YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Youngstown State University's Continuing Education Office, the Mahoning Valley Chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, and the District II Area Agency on Aging will sponsor a one-day seminar, "Alzheimer's Disease: Theory and Pragmatics for Health Care Professionals."

It will be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 3, on the YSU campus.

This seminar has been approved by the Ohio Department of Health's Board of Examiners of Nursing Home Administrators for six hours of Continuing Education credit.

The seminar will offer a clear and concise look at Alzheimer's disease, its etiology, treatment and current theories, and how this information can be used in formulating and utilizing a patient care plan. Successful treatment involves not only the victim, but the caregiver and specialists in a number of diverse disciplines as well.

The seminar leader will be Dr. Joan K. Glickstein, a co-founder and partner in Long Term Care Consultants, Pittsburgh, the first firm dedicated solely to helping those suffering from senile dementia. Dr. Glickstein was a member of the 1981 Pennsylvania delegation to the White House Conference on Aging.

The fee for the seminar is $60, which includes materials, parking, refreshments, lunch and a certificate of participation.

To register, or to obtain an informational brochure, contact the YSU Office of Continuing Education.
