Parking woes continue as parking rate increase is approved

Peggy Moore
News Editor

An increase in parking fees, proposed to Student Government by Support Services, was met with a counterproposal before a compromise was finally reached. A $3 fee increase will be imposed each of the next three years.

"Dr. Cochran asked us to prepare a long-term plan, as the M2 deck is coming to a stage where it is costly to run and maintain," said

Joe Scarnecchia, director, Support Services.

Nader Atway, president of Student Government said, "The main focus is on the Lincoln Avenue deck. The deck was built as a 10-year, temporary deck. Now, 25 years later it's still standing and it takes a lot of money to maintain." To maintain the same number of parking spaces, plans would have to include replacing the Lincoln Avenue parking deck with either a new deck or new surface lots.

"We plan to maintain the [Lincoln Avenue] deck as long as it is cost effective, then demolish it and replace it with surface lots," said Scarnecchia.

Scarnecchia said new surface lots would require the purchase of land and Support Services "had to figure out how to fund this, and so we proposed a raise in fees."

Atway said the original proposal from Support Services called for a fee increase of $5 for students, faculty and staff for the next three years, and an additional increase of $5 in 2001. The proposal also called for an increase in daily and special event parking from $2 to $4.

"We knew their plan had merit — if you want to do things, you need to have money. Student Government felt that $5 was too much of a jump next year and then again in 2001, so we offered a counterproposal," said Atway.

The Student Government counterproposal called for a $2 increase in student parking fees, an increase in daily and special event parking to $5 and an increase in faculty and staff parking that would be greater than the student fee.

"The daily and special event increase didn't fly because they want to encourage people to come to the campus. The faculty and staff parking idea was acceptable, but they gave us three options to choose from regarding student increases as the two dollar idea would not generate enough revenue," said Atway.

The three options were annual fees of $38 in 1998 and 1999, $41 in 2000; or $37 in 1998, $40 in 1999 and $40 in 2000; or $40 in 1998, $40 in 1999 and 2000.

"The reason we chose the $38, $38, $41 plan was, we felt it wasn't as hard of a hit. It was more of a gradual increase and not so abrupt," said Atway. "Some people might not think $5 is that big of a deal, but to a student, it's quite a

Kids challenge YSU students to survive real-world setting

A tiny, wooden boat rocks on a sea of blue tarp as four, tiny fishermen attempt to catch a rainbow of magnetic fish. Miniature chairs and tables replace the usual desks in room 1071 Fedor Hall. Painted numbers are scattered across the windows, and class time, scheduled from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. involves dancing, painting and playtime. If this sounds like a class for you, there's only one catch — you must be age 3, 4 or 5 to be admitted.

The YSU preschool, directed by Pat Sgambati, provides a fun and safe environment for area children to learn at their individual levels while having a good time.

"All of the activities are pre-academic, preschool-appropriate," said Sgambati.

Students play games, such as clothespin in the bottle and object bingo, as a way to refine their motor skills.

"The growth of the child is two-fold," Sgambati said. "You want them to experience success

[but] have a slight challenge."

The children are not the only ones who are challenged. Under the supervision of Sgambati, 10 YSU students in the pre-kindergarten program get an opportunity to develop lessons and coordinate preschool activities. Students learn how to apply classroom knowledge in an actual real-life setting.

"It's a hands-on experience. Students get an idea and try it out to see if it works," Sgambati said.

"It is an intense experience. Students are expected to assume increased responsibilities in the classroom."

Hannah Nissen

Students participate in solo and group teaching. In addition, they are required to produce their own teaching aids.

Student teachers are also responsible for writing a newsletter to parents explaining the activities for each day. This is designed to help parents feel comfortable and accept student teachers.

Sophomore Jennifer Veronesi chose the pre-kindergarten program after volunteering for Head Start. Veronesi student-teaches at the YSU preschool.

"The preschool is hands-on," Veronesi said, "students are actually with the children [and learn] what to expect from them."

The pre-kindergarten program requires students to participate in the preschool lab, CHFAM 706, as part of their curriculum. Dr. Hannah Nissen, human ecology, said the preschool "prepares students to be effective early childhood professionals, [meeting] the needs of children of various ages."

Nissen said students also learn about themselves, develop personal teaching strategies, and deal with various issues. "It is an intense experience," she said. "Students are expected to assume increased responsibilities in the classroom."

Pre-kindergarten graduates will be able to direct day care centers, both traditional and corporate and plan and implement educational activities.

McDonough Museum of Art will host exhibition

Joe Mascola
Contributing Writer

YSU's McDonough Museum of Art will host the first Northeast Ohio/Western Pennsylvania Academic Alliance Faculty Exhibition opening today through April 25.

A private President's Preview Reception will be held for the board of trustees of the alliance member schools and guests from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. tonight. A public reception will follow from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The alliance, formed in 1995, serves students in the region with a broad range of programs and services. Each individual institution shares resources and strengths to benefit the growth of artists as well as to expand on the creativity and diversity of each unique program.

There are five universities participating in the alliance. Three of the members are accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and School and two by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

The unique partnership includes YSU, Lake Erie College of Painesville, Thiel College of Greenville, Pa., Westminster College of New Wilmington, Pa., and Walsh University of Canton. All of the schools are very enthusiastic about the alliance and have high expectations for the future. A number of collaborative projects are in the works, including everything from faculty and student exhibits to visiting artist programs and lectures.

One of the latest accomplishments of the alliance was a $307,000 grant from the Collaborative Ventures Program of The Teagle Foundation Inc. of New York City.

A private forum held Wednesday at the McDonough introduced faculty members who participated in the alliance.

Sandy Kreisman, director of the McDonough Museum, said the McDonough is proud to be the sponsor of such a show.

"We have an excellent facility and are glad to host the event," she said.

YSU art department faculty participating in the show include Susan Russo, chair, Alfred Bright,

"The McDonough Museum of Art, is proud to be the sponsor of such a show."

Sandy Kreisman, director

Russell Maddick, and Phil Chan, who all entered paintings. Richard Mitchell and Allison Petit displayed photography. Greg Moring and M.T. Mosely contributed sculpture, Michael Walusis displayed prints and Jon Krasner entered computer graphic work.

The works of 11 other artists from the visiting schools will also be included in the show.

This event comes on the heels of the YSU faculty show.

"All of our faculty are very excited about the opportunity to participate in this new show," said art professor Rich Mitchell.

The show will be displayed until April 25. Admission is free and parking is available in the Wick Avenue Parking Deck.

Museum hours are from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesdays.

After its opening today, the show will be displayed at the McDonough until April 25.

Buechner Hall Truly Has Everything

This beautiful residence hall for women, located mid-campus at YSU, is truly first-rate. Single and double occupancy rooms are completely furnished, including linens, telephones, and free cable. The building is fully air conditioned, and staff and guards provide professional, 24-hour security. Weekly maid service, exquisitely decorated lounge areas, quiet study environment, on-premise dining room and home-cooked meals, fitness room, and laundry rooms are other features supplying their share of full-comfort living. Sound expensive? Not at all. Thanks to the large bequest of the Buechner family, which completed the building in 1941, more than half of all residents' room rental is still absorbed by the Buechner fund. The remainder required from residents including 15 meals per week, is $813 per quarter for double occupancy and $882 per quarter for single. Payable weekly. Your inquiry is solicited.

blow to his pocket."

The increase, which passed by a vote of 11-6, increases faculty and staff parking fees by $5 each year starting in Fall 1997, increasing it to $45, then $50 and $55. Daily and special event parking will be $5.

Scarnecchia said the original Support Services' plan was an eight-year plan and was needed in order to "get to work." With the fewer funds generated by the revised plan, Support Services will not be able to do all the work it had planned.

"Can we do what we intended? Probably not, but we have a place to start," said Scarnecchia.

Atway and Student Government felt that an eight-year plan was unrealistic because things change so much year to year.

"We didn't want future students to be confined by a decision made now. The appropriate circumstances should be used at the appropriate times," said Atway. "Who's to say what could happen by 2001?"

Student Government suggested ways to help Support Services achieve their goals. One suggestion was to dismantle the deck in sections so part of it could still be used while work progressed.

"I think they [Support Services] will accomplish all they want to do, but it will probably be at a slower rate than they wanted," said Atway.

As part of Hispanic Awareness Week, Hector Colon, candidate for Mayor of Youngstown and current Youngstown fire chief, spoke at noon yesterday in the Kilcawley Center Pub on the Importance of Knowing One's Ethnicity. When his speech was over, he delivered his campaign platform speech. He also held a question and answer session.

Colon runs a grassroots campaign without big financial backers. His slogan is, "Let's make a C.A.S.E. for Youngstown's Future." He described C.A.S.E as standing for: C-committed to reducing crime, A-accountability to the community, S-school environment, safe for all, E-economic development including neighborhoods and Downtown.

Editorial Campus Rec building would be a costly waste

If you've ever complained that there was nothing to do on campus, you can be assured that someone was listening. Unfortunately, the University may be offering an answer to those complaints that is both overpriced and unnecessary.

Student Government is considering how to respond to a proposal for a $13 million Campus Rec Center. The facility would be a smaller version of campus rec buildings on other Ohio campuses — buildings Student government president Nader Atway described as "Scandinavians on campus."

YSU's scaled down Scandinavian would be an 110,262 foot building containing an indoor track, fitness center, game room with table games, aerobic/multipurpose room, locker rooms and more. Like the prestigious health club, YSU's fitness emporium would also come with a hefty price tag — a mandatory recreation fee of about $50 per quarter for all full-time students and a smaller fee for part-time students.

Essentially, students would be paying to use many facilities they already enjoy for free. YSU already offers students an outdoor track, a game room in the Pub, a fitness center, weight room and aerobic/multipurpose rooms. In addition, students have access to basketball courts, racquetball courts, squash courts, an Olympic-size swimming pool and lighted outdoor tennis courts.

Part of the campus rec plan includes increasing awareness of preexisting facilities by publicizing them more and extending their hours of operation. This raises the question, if preexisting facilities were made more accessible, why would it be necessary to build more? Instead of saddling future students with a gigantic debt, we should be looking at cost-effective ways to increase use of the facilities we already have.

Another major defect in the plan is the fact that it is based largely on Rec buildings at schools like Toledo, Kent and Bowling Green State University. Unfortunately, these schools are very different from YSU because they are all residential campuses. Most students at these Universities are essentially confined to campus by lack of a vehicle and spending money and must use the facilities their school provides.

At YSU, a fraction of the student body lives on campus — about 600 out of more than 11,000. The majority of students drive to school and therefore have access to off-campus health clubs, should they desire them. It would be unfair to force these students to pay for a facility they may or may not use.

Even students who live on campus are within walking distance of the YMCA. For $154 per year, the YMCA provides three gyms, a jogging track, weight room, racquetball courts, a nautilus center and a variety of exercise classes. If demand is so great for recreation facilities, perhaps the University should consider adding the YMCA to the shuttle route.

Student Government will decide Monday how this issue should be presented to the student body. Most likely, it will offer students the opportunity to vote on the issue. When that opportunity arises, we need to execute the common sense members of the University administration lacked and vote against the Campus Rec center.

Letter to the Editor

Stu Gov member criticizes coverage

Tuesday's edition of The Jambar briefly highlights some of the arguments at the last Student Government meeting. I feel that The Jambar did not capture the full nature of the debate nor did it correctly interpret my commentary in the meeting.

The Jambar originally quoted me as saying, "Considering only 11 percent of the student population votes in the student elections, I think we need to make a decision on this." The quote is correct in its phrasing; however, it is incomplete. It is true I said that only 11 percent of the student body votes in the Student Government election, and, we need to make a decision. The decision, however, is not whether we should build a Rec Center, but whether the Student Government election is an adequate means to bring it to the student body. I agree with Nader Atway and Nizar Diab that it needs to be brought to the students, for it will be paid for by us. My question is, is 11 percent a sufficient representation to mandate a tuition increase for all students? It is my contention that this issue be placed at the beginning of the Solar Screen so that 100 percent of the student body can be represented, instead of a mere fraction.

In order for this project to become a reality, tuition will be increased anywhere between $54 and $128 per quarter over the next 25 years. There will be no way to opt out of this cost. All students will have to pay, even if not used.

I personally endorse the idea of the Rec center, however, I have an alternative that can yield the same results of the new facility at a fraction of the cost. I encourage every student to attend the presidential debates at noon April 28th in the Pub and 6 p.m. in Kilcawley Center Ohio Room April 30.

John Pentecost, head table, student government

Letter to the Editor

Sorority sister stands by her brothers

Editor,
Since you took the liberty of writing your opinion publicly, I would now like to express mine. You wrote this article without having researched at all, that much is very apparent. Had you researched you would have found that Derby Days is sigma Chi's philanthropic event in which sororities compete against each other — no fraternity is involved — and the proceeds go to charity. It would have been impossible for Tau Kappa Epsilon members to participate. Winning was not the goal.

Also, you showed no proof that a member of the fraternity actually painted the graffiti on the mural nor were they contacted for information. I know many of the members personally and I know that no effort was made to ask their opinion. You also claimed that they were not worthy role models. I don't think you could have been farther from the truth. Tau Kappa Epsilon has been involved in Turtle Tug, Delta Zeta's philanthropic event to raise money for the hearing impaired. Individually, many members have taken the time to help me and my sisters. I do not know one member of the TKE fraternity that wouldn't take the time to help out anyone on or off this campus. To me, that is what being a role model is all about.

I am very offended by your ill-prepared article and your attack on an organization that is striving to better our community. I would hope that, professionally, you would "do the right thing" and print a retraction statement.

Tara Baragona, Delta Zeta sorority

Letter to the Editor

TKE fraternity brother responds to 'Jambar' editorial about alleged vandalism

Editor,
I was greatly offended at "Fraternity 'artist' should pursue public service instead of vandalism" (Jambar, April 8). I, being a member of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, feel that the alleged actions of one should not dictate the reputation of an entire organization. Several "facts" that were brought up were apparently not researched in-depth before printed. First of all, the Derby Days which you felt was so important to win, was in actuality a Sigma chi philanthropy event for sorority competition and does not include fraternity activity. Another point which was incorrect is, and I quote, "The Phantom Penguin Painter did his or her good deed and removed the TKE from the mural." I personally called Bud's Sign Shop and spoke directly with the individual who had painted over the graffiti. Therefore, the person who painted 'TKE' on the was NOT the same person who fixed it.

As for the line where you stated "These students desperately need worthy role models, and TKE members don't fit the bill," many members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity have been instrumental in community service and philanthropy activities on and off campus. Marty Dzurek and Mike Mokros have been actively involved in student government and student activities on the YSU campus, while Dave Thomas and

Brian Pennell have taken active roles in such philanthropic events as the Youngstown Peace Race and raised money for Muscular Dystrophy.

Your article was irresponsible journalism at its best.

Tau Kappa Epsilon was never contacted for comment nor given an opportunity to defend itself against these accusations.

Don Pedicini Jr., proud member of Tau Kappa Epsilon

38 Special visits Boardman

LYNN NICKELS
Contributing Writer

BOARDMAN — Fans, fame, fortune and lots of fun. All of these terms describe the life of a successful rock 'n' roll band. But the flip-side of this life is a cramped tour bus, living out of suitcases, sleeping during the day while working at night and being on the road for most of the year, away from your family.

The band 38 Special is not immune to either of these dilemmas. The group, consisting of Donnie Van Zant, Don Barnes, Danny Chauncey, Larry Junstrom, Bobby Capps and Gary Moffatt, made the final stop of its latest tour at The Bistro, Pepper's Night Club, Sunday. Looking forward to some rest and relaxation, lead singer Don Barnes said finishing up this tour was exhilarating.

"It feels really good," he said. "Actually, Danny [Chauncey, guitarist] and I had been producing our new album collectively for more than two months in Memphis. The day we got out [of production] — the very next day — we had to go into rehearsal for the start of this tour. So, we're ready for a little break."

38 Special's new album, Resolution, will be released at the end of May. According to Chauncey, it's not really a theme album, but portrays the message of hopefulness.

"A lot of the songs deal with the search for a meaning in life or the search for a salvation from circumstances. We're all at an age where we've gone through some soul-searching," he said. "The songs have a lot of passion, a lot of truth. Things that are more relevant today than songs we did in the '80s, like 'I Want You, I Miss You.' There are more things to talk about the older you get."

Getting to this stage of success in any career doesn't come without a price. The group boasts five gold and four platinum albums. Resolution will be its 11th release. But, as Barnes said, "You have to pay some dues and you starve for awhile."

Personal life also suffers. It was so great a problem for Barnes that he decided to leave the band for five years to be with his family. Chauncey said he feels a similar loss when it comes to his family.

"I've got a daughter who's about to turn one-year-old on Tuesday, and I'm just barely getting there on time for her first birthday," said Chauncey. "I'll be gone for two weeks and come home, and — at this age — she's like a whole different person."

But there are many personal rewards as well. Chauncey said he feels the best moment of his career was when a song he co-wrote made it into the Top 10. As for Barnes, the award of their first gold album is at the top of his list.

The band cited several influences for its musical style. Huge Beatles fans, the members said they were greatly influenced by the Beatles — even borrowing some of their techniques for their own music. Bad Company, Eric Clapton and Cheryl Crow have also inspired 38 Special.

In the future, the members of the band still see themselves touring and playing music. Whether performing to a crowd of 100,000 or 500, Barnes said the fans keep coming back.

"People have always known that 38 Special brings the party to them. We give 110 percent. We give everything we have and it's to the point where we're absolutely exhausted," he said. "We have the reputation of playing good, uplifting songs — the kind where people like to put the top down in the summertime."

Barnes also said touring is an important part of the process.

"We have fun on stage and you have to go to the people, they can't come to you," he said. "It's funny because some people will ask you, 'What are your hobbies? Do you like to travel?' and I laugh and say, 'We travel everyday.'"

The Bistro is one of the smaller venues the group plays. Barnes said he enjoys "being up close to the people" in a more relaxed atmosphere. The crowd began lining up at the door as early as 8 p.m. for the 10 p.m. show.

Gayle Blangero from Struthers said, "I love 38 Special because I love '70s music."

Her husband, Tom, said he has been listening to the group since he graduated from high school, and that listening to 38 Special used to get him "pumped up" for his softball games.

At 10 p.m. the crowd roared as the group took the stage. They rocked the house for 90 minutes with classic songs like "Caught Up in You," "A Heart Needs a Second Chance" and "Hold on Loosely."

Fan Mike Green said after the show, "It was fabulous. They sound just as good live as they do on their albums."

If that's not a mark of success, then what is?

Poetry Center presents Welsh poets

The YSU Poetry Center will present a reading by two Welsh poets, Nigel Jenkins and Menna Elfyfyn, tonight at 7:30 in the Art Gallery of Kilcawley Center.

Jenkins was born on a farm in Gower, South Wales in 1949. He worked for four years as a newspaper reporter in the English Midlands and then studied literature and film at the University of Essex. He returned to Wales in 1976 and has earned a living since as a full-time writer and free-lance lecturer.

Jenkins is the author of numerous volumes of poetry including, "Song and Dance" and "Acts of Union: Selected Poems 1974-1989." He is a frequent performer of his work and has lately undertaken a number of commissions involving the composition of poems for public places, executed in stone, steel, neon and glass.

Poetry: Poets Nigel Jenkins and Menna Elfyfyn will read tonight in Kilcawley at 7:30.

Elfyfyn was born in 1951 and has always written in the Welsh language. Recently, her bilingual readings have meant a growing audience for her translation into English and other languages. She has published six highly acclaimed collections, two of which received awards for the best volumes of the year.

This reading is sponsored by the British Council; Arts Council of Wales; Tum Sion Cati, Welsh Development, Education and Legal Defense Fund; and the National Welsh Foundation. The reading is free and open to the public.

Farcas puts power in Pens' offense with two homeruns

◆ YSU picked up its 16th victory of the season after winning the second game of a two-game series against Duquesne.

JAMIE REESH
Contributing Writer

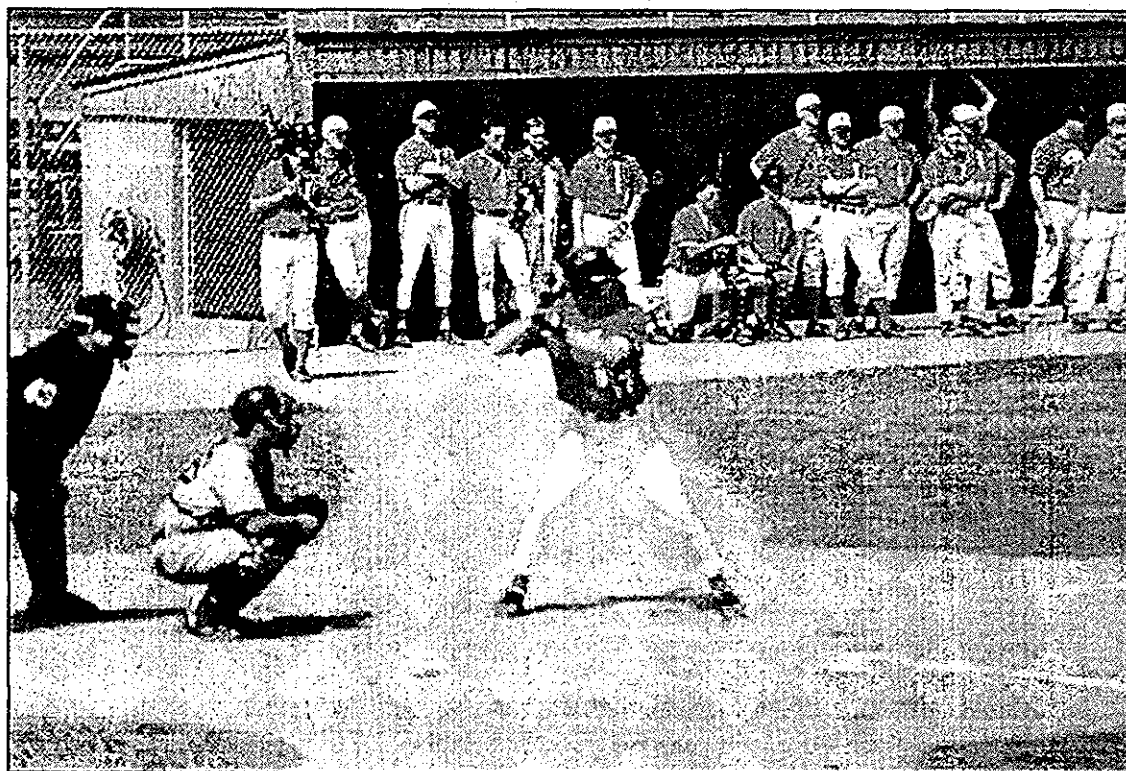

PITTSBURGH — YSU sophomore Ray Farcas continued his dominance at the plate as he hit two homeruns in YSU's doubleheader against Duquesne Tuesday. The Penguins stumbled in the opener, losing 11-9. But YSU split with the Dukes, winning the second game 6-4.

Although the Penguins started strong in the first game, the Dukes pulled ahead in the second inning outscoring YSU 6-0.

Farcas and senior Jason Triveri both homered, but it wasn't enough to bring in the win.

Farcas finished the game with two hits and drove in three RBIs, while Triveri also connected on two hits and brought in four of the Penguins' nine runs.

Junior Chad Shultz went two-for-four, hitting in a Penguin run.

Sophomore Ray Farcas waits for a pitch in the second inning of YSU's 10-7 victory over CW Post Sunday. Farcas homered twice in YSU's doubleheader with Duquesne Tuesday.

Senior Tom Harbold scored three runs, while going two-for-three.

Freshman Sean Wardle (2-1) pitched four innings, striking out three Duke batters. Freshman Matt Murphy finished the game for the

In the second game the Penguins pulled it together to defeat the Dukes.

Farcas struck again, hitting another home run for the Penguins. He went two-for-five, batting in three RBIs.

Harbold connected on three hits in five at-bats, and freshman Andrew Clough went three-for-three and drove in two runs for the Red and White.

Freshman K.C. Kirilangitis struck out two Duke batters before being relieved by junior Barry Daggett (3-1).

Daggett also struck out two batters and allowed only two hits.

"We made a lot of mental errors in the first game. We are a better team than how we played," said Daggett. "In the second game our hitters hit really well and K.C. pitched a great performance."

YSU's record improves to 16-7 for the season and 3-1 in the Mid-Continent Conference.

The Penguins will face Pace University Saturday and Sunday at Pace. Both games are doubleheaders and are slated to begin at noon.

"We are a better team than how we played."

Lady Pens go one up, one down in two 9-0 games

The YSU women's softball team split a doubleheader against Wright State Monday at Harrison Field. The Lady Raiders took the first game 9-0, and the Lady Penguins battled back to blank Wright State 9-0 in the second game.

YSU had difficulty getting runners on the bases in the first game. Sophomore Stacie Banfield picked up two of the Lady Penguins' four hits, while senior Jennifer Sutton and junior Chris Notareschi collected the other two.

The third inning was costly for the Lady Penguins as junior Michelle Gongwer (5-7) allowed seven Lady Raiders to cross home plate.

Gongwer gave up eight runs before sophomore Wendy Gifford replaced her in the fourth inning.

The second game mirrored the opener, except the roles were reversed, and YSU played aggressively on both offense and defense.

"They're playing well," said Head Coach Julie Croft. "We've played some really tough teams. We've had some rough times here and there, but I think overall they're doing well."

Sophomore Melanie Pangallo (5-7) pitched a complete game and allowed only one hit.

Senior Tracey Nejuk and freshman Rachel Zehnder each drove in two of YSU's nine runs.

Sophomore Tammi Schmalenberger went three-for-three, drove in a run and scored a run. Banfield, Sutton, senior Tami Sinn and freshman Holly Royal all recorded RBIs for YSU.

The split with Wright State brings YSU's record to 10-14 for the season. The Lady Penguins compete in the DePaul Tournament Saturday and Sunday.
