as "more or less permanent" by campus development, added Minnis, like the lot beside the IBM Building on Wick Avenue. Plans for improving the lots include not only blacktopping, but also the installation of lights and the painting of lines and directional arrows.

When asked about the selling of parking stickers, Minnis stated that about twice as many stickers are sold as there are parking spaces available on campus. "There are approximately 4200 parking spaces available," said Minnis, and cited fall quarter 1977 when 8403 parking stickers were sold. This figure is almost twice the number of spaces available.

Minnis justifies this sticker-selling policy by citing the last parking survey conducted during fall quarter 1977, which showed that the peak parking time, or that time when the most cars are in parking lots at one time, is at 11 a.m. on Wednesdays and Mondays. During this time, between 3650 and 3980 cars were in the lots. There are never 8000 cars on campus needing parking spaces at the same time, Minnis pointed out, but only about half that number, or 4000, for which there is ample space.

The date of construction of the complex has been set numerous times and construction has not yet begun. According to Nick Leonelli, director of campus development, construction will begin late this summer.

Give till it helps.
