YSU forum examines impact of AIDS virus

By MARK PASSERELLO
Jambar Reporter

The Kilcawley Center Ohio Room was the scene for an informative gathering on a subject that is on the minds of the entire country. Entitled "AIDS — Facts and Fallacies," the Wednesday afternoon program was sponsored by the University AIDS Task Force.

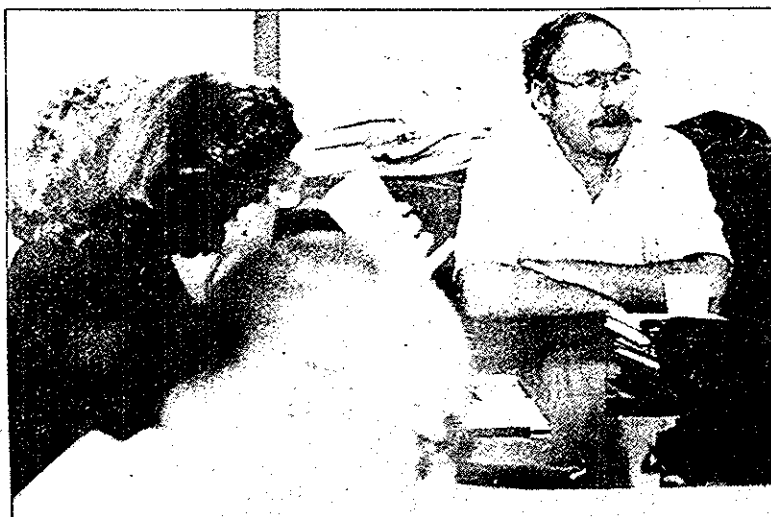

Dr. Brendan Minogue, YSU faculty member and chairman of the task force, outlined the purpose of force. He explained that President Humphrey had set up the group to examine the impact of AIDS on the university community and formulate appropriate policies. The prime goal of the task force is education.

Minogue also stated that the committee does not now and never has planned any discriminatory action or policies concerning AIDS victims.

Three speakers shared information concerning the syndrome, its causes and methods of transmission.

Dr. Chatrchai Watanakunakorn, director of the Infectious Disease Section at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center, discussed current medical facts concerning AIDS. In his opinion, AIDS is a growing threat that is no longer just a big city worry.

Assistant Professor of Allied Health Joan Boyd spoke on the prevention of AIDS. Boyd said

Four thefts occur across YSU campus

By PAMELA GAY
Jambar News Editor

YSU had its share of bad luck as four robberies marred the past week at YSU.

According to Campus Security reports, the first occurred sometime during the weekend of Oct. 3-5. A stereo system, including an equalizer and double deck cassette deck, was stolen out of a resident's room in Kilcawley Residence Hall.

Security reports stated that Frank Wojtczak left the dorm Friday at around 5:30 p.m. and went home

Two-hour course reduction seen University-wide

By MELISSA WILTHEW
Jambar Editor

Various versions of a class scheduling procedure are floating around YSU; however, one fact is clear and that is winter quarter 1987 will hold a definite decrease in two-hour block classes. Discussion on the reduction of two-hour classes began last March during a monthly Deans Council meeting.

During the May 13 meeting, a motion concerning a decrease in two-hour block classes was passed. The decrease was implemented "in an effort to develop a more efficient delivery system of classes...Attempts will be made to standardize the times during which lecture courses, lab courses and graduate courses would be offered so as to prevent overlap."

In practical terms, no two hour block classes will be held during the day but some will remain during evening classes.

Two-hour block classes predominately make up evening

Inn creates fresh alternative

By SUEANN HINES

Today's College Inn is run "strictly by the book," said Linda Modarelli, temporary manager for the Inn.

Modarelli is employed by Hitchcock Management which has taken over running the Inn for its private owner.

"Extensive painting and cleaning" has taken place at the Inn since Modarelli took over in July. There are new rules, regulations and leases to keep the building from reverting to its old ways.

The current leases operate in such a way as to allow the students to decide how long they want to stay at the Inn. The students can rent quarterly or in special circumstances, they can rent for a period of a few weeks.

The lease situation is especially convenient for students who aren't sure if they'll be staying at the University for the whole year; for students who choose to live at the Inn only during winter quarter for driving reasons; and for students who may be graduating mid-year, said Modarelli.

"Our reputation is not good; now it's up to the students," said Modarelli. And Modarelli thinks the Inn's current residents will have no problem maintaining its high standards. "They're super kids," she said.

The bulk of the students are YSU freshmen

Crime prevention fair aims to educate

Leaving school alone, driving by yourself, staying at home alone — situations like these are bound to make anyone feel insecure. If you need to feel safe, the safest place to be is at the first annual Crime Prevention/Awareness Fair from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 13 and 1-5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 14 in Kilcawley Center.

Sponsored by the YSU Personal Security Committee, the Fair will promote the theme "Safety Awareness For Everyone" by uniting various security groups and businesses to educate the YSU community.

Representing the community will be members of the Youngstown Police and Mahoning County Sheriff's Departments, crime prevention organizations such as the North Side Block Watch and the Victims Assistance Program, McGruff, the crime dog, and security product companies.

Members of YSU's Campus Escort Service and Campus Security will also attend the fair.

Campus Security will engrave personal items for identification purposes and Gayle Magnuson of Campus Security will demonstrate self-defense techniques.

Featured at the Fair will be two demonstration devices: the "Convincer", which emphasizes seat belt importance, and an Alcohol Computer. Audio-visual films and slides will also be shown.

Simply put, no one is better equipped than NSA to give you a career on the frontier of communications. And there's good reason.

We're the National Security Agency and the work we do does a job for every American. We safeguard our nation's vital communications. We analyze foreign transmissions. We secure the government's massive computer systems. It takes twenty-first century technology to grapple with these tasks. It takes people like you to "mind" the technology.

Electrical/Electronic/Computer Engineers sometimes specialize, oftentimes opt to investigate a vast range of electronic information technology. You could engage in small to large system design and prototype development testing and evaluation, field installation, or operations support.

Computer Scientists exploit a huge computer facility in their work beyond the limits of finite state machine development and applications.

Mathematicians get a full measure of technological support as well, in developing vitally important practical applications for mathematical concepts in areas such as cryptology.

Here, your tools-of-the-trade will be the tools of tomorrow. With them comes a rare degree of flexibility—a near insistence on exploring new options along your career path. Rapid advancement, early responsibility, competitive salaries and enticing benefits—it all adds up to a career you can live with. And with our location between the vibrant urban centers of Baltimore, MD. and Washington, D.C., you'll be living well.

Bring yourself closer to tomorrow's technologies. Schedule an interview with your College Placement Office. Or write to the National Security Agency.

NSA will be on campus Oct. 20th &
21st interviewing graduating

Office fills Kilcawley rooms

By SUEANN HINES
Jambar Copy Editor

Gone are the days when an organization or group at YSU finds itself without a meeting place. The Kilcawley Calendar and Scheduling office takes care of all seminar, conference and meeting rooms in Kilcawley Center.

The office is headed by Mary Margaret George and is located in the former Information Office, second floor Kilcawley.

The most frequently requested room is the Chestnut Room. Reservations for this room must be made several weeks in advance. Smaller meeting places in Kilcawley require one week's notice.

Organizations who know their agenda for the following school year are placed on a master calendar made once a year by the office.

Any organization wishing to use a meeting room in Kilcawley are encouraged to bring their requests to the Scheduling and Calendar office, open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Students set for teacher evaluations

By BRIAN RAMSEY
Jambar Reporter

Student evaluations of instructors will take place from Nov. 11 to Nov. 25. Students will fill out questionnaires rating their instructors from "strongly agree" to "strongly disagree" according to Dr. Taylor Alderman, vice president of Personnel Services.

The purpose of student evaluations is to give the chairmen of the various departments and the deans of the various colleges a measuring instrument and to determine if a faculty member qualifies for a promotion, said Alderman.

"Every year faculty may apply for a promotion in rank. In turn they must lay out evidence of successful performance in teaching," Alderman said.

The student evaluation is the major piece of data used to decide on a promotion in rank or a tenure review. These reviews are normally conducted by a department board or chairperson.

The questions on the student evaluation are decided during contract negotiations. They are discussed jointly and privately between representatives of the University, the faculty and the student government.

Based on the agreement between the faculty and the administration:

- All information will be summed and meaned for each course in which the faculty member is evaluated.

- Teachers will receive a page which indicates the mean and median response to each question.

GO FROM COLLEGE TO THE ARMY WITHOUT MISSING A BEAT.

The hardest thing about breaking into professional music is—well, breaking into professional music. So if you're looking for an opportunity to turn your musical talent into a full-time performing career, take a good look at the Army.

It's not all parades and John Philip Sousa. Army bands rock, waltz and boogie as well as march, and they perform before concert audiences as well as spectators. With an average of 40 performances a month, there's also the opportunity for travel—not only across America, but possibly abroad.

Most important, you can expect a first-rate professional environment from your instructors, facilities and fellow musicians. The Army has educational programs that can help you pay for off-duty instruction, and if you qualify, even help you repay your federally-insured student loans. If you can sight-read music, performing in the Army could be your big break. Write: Chief, Army Bands Office, Fort Benjamin Harrison, IN 46216-5005. Or call toll free 1-800-USA-ARMY.

The last-minute cram

Ah, the good 'ole days.
 The good 'ole days of the first week of school are a quickly-fading memory: YSU students stood in line at the bookstores, bought crisp notebooks and wore new school clothes.

Remember?

However, lines that twist and turn are no longer visible inside the bookstores, your notebook has become tattered and that new sweater is beginning to stretch.

These memories come rushing back when you take a second look at your syllabus. The initial look was during day one's first five minutes of class and a mental note of the first exam date is made.

Every YSU student knows that feeling of superiority during the first glance at the course syllabus — and the promises you make to yourself.

"This quarter I'm going to study a portion every night. I won't be caught cramming the night before an exam arrives. I'll be prepared," you pledge to yourself. "Yeah, that's what I'll do."

Hal! I made the pledge and got caught in the trap. The trap was a list of some 160 geology vocabulary words — each one more detailed than the next. Now more than ever do I appreciate the reknowned world of rocks.

The study pledge can be heard from great numbers of students during the first week of class, but few stick to it. Remember your pledge and study days, even weeks, before that first exam.

When it's over you'll be glad you did.

COMMENTARY

What's going on here?

If you've been confused lately by some of the signals coming from Washington D.C., don't worry — odds are you're probably not alone. Some of the news coming from our nation's capitol indicates our leaders either are actively lying or having serious problems figuring out what the truth is in the first place (no surprises either way I suppose).

On Aug. 25, The Wall Street Journal reported the Reagan Administration was prepping a follow-up to the April bombing raid on Tripoli and Benghazi. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the report was "unauthorized but highly authoritative." Summer news being what it generally is — the press loved it.

Last week, however, Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward — star of stage, screen and Watergate — revealed the Journal story to be nothing more than a fabrication by the Reagan Administration meant to put a scare into Libyan leader Muammar Kaddafi, however his name is being spelled this week.

And he had proof, too — an August memo from National Security Advisor John Poindexter to President Reagan which outlined a "disinformation program" which would lead Kaddafi to believe the U.S. was ready to make a military move against him.

According to the story, the disinformation policy was approved over a week before the story appeared by the National Security Planning Group, including both Reagan and Poindexter. Of course, Reagan did pretty much what you might expect when the word got out; he said Woodward's story was false. (Here's familiar territory: an American president publicly denying a Post story's accuracy while lying through his teeth.)

While Reagan was trying to discredit the Post, his secretary of state, George Schultz, attempted to justify misleading the press and the American people in general. He even used a nice quote from Winston Churchill: "In time of war, the truth is so precious it must be attended by a bodyguard of lies."

Very pretty words, but the tactics employed here are precisely the ones used by the Soviet Union. You know, the evil empire; the guys Reagan says we're so different from because of our values, like liberty, justice and honesty.

Then we have the Daniloff affair. Last week, the Soviets released Nicholas Daniloff, the correspondent for U.S. News and World Report they had arrested in retaliation of the arrest of Genady Zakharov, a minor U.S. employee caught in engaging in espionage.

The U.S. expelled Zakharov after he plead no contest to one of the charges against him. (The See Commentary, page 10)

Feels editorial hypocritical

Dear Editor,
 In reply to the Oct. 7 issue's editorial, I have a few comments. First of all, there's nothing like a little hypocrisy to brighten my day. Towards the end of your article, you urge your brother to "try others." Why don't you?
 Secondly, you open the article by stating something "terrible" has happened to your brother.
 O.k., it is your opinion and maybe to you this "transformation" is terrible, but to me terrible would be a terminal illness, a kidnaping or something a little more important than a mere change in musical preference.
 Why is it that one-quarter of a page was wasted on such a petty and weak attempt to degrade mild alternative music?
 Finally, you mention something about your brother's music taking over your "limited hearing range." It seems to me that your hearing range isn't your only perception that is limited.

Classes

 classes because of graduate courses held after 5 p.m.
 The change in scheduling resulted after a review of last spring quarter's roster, according to University Provost Bernard T. Gillis. "It was time for me to review class scheduling," Gillis said, after receiving student complaints concerning scheduling conflicts.
 Gillis said practical scheduling lies in obtaining a system "convenient to the majority [of the students]."
 Gillis said the new procedure in scheduling would be modified as needed.
 The new scheduling policy is being assigned by the Academic Senate executive committee to a review committee, Gillis added.

Marvin Robinson, Student Government president, is accepting letters from YSU students who disagree with the decrease in two-hour block classes. "If they can't offer students classes when they want and need them, then they might as well shut the University down," Robinson said.
 "If legitimate complaints are received from students, the times classes are offered may be changed," Robinson said.
 The decrease in the availability of two-hour block classes will be implemented University-wide and not in particular departments.
 Some tend to disagree with the two-hour block decrease — particularly the Williamson School of Business Administration (WSBA).
 Dr. Clement Psenicka, chairman of the Management Dept., said that the decrease of two-hour block classes, which make a large part of the business schedule, "will surely hurt the students."

 Many YSU students work and use the two-hour block classes because this method is flexible with their work schedules allowing them to be on campus only two days a week. Some business students have complained that hour-block classes will increase time on-campus to four days a week.
 Student complaints are going hand-in-hand with faculty complaints. According to Psenicka, many in the school of business like the two-hour block classes because this allows research time.
 "The WSBA will also lose qualified faculty it has already hired. If the schedule policy remains in effect I would anticipate losing at least two people from the Management Department alone by the end of the current academic year," Psenicka stated in a memo dated Aug. 4, 1986.

 The memo went on to state "there should also be a loss of two in Marketing and at least three in Accounting/Finance. These people are not the ones the school wants to leave."
 When asked who those expressing an interest in leaving were, Psenicka declined to comment.
 He did say that those expressing an interest in leaving would not leave in the middle of an academic year but at the beginning of the year, such as next September.
 The decrease in research time due to the decrease in two-hour block classes is seen as a possible block in WSBA gaining accreditation.
 WSBA has been trying to obtain accreditation through the American Assembly of Collegiate School of Business (AACSB). Psenicka stated in the Aug. 8 memo that this accreditation "has been destroyed by unwise administrative action and I believe the possibility of recovery is remote."

 Another part of the scheduling policy that has been partially implemented with no apparent side-effects is full-year scheduling. This will allow students to plan better, Gillis said.
 "Each department knows basically what they are going to offer. By and large, scheduling can be planned ahead," he said.
 The YSU bulletin of classes which was handed out during add/drop, lists class schedules for fall and winter, and proposed classes for spring.

BLISS HALL

Co-sponsored by Student Government

Inn

Continued from page 1 coming from as far away as Mississippi. The Inn doesn't limit its residents to YSU students, however, and there currently is one New Castle School of Trades student.

The College Inn is striving for a safe, clean, dormitory environment. There is an intercom system connecting the three floors; visitors are permitted in the rooms until 11:00 on weeknights, 1:00 on weekends, there are no hours for the open study lounge; the students must maintain a decent standard of dress when they are in the halls; each floor has a kitchen, laundry room and 2 bathrooms; the second and third floors are for men, the fourth is for women; each room is equipped with a refrigerator, double dresser, twin bed, desk and chair; and there is no drinking in open areas.

The students are allowed to have phones and cable TV in their rooms and they basically can come and go as they please. Modarelli tells the students "You can come in at 3 o'clock in the morning, just don't let me hear you come in at 3 o'clock in the morning."

A permanent manager is still needed for the Inn. Modarelli said it's taking so long to find one because she won't leave "her kids" in the hands of just anyone. The manager would have his own apartment at the Inn and make himself available to the students for a minimum of four hours a day. "The rest is just being here for the kids," said Modarelli.

The College Inn is a viable alternative for off-campus living. If it sounds promising to you, there are still several rooms available. Rent is $550 a quarter, adjusted if you aren't planning on staying that long. A $50 security deposit and $100 reservation fee are required. The security deposit is returned to the resident when he leaves if no damages have been done and the reservation fee is deducted from the following quarter's rent. The latter is waived if the resident is not planning on staying more than one quarter.

For more information about the College Inn, located at 259 Lincoln Avenue, call 744-1200.

AIDS

Continued from page 1 director of Counseling and Health Services, examined myths associated with AIDS. He thought that the hysteria concerning the syndrome is due to ignorance and fear. A wider understanding of the condition will help alleviate "our own fears, plus make life easier for AIDS victims and their families."

All three speakers were unanimous in their view that because there is now a cure for AIDS, the only way to prevent it is to educate the public about proper safeguards.

The disease is spread through sexual contact, specifically with gay or bisexual men. It is also spread by contaminated needles used by intravenous drug users.

Because the virus must come in direct contact with the blood, casual contacts such as shaking hands, using the same restrooms, etc. do not spread AIDS as far as current evidence can prove.

Two audience members with direct concerns involving the AIDS issue also contributed. Ray Naegly of the Mahoning County Chapter of the Red Cross, stated that giving blood is completely safe and that because of modern testing procedures, the chance of infected blood being made available is almost nil.

Rick Lange, director of Peer Services, a local counseling organization that deals specifically with gay men and women, echoed the speakers call for education of the public, and the need for anyone in the risk groups to practice safe sex practices.

"I've seen AIDS," he said, "and it's something you never want to see."

Evaluations

All questions range from five points for "strongly agree" to one point for "strongly disagree."

The sheet titled "Student Evaluation of Teaching Summary" uses two columns. The left is marked "I" indicating the mean or median response for the instructor. The right column is marked "U," indicating the mean or median response for all the instructors evaluated.

Calling or writing the chairperson of the department and contacting the Academic Grievance Committee are other means of feedback from the students, said Alderman.

Dental hygiene tips offered, clinic explained

By BRIAN M. RAMSEY
Jambar Reporter

In case you hadn't heard, October 5-11 was National Dental Health Week. According to the Actuarial tables, the lifespan of the average American is now approximately 78 years and people are still losing all their teeth at an average age of only 45-50.

Wendy Gainey, vice president of the Student American Dental Hygienists' Association said that the main thrust of National Dental Hygiene week was two-fold; first, to help educate the American public, and second, to create greater public awareness of the care available to them including the benefits that come from proper care.

For students who aren't aware or who may have forgotten, YSU has its own Dental Hygiene clinic. This year the services of the clinic are free. Previously there was a $5 fee.

Now anyone who has an hour free from 8-12 a.m., Monday-Friday can have their teeth cleaned, x-rayed and receive a new toothbrush at no charge.

According to Gainey, the importance of cleaning cannot be overstressed. Cleaning by a hygienist is one of the most effective ways to help control or prevent periodontal (gum) disease even in those patients with poor dental hygiene, she said.

Although a patient's teeth may be loose he can still be treated and is still better off than someone who opts for dentures, Gainey said.

For example, a person with normal teeth will have 100 percent chewing capacity while a person with dentures will only have 20 percent normal chewing capacity, she added.

With dentures a person also has constant irritation to the soft tissues in their mouth which is considered to be a primary cause of cancers, said Gainey.

Some general rules of good Dental Health care include:

- Brush regularly, after meals and snacks and especially before bedtime. Be sure to rinse after brushing to clear food particles and reduce acids in your mouth.

- Floss before brushing daily so that teeth and gums get a good fluoride treatment from your toothpaste. To make flossing easier, keep floss close to those areas where you spend a lot of time. Good places are close to your favorite chair or next to your bed when studying. This way you can floss while you are doing something else.

- See your hygienist and dentist at least twice a year to catch problems while they are still small, or hopefully to avoid them altogether.

According to Gainey, we need to remember that we only get one set of permanent teeth and we are a lot better keeping our teeth than we would be with dentures. Good dental hygiene is relatively easy, consumes very little time and is extremely cost effective.

The Student American Dental Hygienists Association encourages everyone to take advantage of YSU's free dental services. You can make an appointment by calling 742-3342.

to Pennsylvania. He returned to the dorm Sunday at 5 p.m. and discovered his stereo missing from his room, the report stated.

In the security report, Wojtczak said his roommate, Randy Worthy, told him that he had double-locked their dorm room door on Friday when he left for the weekend to go home.

Wojtczak said in the report that when he first opened the door on Sunday, the door was single locked.

Campus Security made a check of the door and found no pry marks, the report continued. Further, the door "could not be carded," the report stated.

The report continued that Campus Security made a check of the stereo wires and discovered that the stereo had been disconnected before it was removed from the room.

Nothing else was reported stolen from the room.

In the security report, April Brown, housing coordinator, said that the door lock to Wojtczak's room had "recently been rekeyed."

She further stated in the report that no one could have gotten the master dorm key except her workers and that "none of them would have done this."

No arrests have been made so far.

In another incident, a student attending a 2 p.m. class in Debartolo Hall, Tuesday, had her billfold, welfare ID, food stamps and miscellaneous change and coupons stolen while she was in class.

The security report stated that the victim said she left her purse sitting on the floor opened by her desk located in the rear of the room. She reported that other students in her class were "disturbing her thoughts by placing papers on her desk."

She said in the report that she discovered the missing items from her purse after she left class. The report added that the victim had not noticed anyone around her purse.

Two young women were burglarized in Maag Library this week.

According to security reports,

YSU student Margaret T. Alcantar stated that she placed her purse at a study table on Level 4A of the Library at around 1:25 p.m. Wednesday.

The report continued that at 1:30 p.m. Alcantar observed a subject at her table. When she returned to her table, the subject left, the report stated.

After checking her purse, she discovered her money missing from her wallet, the report said. Jeanne M. Nicolls had $47, her wallet, and some personal effects stolen the same day, a few minutes before Alcantar, security reports stated.

Nicolls said in the report that she placed her purse on a study table in the same aisle as Alcantar's, three tables down.

The report stated that at around 1:15 p.m., Nicolls left her table for a minute. When she returned, she discovered her wallet missing from her purse.

Campus Security reports described the suspect of both Library burglaries as a black male with a moustache, approximately 5'9", conservatively dressed, and a thin build.

Responds to commentary

Dear Editor,

Although I lean toward neither of this year's 17th district congressional candidates, I feel I must respond to Lynette Yurcho's October 7, Commentary.

What was the point of Ms. Yurcho's article? She kept rambling on about dishonesty and Mr. Traficant's upcoming tax evasion trial. Yurcho also alluded to the past trial of Mr. Traficant. A trial that ended in Mr. Traficant's acquittal, or has this slipped past Yurcho's memory? It seems that Yurcho is trying to undermine the very basis of our democratic judicial process; the principle of one being innocent until proven guilty. Let's give our judicial system a chance to prove Mr. Traficant is guilty, therefore dishonest.

Yurcho's commentary sounds as if she is a disgruntled Republican who is playing the role of sore loser before the results of the November election are known. If Yurcho has the facts to prove Traficant guilty I suggest she contact the IRS. If not, I suggest she keep her commentaries to more fact filled issues, of which she will have a chance to prove her point.

Murder focus of crime stoppers

The unsolved aggravated murder of Mr. David V. Kirkham in 1984, in the quiet rural community of New Springfield Township, has been selected as the "Crime Of The Week" by the Greater Youngstown Crime Stoppers. There has been only one other murder in the last eighteen years in New Springfield.

Mr. Kirkham was 33 years old and resided at 13485 Beaver Springfield Road, New Springfield, Ohio. He was single and unemployed at the time of his death. Sergeant Rodney Knight, of the New Springfield Township Police Department, stated that Mr. Kirkham had been attacked and beaten sometime between the hours of 10 p.m. on June 22, 1984, and 8:20 a.m. the following morning of June 23, 1984. He further stated that Mr. Kirkham was found by his neighbor's daughter, lying on the ground in his front yard by his mobile home trailer. He had been severely beaten about his head and upper body with an unknown blunt instrument and possibly kicked in the area of his midsection. He had been beaten by an unknown assailant(s) and was in an unconscious state and was taken to the hospital. Mr. Kirkham never regained consciousness and died ten days later on July 3, 1984.

Anyone with information on this aggravated murder is asked to call Crime Stoppers collect at 746-CLUE Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Persons with information do not have to give their names. A code number will be assigned to each caller. If the information leads to the arrest and indictment of the person(s) responsible, a cash reward of up to $1,000 will be given as authorized by the Crime Stoppers Board of Directors.

The victim's father, Mr. Victor J. Kirkham, has offered a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the assailant(s) responsible for his son's death. See Crime, page 10

Commentary

Government officials, strangely enough, claim it wasn't a trade.

I can understand the government wanting to save face, but this silly denial just spreads egg all over it.

The situation was very simple. We had something the Soviets wanted, namely Zakharov. They had something we wanted, Daniloff. We got him back, the Soviets got their guy back. That's a trade.

Maybe George Bush should go back to his old habit of reading from the dictionary.

(Note: I'd like to apologize for an error which appeared in my Sept. 26 column. The heavies in the "Balance of Terror" Star Trek episode were the Romulans, not the Klingons. However, another error I allegedly made was indeed accurate. The first televised episode was "The Man Trap."

38 Special rated excellent

By JOHN CHARIGNON
Special to the Jambar

Bon Jovi and 38 Special in one evening — what a billing! Show me a rock fan who could ask for more.

It was very simply a musical treat that anyone would enjoy. In fact I'd even consider dragging my mother along (with earplugs intact, of course) just to show her what a good rock concert is like. I have seen many shows in my years of concert going, but this one definitely ranks among the best of them.

Bon Jovi's rough-edged rock 'n roll and 38 Special's danceable pop/boogie tunes made for an interesting combination. One look at the crowd and it was clear this was no ordinary show. The clean-shaven oxford and corduroy fans outnumbered the leather-clad longhairs. I'd even bet that two-thirds of the audience was women. I wonder why? I think it's a combination of the music and the physical stature of these performers.

Bon Jovi opened his hour-long set with "Raise Your Hands" from the current Slippery When Wet album. Also included was "Let It Rock" and the very popular "You Give Love a Bad Name" from the same disc.

Anyone who has ever seen Jon before can attest to the fact that he's a very energetic performer who thrives on audience participation. His crooning and dancing brought many screams of approval from the female counterparts in attendance. Aside from those antics, he really does have a good voice. The show also included old favorites "In and Out of Love," "Get Ready," "Breakout," and "Runaway."

The headliner, 38 Special, was superior. Often referred to as the last of the Southern boogie bands, they displayed true versatility with the precision combination of two drummers and three extra backup members — a keyboardist from Morgantown, WV and two female supporting vocalists. Presently, the band is five months into a tour supporting their fourth platinum album, entitled Strength in Numbers.

Their 1½ hour set opened with "Rough Housin'" from the Special Forces album and included other hits from the same record: "Caught Up in You," "Back on the Track," "You Keep Running Away," and "Chain Lighting."

Two tracks from Tour de Force were chosen: "Back Where You Belong," and "Twentieth Century Fox." Wild Eyed Southern Boys contributed its title track as well as "Strong Believer," "Hold on Loosely," and "Rockin' Into the Night."

The soundtrack single "Teacher Teacher" was included with a barrage of new material, such as "Somebody Like You," "Just a Little Love," and "Last Time." The encore even included an old Creedence Clearwater Revival tune called "Travelin' Band."

Perhaps the one major aspect of this show which made it most enjoyable was the quality of the sound mix. It was very clean and not overpowering; it was even understandable. That's wonderful because if you can recall when compact discs were first introduced, this is the type of fidelity which they were trying to capture. After all, the live performance in the concert hall is the place where it counts the most. It's so nice to see (and hear) musical perfection such as this.

Believe me, there are very few concerts which one can safely laud as much as this one. It was pure excellence!

Pure excellence: 38 Special's Southern boogie style of music combined with versatility makes them a must-see in concert. Supporting their latest album, Strength in Numbers, the group recently performed at the Civic Arena in Pittsburgh.

'Fireworks' explodes with color

By SUSAN WALSH
Special to the Jambar

"Fireworks — American Artists Celebrate the 8th Art" is an exhibit of works that everyone who oohs and ahs at fireworks displays will enjoy.

It is a depiction of fireworks on canvas dating from the middle nineteenth century to the present. The group of artists selected could be called pyrotechnicians of a sort since their works almost explode with color and intensity whether it be a drawing of the actual firework itself, the illumination or a blueprint for a launching station.

The first indication of this energy is the neon sign flashing the word "Fireworks" boldly in red as one enters the show. To the left of this hangs an oil by Coleen Browning called "Fireworks II," one of a series done by Ms. Browning. Its bright colors of orange and yellow and spidery lines of falling debris remind one of a hot, humid July 4th night spent gazing up into the sky. The frame is also incorporated in with the theme because it appears as if the painting has burst from its confines onto it and left some residue.

A "Study for Battle of Lights Coney Island, Mardi Gras" by Joseph Stella, leaves one with a feeling of kinetic energy. His staccato brush strokes are spaced so as not to overlap and the background is partially exposed as if Mr. Stella could not suppress his energy.

In contrast to this lively piece, "Fireworks Across the Potomac" by James H. Moser gives a solemn almost reverent view. This oil uses the moon as the natural illuminator with the fireworks as the man-made illuminators of the sky. The background is almost entirely blackened leaving one with the feeling of solitude on a dark country night. It is most impressive because the artist wants us to see the beauty of nature is awesome as well.

Most of the artists depicted their impressions of the exploding fireworks and some showed the unlit firecracker and the crowd of observers. In some paintings, the fireworks were not the main theme but simply a calendar or reminder of an event.

All in all, the fanfare that brought this show to Butler should remain to be relished by young and old. Now you don't have to wait until dark to enjoy fireworks. Just stroll through Butler to capture the excitement, energy and power of the eighth art.

Music competition begins

The 35th annual BMI Awards to Student Composers competition will award $15,000 to young composers. The deadline for entering the 1986-87 competition, which is cosponsored by the BMI Foundation, will be Tuesday, February 10, 1987.

BMI established the awards program in 1951 in cooperation with music educators and composers. The contest is designed to encourage young composers in the creation of concert music and, through cash prizes, to aid in continuing their musical education. The prizes, which vary from $500 to $2,500 are awarded at the discretion of the final judging panel.

The 1986-87 competition is open to students who are citizens or permanent residents of the Western Hemisphere including North, Central and South American and Caribbean Island nations, and who are enrolled in accredited secondary schools, colleges or conservatories or are engaged in private study with recognized and established teachers anywhere in the world.

Contestants must be under 26 years of age on December 31, 1986. There are no limitations as to instrumentation, stylistic consideration or length of work submitted. Students may enter no more than one composition, which need not have been composed during the year of entry.

Official rules and entry blanks for the 1986-87 competition are available from the Barbara A. Petersen, Director, BMI Awards to Student Composers, 320 West 57th Street, New York, NY 10019.

A talk with Jim Tressel

The "new season" begins tomorrow afternoon at the Stambaugh Stadium here at YSU as your Penguins take on Tennessee Tech at 1:30 p.m. After a disappointing "pre-season," the character and persistence of the football team will be on display for all to see. Look for the Penguins to kick-off the OVC schedule with a bang!

This weekend marks the first full slate of OVC games, as Tennessee Tech visits Youngstown State, Akron is at Middle Tennessee, Austin Peay travels to Morehead State, and Murray State battles Eastern Kentucky. The current OVC standings are:

Austin Peay	1-0
Eastern Kentucky	1-0
Youngstown State	0-0
Tennessee Tech	0-0
Murray State	0-0
Morehead State	0-0
Akron	0-0
Middle Tenn	0-2

The Golden Eagles of Tennessee Tech invade Stambaugh Stadium with an 0-3 slate, with losses coming at the hands of Division I-A power, Tulsa, 1985 Division I-AA National Champion Georgia Southern, and always tough University of Tennessee Chattanooga.

Tennessee Tech brings to Youngstown the OVC leader in kick-off returns (James Coney — 26.5 yds./net), and punting (Scott Meadows — 45.2 yds./punt). The Penguins also have league leaders in Rick Shepas with 19 receptions, and Jerry Pacifico with 51 tackles. Trenton Lykes is No. 2 in OVC passing and total offense.

Join in the fun, right here on campus, as we plan on being an enthusiastic, hustling and hitting football team, beginning with the opening whistle! Help us go for the Ohio Valley Conference Crown! See you at the stadium on Saturday.

Cross country teams victorious, Raupach sets new course record

By Joni Griffith
Jambar Sports Editor

Heidi Raupach raced to an overall win in the Wooster Invitational cross country meet on Sept. 27 with a time of 19:31, defeating over 100 runners from 14 colleges.

Ashland College won the event, while YSU's women placed seventh overall.

Other YSU finishers are Renay Falibota (42) at 22:40, Denise Spencer (46) at 22:47, Bev Smith (54) at 23:16, Glorian Duricy (59) at 23:52, Carla Moser (66) at 24:47 and Laura Luther (69) at 24:40.

For the men's team, Bill Hess came in first for YSU with a time of 26:58, placing 14th in a field of over 150.

Wooster College captured the men's overall win, while YSU's men's team placed eight. Other finishers for the men were Tom Bellish (48) at 28:32, Jeff Luther (61) at 29:17, Rich Price (67) at 29:33, Greg Cisneros (68) at 29:34 and Joe Misik (90) at 31:04.

Raupach sets record

Heidi Raupach set a new course record last Saturday at Westminster College in a quadrangular meet, defeating Grove City, Bethany and Westminster.

Raupach's course time was 18:56 to lead the YSU women to three victories. Other Penguin finishers were Karen Lane (2) at 19:53, Renay Falibota (4) at 20:47, Denise Spencer (7) at 22:01, Bev Smith (8) at 22:40 and Carla Moser (14) at 24:10.

YSU's Bill Hess also recorded a winning time for the men, coming in at 27:05 for the overall victory.

The men dropped two of three decisions, losing to Westminster and Grove City, but defeating Bethany.

Other finishers for the men include Jeff Luther (8) at 28:25, Joe Misik (19) at 20:07, Rich Price (22) at 30:19, Greg Cisneros (24) at 30:29 and Terry Lyden (28) at 32:34.

Both the men and women cross country teams journey to the All Ohio Championships today at Ohio Wesleyan in Delaware, Ohio.

Cheerleaders rouse 'em, prepare for upcoming tryouts

By GEORGE NELSON
Special to the Jambar

It's hard to imagine what a home football or basketball game would be like without cheerleaders. Whenever the team takes to the field, regardless of rain, sun or snow, that squad of young men and women is out there to promote support for the athletic teams. Why?

"It's a lot of fun," says Doreen Anderson, advisor for the basketball cheerleading squad. Anderson, the academic advisor for YSU athletes, recently took over the position and is preparing for the tryouts for the new squad, which will be held next week.

According to Anderson, the selections are being made earlier this year because of the Chamber of Commerce Invitational Classic, which is being held Dec. 5-6 at YSU.

"We'd like to be a really impressive unit by that point," Anderson said. That tournament will be preceded by one other home game on Dec. 1.

The ideal number for the squad is eight female cheerleaders and eight male cheerleaders, called male lifters. According to Mary Ann Lisko, cheerleading advisor for football, that goal was achieved in 1982, the first year games were held at Stambaugh Stadium. While the female membership usually meets its goal, the male lifters generally fall short, getting between four and six.

Since none of the area high schools use male lifters, most lifters generally begin with the same amount of experience. They must be able to bench press 130 lbs. and must possess a high level of coordination.

The lifters also must overcome the stigma which often surrounds "guy cheerleaders" in the area, a stigma which Anderson observed is not present in other areas. "If you look at any TV games, all the major schools have male lifters," she said. "At a lot of schools, it's very competitive to be able to be a male lifter. In Wisconsin, it was impossible to be a male lifter unless you were a fraternity member." Anderson also noted those students with a background in gymnastics do well.

Since local high schools have female cheerleader squads, most of the girls who try out "come in with more cheerleading experience than the guys," Anderson noted. "They know more what to expect in terms of motivating a crowd, in terms of knowing the motions, which guys have the hardest time picking up."

The ability to get in front of a crowd is vital for the cheerleaders. "That takes a lot of self-confidence, especially in basketball, since the fans are so nearby," Anderson observed. "It's not like football where they're way out. You're very much up front, the center of attention. It takes a lot of self-confidence to be able to get out there for guys, especially the first time. They're not used to it. They haven't done it in high school."

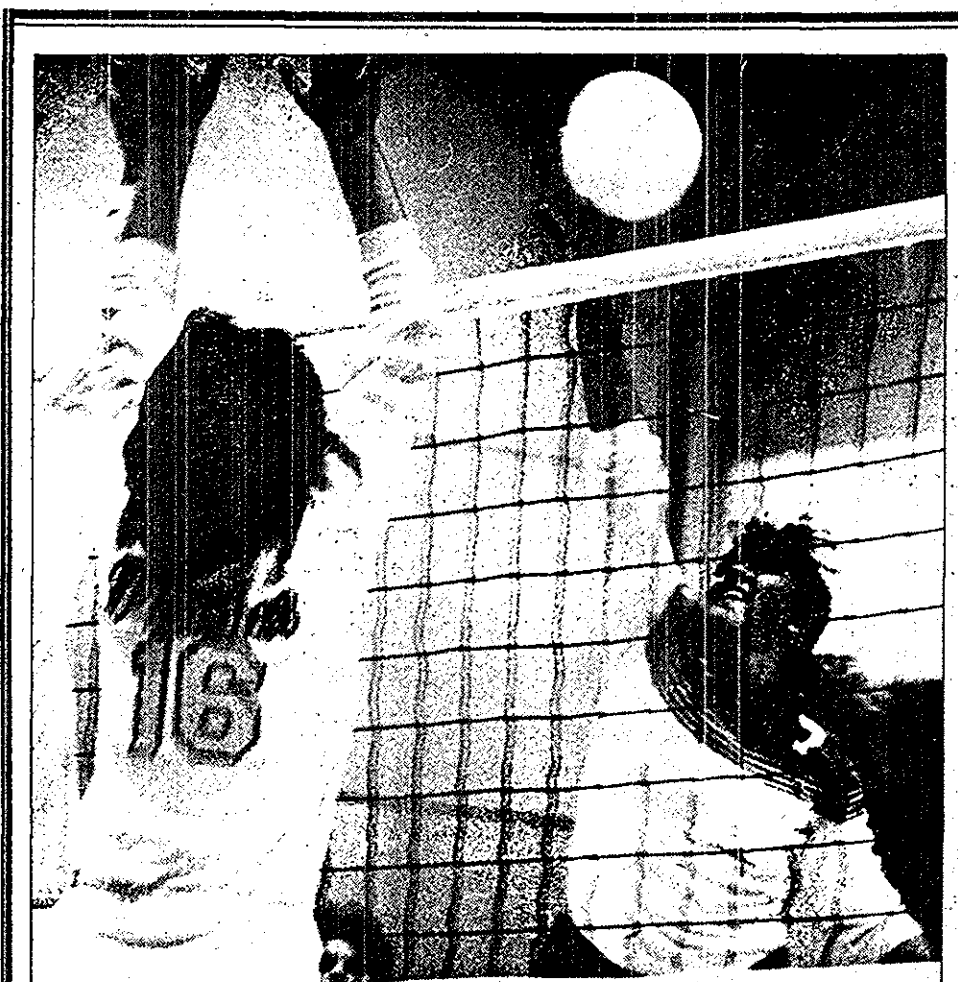

In addition to cheering at games, the squad usually makes appearances at various community functions and ticket promotions, two to 10 times per quarter. The mascots, Pete and Penny Penguin, are often required for more appearances.

Practices for both the cheerleaders and the mascots' positions are slated for 5:30-7:30 p.m., Monday, Oct. 13 through Thursday, Oct. 16. Final judging is scheduled for 5:30 p.m., Friday, Oct. 17.

Left-wing papers funded by private group

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE — A liberal think tank said it may soon start funding overtly liberal papers on a number of campuses.

Copying the strategy of the conservative Institute for Educational Affairs (IEA) — which has provided start-up money for some 60 overtly right-wing campus papers since 1983 — the Center for National Policy (CNP) in Washington, D.C. said it will try to start funneling money to leftist papers sometime this year.

Students from William and Mary, Boston College, Penn, Texas, American University and Michigan, among others, already have "expressed interest" in getting funding from the CNP, reported the CNP's Peter Scher.

Scher, who refuses to say how much money the group will spend or how many papers it plans to fund, said the CNP will start choosing which papers to underwrite in October.

"Oh, we have a lot of student interest in starting alternative newspapers," Scher said. "On many campuses, the more conservative element has resulted in one-sided issue debates only."

The idea for mounting a liberal alternative to the IEA's funding of campus paper first arose at an early August CNP meeting at which Scher, CNP President Kirk O'Donnell and about 100 collegians from around the country bemoaned how conservatives had come to dominate campus opinion.

"I'm sure some people still think the world is square, too," replied IEA President Leslie Lankowsky.

The CNP's O'Donnell said, "our major purpose here is to promote public dialogue and public research about public problems."

The conservative papers have promoted dialogue by adopting many of the issues and arch tones of The Dartmouth Review, which was the first conservative paper published with IEA money.

The Dartmouth paper is now self-sustaining, Lankowsky reported, though the IEA still makes annual grants of about $3,500 each to 33 other conservative papers.

The papers themselves have stirred up almost constant controversy by readily attacking campus homosexuals, "liberal" professors, course catalogs, anti-apartheid activists and others with pejoratives in their news columns.

Most recently, Dartmouth Review staffers stood trial for vandalizing anti-apartheid "shanties."

"A few years ago," recalled Ben Bagdikian, dean of Cal-Berkeley's graduate school of journalism, "Dartmouth, Yale and Berkeley newspapers were subsidized to be neoconservative. The feeling was that there was not enough conservative papers around."

"The danger," he added, "exists when papers receive subsidized financial backing to create an artificial political point-of-view that doesn't exist in the community already."

The CNP and others fret campus papers — those funded by students as well as by the IEA — no longer reflect the liberalism that exists in the college community.

Some Harvard students, for example, started the liberal Harvard Perspective last year "when it became clear the Daily Crimson — a very good moderate daily, by the way — was only interested in what the dean said instead of what the issues were," said Peter Robinson, the Perspective's president.

But "the conservative Salient, dealing with political issues, basically dominated and set the agenda (for discussion on campus)," said Robinson, who adds the Perspective intends to talk to the CNP about funding later this fall.

The IEA's Lankowsky disagreed. "In our view, the liberal and left-wing views already dominate the main papers." He said the IEA still averages "one call a week" from students interested in starting conservative papers on their campuses.

Robinson maintained main campus papers usually are either conservative or moderate, and don't talk to "the bulk of students on campus (who) are liberals."

"In a recent Gallup Poll," he explained, "we, more than any other age group, are in favor of a nuclear freeze, the right to abortion and increases in social and education funding."

Such thoughts inspire Scher. "A number of students have said they feel a two-sided debate is needed."

He hopes the new liberal papers will discuss issues like aid to Nicaraguan rebels, the farm crisis and immigration not to support a Democratic Party platform position, but to bring new ideas to the debate.

"If they want to spend their money on it," Lankowsky said, "it's their business. We think there are already enough liberal voices on campus. If they're going to gang up on us with another, we appreciate the compliment and welcome the competition."

But Berkeley's Bagdikian isn't sure there's much of a trend yet. "I have no reason to think there is a major shift (to more liberal campus papers). Some are more openly adversarial, which is perfectly acceptable as long as they don't distort the news."

Former YSU star soars high with Eagles

By Stephanie Ujhelyi
Jambar Reporter

Ever since he began his football career at YSU, Philadelphia Eagles' placekicker Paul McFadden has repeatedly led his teammates with his impressive individual performance. However, he did not receive the recognition he truly deserved until he was chosen by the Eagles in the 12th round of the 1982 NFL draft.

After his three years in the NFL, McFadden is recognized by football critics nationwide as one of the NFL's rising young talents.

After no extracurricular athletic experience while attending Euclid High School in Cleveland, McFadden attended YSU, playing Penguin soccer his first year before switching to football. Because of his soccer background he chose to play the position of placekicker and reaped tremendous results.

Today, after graduating from YSU with an BS in General Administration, McFadden is joined on the Eagles roster by YSU alumnus Ron Jaworski, John Goode and Chaney High's Matt Cavanaugh. Even though as a team the Eagles have not been very successful in the 1980's, McFadden has had success.

"Kicker Paul McFadden has been consistent in two NFL seasons, converting 55 of 67 field goal attempts and missing only one of 56 extra points," Sporting News 1986 Pro Football Yearbook said.

Don Heinrich's ProPreview describes McFadden; "Even though he doesn't have the strongest leg, he's accurate, reliable, poised and accounted for 36.3 percent of the team's points."

Success under the leadership of the former Bear 46-defense genius, newly crowned Eagle head coach Buddy Ryan, is much more than a fantasy for McFadden and his teammates but a prediction. "The Eagles are very much in transition — new owners, new coach and new players. It's a very exciting time for the Eagles and a very new look. But in order to be the best next season we need to unite as a team," McFadden said.

"Having a new team can be an advantage or a disadvantage, the advantage being unpredictability and the disadvantage being inexperience," McFadden added.

"Our strongest competition this year will be the New York Giants. They were in the playoffs last year and are on their way up. The Eagles need to go after the Giants, perhaps take a gamble," McFadden said.

McFadden thinks the best example he can follow to achieve success is quarterback Ron Jaworski. "He is successful and very positive and a goal-oriented person. Everything he touches on and off the field is a success," McFadden said of Jaworski.

McFadden has a form of natural talent and wisdom concerning the game unsurpassed by few in his short introduction to the game.

In 1984, he was the fifth leading scorer in the NFL even though Philadelphia was 23rd of the 28 teams in the league. He scored 41.7 percent of the Eagles 278 points en route to setting a one season team scoring record.

In 1985, he continued to score one-third of the Eagles' points but dropped to hold the 13th position on the list of the season's leading scorers.

It will be no surprise if McFadden's extraordinary talent will someday be observed by football fans everywhere during a Super Bowl, and his fascinating story told once again by parents to their youths.
