Bearer of 'Golden Fleece' to speak before campus audience Monday

Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wisconsin), known to most Americans as the "Golden Fleece" awardee, will speak at 8:30 p.m., Monday, Jan. 14 in the Chestnut Room, Kilcawley Center.

The consumer conscious Proxmire has gained a reputation as a tax dollar guardian. His regular published "Golden Fleece" awards alert the public to just how government departments are spending their tax dollars.

Recipients of the awards have included the National Science Foundation for spending $84,000 to study romantic love, the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse, $102,000, used to discover if inebriated fish are more aggressive than sober ones, and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for a $27,000 research proposal to determine why inmates want to escape from prison.

Proxmire has written a book on his findings entitled Uncle

Sam, the Last of the Bigtime Spenders.

Having served in the Senate since 1957 when he filled the seat left vacant by the death of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Proxmire now chairs the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, is one of two alternating chairpersons of the Joint Economic Committee, and heads a subcommittee on economy in government.

His subcommittee report, "The Economics of Military Procurement" led to the adoption of new uniform defense accounting practices.

Proxmire calls national defense a "life insurance policy," and says, "we must be number one!" Yet at the same time, he has repeatedly chastised the military for spending exorbitant sums on elaborate defense systems and strategic weapons.

Legislatively, Proxmire is credited with the far-reaching Consumer Credit Protection Act (known as the Truth in Lending Act), and the Fair Credit Reporting Act which guarantees a person the right to review and correct personal files maintained by credit reporting agencies.

As a politician, he was the first candidate in Wisconsin's history to win all 72 counties in a senatorial election. Proxmire's popularity is such that in 1976 he spent only $177 on his re-election campaign, and still received 73 per cent of the vote.

He was characterized by his congressional colleagues as a "Maverick Democrat," having attacked the control of them Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, and having opposed President John Kennedy on a number of major issues.

Proxmire is generally regarded

Calls it 'overwhelming'

Narduzzi receives Kodak Coach-of-the-Year award

by Ron Anderson

When YSU head football coach Bill Narduzzi left for a convention in New Orleans earlier this week little did he expect to come back with an award. However, he will return to the University with the distinction of being named collegiate Coach-of-the-Year by the Kodak selection committee. "It's overwhelming," exclaimed a totally surprised Narduzzi by phone from New Orleans. "It's an extreme honor in that it came from the other people (coaches) in this profession. People who worked just as hard as we did this season."

Narduzzi explained that the competition for the award was conducted by Kodak with the head coaches in the collegiate division actually making the sel-lection. Narduzzi's competition was stiff with top finishers in the balloting including Tubby Raymond of Delaware University, Division II champion and Jim Butterfield of Division II champion Ithaca.

Narduzzi was quick to point out that the coach does not win awards only through his own efforts. "It's tough to decide who should get an individual award in a sport like this that requires so much of a team effort," explained the Penguin coach. "It takes a lot of support people to come up with a season like this, let alone an award of this significance.

"If it weren't for the players, the other coaches, the administrative people, the managers, the trainers and especially the support of my own wife, I could never get an award like this."

Reflecting back on this season's accomplishments and the efforts that brought both a winning season and this award, Narduzzi offered only one comment "I would give all of this back if I could make only one change," related the man affectionately referred to as Duzzer, "and that would be a win over Delaware in the last game."

Hazardous driving conditions not to shut down University

by Diana Cicchillo

With the possible approach of severe winter weather, the question arises as to what warrants an emergency closing of YSU. "It would have to be something substantial beyond just hazardous driving," said John Coffelt, YSU president.

Coffelt checks with the National Weather Bureau and city, county and state highway departments before making a decision. He explained that he would more than likely close YSU "if major roads are closed or if it is advertised by the city that they are going to be closed."

The decision to close is made by 6 a.m. after a careful assessment of existing and projected conditions. He then notifies WYSU-FM. "We encourage people to get their primary notification by listening to WYSU," he said.

"It doesn't do any good to call me at the house. The decision hasn't been made and won't be made until after 6 a.m.," Coffelt explained.

The parking lot conditions used to be a primary factor in Coffelt's decision to close YSU. Now, he explained, they play only a small role in closing because the new deck has eliminated most dirt lots which caused the most problems in the past.

"Unless there is a major emergency, we like to keep it (the University) open if at all possible," said Coffelt. The explanation for this is twofold: "It is time lost that can't be made up," and "when we close it costs an additional amount of money," he relayed.

When YSU is under an emergency all employees continue to be paid just as if they were working. Those who do work when an emergency is called are paid double. This is why it costs YSU more to close than to remain open, Coffelt explained.

"Our faculty are very good about making up time when it is missed," said Coffelt. He added that there are no state laws for universities as there are for schools regarding time lost.

If it just requires an additional 15 or 20 minutes of driving time, YSU will not close, Coffelt concluded.

Optimism, enthusiasm will aid YSU

Coffelt sees rosy years ahead

by Liz Lane

YSU is in a good position to meet the challenges of the 1980s says YSU President John Coffelt in regards to the University's future as a new decade begins. Coffelt said YSU is in an "enviable spot." "The University is much more effective and efficient to achieve the mission we need," stated Coffelt.

Coffelt divided YSU's mission for the 1980s into a five part plan, instituting positive community support, declining physical expansion, developing a "master academic plan," maintaining a strong faculty, and remaining out of debt.

According to Coffelt, the University has always been supportive of the community's needs, but now desires a more focused interest in this area.

"We're (YSU) trying to move into the public service field by being a catalyst for change and helping the community to harness and utilize this University," explains Coffelt.

YSU is the third largest employer in Youngstown, according to Coffelt. He sees a possible increase in the number of people working for the University in the coming years.

A few programs which have just begun to help the community are the Weekend Study Program and the College for Over 60, which both started this fall.

Another change to take effect in the 80s is the rapid decline of physical expansion on the campus. "The addition and construction plan will dramatically decline in the 80s," said Coffelt.

He stated that while YSU spent approximately $60 million for campus expansion during the 1970s, Coffelt sees only about $20 million being spent in this area in the 80s.

It was decided in the 60s that future expansion for YSU will be primarily to the east (behind the new parking deck). This area will be used for recreational, intramural and outdoor educational activities. Coffelt said the University has purchased some of the land but is acquiring it slowly.

Other major areas of expansion will be an addition to Kilcawley Center and the remodeling of Ward Beecher and the School of Business.

In academic matters, Coffelt stated Earl Edgar, vice-president for Academic Services and Leon Rand dean of graduate school are developing an academic "master plan" for YSU. This aim is to identify academic areas which need special consideration for the 80s.

Coffelt stated that nationally, high school graduating classes will be declining over the next 14 years. "We're trying to contain the loss through programs for non-traditional students," said Coffelt, "however, the technical fields will continue to grow."

Coffelt does not see a doctoral program coming to YSU. "Cooperative efforts with different universities are growing," stated Coffelt.

He said the Ohio Board of Regents approval of new Ph.D programs have been declining, but they desire combining existing doctoral programs with surrounding universities. Coffelt cited the Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine (NEOUCOM) as an example of universities combining efforts for a B.S./M.D. program.

Coffelt also stated that a competent faculty will help YSU in the 80s. He said a strong faculty will enable YSU to be in a better position to handle and attract new people. The only problem YSU faces in this area, said Coffelt, is that it will be hard to replace retiring faculty with people of equal qualification now in the market.

Finally, Coffelt said YSU will be entering the new decade with no debts. Coffelt explained that all the buildings are paid for which were constructed in the 1970s.

Coffelt concluded by saying that optimism, enthusiasm, and people getting involved at the University will help YSU in the 80s.

as a liberal on social issues, such as Civil Rights, but a conservative in the area of fiscal policy.

It is said that Proxmire has the longest unbroken record in the Senate in answering roll call votes. Since April of 1966, there have been approximately 5,000 votes, and Proxmire was reportedly present for all of them.

Proxmire's lecture is part of the "Skeggs Lecture" series.

It is free and open to the public on a first come, first served basis.

Philosopher views decade Cooperation seen as key to '80s

by Barbara Janesh

An increased need for cooperation between individuals and subsequent challenges to personal rights will be characteristics of the 1980's, suggests Dr. Brendan Minogue, chairperson, philosophy and religious studies.

"The 70's have represented a period during which people lost faith in looking for social solutions to their problems," he explained.

The past 10 years, Minogue continues, were preceded by a decade in which people believed that the individual's life could be improved through social institutions.

Minogue borrows from author Tom Wolfe and calls the 70's the "Me Decade," a time when "people returned to themselves, and really started examining themselves from an individual point of view," a time when they were concerned with their own personal problems.

However, Minogue suggests that people are moving away from the "me" focus of the 70's to a decade of increasing interdependence and cooperation.

He views the recent deaths at the Coliseum in Cincinnati as a symbolic ending to the decade of personal priorities.

"The action (in Cincinnati) was a classic action in which people were only concerned for their own pleasure. They wanted the best seats and they didn't think about what they were doing. They were concerned for their own individual happiness and it wound up that 10 or 11 people got killed."

The economic and energy problems which will accompany the 80's, states Minogue, will necessitate "development of our sense of cooperation."

Increasing interdependence and corresponding cooperation will be a direct result of energy problems that the nation will be facing, he explained.

"As we move into a generation in which there is less energy available, one of the ways we're going to solve that problem (shortage) is by increasing and changing our forms of cooperation."

"Americans see themselves as lone eagles. That lone eagle image is captured in the single family dwelling, the single car, the independence of the individual."

"I think that image has got to be changed... (it) can be sustained only if you've got a cheap source of energy."

As the supply of cheap energy dwindles, Minogue suggests, individuals will shift from the alienation of their "lone eagle" positions to more cooperative roles.

As a result, the rights of the individual, usually held to be "in some way or another a fixed thing," will be challenged in the 80's and may give way to societal responsibilities, contends Minogue.

The move towards cooperation may be construed as a threat to individual freedom, he continued, and in fact is. The challenge of the 80's will be to increase cooperation without diminishing individual freedom.

However, Minogue states, although there will be limitations on individual freedom, they will be manifested primarily in a reduction in freedom of choice, and not in restrictions on the more essential freedoms, i.e. religion, speech, press, right to due process of law.

Restrictions in freedom will ultimately be socially and personally beneficial, Minogue contends. "We will increase our cooperation and decrease some of our rights, no question, but the challenge is to decrease those rights which are rights that we are willing to give up.

"The notion that increasing cooperation will harmfully decrease individual rights is not a necessary thing at all."

The increased need and movement towards cooperation will also lead to increased government regulation of business and manufacturing concerns, furthering corporate responsibility for the public welfare, Minogue suggests.

"I don't think there is any question that we're moving in a direction which is more socialistic," he added.

The challenge to government, Minogue suggests, will be to devise regulations which will make corporations more responsible to the citizenry (and thus contribute to a more cooperative society) and eliminate excessive profits, yet not restrict personal and corporate incentive.

"How to artfully design a government that will allow that is our big problem," he states.

"I think what Americans will see during the 80's is that their expectations of what their political economy should be are not going to be matched by the realities and I think there will be a tendency of the citizenry to want government to do something. Traditionally what government has done is to try to regulate. The decision of the 80's is what kind of intelligent regulation, government control, are we going to have."

Minogue concluded by re-emphasizing the need for increased cooperation among all facets of society in the 80's. "We're going to see more and more our interdependence on one another."

Editorial

Campus civility

The drama which has unfolded at the American embassy in Tehran seems to be continuing without the benefit of a director. No one knows who is in charge, who speaks with authority, or who is to be believed as reports of the situation's status surface. The fate of 50 innocent Americans and an entirely new wave of international diplomacy rests in a state of confusion, unrest and turmoil.

Some Americans, and visiting Iranian students have taken advantage of their right to free speech and responded to this crisis in the same tumultuous fashion. Their protests and demonstrations have been unfocused, hatefilled, and unproductive.

Fortunately, this has not been the case with the demonstrations which have taken place on the YSU campus since the crisis began 69 days ago. Frustrations brought about by feelings of helplessness have been expressed in two separate rallies which have supported two different points of view, but at the same time, the rallies had organizers who managed to exercise their right of free speech without spawning attacks on persons or property.

A point of view was clearly stated in each rally. The first rally, held on Friday, Nov. 9, expressed a need for Americans to unite and support the hostages, while the Dec. 10 rally called for the return of the Shah to Iran. Both transpired without bloodshed or flag burnings.

It is to the credit of this campus that varying opinions can be articulated, even on the most sensitive and controversial issues, without the need of the Ohio National Guard or a squadron of ambulances standing by.

The Organization of Women's Liberation (O.W.L.) will hold its first meeting of winter quarter from 3:00 to 4:00 p.m., Monday, Jan. 14, in Room 238, Kilcawley Center. Plans for the quarter will be discussed.

Math & Computer Science Club

The Math and Computer Science Club holds its first meeting of the winter quarter at 3 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 16, in the faculty lounge, Room 1121, Cushman. Anyone wishing to join may do so at this time.

New School of Business Graduate Procedure

A new procedure has been established in the School of Business Administration regarding graduating seniors. Graduation applications and cap and gown order cards will no longer be mailed to each potential graduate. Seniors must now obtain their own application and cap and gown order card. Forms may be obtained from Russell A. Disibio in Room 409, School of Business Administration Building or from the dean's office on the fifth floor.

Birthday Party for YSU Retiree

A birthday party for Nellie Dehnbostel, former chairperson of Natural Science, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 13, in the library of the Shepard of the Valley Home, 1500 McKinley Ave., Niles, Ohio (off Robbins Ave.). Anyone from the University community is welcome. For further information contact Sister Elizabeth Staudt, biology, 742-3606.

Non-Traditional Student Lunch

A brown-bag lunch for non-traditional women students will be held from 11:30 to 1:30, Monday, Jan. 14, in Room 220, Kilcawley Center. All older women students are invited to attend to discuss common concerns.

Varsity Football

All currently enrolled YSU students interested in trying out for the 1980 varsity football team must submit a current university physical (taken within the last 12 months) and a copy of your winter quarter class schedule to the head athletic trainer by Jan. 14, in Room 108, Beethly, in order to be eligible for winter workouts and spring tryouts.

Grievance Filing

The deadline for filing a grievance for a fall quarter class is Wednesday, Jan. 16. The Grievance procedure and forms are available at the Student Government office in Kilcawley Center.

Discussion on British Writer

Brian Murray, a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Tulsa, will speak on "Was Wyndham Lewis 'anti-feminist, anti-semitic and anti-democratic?'" at 2 p.m. Monday, Jan. 14, in the Arts and Sciences Lecture Hall. Lewis pursued a highly successful career in England as an artist, critic, poet, and novelist until his favorable comments of Adolf Hitler in 1931 relegated him to years of obscurity. Lewis is often regarded as a savage critic of the female sex. A faculty reception will be held 3-5 p.m. in the Arts and Sciences Faculty Lounge.

Self-Defense Training

The first of a four-part series on self-defense will be offered at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Jan 16, in the weight room of Beeghly Center. The session will run for approximately an hour and a half. The program is free and open to the public, but there is a 20 person limit. Participants will be admitted on a first come, first serve basis. Anyone interested in participation is encouraged to leave their name in the O.W.L. (sponsor) mailbox in the Student Government offices, Kilcawley Center.

Applications for Tutoring

The Office of Developmental Education will begin accepting applications from students who would like to receive tutoring beginning Monday, Jan. 14. Tutoring is available in most 500 and 600 level courses. Applications may be completed in Room 117, Kilcawley Hall, from 8 - 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Budget Committee Meeting

Any organization interested in receiving funds from Student Government for programs during the 1980-81 school year must attend a budget committee meeting at either noon, Wednesday, Jan. 16, or 10 a.m., Jan. 17, in Room 217, Kilcawley Center.

Organizer says rally was pro-U.S.

by LuWayne K. Tompkins

"It was more a pro-American rally than an anti-Iranian one," reflects Daniel DeHoff, freshman, engineering, who organized a demonstration last quarter to express support for the hostages held in Tehran.

DeHoff notes that he had observed some Iranian students congregating in the Kilcawley Lounge sometime on Nov. 9, and feared they might attempt to burn an American flag, a practice that was getting much media coverage at the time.

"My stand wasn't against the Iranians," says DeHoff. "I was making sure that nothing would be done that was anti-American."

He says there were two purposes for the rally: to show support for the hostages, and to keep an American flag from being destroyed.

Since the Friday afternoon rally, DeHoff says he feels that the U.S. has taken the "decisive action" he called for at that time.

"They're now starting to do the things I was leading to before; the sanctions, pressuring other countries to put pressure on Iran. . . As far as I see, they're doing every thing they can (to secure the hostages' release)."

He refers to President Carter's order to deport Iranians with invalid student visas as a "positive step," provided that they were in fact here illegally, and that the deportation threat was not being used as a form of harassment.

He also recalls that at the time of the rally, which drew approximately 100 persons into the arcade, he expected the crisis would be resolved within a few days, but now admits that it will take time, and continued pressure from the U.S.

Leaders needed for travel program

Children's International Summer Villages is accepting applications for adult delegates, 21 years or older, to accompany 11-year-old delegates to four-week summer villages in Leeds.

Applicants are invited to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 13, at St. John's Episcopal Church, along with the parents of interested 11-year-old candidates. Delegates from last year's campus in Norway and Italy will present a program.

Further information can be obtained by writing the CISV Selection Secretary, 8 Centennial Drive, Poland, Ohio, 44514, or calling 757-9438.

"You would think the Iranians would respond by now, but evidently their government is not in control of the situation. . ."

"They're (the hostages) are going to be released. . . Everything's playing in the United States' favor right now." He cited U.S. success in imposing economic sanctions against Iran and the internal strife among the Moslem sects as examples of the U.S. having the advantage.

DeHoff, a marine veteran, did express displeasure over the marines leaving the compound when the militant students released a few women and Blacks after about a week of captivity.

"I don't believe the marines should have left their post. They are there to guard the embassy. Whether they have weapons or not, I think they should have been the last to leave."

Basically, DeHoff is optimistic about his perception of the continued support for the hostages, and suggests that Khomeini has done more to unite the Americans than anyone in a long time.

Zeigler scores 38 as YSU zaps Zips 80-67

by Ron Anderson

Traveling to Akron has become a winning experience for the YSU Athletic Department this year. The men's varsity basketball team made the jaunt Tuesday and came home with an impressive 80-67 victory.

The win raised the team's record to 9-1 for the season, and gave them an impressive 4-1 road mark.

The game was also the second time that the Penguins have faced the Zips this season, with both contests resulting in YSU victories. YSU won the first contest in an 87-53 runaway.

The first half was a nip-and-tuck battle with YSU holding the lead eight times, Akron leading on three occasions and the score tied eight times. Despite the closeness the Penguins were able to hit seven of the last ten points scored for a 37-33 halftime edge.

Dave Zeigler, who was to have his finest night as a Penguin, led all scorers in the first half with 18 points, as he connected on nine of 12 from the floor.

The Penguins also held a 23-17 advantage in rebounds, with Mitchell Atwood and Steve Miodrag combining for 11 boards.

The second half was a different story, as YSU never gave up its lead and the closest Akron could get to the Penguins was with 6:05 remaining when they closed the gap to 62-55. The Penguins then ran the margin to 72-60 and the closest Akron could get for the remainder of the game was 11 points.

In the second half it was Dave Zeigler leading the way again, this time with 20 points, 10 of which came at the foul stripe as Akron was trying anything to get the ball back and their offense in gear.

Zeigler had the best game of his YSU career, as he led all scorers with 38 points for the game. Dave hit on 14 of 23 from the floor and burned the nets ten of all times from the charity stripe. Aside from his scoring Zeigler grabbed six rebounds, had two steals and dished out two textbook-style assists.

Three other Penguins finished in double figures as Bruce Alexander, Mitch Atwood and Steve Miodrag all finished with 10 points apiece. Shawn Burns and Robert Carter were the only other Penguins to score as they each picked up six points.

On the boards the Penguins won the team battle with a 49-45 edge. Mitch Atwood led YSU with 11, while Steve Miodrag hauled in nine and Bruce Alexander had seven.

Rob Carter dished out seven assists and Bruce Alexander stole the ball from the Zips four times to lead the Penguins in their respective categories.

As a team, YSU shot 45.6% from the floor as compared to 43.1% for Akron. The Penguins hit 82.4% from the line, while Akron could manage only an anemic 61.1%.

The Penguins take to the court again tomorrow night as they entertain Westminster in an 8 p.m. contest in Beeghly Center.

Next week the Penguins will be on the road on Monday to do battle with Philadelphia Textile before returning home for a pair of games with Ashland on Thursday and Cheney State, one of the top five teams in the nation, on Saturday.

Penguin grapplers lack experience; freshmen mature under pressure

by Tina Ketchum

If one word was to be used to describe the YSU wrestling team, it would have to be "young."

The predominantly freshman team is basically less experienced than some of its competitors. Once the experience is gained, there will be even more talent, explained coach Norm Palovcsik. "I'm not putting a lot of pressure on the kids. I'm just being patient and waiting for the team to become more experienced."

The Penguins are being led by senior-captain and All-American, Mike Hardy who boasts a fine 14-3-0 record, including three pins in the 142 lb. division. Also leading the attack is freshman, Bob Donaldson who has a 9-4 mark wrestling in the 150 lb. weight class, and freshman Jeff Saylor who is 9-5-2 in competition in the 158 lb. slot.

Palovcsik's Penguins now hold a 6-4 record in dual meets along with a fourth place finish in both the Michigan Open Tournament and the Cleveland State Tournament. In the Michigan Open, with 23 teams competing, YSU's matmen finished behind, Central Michigan Grand Valley College, and Western Michigan, but placed

Miodrag's unselfish play leads Penguins

by Tony Brudis

If it is possible for someone to give one hundred and ten percent, then that someone is Steve Miodrag.

Off to the best season of his college career, the senior forward has been a major reason behind Youngstown State University's 9-1 mark.

"Steve is having his best season, both offensively and defensively," praised veteran mentor Dom Rosselli, who enters his 36th campaign at the Penguin post. "He's always coming up with key rebounds and plays."

Miodrag, himself, agrees that the start of the 1979-80 winter is his and the team's best. "I feel that I'm having my best year as is the team," stated the three-year letterman. "Everyone on the team is involved and can score."

Although his statistics are deceiving his value to the squad is not. "The only way to describe Steve is as a coach's team-ball player," explained Rosselli. "Steve makes more sacrifices for the team than his stats show."

Going into this Saturday's contest against Westminster College, Miodrag is carrying a 9.3 point average per game. He has netted 31 of 60 field goal attempts for a 51.7 percentage and clicked in 31 of 40 free throw shots (78%).

The accounting major has also grabbed 54 rebounds, for a 5.4 average, has 10 steals, and has dished out 12 assists.

"I set my mind on being a team player," stated Miodrag. "Our offense is more diversified this year and I'm happy with the role I play on it."

Miodrag, who carries a 6-5, 190-pound frame, has been a two-year starter and has played in all but one encounter in that time period. Last season he finished fourth in both scoring and rebounding.

"Steve likes to do things for the sake of outside glory. He utilizes his abilities and does it for the team," said Rosselli. "The kid hustles and never gives up."

Miodrag gives the Penguins an added dimension. His consistent play supplements the scoring and adds balance to YSU's offense. (Cont. on page 8)

ATHLETE - OF - THE - WEEK

Our recipient this time comes from the men's basketball squad in the person of sophomore guard Bruce Alexander.

Bruce has had a fine week, stretching back to the Penguin game against Northern Kentucky. In that contest Bruce scored 19 points, grabbed eight rebounds, picked-off two steals and dished out three assists.

In the YSU road victory at Gannon, Bruce scored 16 points and provided key leadership in the come-from-behind win.

Finally against Akron, Alexander canned ten points, had four steals and grabbed seven rebounds.

During the past week Bruce was also named the Mid-Continent Conference player-of-the-week for his performance against Northern Kentucky and Gannon.

910 enroll in program Weekend Study Program expands class listing

by Rhonda Jacobs

The Weekend Study Program, which initially began fall quarter, is offering 40 new classes this quarter in addition to 18 repeats, according to

Dr. Irwin Cohen, chairperson of the program.

Cohen explained that last quarter's main objective was to get off to a good start. With the total enrollment figure at 910, the program is healthy, he said.

There was a total of 50 classes offered last quarter and the final roster shows that 46 were actually taught, 13 on Friday evening, 26 Saturday morning, and seven Saturday afternoon.

The program has been established to "reach people who have never been to college before," Cohen explained. The courses are structured so it is possible for a person to attend only the weekend classes and still obtain an AAB in three years.

Of the five colleges represented, The School of Business Administration showed the best enrollment figures with the average class size of 32 compared to the average of 20 in most of the other weekend classes. The College of Arts and Sciences offered 22 undergraduate and one graduate class fall quarter, while the School of Business Administration listed seven undergraduate and two graduate classes.

The School of Education offered two of each, and CAST scheduled four undergraduate classes and one graduate course.

The College of Fine and Performing Arts offered five undergraduate classes with none listed for the School of Engineering.

Cohen said that three orientation classes were offered to older, returning students, but enrollment for these was low. "We need to do work on this concept, and we will," he stated.

Miodrag

More importantly Miodrag gives the young Penguins leadership. "I look at myself as the team leader and try to control everyone," related Miodrag.

Coach Rosselli agrees, "Steve lends leadership to the squad," adding that Miodrag thinks like the coaches and has a team philosophy. "He has a great deal of confidence and is extremely talented," Rosselli continued.

An avid music listener, Miodrag had to make a big transition from his Farrell High School to YSU.

Under Ed McCluskey's tutelage, Miodrag was a big scorer and play-maker.

"I had to change my playing role from high school, but I don't mind, especially when we win," recalled Miodrag, who was named to the Pennsylvania all-state second team his senior year.

They say that teamwork will bring a championship. If that's the case, break open the champagne and pour Steve Miodrag an extra glass.

Ranked eighteenth in Division II, the Penguins are off to a fine start. "Being ranked in the top twenty is a nice honor and it's nice to work for, but the beginning is not as important as the end of the season. The important thing is to be ranked eighteenth or higher at the end," stated Palovcsik. Smiling, he added, "Wait until February or March!"

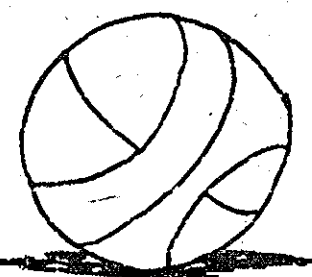

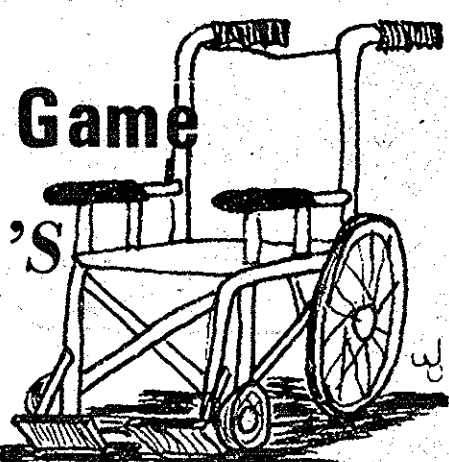

Following tonight's match at Pittsburgh/Johnstown with Washington & Jefferson, the Penguin grapplers wrestle Saturday in a tournament at Shippensburg State. YSU will then play host to Waynesburgh College at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 15.

"We are working really well and I'm very pleased. We're in great shape with young kids who do what we tell them," stated Palovcsik. "We may not be the best, but we work just as hard as the rest."
