Proctor lends marketing concepts during lecture

NEWS SERVICE — One of the country's foremost advertising executives will be visiting YSU as part of the Special Lecture Series next week.

In 1970 Proctor founded Proctor & Gardner Advertising, Inc. of Chicago and she remains its sole owner. Among the prestigious clients served by her agency are Kraft Inc., Jewel Food Stores and Sears Roebuck & Co.

In his 1984 State of the Union Address, President Ronald Reagan saluted Proctor's spirit of enterprise and referred to her as one of "the heroes of the '80s."

Her marketing and creative concepts have been included in several university texts, and she is featured in the Smithsonian Institution's "Black Women: Achievements Against the Odds" Hall of Fame.

Proctor serves on the board of directors of many well-known companies, including: Illinois Bell Telephone Co.; Illinois Economic Development Commission; the Better Business Bureau of Chicago and Northern Illinois, Inc.; and the Executives' Club of Chicago. She is also a Governing Council member of the Illinois State Bar Association's Institute for Public Affairs.

Proctor holds two degrees from Talladega College, Talladega, Ala.

Those attending the lecture are encouraged to use the Wick Avenue Parking Deck across from Maag Library.

Vice president comes to rescue

By PAMELA GAY

One Student Government official recently discovered that his job sometimes takes him out of his office — and in this case, out into the streets.

Todd Vreeland, vice-president of YSU's Student Government, assisted another YSU student after she was struck by a car on Spring Street Tuesday.

Campus Security was dispatched to the corner of Spring and Elm Street after Linda Roberts, junior, A&S, was struck by a car driven by a Canfield resident. Vreeland and one security officer were first to arrive on the scene, the report stated.

"I was in my office [Student Government] and Campus Escort Service radio outside the office has the same radio frequency as Campus Security," he said.

I heard the call about the accident, and then I heard the call for '55' which means the City Ambulance has been called," he added. "So I went out to help."

Vreeland, who has his associates degree in paramedics from YSU, attended to Roberts. There were no visible signs of injury to Roberts and she told Vreeland she would like to get up.

According to the report, Vreeland advised her to stay motionless and asked if she had any past medical history. She informed him that she had neck surgery in 1978 and that she presently wore a wire in her neck to hold together her vertebrae.

Vreeland held her neck motionless until the ambulance arrived and she was placed in a neck brace. The Youngstown Fire Department ambulance transported her to North Side Hospital.

Vandals damage sculptures

If you haven't seen the ice sculptures of two penguins and a swan in front of Kilcawley Center, it's too late now — they've already been damaged or stolen.

According to Campus Security reports, two white males kicked the ice penguins off their block stands around 6 p.m. Monday.

Assistant basketball coach William Dailey said he heard one sculpture fall to the ground and looked to see a male, approximately 18 years old, run away from the sculpture and head toward the main doors of Kilcawley Center, the report said.

Dailey then observed a second white male around the same age push over another penguin sculpture. The coach then heard the subject yell, "Hey Bruce, I'm coming See Theft, page 12

National honor society hosts Pulitzer nominee

NEWS SERVICE — The third annual Distinguished Lecture, sponsored by YSU's Chapter 143 of Phi Kappa Phi, will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 4, in the Ohio Room of Kilcawley Center.

Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor society, recognizes superior scholarship in all disciplines.

This presentation will be a lecture and musical exhibition by musician and composer Dr. Robert L. Rollin of the Dana School of Music faculty.

It is free and open to the public.

His classical composition, "Five Pieces for Flute and Piano on Legends of the Seneca Indians," has been performed nationally many times and was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize last year.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of City College of New York with honors in music and English, Rollin earned his master's and doctoral degrees in composition and theory from Cornell University, Ithica, N.Y. He was a teaching fellow at Cornell and then taught at Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio and North Central College, Naperville, Ill., before joining the YSU faculty in 1977.

Rollins has composed a wide range of music for instruments and voices. His experiments and writings have been published in numerous periodicals.

Seminars aid seniors

By MELISSA WILTHER
Jamber Editor

Undergraduates can tell a senior a mile away — the walk, the look, the "I'm almost outta' here" attitude.

But seniors don't know everything, especially about the great employment search. Their higher education of four or more years has been taken up with classes, studying and exams. Landing that first job becomes top priority during their last few quarters.

Three representatives from BusinessWeek's Careers magazine will be on campus at 10 a.m., 12 noon and 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 2 and 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 3 in the Program Lounge on the first floor of Kilcawley Center, (where the piano is) offering expert advice on something seniors don't know too much about.

The one hour and 15 minute Plymouth-BusinessWeek Career Search Workshops include resume writing, dressing for success, interviewing and new career opportunities.

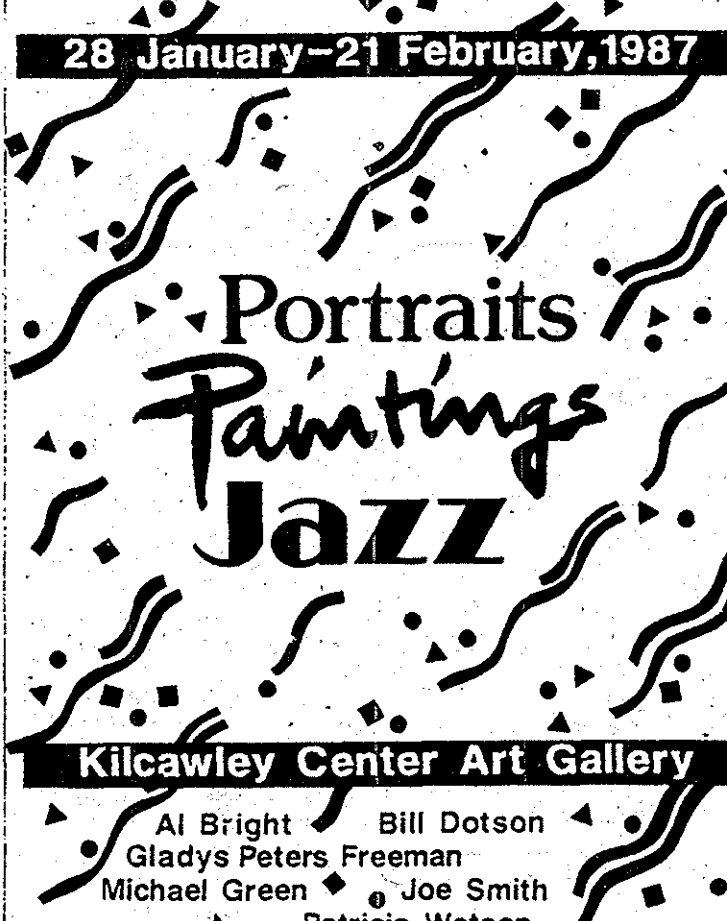

Among the handouts students will receive include a free career search workbook and resume guide. The workshop's motto is "Everything you need to know about getting a job," and the representatives encourage students to ask questions.

BusinessWeek team leader Christina Barbero will be on campus today contacting faculty and asking them to encourage students to attend their workshops.

While on campus last October, the seminars received a favorable response according to Chuck Whitman, director of Career Services. "The seminars received positive feedback and are back by popular demand," he said.

For further information contact Career Services at ext. 3515.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

EDITORIAL

Disaster's effects echo one year later

Moments of silence marked a year that has passed since NASA's space shuttle tragedy — wreaths were laid, schoolchildren dedicated a memorial and flags were lowered to half-staff this past Wednesday.

On Tuesday, Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger and its seven-man crew burst into flames 8.9 miles above Launch Pad 39-B at Kennedy Space Center in Florida; Cmdr. Dick Scobee, Pilot Michael Smith, New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe and crew members Judy Resnick, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka and Greg Jarvis perished in the accident.

Investigations, probings and meetings were held to figure out the cause of the tragedy. It was finally determined that the blame lied in the booster rocket seats and cold weather.

This mission was special and the first to have an "average" citizen on board. No matter the importance of the launch, two men tried to stop it. Allan J. McDonald and Roger Boisjoly, rocket engineers for Morton Thiokol, pleaded against a take-off according to a recent New York Times article.

An accident was bound to happen since the last and only accident occurred 20 years ago when three astronauts died in the Apollo 1 fire. The nation's luck seemed to be too good to be true.

But after the Challenger accident and to this day, the two men have received little recognition for what was certainly a heroic yet futile effort. The world, our nation and the families of the victims have tried to cope, but the experience was and still is overwhelming.

Although, it is men like these that should be hailed — the kind that fight for what they believe in and stand up for their beliefs, they have suffered too.

McDonald and Boisjoly's attention was that of bright media lights and the agony of testifying before a presidential commission "criticizing their superiors whose judgement they had learned to respect," the article stated.

Since the accident the two have tried to cope — each in different ways. McDonald is now the spokesman for Thiokol and its newly redesigned rocket boosters. Boisjoly has been put on the long-term disability list of the company. For Boisjoly, the painful memories of the shuttle disaster make it impossible to work on another mission.

McDonald and Boisjoly have lamented in their own way for something they thought was right.

And for that they have suffered.

Essential student IDs dictate whereabouts

Facism. Not a very pretty word, is it? And yet, within the very concrete and snow-covered walls of YSU, it lives and breathes.

Take for instance, the simplest examples of the facist state: rigid identification procedures controlling our lives. A simple trip to the Stadium or Beeghly becomes an evening out during the height of World War II.

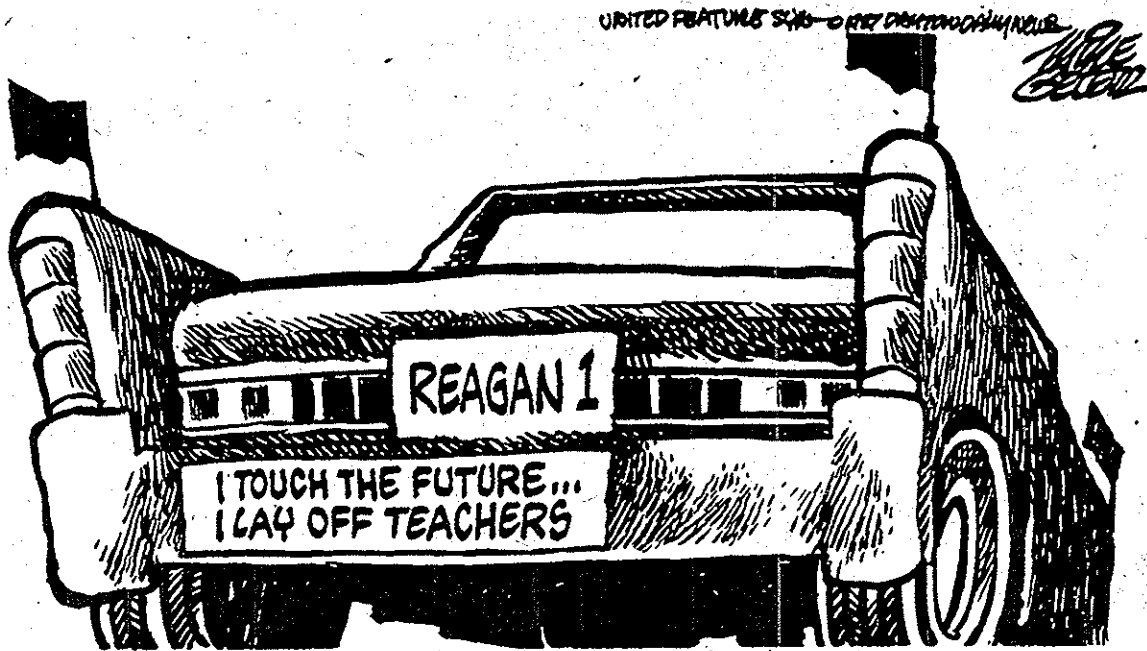

You go trundeling along toward the Stadium and there they are: the dreaded chair barriers. Strategically yet manically placed — the chairs dare

Firm offers scholarships

NEWS SERVICE — Adlaka and Associates, a civil engineering firm with offices in Boardman, has established five partial scholarships at YSU for sons or daughters of families where the head of the household is presently unemployed. Three of the $200 scholarships are to be in senior civil or structural engineering and the other two also for $200 each, in computer technology.

The scholarships are to be awarded on the basis of academic achievement or financial need.

The endowment fund has been established by Sat Adlaka, a civil engineer and founder of the company, and his wife, Karen, who is office manager. Both are natives of India.

Sat Adlaka studied engineering in India before coming to the U.S. He graduated from Ohio Northern University at Ada in 1964 with a bachelor's degree in Business Administration and received a bachelor's in civil engineering at the same university in 1965. He took additional studies at YSU.

Karen Adlaka received a bachelor's in education at Lucknow University, Lucknow, India and a bachelor's in Sociology at Ohio Northern. She also holds a master's degree in elementary education from YSU.

scare you away? "Oh no! There are CHAIRS in there. I ain't going in there."

But one door remains clear so you venture in. You even get as far as the bottom of the stairs and a voice crinkles up your spine saying, "I.D.?"

Now, ordinarily this wouldn't bother you. But being the winter season and all, you tend to dress up a bit more to endure the cold. So your arms are sticking out from your body a ways, just as they do on toddlers when overly cautious mothers wrap them up into a ball, in those ski suits. And you have to dig around in your book bag, purse or pocket with such arms, to find the precious —

— "I.D. I said where's your I.D.?"

By the time you get your I.D. out and wrap your body back up and put all of your embarrassing belongings back (the used tissues and the "candle"-of Chapstick), your court time or class is over and you have nowhere to go.

All of this, of course, happens after 4 p.m.

Then you realize that you're only a number. Yes. They don't care that daddy and mommy named you after Gilligan or Donna Reed. It is your STUDENT I.D. number that matters. And let me tell you, don't leave home without it.

I once went to order a yearbook. I walked all the way from Kilcawley to Jones Hall with the wind blowing and my nose running and CRAWLED into Jones Hall and placed my order, and asked for a Kleenex. The lady could give me neither because I couldn't verify that I was 288-46-1046. (I neglected to bring my I.D. card. I had money. I thought that was all that mattered.)

Of course, all sarcasm aside, I am glad for the security YSU is trying to implement. It's only logical that the University protect its students in such a fashion, and I genuinely support it. The people are helpful (especially the lady in Jones Hall) and the food is good.

I just hope we won't be needing restroom passes.

Women's Center offers support network

By SHANNON CASEY
Special to The Jambar

The Women's Resource Center has only been in existence since fall 1985 but its network of support and encouragement for women YSU students is firmly planted in the basement of Dana Hall.

Since its beginning, the Resource Center has provided a place for campus and community women to gather, research and collaborate on everything from homework to child care.

Because it is relatively new on campus, coordinator Danna Bozick sees one of the primary goals of the program is to make the presence of the Women's Resource Center known to the campus and the community as well.

Bozick, a Campbell resident, has been coordinator since October 1986. She holds a bachelor of Fine Arts degree from YSU and has taken graduate courses here. Previously she was a home instruction teacher for the Campbell school system.

The Resource Center offers many activities throughout the academic year and has added a number of new events to its calendar for 1987. All events are free and open to the public.

Every Thursday, the center offers a different film dealing with many issues facing women. The films are shown at noon, 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. in the center.

Through the month of January, the center has been sponsoring a one-person student invitational art exhibit featuring Minerva Esparra, a senior art student at YSU. This year's exhibit is the first of its kind and the center plans to make it a regular event. Another art exhibit is planned for April. The thematic show will be titled "Women in Violence" and will be juried.

March has been named "Women's History Month" and the Women's Resource Center will sponsor activities on campus during the first two weeks of the month. Kyoko Dicks of Boardman will give a lecture on "Racism and Sexism in Japan" on March 3 in the Scarlet Room in Kilcawley Center.

YSU guides high school students' futures

By SUEANN HINES
Jambar Copy Editor

YSU is lending a helping hand to area high school students by participating in the Career Beginnings program, aimed at helping tenacious young people realize their potential and the importance of education.

Jerome Harrell, admissions, has been appointed coordinator of the experimental program. He is in the process of visiting the five Youngstown city high schools to talk with counselors about this year's Career Beginnings.

The counselors from each of the high schools, Chaney, South, Wilson, Rayen and East, will pick the students they think will most benefit from the program.

The students chosen must have a GPA of 1.00-3.00, be economically disadvantaged, have at least two-thirds attendance in high school and be of juniors status when they enter the program. The students picked, said Harrell, must show ability but for one reason or another they might "fall through the cracks" once they graduate.

After the counselors recommend students (a total of 250 from the five schools), their names and background are sent to Brandeis University's Center for Human Resources whose Commonwealth Fund is funding the program at YSU.

Brandeis then chooses half of the students to be in a control group and the other half to be in an experimental group. It is in this stage of the program that YSU participates.

The experimental group is left to complete their high school training without any interference from the program. The control group, however, participates in workshops and sessions at the YSU Career Service Center, attends lectures by guest speakers, meets with their high school counselor twice a month and is paired up with a mentor. All of the activities are aimed at helping the students overcome difficulties and achieve.

The mentors are volunteers from the Youngstown business community who meet with their student and encourage and guide him in such things as job skills and college application training.

The mentors are chosen by an eight member mentor council.

In addition to the activities that go on throughout the school year, the participants are also placed in a summer job.

There has been no problem in soliciting people to act as mentors in the Youngstown area, said Harrell.

This is the first year the program has been tried at YSU. Harrell said even though the first control group has five months to go until they are finished with the program and evaluated, the results have been very successful. Out of the 104 students that started the program last year, 98 are still actively involved.

The evaluation aspect concludes the program by comparing the control group who received specialized training and guidance, with the experimental group who didn't receive the instruction. The success or failure of the program is determined by how many of the students go to college, get jobs or attend a technical school in each group.

YSU and Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland are the only two universities to participate in the Career Beginnings program in Ohio. There are 21 programs set up across the country in two- and four-year universities. Approximately 2,400 students participate and 2,400 mentors are involved.

The heat is on.

This summer may be your last chance to graduate from college with a degree and an officer's commission. Sign up for ROTC's six-week Basic Camp now. See your Professor of Military Science for details. But hurry. The time is short. The space is limited. The heat is on. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Andrews displays 'different' style in Comedy Store show

By DEB SHAULIS
Jambar Entertainment Editor

Walter Brennen singing We Are the World? Underwear being pulled out from under jeans? Confused? Not if you were one of the many in attendance at Andy Andrews' comedy concert in the Chestnut Room Wednesday.

The concert, sponsored by the PULSE/Mainstage committee of PAC, was part of the ongoing activities of The Comedy Store.

Andrews, who once said he "wanted to be a different kind of comedian," was chosen "Comedy Entertainer of the Year" in 1986 by the National Association for Campus Activities. Past performances include shows aboard cruise ships and with TV and recording stars, as well as college campus appearances.

Displaying his musical talents, Andrews played his own version of We Are the World, substituting the voices of Jimmy Stewart and Walter Brennen for other singers.

The comedian recalled the days of "good cartoons" as compared to today's children's programming. "Remember Snagglepuss?" asked Andrews. "He was the first lion from San Francisco."

Andrews worked off audience participation to keep the show going and he had no problem getting the YSU crowd to participate.

"What's your name?" Andrews asked constantly. "Kim? That's my mother's name." His mother's name changed several times throughout the hour-long show.

Andrews also had advice for the audience. He suggested, for fun, taking over the microphone from the hostess of a restaurant. "Brady, party of 8? Manson, party of 7?" called out Andrews to the capacity crowd.

Andrews made himself the subject of his jokes as well. He recalled his days in fourth grade when the boys lost to the girls in the spelling bee. After Suzie correctly spelled cow, Andrews' teacher turned to him and said, "Andy, your word is metaphysical."

He also spoke of his athletic ability. "I played golf for the first time today. I had a 94 for 18 holes." After a short pause, Andrews added, "I would have done better if the ball hadn't hit the clown's face and bounced into the windmill."

Andrews' show, once reviewed as "good comedy even Mom could enjoy," contained no profanity or vulgarity. "I wouldn't use anything," said Andrews, "if I think my mother or sister would be offended by what I said."

Keeping the show clean is "harder, but if you're taking a risk in the name of comedy, why not?" Andrews said.

"I've figured you guys out," said Andrews at the conclusion of his show. "I know what it's going to take to make this crowd go wild."

With those words, Andrews pulled off his sweatshirt, displayed his "bodybuilding" techniques and overall "physique", then proceeded to pull his underwear out from under his jeans.

Deep Purple takes step forward with new release

By PAUL CUDDY
Special to The Jambar

With their latest release on the Mercury/Polygram label, Deep Purple has continued their evolution into what seems to be a much more 'commercial' band. The House of Blue Light is geared more toward the pop-metal side, bringing about memories of guitarist Ritchie Blackmore's ex-group, Rainbow. Even though the band's head may be up in that blue sky, they still have their feet planted in the Deep Purple earth of fourteen years ago.

With such hard rock classics as "Smoke on the Water" and "Highway Star" to their credit, the band is not lacking proper roots in rock-n-roll. By the same token, I find myself giving a half-hearted sigh in light of the entire new record.

In the "smoke" days, the catchy riffs and blistering vocals were artfully woven into phenomenal rock pieces. The new stuff leaves one wondering, "Where's the beef?"

There are a few things worth mentioning about certain tracks. The first song, single and video, "Bad Attitude", offers punchy vocals, a cool chorus and one brand new trick-up-the-sleeve — the synthesizer. Obviously the synth is nothing new, but the sudden addition is quite an earful for the music of Deep Purple. The album is loaded with synths in addition to keyboardist Jon Lord's classic Hammond B3 organ.

"The Spanish Archer" is a genuine Purple rocker which displays most all of the group's innate talent. The following song, "Strange Ways," is definitely a strange one in its own way. Though too many "Arabian" sounding scalar patterns are used, it has a nice three-part harmony in the beginning.

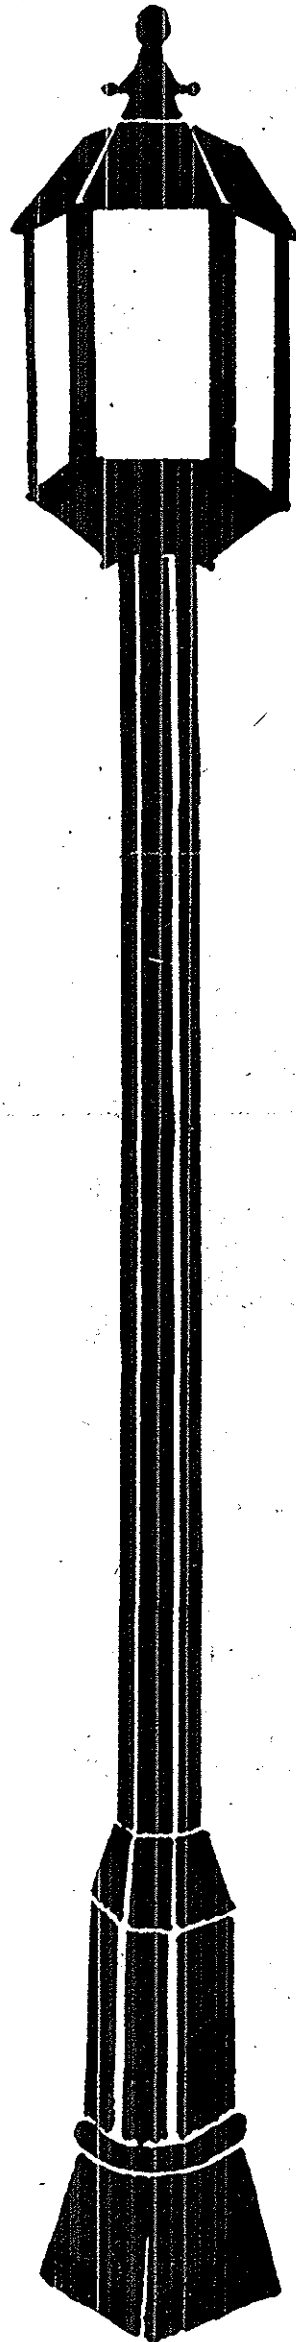

"Mitzy Dupree" is a very bluesy yet pseudo-30's piece, which has redundant vocals, courtesy of Ian Gillan. Next tune, please.

Fortunately, The House of Blue Light goes out with a bang, and not a whimper. "Dead or Alive" gives one of the most optimum charges of R&R current electricity ever. This one showboats the musicianship of all five members, especially Lord and Blackmore. Lord's keyboards sing out with a passion, while Blackmore interjects with only the spectacular guitar playing and sound the man is famous for.

I've also heard some fantastic stuff from bassist Roger Glover and drummer Ian Price on previous lp's, but not on this one. It's a mystery to me, but perhaps the cause is Gillan's monotonous vocals which overshadow the whole deal.

Whatever the case, The House of Blue Light is a fairly OK bargain for the bucks. It's worthwhile listening for old Deep Purple fans and newcomers to the revamped rock sound of the group as well.

Penguins capture second win in row

By BRIAN MACALA
Jambar Sports Reporter

An old adage states that if something isn't broke, don't fix it. YSU basketball coach Mike Rice, probably feels his Penguins don't need any fixing the rest of the season.

Rice's new run-and-shoot offense is working like a fine-tuned machine. In the three games that Rice has put in his new style of play, the Penguins have put out their best quality since the season began.

The latest victim of the YSU run-and-shoot assault was Wright State. The Penguins built a 25-point lead Wednesday night before holding off the Raiders for a 99-90 victory at Beeghly Center's Rosselli Courth. YSU has scored 214 points in the last two games.

The Penguins used a full-court press throughout the game. The pressure allowed them to take an early 10-point cushion before Wright State made it 44-37 at halftime.

YSU continued the torrid pace in the second half and at the 15:01 mark the lead reached 63-43. The margin eventually swelled to 81-56 with 8:30 remaining, but as Rice said, "We just got greedy."

The Raiders' Lenny Lyons shot from 3-point range like a man possessed as the visitors whittled the lead to as little as six points in the waning moments. Lyons was five of nine from beyond the 3-point stripe and seven of 14 for the game. He finished with 19 points.

The Penguins iced the game with two free throws by Tilman Bevely and another by Jim Gilmore. YSU missed a chance to crack the century mark for the second game in a row when Gilmore missed the second half of a one-and-one with three seconds left.

"The press won the game for us," Rice said. "Johnny Robinson did a good job of anticipating passes and Gilmore plays a lot better in this new offense."

Robinson was instrumental in forcing 20 Wright State turnovers. Gilmore, meanwhile,

Alumni game held

YSU — Guard Garry Robbins scored a game-high 36 points and forward Frank Andrews added 20 as the Red team beat the White, 97-89, in the third annual YSU alumni basketball game.

The alumni tilt was a preliminary to the YSU-Wright State game Wednesday night at Beeghly Center. The YSU athletic department sponsored the game.

The White team was paced by Troy Williams with 29 points and Gary Anderson with 21.

Williams and Robbins played for current Penguin coach Mike Rice. Anderson and Andrews were on Dom Rosselli's team that hosted the Division II Great Lakes Regional.

Charlie Bush, who played from 1946-50, and Eli Danilov, 1947-51, were the senior alumni on the floor.

The alumni made 17 3-point goals.

scored 19 points, hauled in 10 rebounds and dealt nine assists.

"We need to learn to get back on the press better," Rice added. "Akron is a good team versus the press."

The Penguins take on the arch-rival Zips Saturday night.

Coming off his 55-point scoring spree Monday night, Tilman Bevely again led the YSU attack with 31 points. After Gilmore came Robinson with 15 and Robert Johnson with a dozen.

Johnson hauled in eight rebounds and recorded four steals for the Penguins.

Lyons shared team scoring honors for the Raiders with James Jones, who led Wright State with seven rebounds.

Corey Brown added 13 points followed by Joe Jackson with a dozen and Dave Dinn with 10. Jackson also had eight assists.

The Penguins are now 8-10 on the season.

Old-timers: The YSU Alumni game was held as a preliminary to the Penguins' contest against Wright State on Wednesday. Gary Anderson of the White team goes in for a slam dunk on this play.

Bevely named Player of Week

NASHVILLE, (Tenn.) — The Ohio Valley Conference named YSU's Tilman Bevely as the league's Player of the Week.

Bevely, a 6-foot-4 forward, scored 55 points in Monday's victory over Tennessee Tech and 31 Wednesday against non-conference foe Wright State.

Bevely's 55 points ties the OVC single-game scoring record. That point total also ranks him second among YSU's all-time single-game scoring leaders.

Zips visit streaking YSU five

By GUY COVIELLO

Riding a 2-game winning streak and back in the Ohio Valley Conference playoff picture, the YSU men's basketball team hosts arch-rival Akron at Beeghly Center Saturday night.

The Penguins have found success in head coach Mike Rice's new run-and-shoot offense. In the last two games they scored 214 points, including 86 by forward Tilman Bevely.

YSU takes an 8-10 overall record and 1-6 OVC mark into tomorrow's game. The top seven teams in the league qualify for the post-season tournament. Tennessee Tech is 0-7 in the OVC.

The Zips, however, bring 14-4 and 4-2 records into the game. The defending OVC champs and NCAA tournament participants beat YSU last month at JAR Arena.

Marcel Boyce, a 6-foot-6 forward, and Eric McLaughlin, a 5-11 guard, lead the Zips with 18.7 and 15.3 scoring averages respectively.

Mike Solmen will make his third consecutive start for the Penguins.

The Lady Penguins, meanwhile, are at the other end of the spectrum with a 3-game losing skid. Compounding the problem is the injury to leading scorer Dorothy Bowers, questionable with a sprained ankle.

It will be a homecoming for two of the Zips. Starters Pam Arnold and Patty DeAscentis are from Ftitch and Boardman high schools respectively.

Burkett finds road to success

By LISA SOLLEY
Jamber Managing Editor

The road to success is filled with twists and bends and is often a constant uphill climb.

High school athletes who seem to reach the top are suddenly detoured to the bottom when they enter the realm of college competition. The glory days become memories and the learning process to excel begins again.

One athlete familiar with this road and beginning to map out the future path is YSU's Debbie Burkett.

Burkett is in her second year for the Lady Penguins basketball team. The 5-foot-11 forward is a graduate of Canfield high school where she accumulated 1,099 points in a 4-year career.

She is currently YSU's second leading scorer, averaging 10.2 points per game behind standout center Dorothy Bowers. Bowers leads the team with 24.3 average.

Burkett, who started every game since she was a freshman in high school, averaged 10.6 points per game and collected 5.3 rebounds in her first season of Division I college basketball. The forward was also credited with 39 assists and 31 steals last season.

Head coach Ed DiGregorio said Burkett was coming off an impressive freshman campaign and exceeded expectations. "Her dedication for improvement will help the overall com-

Lady Penguins drop third straight contest

KENT — Amy Slowikowski poured in 22 points Wednesday to lead four players in double figures as the Kent State Lady Flashes beat YSU, 84-67, in a non-conference battle at Memorial Gym.

The Lady Penguins were playing without leading scorer Dorothy Bowers who averages 24.3 points per game. Bowers has a sprained ankle and is questionable for Saturday's game against Akron.

Guards Stephanie Coie and Tanja Simone picked up most of the slack for YSU with 14 and 12 points respectively. Forwards Carol Nee and Debbie Burkett added 11 and 10 points respectively but the ladies still lost their third straight and fell to 8-9.

Nee and center Julie Bray led the Penguins in rebounding with seven caroms apiece.

cept we are looking for this season," DiGregorio said.

Dedication, improvement and team concepts are three factors Burkett takes seriously.

The Penguins started the season with five straight wins, their best start since 1978. Now, however, their record stands at 8-10 with three straight losses.

"Sometimes we rely on Bowers too much and that hurts, especially if she is double-teamed and can't get the shot," Burkett said.

Being the second-leading scorer Burkett is often looked upon to lead the team when Bowers is tied up. It's a responsibility that doesn't seem to bother her.

"I don't really care about scoring, I just go out and play and hope the team can win," Burkett said.

Burkett said she doesn't see herself in a leadership role now, but possibly in the future.

"Bowers and (Tanja) Simone are the leaders now because they are older. Hopefully in another year or so I will be called upon to lead."

Because of the Lady Penguins' youth there is always pressure to perform. And the performance pressure is not only felt during the games, but in every practice session as well.

"You're constantly pushing the person ahead of you and worrying about your position," Burkett said.

Presently, the team has taken a turn for the worse on its road to success, but according to Burkett, they are working hard in practice to overcome their slump and get back on the path to the OVC title race.
