Future College Teachers

Senior Students Eligible For Foundation Grants

The Danforth Foundation, an educational Foundation located in St. Louis, Missouri, invites applications for the tenth class (1961) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching, and are planning to enter graduate school in Sept. 1961, for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President Howard W. Jones has named Dean Joseph E. Smith as the Liaison Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these 1961 fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout the years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need. The maximum annual grant for single Fellows is $1500 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students; for married Fellows, $2000 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students with an add-

Critical Trend

Over the past years there has been a trend in American thought to criticize the free enterprise system, continually comparing it to the communistic system of supposedly rapid economic development. Now things seem to be taking a turn. No doubt many of you have seen an example in the full page pictorial - editorials by Lowell Thomas and sponsored by the United States Steel Company which have been making their appearance in newspapers across the nation. The general tone of the ads are that things aren't really so bad here in America, and that too many have been looking at the gloomy side.

This may be so. But is it wrong? Admittedly, America is slowing down. Although many will deny the fact, mergers, price fixing, and big business in general, although not monopolistic, have done much to eliminate competition in the business world. The loss of the American pioneer spirit, which long manifested itself in the entrepreneur is disappearing.

The recovery of West European industry during the past decade has meant a loss of a large market for American exports. The booming health of Europe has made trade a two way street with more and more of the traffic flowing to the United States. As was brought out in the September 26 issue of TIME, we have now reached a point where we are now importing more from Europe than we are exporting. As a result, the Europeans whose claims against the United States are now equal to $21 billion could conceivably wipe out the entire U.S. gold reserve of $18.9 billion if they pressed for payment. This is unlikely, but it is a frightening thing to consider.

Another fact that has recently become apparent is the increasing role of Russia in world trade. As yet they have not been too successful because of the unacceptability of the ruble in trade. But Russia is determined to overcome this handicap. They have been hoarding gold for a number of years for the purpose of backing their own currency. Their reserves are now estimated at $9 billion. If they can achieve this goal, the ruble may well become as acceptable as the dollar in foreign trade. The effect this can have is obvious.

All the fault doesn't lie with the American capitalist. The American laborer has been gradually pricing himself out of the world market for a long time. Labor costs now make up a bulk of the manufacturing costs. In addition, technological advances have not kept pace with those in Europe. If this keeps up, the "Made in Japan" label will become even more common.

There is much more that can be said along these lines. But there is one fact that boils down to. The economic picture is pretty gloomy and no amount of sugar and spice, and saying "But look at the brighter side" can change that picture. Americans must become aware of it before it is too late, and then take positive action to change it.

What Happens Now

Some students are not aware of the fact that there exists at our university a Student Center planning committee for the purpose of looking into and reporting on what should be included in the proposed student union building.

The committee was formed last year by Student Council and consisted of six members. Since that time the committee has made several reports to student council and will soon submit a final report based on last year's findings. The committee has contacted many individuals, including students and faculty of this university, people outside this university and officials of other universities who are now operating student unions. These contacts along with the ideas of our own committeemen have brought about the following suggestions; the union should be divided into six parts, administrative, financial, educational, social, athletics and maintenance.

The committee thinks the union should be self-sustaining with a liberal fee charged to each student at registration. Identification cards can be used for admission to the union and the bowling alleys can charge a small fee for bowling and shoes and the swimming pool can have parties after hours for student and faculty organizations.

The committee was unable to obtain information on the food services at the university and therefore are unable to report on this phase of the union.

The committee concluded that since there are 296 open classrooms in any one day there is no need for classrooms in the union. We are in full support of this point. The committee pointed out that the university could save a considerable amount of money by incorporating a print shop in the union. It was also found advantageous to put into the union a gym, handball courts weight room, etc. A workable social program has been outlined. The committee has drawn up a preamble to the constitution and has made many strides forward in the various phases of planning for the student union.

Finance Decreasing

Federal Aid; A Must For Better Education

By Frank Court

A report released by the Office of Education estimates that in 1965 there will be upwards of 11,000,000 pupils in our public high schools. This figure tops the one given for schools in 1950 by over 5,000,000. Will we be ready for this large rise in enrollment?

THE NUMBER OF unsatisfactory secondary school systems and the growing demand for trained teachers leads us to believe that we won't. Our present school systems are, for the most part, in need of larger and more modern facilities, expanded curriculums, teachers with a better understanding of children, and ample amounts of guidance counseling.

In order to provide our children with the type of education the present demands, we must be prepared to spend two or three times what is now being spent on education. In other words, we must turn to the federal government, for federal aid is the only way the states, especially the poorer ones, can achieve near equality of opportunity.

Let's examine the educational opportunities a youngster receives today. The average child enters elementary school at the age of seven. For six years, he is forced to sit in classrooms overcrowded with his young companions. The school board lacks adequate money for expansion. His teachers will vary both in academic knowledge and personality. Occasionally, he'll be taught by a teacher who knows little more than himself. The demand for teachers is great and the salary entirely too low. The school board plans to raise the teacher salaries as soon as more state aid is received; but more state aid doesn't come.

WHEN THE YOUNGSTER reaches high school he faces the same problems. At a time when he needs understanding and counseling, it is denied him because the teacher is too busy with an overcrowded class cramped in an undersized room. A proper education will be denied him also. A few of the teachers, it will be his misfortune to get, were hired because the school board couldn't get anyone else. The salary was too low.

When our youngster leaves high school he looks forward to college. If he has the money or his family can afford to pay his tuition, he goes to college. It makes no difference whether or not he has the ability; he must first have the money.

THIS IS undemocratic. Democracy implies that everyone should have an opportunity to develop his talents irrespective of the economic status of his family. The number of intelligent Americans denied higher education because they lacked tuition payment is a disgrace; the number of unintelligent Americans possessing the money and making a farce of college is a greater disgrace.

The future of this free country rests in the hands of our youth. Their education must be the best we can possibly afford to prepare them to compete with future world problems. States and local communities have carried as much of the education cost as possible. It is time for expanded federal assistance to finance building programs and provide for decent salary raises to our underpaid teachers.

AND WHO HAS MORE right to offer aid to education than the federal government? Since 1800, Congress has made many references to education in approving the acts by which territories were made states. A provision for public schools was included in each of these acts. Therefore, we may regard the federal government as the unheralded founder of the public school systems in most of the states; Ohio included.

Letters to the Editor

Grateful Queen

Dear Fellow Students,

One of the most wonderful honors has been bestowed upon me in the past week because of your kindness. I would like to thank everyone for letting me represent Youngstown University as the 1960 Homecoming Queen. You can never imagine the happiness and humility I experienced throughout the days of election and during the time of Homecoming ceremonies.

As only a Sophomore, it was indeed a privilege to be selected as queen, but I will always try to live up to the high expectations you have trusted me with when you elected me Homecoming Queen.

During this election I became aware of the wonderful spirit the students have on this campus and I am truly proud to be a part of this enthusiastic group. I only hope that you are as proud of me as your queen as I am in representing you during Homecoming. I will always treasure the precious memories you have made possible for me and hold them deep in my heart. May God bless each of you and grant all your dreams as He has been so good to let me have this wonderful honor.

Gratefully,
Dolly Ford

Beethoven's Symphonies Reflect Life

By J. William Swartz

Among the greatest music in the world is that of Beethoven. Of all his music, the best known is his symphonic masterpieces. Each symphony reflects some mandate of life, a piece of immortality. His Seventh Symphony was composed with Napoleon in mind, and it reflects the heroic qualities and attributes of Napoleon. His Fifth Symphony is an imaginative use of a three note theme, is perhaps the best known of all his symphonies, and reflects the very essence of life.

BEEHOVEN wrote, as far as we know, nine symphonies. Most have been given second names, such as the seventh is called EROICA and the Ninth, CHORAL. It is upon the latter that we wish to elaborate.

Musicians are convinced that Beethoven never heard a note of this symphony, since he was totally deaf when he composed it. This one fact alone can make us aware of the eloquence with which it was written. How many of us can even compose, let alone write a complete symphony with our ears deaf to all sounds.

At the time Beethoven wrote this, he was growing old and knew that his life was fast coming to a close. He wrote this symphony with a final goodbye to the world, as if to say that he sensed the end drawing near. And what a grandiose and lasting goodbye. Throughout the symphony, one finds a sense of finality, and yet, this sense never oppresses the music, rather it is a joyful vent to the celebration that the work is over.

THE FIRST, second, and third movements are in the typical symphonic form, but are all tied together by a string which leads to the fourth and final movement. Here Beethoven has given his song of farewell to the human voice, since his words could never be expressed as aptly by his instruments. Here we find that he has acknowledged the better adapted use of the human voice over that of the instrument, in its ability to communicate a more exact meaning. Yet the harmonious blend is such that neither voice nor instrument outdoes one another, but each lends one to the other for the greater edification of both.

THE FOURTH movement opens with the tempestuous of a heavy sea, crashing against the rocky shore. Suddenly all is calm and the cello enters with gentle announcement of the theme. Then comes the baritone recitative: "O friends, no more these sounds continue! Let us raise a song of sympathy, of gladness. O Joy, let us praise thee!" The setting of the song is to Schiller's ODE TO JOY and makes the best conclusion by its use of the opening and closing stanzas:

Praise to Joy, the God-descended
Daughter of Elysium!
Ray of mirth and rapture blended,
Goddess, to thy shrine we come.
By thy magic is united
What stern Custom parted wide,
All mankind are brothers plighted,
Where thy gentle wings abide.

O ye millions, I embrace ye,
With a kiss for all the world!
Brothers, o'er yon starry sphere
Surely dwells a loving Father.
O ye millions, kneel before Him,
World, dost feel thy Maker near?
Seek Him o'er yon starry sphere,
O'er the stars enthroned, adore Him!

This is Beethoven's Ninth Symphony - a touch of the artist, a musical masterpiece, and a fitting goodbye for ALL the world.

In the 1952 Presidential elections Mahoning County voted: 67,722-Stevenson, 53,164-Eisenhower; in 1956 the county voted 59,126-Stevenson, 63,992-Eisenhower.

Face Mirrors Personality

Facial Expressions Indicate Character; So Say Ancients

Does your facial expression reveal your character? The ancients believed your features gave you away. A receding hair line indicated intelligence; an even row of teeth meant an orderly nature; hazel eyes forecast evil.

THROUGHOUT HISTORY, man has attributed definite characteristics to certain features. Unsymmetrical features denoted an interesting nature; the length and quality of beard determined one's trustworthiness. Deep-set eyes indicated an unscrupulous nature.

Thin faces meant danger. "Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look," said Julius Caesar. Fat faces, meanwhile, meant satisfaction and reliability. Square jaws meant strength while round jaws indicated weakness.

PRETTY OR UGLY, the face has always symbolized something. George Washington's picture, hanging on almost every schoolroom wall, has come to stand for virtue, strength and morality. When we see Abe Lincoln's gaunt dark features and black beard, we usually think of honesty and human dignity -- how often of the five dollar bill?

Some faces have become famous without a name. Most people can identify Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," but how many can tell you who he really was?

OTHER WELL-KNOWN faces are couched in mystery. For instance, no one knows the identity of the warrior whose face appears on American Express travelers cheques and credit cards. The artist who made the original portrait died while completing it, and went to his grave without identifying his model. Did he copy from the statue of an ancient hero, or did his butcher pose?

The same artist, A.E. Foringer, earlier in his career, painted a famous World War I poster that brought $150,000,000 of contributions to the Red Cross, and made the model for that painting, Miss Agnes Tait, world-celebrated. But the face he portrayed for the travelers cheque and credit card has never been identified, even though it is carried by millions of people daily and recognized by merchants and banks all over the world.

The face that launched a thousand ships. Homer, the ancient Greek poet, never described Helen of Troy's individual features, stating only that she was beautiful beyond comparison. Nevertheless, her face has been envisioned throughout history as the height of loveliness.

THE WOMAN with the mysterious smile. Critics for generations have been trying to discover what Leonardo Da Vinci's Mona Lisa had on her mind as she posed for the artist. Recently a doctor suggested that she was soon to be a mother.

The two-faced deity. The ancient Romans always pictured Janus, the god of beginnings, doorways and entrances, as having two heads. Our month, January, the beginning of the year, comes from his name.

The man of a thousand faces. Because of his fantastic ability in the usage of make-up, Lon Chaney acquired this unusual title.

Few Westerns Mean Variety For Fall TV

By Dolly Ford

Along with the fall season, there is a host of new shows that will occupy your screens during the coming months. Due to the fact that the FCC has insisted upon it, there will be a variety of serious and informational shows during the weekdays. Details concerning these programs will be given later.

Very few westerns are slated for the fall schedule. In addition, "U.S. Steel Hour" and "Armstrong Circle Theater" are the only regularly scheduled live dramas at night.

TONIGHT ON channel 27 at 8:30 the DuPont Show of the Month presents "Men in White" (Sidney Kingsley's Pulitzer Prize play) which stars Richard Basehart and Dina Merrill. This is the powerful drama about a young doctor who had to choose between a brilliant medical career and the woman he loved.

On channel 21 at 9 p.m. the "Bell Telephone Hour" presents "Holiday in Music." Back from vacation, the Telephone Hour fills us in on the varied musical fare that audiences have been enjoying during the summer.

GOOD Housekeeping magazine will present a Special Award of Merit to "The Alamo," the 12 million dollar production in which John Wayne produces, stars and directs. The award, to be given to Wayne later this month will be presented by the editor of the magazine.

The Interfraternity Council is a governing body including representatives from all the social fraternities on our campus. The personnel of the Council consist of one permanent delegate and one permanent alternate from each fraternity.

ITS PURPOSES are to promote better fraternity relations, to deal with interfraternity problems on the campus and to promote better relations between fraternities and the administration of Youngstown University.

Dress to Please Yourself; Heed Trends, Not Friends

By Annette Cloffi

"You can please some of the people some of the time,
And all the people some of the time,
But, you can't please all of the people all the time!"

Sooooo, dress to please yourself. This should be rule number one in your fashion formula. Sure, take into consideration friendly advice from mother, boy friends etc., but just because Mom's favorite color is yellow and on you it looks hideous, or boyfriend likes short hair and you look better in long then stick by your guns and do what you know will be the best for you.

Aptitude Test Predicts Music Grads at OSU

A music aptitude test developed at Ohio State University is doing "an excellent job of separating the probable dismissals from the probable graduate", reports Dr. William Poland from the school of music who developed the test.

THE TEST, according to Dr. Poland, is showing high accuracy in predicting a student's music grades and general grades six quarters in advance.

"We can predict grades within half a grade level for 67 per cent of the students and within a grade for about 95 per cent," he reported.

THE TEST contains 150 questions in 13 musical categories and takes one hour to administer.

Dr. Poland said an earlier test, long considered the standard for determining music aptitude, had disappointed many music educators.

The same goes for style fads, or the latest look. If you can't possibly wear some of the things the newest looks offer, then adapt them to yourself in a way that will serve the same purpose.

Example: Hair this year is long, but "the look" is sleekness, and satin smooth - so, if long hair is not for you, then wear your hair as short as you want but keep it smooth and simple and you will be able to achieve the same effect.

Rule number two: select a manner of dress that fits your personality, figure, and general appearance. If you like the collegiate look, stick to tailored blouses, the Ivy-league look, circle pins (incidentally, only to be worn on the right lapel of a tailored blouse), tennis shoes, penny loafers, and saddle shoes. If you like the strictly feminine look then go to it also, but don't mix your looks. For instance, tennis shoes don't go with a frilly blouse and fancy hairdo - logical, is it not?

Rule number three is, keep up with the times. This doesn't mean that you have to buy a new wardrobe every year, it simply means if skirts are shorter than the season before, shorten the skirts you already have. Try to change your old clothes in some way that they will have a completely new look. Both of these things take up nothing but time, and will be no strain on your pocketbook.

Pleased yet? sit down then and think about the three rules that have been mentioned above, make up your mind, stick to them once you've started, and you will be pleased - that's a promise!!!!

Penguins Grab Initial Win Before 6,000 Grid Fans

Scalp Hurons with First-Half Tallies; Horvath and Morelli Lead Massacre

A. Robert Steiskal
Jambar Sports Editor

Last Thursday the Penguins met Eastern Michigan in a thrilling grid battle which saw all the scoring done in the first half. The Penguins probably played their easiest game this season and pushed Eastern Michigan all over the field. The team ran like a well-oiled clock with only a few small miscues being made.

IN THE FIRST quarter, the Penguins kicked off and in the space of several minutes were on their way to paydirt. With 9:50 left to go in the quarter, the Penguins took over the ball. After two plays they were on the Huron 32. Harold Green dropped back and threw one to Johnson who caught it on the run and scampered into the end zone. Hartzell made the point after and the mighty Penguins led 7-0.

Jordan then kicked off again and after several punt exchanges and an intercepted pass, YU was on its way again. Morelli and Horvath took turns carrying on this series with the line opening up big holes and blocking beautifully downfield. The drive was seemingly stopped on the Huron thirty when Green was caught behind the line of scrimmage. On the next play, however, Green connected with Quatro on the ten yard line. On the second play from scrimmage, Green went over for the seven for the second score. Hartzell again kicked

Horvath Mixes Gridiron Duties With Biology

Biology and football, two rather diversified fields, but each of these play a big role in the life of Frank "Snooky" Horvath.

After an outstanding performance in the battle against Toledo, Frank has become known as a crack half-back for the Penguin eleven.

Snooky's football prowess is known by most students, but an unbeknown fact to many is that Frank is a Biology major. Frank's reason for carrying such a difficult major as Biology along with his gridiron duties is explained by "Snooky" as a security measure. He knows he the extra point and the score read 14-0.

THEN, FOR A while, the game seemed to bog down. Neither team was going anywhere. There were about five minutes left in the half when an Eastern Michigan punt was taken by Tommy Richards who raced through an awed Huron team for a touchdown. Hartzell missed the extra point and the Penguins now led 20-0.

Now it was Eastern Michigan's turn. In eight plays, the Hurons hit paydirt. The big play in the series was a pass good for 56 yards from Bryce to Moore. This pass put them on the Penguin 13. Five plays later they scored. Wolf kicked the extra point and the score was 20-7.

YOUNGSTOWN SCORED again in the waning minutes of the half. Morelli and Horvath again shared the job of carrying the pigskin with Morelli going over for the final score. Hartzell made the extra point and the Penguins led 27-7.

The second half did not produce any more scores. Youngstown threatened at least three times, but could not make the final push.

THE TEAM STATISTICS for the game are extremely interesting. First downs; Youngstown - 11, Eastern Michigan - 4. Passes attempted Youngstown - 8, completed - 2, intercepted - 1, Eastern Michigan passes attempted - 28 completed - 8 intercepted - 3. Rushing Youngstown - 325 yards Eastern Michigan - 25 yards.

The individual figures showed that Frank Horvath gained 187 yards in 18 carries and Ralph Morelli gained 75 in eight carries.

Joe Louis held the heavy-weight boxing championship longer than any other boxer. (11 yrs. 8 mo. 7 da.) He fought 71 bouts: knockouts 54, decisions 14, knocked out by 2, and lost by decision, 1.

can't play football forever.

Frank should aim to be as good a biologist as he is a gridder for he earned a letter in his first season with the team and is now only in his second year of service.

Larry Jordan Is Quiet Man

By Rick Collins

Larry Jordan, a quiet-spoken, well-mannered tackle is, unfortunately for our opposition, not nearly so polite on the field. He's even been known to be quite rude to opposing full-backs.

UPON graduation from Youngstown East in 1956, he entered the Navy for nearly two years, playing a year of service ball. With his service obligation behind him, Larry entered Y.U. immediately upon discharge.

Larry maintains that football has helped him much, not only physically, but educationally. Through football, Larry has met many people. He has been able to travel to such places as Colorado, Connecticut, Eastern and Northern Michigan, among many other universities. Larry said, "For instance, while traveling to Connecticut

Heroes Aren't Everything

Team Play is Overshadowed In Search for Individual Hero

By Pete Arlow

The Penguins came out of the Eastern Michigan game in good shape. There were no serious injuries of any kind. Youngstown readily defeated the Hurons by a 27-7 margin. Undoubtedly this will be the easiest game on an eight game schedule.

THE OPPOSITION for the rest of the season will be comprised of big, strong, and tough teams. Two grudge games will be played against Akron and Baldwin-Wallace. For them, the Youngstown game is the biggest on their schedule, regardless of season records.

A lot of conversation has stirred up about this year's football team. Much praise has been heaped on the team and there has been a great deal of commentary written about it. One thing a great many sports fans do not realize is that their approach may be a little narrow-minded. The player who gets his name in the headlines and receives notoriety is regarded as the entire team. Everything that happens or will happen in any contest depends on the so-called heroes performance. But this is not the case. There is no one individual who can guide the fate of a football squad. It will always be eleven men with one intended purpose - to win games. granted there can be one who is outstanding, but the tendency is to over-emphasize his talents as a member of particular squad.

YOU CAN'T just sit down and come up with precise terms as to the spirit, morale, and capabilities of a football team. It assuredly is not contributed to one individual or to several, but to eleven. To describe this spirit of comradeship is as hard as assigning definitions to innate values.

This is one reason why teams, who are apparently loaded with talent, cannot jell into a winning combination. So when you watch a football team, perform, look a little deeper than headlines.

Penalties Will Mar Yardage, Morale if Not Stopped Now

By A. Robert Steiskal

In last week's game with Eastern Michigan, the Penguins of Youngstown University lost 85 yards and a possible touchdown due to a great number of penalties. What were the penalties incurred against the Beedemen?

for the first time were introduced to the Manhattan skyline. We also saw many other interesting sights in New York." Larry says his main benefit of football however, is the education he receives through an athletic scholarship.

OF THIS year's team Larry says, "The fellows not only want to win, but they want to win together." This trait, combined with the team's ability, according to Larry, is a good sign of a winning team.

Larry said, "When we lose, we really need spirit behind us, not offensive remarks jabbed in the direction of players and coaches alike." It's easy to imagine how rough it would be to go all out for a game, then to find you not only lost it, but had to face catcalls, and derisive remarks. Larry says, "As far as winning, the spirit of the fans really affect the team." When you walk on the field and the stands are empty or dead, it's just another football game."

"I can honestly say, however, speaking for the rest of the fellows that we not only play for ourselves, but for the institution that we represent and it's student body". IT IS to be noted that your reporter noticed in Jordan's remarks that there was an earnest appeal for more spirit among this student body. I don't see how, after the performances which the team has given us, that we can refuse. This is an obligation which must not remain unfulfilled.

The four 15 yard penalties called on YU were for clipping and holding. The two clipping penalties were called in crucial plays for YU, and lost a first down which was a great factor in losing the ball in a touchdown drive that started on YU's own ten.

The other two fifteen yard penalties were called on the grounds of illegal use of hands or holding. One of these cost the Beedemen the ball and the other one delayed a touchdown drive.

I would like to explain the penalties in question, and others which may come up during the year.

Clipping means hitting a man from behind, so that he cannot enter a play. This is called on offense only. It usually results from a player blocking from behind.

ILLEGAL USE of hands and arms or holding. This is called on offense or defense, and is usually called on a player that has grabbed another player. On offense, no player may use his hands to stop a man from the opposing team. His hands must not be more than 6 inches away from his chest and he may use only one arm to block a man coming in. The defense, on the other hand, may not grab onto a pass receiver as he goes down the field.

Personal foul is called when a player, who has signaled for a fair catch, is roughed up or pilled on after the whistle blows, grasping opponents face mask, or personal assault.

Delay of the game is called if either team is guilty of not being ready in the time allotted in a time out, or if the offense is not ready to begin their play in the time allotted by the rules after the clock is set in motion.

I believe that the referees have a difficult time calling every play in the game correctly, and they should be given credit for the good job turned in by them every week. However, at last week's game, I noticed several flagrant violations by the Eastern Michigan team that went unnoticed by the referees, but were seen by everyone in the stands near the pressbox. I am not being sour grapes, for I realize how hard it must be to referee a football game properly, and the strain of watching every minute for something to go wrong, but it seems strange to me that while the Penguins lost 85 yards on penalties, Eastern Michigan's Hurons lost none. Maybe they are just more subtle than we.

Why is it that Youngstown University is the only University that plays all its home games on Thursday night? Your reporter will answer this question next week.

THE PLEDGE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Today's column is directed at those young female undergraduates who have recently pledged sororities and are worried, poor lambs, that they won't make good! Following is a list of simple instructions which, if faithfully observed, will positively guarantee that you will be a mad success as a sorority girl.

First, let us take up the matter of housemothers. The housemother is your friend, your guide, your mentor. You must treat her with respect. When you wish to speak to her, address her as "Mother Sigafos" or "Ma'am." In no circumstances must you say, "Hey, fat lady."

Second, let us discuss laundry. Never hang your wash on the front porch of the sorority house. This is unsightly and shows a want of breeding. Use the Chapter Room.

Third, meals. Always remember that planning and preparing meals for a houseful of healthy girls is no simple task. Your cook goes to a great deal of trouble to make your menu varied and nourishing. The least you can do is show your appreciation. Don't just devour your food; praise it. Exclaim with delight, "What delicious pork jowls!" or "What a yummy soup bone!" or "What scrumptious fish heads!" or "What clear water!"

Fourth, clothing. Never forget that your appearance reflects not just on yourself but on the whole house. It was well enough before you joined a sorority to lounge around campus in your old middy blouse and gym bloomers, but now you must take great pains to dress in a manner which excites admiring comments from all who observe you. A few years ago, for example, there was a Chi Omega named Camille Atatürk at the University of Iowa who brought gobs of glory to all her sorors. Camille hit on the ingenious notion of suiting her garb to the class she was attending. For instance, to English Lit she wore a buskin and jerkin. To German she wore lederhosen and carried a stein of pilsener. To Econ she wore 120 yards of ticker tape. Her shiningest hour came one day when she dressed as a white mouse for Psych Lab. Not only her Chi Omega sisters, but the entire student body went into deep mourning when she was killed by the janitor's cat.

Have a real cigarette—have a CAMEL

The best tobacco makes the best smoke!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Finally, let us take up the most important topic of all. I refer, of course, to dating.

As we have seen, the way you dress reflects on your sorority, but the men you date reflect even more. Be absolutely certain that your date is an acceptable fellow. Don't beat about the bush; ask him point-blank, "Are you an acceptable fellow?" Unless he replies, "Yeah, hey," send him packing.

But don't just take his word that he is acceptable. Inspect him closely. Are his fingernails clean? Is his black leather jacket freshly oiled? Is his ukelele in tune? Does he carry public liability insurance? And, most significant of all, does he smoke Marlboros?

If he's a Marlboro man, you know he has taste and discernment, wit and wisdom, character and sapience, decency and warmth, presence and poise, talent and grit, filter and flavor, soft pack and flip-top box. You will be proud of him, your sorority will be proud of him, the makers of Marlboro will be proud of him, and I will be paid for this column.

The makers of Marlboro, having paid for this column, would like to mention another of their fine cigarettes—mild, unfiltered Philip Morris—available in regular size or the sensational new king-size Commander. Have a Commander—welcome aboard.
