Communist chairman says Reagan no help

By ROB CICCOTELLI
Jambar Reporter

Emotional outbursts of national pride and mistrust of communism accented the question and answer session following a speech by Gus Hall, National Chairman of the Communist Party, USA, Thursday in DeBartolo Hall.

Audience response varied, ranging from supportive to violently opposed. Hall supporters and challengers occasionally clashed during the question and answer period, taking control of the discussion at points.

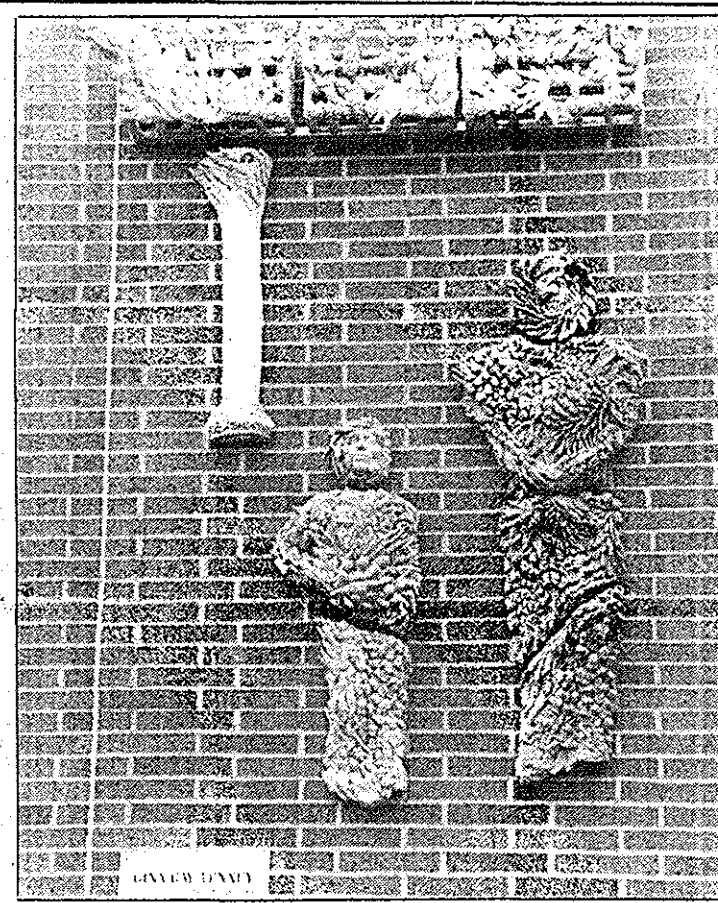

Hall, while living in Youngstown, was the organizer of the United Steelworkers of America and was the leader of the "Little Steel Strike" in Warren in 1937.

Hall spoke of the current status of labor unions and the problems of the steel industry in cities like Youngstown.

According to Hall, one way to save the steel industry and other industries suffering the same impending fate, would be to initiate federal takeovers of the industries.

Hall also stated that he feels there are no "solutions under Reagan because Reagan is the problem, not the solution." He went on to explain that under Reagan, the deficit has more than tripled and that Reagan's tax cuts mainly benefit corporations and the wealthy and have done nothing for the poor.

In addition, Hall stated that concessions and wage cuts in industry "have not saved one single job." See Gus Hall, page 7

Remembrance

The Gina Tenney Memorial Sculpture, dedicated Tuesday morning at Bliss Hall, can be seen near the southeast entrance to Bliss Hall, near Ford Auditorium. Members of Tenney's family, the YSU administration, faculty and student body attended the dedication ceremony.

YSU gets set to tackle substance abuse

Grant will fund wellness program

By ERIKA HANZELY
Jambar Assistant News Editor

The new YSU substance abuse prevention program, under the direction of counselor Jain Savage, is currently seeking students to work as peer educators for the program.

According to Dr. George E. Letchworth, director of Counseling and Health Services at YSU, the keystone of the new program will be the recruitment and training of 10 peer counselors who will be selected students working under Savage. They will be responsible for presenting a variety of programs to student groups in order to promote the responsible consumption of legal drugs such as alcohol. Students interested in becoming a peer educator may pick up an application in room 3046 of Jones Hall.

Savage, a Youngstown resident, holds both a bachelor's degree in education and a master's degree in guidance and counseling from YSU, where she was a graduate assistant. She is a licensed professional counselor and a national certified counselor.

University names new director

"I'm not here as a prohibitionist, but to get them [the students] to look at their own attitudes and beliefs and to make choices."

So says Jain Savage, the program leader and coordinator for the newly-formed YSU Substance Abuse Prevention Program. In fact, the program is so new that Savage spoke from a "borrowed" office in Counseling and Health Services.

Savage and a carefully selected group of 10 student peer educators will work together to stress the responsible use of alcohol, the non-use of non-legal drugs, and the proper use of prescription drugs among the University community.

"The 10 peer educators will be an extension of me," Savage said. "They will do work among their peers in the area of prevention — they'll be role models."

A diversification of YSU students will make up the group of peer educators. Savage said she would like to see a group comprised of minority, non-traditional and international students as well as those from the majority population. She See Savage, page 13

Golden arches to shine upon YSU campus

By JEFF LADNER
Jambar Reporter

It may not be "Mac Tonight" for YSU students, but it will definitely be "Mac before the end of the year." According to officials in McDonald's regional office in Cleveland, work on the Fifth Avenue location is right on schedule.

The Thomas', a husband and wife team from the east coast will operate the Fifth Avenue franchise. The couple are currently in the process of relocating in the Youngstown area.

Work on the McDonald's has been somewhat hindered by the wet weather this fall, according to Dave Natowsky, McDonald's construction engineer out of Cleveland. "We've gotten by the critical points of the project," he said. Those critical points are the roof and exterior.

As far as the interior is concerned, the decor will probably tie into the surrounding area. "Usually McDonald's tries to relate the interior to a dominant outside atmosphere, such as the Ohio State-oriented McDonald's on High Street in Columbus," said Natowsky.

Although the expected October opening was delayed, there have been no problems with the former Arcade site. McDonald's regional office real estate manager Tom Morrison reiterated that the site fills a void that McDonald's has not filled. "We're always looking for areas where there may be a void in the market and this was one of those areas," he said.

According to Natowsky, the Fifth Avenue McDonald's will offer the same menu items as those of other locations. So for those suffering "Mac Attacks" before or after class, ballgames, or a night out, there will soon be a location nearby with a cure.

Stolen car is fourth this quarter

By SUE KNAPIC
Jambar News Editor

The first day of December was not joyous for one student who returned to her parking spot only to find her van missing, according to Campus Police reports.

The student had parked her vehicle in the S-5 parking lot (Walnut and Webb Streets) at 8:30 a.m., Tuesday morning. When she returned at 1:20 p.m., the 1983 Chevy Van was missing, said the report.

The Campus Police were notified and arrived at the scene. After searching the area, the police entered the vehicle as stolen into the LEADS (Law Enforcement Automated Data System) and NCIC (National Crime Information Center) computers.

This has been the fourth reported vehicle theft this quarter. A total of nine auto thefts have been reported so far in 1987.

Student wins award, calls lightning photo stroke of luck

By BOB JACKSON
Jambar Reporter

Lightning has never been known as a symbol of luck but for YSU student Janet Frattaroli, lightning indeed, proved to be a good luck charm.

Frattaroli, sophomore, A&S, captured a rare photograph of a bolt of lightning crossing a double rainbow two years ago in Grand Junction, Colo. Frattaroli confessed that the photo was a true stroke of luck, as she had intended only to take a picture of the rainbows. While she was snapping the picture, a bolt of lightning flashed in front of her, creating the illusion of lightning crossing the rainbows.

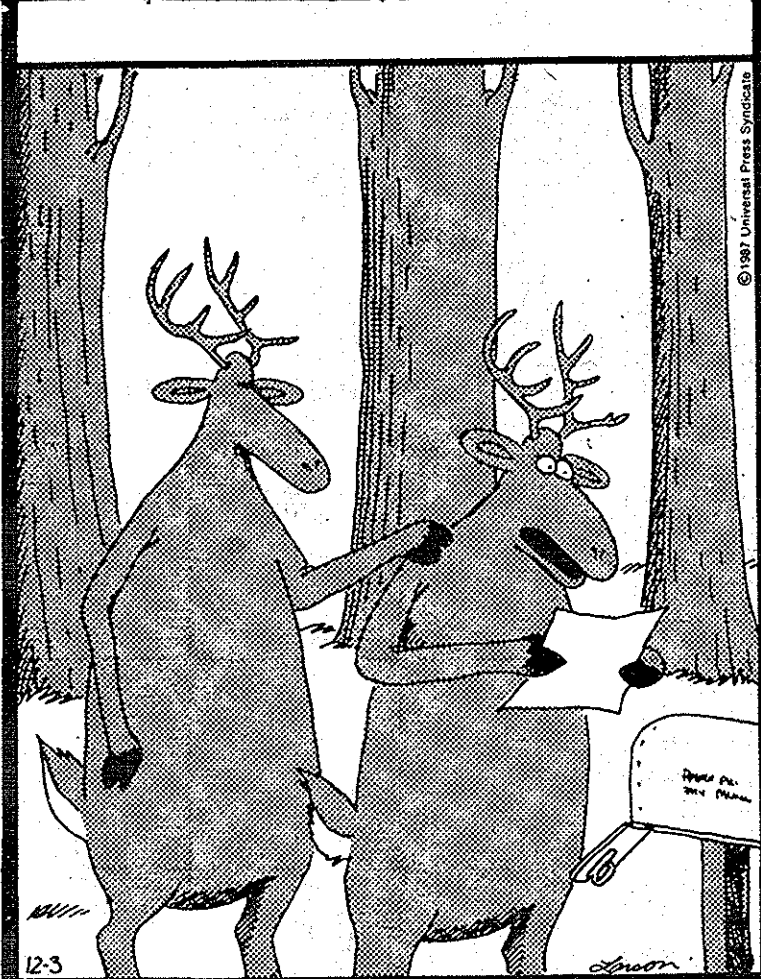

That bolt of lightning again proved to be lucky for the English major when she submitted the photo in a contest for pictures of weather-related phenomenon in Weatherwise magazine during the summer. Frattaroli's rare photo captured second place in the national contest, earning her a $25 cash prize and a subscription to the magazine.

Weatherwise is a national trade magazine for science teachers and enthusiasts, Frattaroli said. Her picture was published on page 109 of the July-August issue of the weather journal.

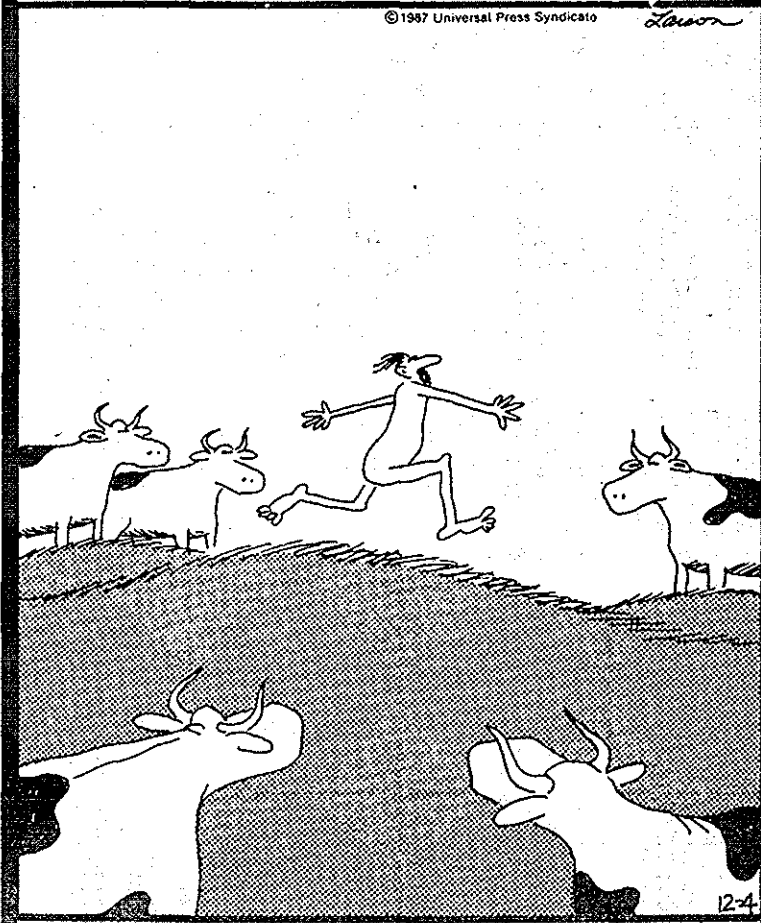

Frattaroli, who also attends the School of Education where she is pursuing a teaching certificate, said this was the first time she had ever entered a photo in any type of contest. She said photography is one of her hobbies and will remain so in the future.

Program to offer views of Beethoven

YSU — YSU's College for the 60-Plus will offer an opportunity for those 60 years and older to discover the "real Beethoven" during a lecture from 2-3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 16, in Kilcawley Center's Room 2068.

William Slocum, Dana School of Music and former musical director of the Cleveland Philharmonic Orchestra, will give a lecture, accompanied by Beethoven recordings, which will present the many-varied view of Beethoven and his music. Reservations for this event may be made by calling the University's Office of Continuing Education/Education Outreach at (216) 742-3358.

The College for 60-Plus is sponsored by this office and enables Ohio citizens to take University classes, free of charge, if space is available.

Registration dates for the College for 60-Plus for winter quarter are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Dec. 29 and 30, in Cushwa Hall's Room 3087.

For additional information regarding the College for 60-Plus program, contact Continuing Education/Education Outreach at (216) 742-3748.

Extended library hours for finals

YSU — During final exam week Maag Library will have the following extended hours: Dec. 6, 1 p.m.-11 p.m.; Dec. 7, 10, 7:30 a.m.-11 p.m.; Dec. 11, 7:30 a.m.-5 p.m.; Dec. 12, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

The library's break hours from Dec. 13-Jan. 4, 1988 will be: Monday-Friday 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; closed Saturdays and Sundays.

In addition, the library will be closed for Christmas on Dec. 24 and 25 and for New Year's day on Jan. 1.

Senate selects chairperson

By DOROTHY KAGLIC
Jambar Copy Editor

Appointments to several committees and issues of interest to the YSU community were on the agenda of the brief Academic Senate meeting held in DeBartolo Auditorium Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Duane Rost, chair of the Senate, called the meeting to order. When the Charters and By-Laws Committee had no business to report, Rost called for a report from the Balloting Committee. This committee reported the election of Rost to another term as chair of the Senate, with Dr. Ikrama Khawaja, geology, elected as vice-president.

Elected to the Charter and By-Laws Committee for two-year terms were: Dr. Barbara Brothers, English; Dr. Stephen Gardner, marketing; and Professor Homer Warren, marketing.

Next, Rost read a letter from Larry Esterley, political and social science, thanking the members of the Senate for actively supporting the Bicentennial Convocation. Rost added his thanks and extended thanks to Esterley for a job well-done.

Christmas wishes unwrapped

The hectic time of fall quarter is once again upon us — the end. It's a time of the year when Christmas decorations fill the stores, carols play on the air waves and students look up their professor's office hours to discuss their final grade.

It's a time when students do not care about anything but finishing the quarter and taking their finals.

It is also a time of the year when people exchange gifts in celebration of the birth of Christ.

People frantically search for gifts to exchange with friends, relatives and associates.

Rather than frantically searching for a materialistic gift, take time to remember what the true meaning of Christmas is and also remember it is the thought that counts. The gifts of love and sharing can mean a lot to friends, relatives and strangers.

The Jambar would like to extend the following Christmas wishes to the YSU community:

- We recognize the good in others and disregard the bad.
  - May a smile warm your heart throughout the year and always.
  - Open minds filled with goodness and open hearts filled with giving.
  - That people reflect upon the first six letters in the word Christmas.
  - If only the joy and closeness of the holiday season would last throughout the year.
  - Let us all work together to extend the Christmas spirit into the new year and not let it end with Christmas.
  - For a happy and joyous Christmas.
  - That everyone takes time to reflect on achievements from the past, enjoy times of the present and strive to better mankind in the future.
- Merry Christmas.

Clarification

In the November 20 editorial titled "Thanks needs to flow with blood," a line in the editorial read, "YSU officials involved with the quarterly blood drives told The Jambar that the Red Cross officials associated with YSU's blood drive have never thanked the organization, students or other people involved with the blood drive for at least the past four years."

The word never in that sentence should have said seldom, as the Red Cross gave The Jambar some letters dating back to 1982, 1983 and 1985 that had a thank you message in their content.

Christmas gift giving is so special

The quarter has gone by extremely fast. It seems like only yesterday when I sat down to write my first editorial.

Since that first editorial, many events have taken place on the YSU campus. Many newsworthy events that demanded an editorial — an opinion.

And now fall quarter is drawing to a close and the Christmas season is upon us.

I love the Christmas season, especially giving gifts. I hope that I don't leave anyone out, but the following is my Christmas gift list:

- NEIL HUMPHREY — a new developer who will charge less for student housing.
- PHIL HIRSCH — elves who will serve beer in the Pub at 2 p.m. (to those 21 and over, of course).
- NON-TRADITIONAL STUDENT ORGANIZATION — a new project idea so their group can band together once again.
- DR. GILLIN — a great sense of humor and a lot of patience to deal with The Jambar staff.
- BRUCE BURGE — new promotional ideas for the basketball season — think of Red-White Day.
- THE BURSAR'S CASHIERS — a stocking full of pennies.
- STUDENT GOVERNMENT — to get the country to change the Christmas colors to mauve and mint so they will match your lovely matching, color coordinated office accessories.
- PARKING SERVICES — initiative to collect overdue parking fines from visitors — or a tow bar.
- RAYMOND NAKLEY JR. and THE RED

LISA M. SOLLEY
JAMBAR EDITOR

CROSS — a big thank you from the YSU community for the blood drive.

• PAST JAMBAR EDITORS — their own computer so they can erase whatever files they want.

• ENGLISH PROFESSORS — brand new thesauruses and dictionaries so youse can find more, bigger mistakes against the paper — and then not tell us.

• TRUSTEES — calculators so you can add up the amount of our tuition increase next year.

• STUDENT GOVERNMENT PARLIMENTARIAN — an abacus to count on so Government can make sure it has quorum next quarter.

• FRATERNITY and SORORITY MEMBERS — money for insurance so they can open up their parties to non-Greeks.

• STUDENTS — more parking spaces designated student-only parking.

• OEA-ACE — paper and pencils to file more grievances against student-only parking.

The YSU basketball team is FRESH! A new coach, a new style, a new game. And, the new word: EXCITEMENT! From the opening drills to the final buzzer, this team is exciting.

One thing was missing from the opening game, however. The sixth man, also known as the fans, didn't show. Since the time was changed to allow fans to view the football team's playoff game, attendance was

Is U.S. dependent or independent?

Dear Editor,

Is the United States independent or dependent? The answer to this question depends on you and me. We Americans have given the politicians and the media too much control over our decisions and attitudes. The American people are fully capable of making their own decisions when presented with all the facts.

Our recovering economy is largely depending on electricity as its source of energy. This has created a solid link between our economic growth and electricity consumed. But how does this relate to the United States being dependent? In two ways: foreign oil and the predicted shortage of electricity in the 1990 s.

Today, foreign oil is our largest import, twice as much as foreign cars and four times the dollar amount of foreign clothing imported. The 1973-74 Arab Oil Embargo provided added incentive to decrease our dependence on foreign oil, a dependence which many saw as foolish and dangerous. Even though electricity is playing an increasingly bigger role on the energy scene, falling oil prices and difficulty in using other sources of electric generation have ironically cast oil back into the starring role. Regulatory obstacles and short-term economic considerations are encouraging utilities to rely on oil to produce electricity. This is not a healthy situation.

Electric demand has been closely linked to economic growth in the United States. Over the past fifteen years, electric usage increased by more than 25 percent, roughly paralleling the 22 percent growth in the gross national product. Will there be enough electricity to continue our economic growth? An overwhelming number of experts say that by the 1990 s we'll start to feel the effects of a shortage in electricity and the current trend to remedy this is to turn more to foreign oil.

Fortunately, America has a plentiful domestic supply of coal and uranium to generate all the electricity we need. Unfortunately, our piles of coal and uranium might as well sit on Kuwaiti tankers since America chooses to limit their use. America has the reputation of being a leader. It's time we do just that. We have the materials, the latest technology, the brightest minds, and the most skilled work force in the world, so let's use them. We really don't have a good excuse for being dependent on the Middle East.

It's time the people of the United States stand up and be heard. We want independence from the Middle East and now is the time to tell our government to not only encourage this, but to cooperate with the private sector in achieving this goal.

Ultimately, the fate of this nation will end up, once again, in the hands of "the people". But why should we wait until it's forced upon us when we have the "tools to fix it today!"

Gus Hall

Hall projected that government spending on a modern railway system and affordable housing rather than on defense would be the key to overall prosperity. This would create jobs which would in turn bring about a need for materials provided by industries such as steel.

Through the "Little Steel Strike," Hall said he learned "you can't win anything without a certain attitude and determination — militancy." He defined militancy as the drive to fight injustice.

Hall stated that in the early 30s, before the Wagner Act made labor unions legal, members met secretly in church basements.

Hall stated that he will soon meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to discuss the activities of the Communist Party, USA.

Hall became General Secretary of the Communist Party, USA, in 1959. He served in the U.S. Navy during WWII.

Hall also served an eight-year federal prison term at Leavenworth for a violation of the Smith Act. This law made it illegal to conspire to advocate and teach the violent overthrow of government and was later determined to be unconstitutional.

Hall has run for the presidency of the U.S. four times on the communist ticket.

The speech was sponsored by the departments of history, philosophy, economics, political science and labor studies at YSU. It was presented in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the "Little Steel Strike."

Abuse

This peer group will be recruited, trained, supervised and evaluated by Savage. She will be assisted by a substance abuse advisory board which will be composed of interested faculty, community members and a representative of YSU's Student Services.

According to the grant proposal, the need for such a program has been documented by Dr. Pietro Pascale, professor of YSU's Foundations of Education, who surveyed the drug attitudes of 8,000 Northeastern Ohio area high school students four times over a 10-year period.

"I suspect that there is a lot of hidden usage," Letchworth said. "Alcohol is the drug of this campus. We know students use drugs; we just don't know to what extent."

Butler railroad exhibition is on the right track

By ROB CICCOTELLI
Jambar Reporter
By JONI DOBRAN
Jambar Entertainment Editor

A railroad theme will be the feature of an exhibit this Christmas season at the Butler Institute of American Art. "The Train Show" will begin on Sunday, Dec. 13 and will continue through Sunday, Jan. 17. The exhibit will showcase a model train display in addition to works of both fine and commercial art dealing with a general railroad theme.

Richard Ulrich, art, and also a curator at the Butler, distinguished that commercial art can serve several purposes, including those financial, and is continuously reproduced, while fine art is done mainly for aesthetic enjoyment.

According to Ulrich, the main purpose of the show is to appeal to a group of people whose interests wouldn't normally bring them to the museum.

Many of the works exhibited of the commercial type have appeared on calendars and in magazines dealing with the subject of railroads.

According to Ulrich, the broad range of materials from the more modern works to the antique model train that will be displayed should appeal to anyone, independent of age or special interest.

The model train will be on loan from Charles Wood of Hartford, Ohio. It is a tin plate train, an example of the original type of electric model train. According to Ulrich, the train is handmade and much larger than the "Lionel trains of today."

Ulrich mentioned that Wood and his collection have been featured in national model railroad magazines.

Center Stage set to return next quarter

Yes, music fans, Center Stage will return to these pages when we start back to school. The first band to be featured will be Geffen recording artists, The Toll, a band based in Columbus. If your band would like to be featured in Center Stage, get in touch with Joni Dobran at 742-3095.

Puppets come alive through presentations

YSU — Life-size puppets, the creation of nine students in the Puppetry 822 class, will be featured at a holiday puppet show at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 6, in room 4020 of Bliss Hall.

A queen, an evil witch and several canine creatures will be acted out by the YSU students in front of a dungeon backdrop in "The Tinder Box," the story of one man's greed for wealth. After a brief intermission, the second show, "The First Gift of Christmas," will feature a living bell, Christmas trees and a giant moving train.

The life-size puppets, scenery and costumes were designed by Joseph Babisch's art class, which is comprised mainly of elementary education students who will later use puppets in their classes.

Babisch, a veteran professor at YSU, said that many people imagine puppets as miniature objects, but these are "not little things, they are very large things."

The students worked for over 10 weeks on the projects, making puppets in the Japanese Banraku style as well as designing shadow, rod and inventively masked puppets.

The show will be a one-time-only "workshop production," with the students presenting the acts and demonstrating how the puppets and scenery were made.

The show is free and open to the public, but it is recommended for children 12 years or over and for adults.

The department of art is part of YSU's College of Fine and Performing Arts.

Are they real? Diane Drapeho, senior, Education, dressed in queen's regalia, and Katie Calkins, senior, F&PA, portraying an evil witch, practice for the free holiday puppet show to be held this Sunday in Bliss Hall. All costumes, scenery and puppets were created by YSU students in the 'Puppetry' 822 class.

Contests set for Holiday Classic

YSU — In conjunction with the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce Holiday Classic Basketball Tournament, a series of contests will be held in the area during the time leading up to the tourney.

The Holiday Classic will be held Dec. 29-30 on Rossell Court in Beeghly Center. YSU will host Radford, South Carolina State and Eastern Washington in the two-day event.

A series of contests will lead up to the tournament, including a free-throw shooting contest and a slam dunk competition.

The free-throw contest will take place at the Southern Park Mall, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 5. The contest is open to all, and contestants will have a chance to win coupons for dollars off on various items.

The highlight of the contests will be the slam dunk competition. The contest is open to all over 18 years of age. Entry forms for the contest are available at the Information Booth in Kiloawley Center, or from the Chamber of Commerce offices located in the Wick Building in Downtown Youngstown.

Prizes in the event include: two tickets to the NBA All-Star Game for first prize, a backboard and hoop for second prize and an NBA warm-up suit for third prize. All prizes are with the courtesy of Huffy.

Three rounds will be held in the competition, starting Dec. 28 from 10 a.m. till noon at Beeghly Center. The semi-final round will be held at halftime of the second game in the first night of the Classic. Finals will be at halftime of the championship game on Dec. 30.

Entries must be received by Monday, Dec. 21. For more information call the Chamber of Commerce at 744-2131.

Symphony sets next concert

YOUNGSTOWN — Five soloists, the Youngstown Symphony Orchestra and the Symphony Chorus will be featured in a concert at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 12, in Edward W. Powers Auditorium.

Music Director David Efron will conduct the Youngstown Symphony Orchestra, the over 180 member Symphony Chorus, and soloists.

Other works to be performed are Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, Chorale Prelude on "Silent Night" from Die Natalie, and the Prelude from "Hansel and Gretel" by Humperdinck.

Carmen Pelton, a soloist, has recently returned from Scottish Opera where she made her European debut following a highly successful appearance at the Britten-Pears School in Aldeburgh, England, last year. Recent concert performances include: the Kennedy Center, Carnegie Hall and Gerard Schwarz's Music Today Series in New York.

The Dec. 12 concert marks the third appearance of Deborah Dunn with the Youngstown Symphony. She made her Youngstown debut in the role of the High Priestess in the 1984 production of Aida and on Nov. 28 of this year, she was a soloist in the Youngstown Symphony presentation of Handel's Messiah.

Martha Jane Howe, a young dramatic contralto, is a versatile artist, equally at home on the concert and operatic stages. She appeared during the current season with the Lake George Opera, made a Cleveland Orchestra debut at the Blossom Festival and appeared with the Virginia Opera and the opera companies of Virginia and Santa Fe.

Tim Simpson comes to Youngstown directly from Zurich, Switzerland, where he is attending the International Opera Institute of the Zurich Opera. Performances this year include the Western New York Opera, Oswego Opera Theater and the Chautauqua Opera Apprentice Program.

While still a student at the Eastman School of Music, where he was a student of Efron, Richard Byrne made his professional debut with the Opera Theater of Rochester. Equally at home on the concert stage, he has performed with the orchestras of Rochester and Buffalo. Upcoming engagements include New York City Opera's National Company tour of The Barber of Seville in which he will sing the title role.

The over 180 member Chorus is an affiliate of the Youngstown Symphony Society, directed by Dr. Bruno Kazenas. The Chorus is celebrating its 35th anniversary and, last season, joined other choruses from across the nation performing in Carnegie Hall.

Concert tickets are now available at the Youngstown Symphony offices, 269 Federal Plaza West, or by calling the Symphony Center box office, (216) 744-0274. Visa and Mastercard accepted.

The Jambar is looking for a few good writers. If you have any news or feature ideas or if you have an opinion you'd like to air in a commentary, stop in at The Jambar and let us know about it.

The art works featured are those of artists known mainly by railroad collectors and enthusiasts, but they are relative unknowns in artistic circles, Ulrich said.

The exhibit will include works of fine art by Andrew Jackson Poe, Biron Valier and William Libby. Some of the commercial work will include items by Howard Fogg, Grif Teller and W. L. Cymer. According to Richard Schilling, information director of the Butler, the calendars which contain much of the commercial work will be on loan from the Youngstown Model Railroad Association.

Ulrich also stated that the exhibit will be located in the new mezzanine area in the center of the Butler.

Savage

said this will make the program more effective because the students can then identify better with persons they are familiar with.

Savage will train and supervise the peer educators. They will be chosen from among full-time students who will work 15-20 hours per week each quarter. The jobs will be paid positions.

The basic concepts of the new program will be an assessment of the drug problem at YSU and deciding the forms of educational programs to be utilized.

"You can't do anything without educating first," Savage said. "People need to be aware that education can be fun...creative. We're here to educate people," she added.

According to Savage, education and awareness to a problem are important if an effective substance prevention program is to be usefully implemented. She said it is important to look at attitudes by getting information to students and telling them the truth about the effects of substance abuse in their lives.

Savage said her main jobs will be to get this information to the YSU community and to get the peer educators trained and get the program moving.

Because YSU is a commuter college, Savage said students who drink also drive. She said this is a concern to her. At colleges where students live on campus, students generally are drinking and staying where they are because they live right on campus. Savage said when students commute to college, like most of them at YSU do, they have the tendency to attend college, leave it at the end of their class day, and stay with the same group of friends that they attended high school with.

"Many YSU students find life off campus," Savage noted.

"Getting them involved on campus is difficult, but it's important to get them interested in healthy things on campus."

According to Savage, many students are not investing in their college. "I'd like to change that," she said. "I'd like to get them interested in YSU."

Younger college students aren't the only ones who have difficulty making adjustments to campus life. Savage said there are problems for the non-traditionals, too. "University life, by nature, can be very difficult if you didn't learn to make decisions before," she stressed, "especially by being involved in organizations, etc. where decision-making is involved."

Savage applauded the good job that the health classes at YSU are doing to bring out good information on drug abuse for the students. "We know that YSU has a wealth of information already, but no one has coordinated this," she said. "We will pull all these sources together."

Savage was chosen from among other applicants to head up the program as substance abuse coordinator when YSU was awarded a grant for more than $90,000 by the U.S. Department of Education. The program will be under the guidance of Dr. George Letchworth, director of Counseling and Health Services at YSU.

Savage has a degree in education and taught for eight years in public and parochial schools in Youngstown and Struthers.

How to store excesses of library books in the future, recruiting and keeping minority students at YSU, and a report on the North Central Report progress rounded out the meeting.

The next meeting of the Academic Senate will be held at 4 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 13, 1988.

Penguin 8-4 grid record best since 1979

By GEORGE J. RUSNAK
Jambar Sports Reporter

The YSU Penguins, even though they dropped a close, last-minute contest to the Northern Iowa Panthers 31-28, the game served as an indication of how the Penguins played as a team all year.

On defense, they attacked the ball with great tenacity, causing two fumbles, two interceptions, two pass breakups, two sacks, and three tackles for a loss.

Offensively, they were led by senior Trenton "The General" Lykes, with the supporting cast of seniors Rod Love and Elliott Fedd, juniors Lorenzo Davis and Steve Jones, and the entire offensive line.

"When you evaluate the games as a coach, the first thing you look for is the effort there," stated Tressel. "Our team gave great effort for the most part and played the entire season up until the final whistle."

Tressel said he felt the 13 seniors were a big reason why the Penguins got as far as they did. "We had outstanding leadership throughout the entire season from our seniors."

Losing the final game by that close of a margin won't have any ill effect on next year's squad, Tressel said. "On the contrary, it will have the same effect as the 1986 win over Akron, where we wanted to keep experiencing the winning feeling after the Akron game. We don't ever want to feel the way we did after our loss to UNI," he added.

The head Penguin mentor was very pleased with this season. "There are a lot of good things we can reflect on this year," said Tressel.

Tressel saw the Marshall game as the pivotal game of the season. "After we won the big game at Bowling Green, we played Marshall," commented Tressel. "In that game we learned one thing as a team: it sure feels ugly to play poorly and we weren't going to do that for the rest of the year."

Nine Penguins garnered OVC honors at the end of the 1987 campaign. Tressel, was named "Coach of the Year" for guiding the Penguins to an 8-3 loop mark, a 5-1 mark and a championship in the OVC, and taking the Penguins to their first ever Division I-AA playoff.

Lykes was named "Offensive Player of the Year" setting six conference marks and eight YSU records in both passing and total offense. Paul Soltis, who led the league in tackles, shared "Defensive Player of the Year" honors with Aaron Jones of EKU.

Other honors went to Fedd and Rod Henderson who were also named to the First Team, All-OVC with Lykes and Soltis. Named to the Second Team, All-OVC were Jerry Dunlap, Maury Bibent, Jim Zdelar and Mike Peterson.

YSU defeats Duquesne for first win

By TIM LEONARD
Jambar Sports Reporter

The Penguins won their first game of the season and they won it big, beating Duquesne, 91-62, Tuesday at Beeghly Center.

The Penguins, 1-2, were led by senior forward Dorothy Bowers, who was 10-of-16 from the field while finishing with 23 points.

Senior Tanja Simone tossed in 18 points, including 7 points during a 14-5 run in the first half, jumping out to a 40-26 lead at the 3:34 mark. Simone shot 2-of-3 from the 3-point line.

YSU ended the half leading 48-30. Margaret Somple, a sophomore, scored all of her 14 points in the first half and finished the game with nine rebounds, second to Bowers' game high 15 rebounds.

Less than two minutes into the second half, Stephanie Cole tipped in a Bowers missed shot and the Penguins led 52-32. The YSU lead never dipped below 20 points after the Cole basket. Cole came off the bench to score nine points and grab five rebounds.

Bowers and Somple combined for YSU's first 19 points—Bowers scoring 11 points and Somple eight.

Holiday Classic highlights break cage action

YSU — The quarter may be just about over, but action on the YSU sports front is just heating up. While YSU is away from the books, action will still be taking place by the Penguins' men's and women's basketball teams.

Highlighting the winter break action will be the second annual Youngstown Chambar of Commerce Holiday Classic, Dec. 29-30, on Rosselli Court in Beeghly Center. The Penguins will play host to teams from Eastern Washington University, Radford University and South Carolina State University. Last year the Penguins won the first classic, taking the title game over Bucknell, 77-70.

Game times are scheduled for 6 and 8 p.m. each night. Prior to the second night of action in the tournament, the YSU women's basketball team will play a preliminary game at 4:45 p.m. against Kent State.

The women's holiday break features seven games, five at home and two on the road. The Penguins face off with Ohio University at home on Dec. 15 and at home against Tennessee State on Dec. 19. Both games are preliminaries to men's contests.

YSU lady cagers then encounter road contests with Pitt on Dec. 22 and Cleveland State on Dec. 28.

The women wrap up the winter break schedule at home against Kent on Dec. 30, versus Western Michigan on Jan. 2 and against Detroit on Jan. 4. The latter game is a preliminary to a men's contest.

The men will kick off the break at the Marshall University MMI Tournament, beginning tonight and wrapping up tomorrow. The men will next take to the hardwood on Dec. 13 at Cleveland State. A home game against Ohio University is set for Dec. 15.

The men will face Central Michigan on the road, Dec. 17, before starting a string of seven home dates extending well into January of 1988.

The Penguins face Tennessee State on Dec. 19 at Beeghly before hosting the Holiday Classic, Dec. 29-30. The men wrap up the winter break against the University of Detroit on Dec. 4.
