Housing to rise on north side

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Reporter

The wheels have been set in motion for additional student housing following last Friday's Board of Trustees meeting in Tod Hall.

By a vote of 6-1, trustees approved the use of a section of the north side for a new student housing development. The area is bounded by the Madison Avenue Expressway to the south, Elm Street to the east, Madison Avenue to the north, and the intersection of Michigan Avenue, the freeway, and Madison Avenue to the west, and was considered the best location for the proposed housing.

Acceptance of the proposal also required a change in the University's Facilities Master Plan, which outlines all properties owned by the University. All property owners in the area will be notified of the University's interest and their property will be appraised so that the University make offers to "all property owners responding favorably," the proposal stated.

The Facilities Master Plan also was altered through a separate proposal to permit the University to continue purchasing property on the west side of Fifth Avenue between Lincoln Avenue and the Madison Avenue Expressway. Property already has been acquired on that side of Fifth, between Grant and Arlington Streets, to develop additional surface parking lots.

The board voted to name the School of Education building Fedor Hall, as tribute to two educators in the Campbell City school system.

Trustee William Lyden, who is retiring from the board after 14 years of service, lost his bid by a 4-3 vote to add an amendment that would insure that student tuition would not be raised to pay for the housing.

"The intent [was] for any funding be self-supporting and not be passed on to the student's tuition," said Lyden. "This amendment [would have had] a great impact on the future of this university."

YSU President Neil D. Humphrey was opposed to the amendment, saying he could not guarantee student money would not be used since it was a state-funded project.

Trustees also granted permission to the management of the Youngstown Pride, a professional basketball team that rents

A retired YSU history professor addressed the 747 fall and winter quarter graduates at commencement ceremonies which were held at 10 a.m., Saturday, March 25 in Beeghly Center.

Dr. Morris Slavin, professor emeritus of history at YSU and a noted scholar on the French Revolution, addressed the issue of illiteracy and the "right to read."

Slavin emphasized in his speech the public's need and the importance of reading and learning. "Our culture is based on literacy," he said. "The right to read has been taken for granted."

The speaker used the recent controversy over Salman Rushdie's book The Satanic Verses as an example of the struggle for the freedom to read.

Slavin also told graduates the best way to prepare to enter the working world is to develop the ability to adapt to new kinds of jobs. "The best preparation for work is the ability to adapt to new jobs," he said. He also said that society has an obligation to help citizens adjust.

During the graduation ceremonies Slavin received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from the University.

The former YSU history professor has written numerous articles and two books on 18th century France and the French Revolution. Slavin has won both national and international recognition as an authority on the French Revolution.

Slavin, who received his bachelor's degree from Ohio State University his master's from the University of Pittsburgh and his doctorate from Western Reserve University, has taught at YSU since 1948.

Slavin, who retired in 1981, was among those named last year to receive the YSU Heritage Award for outstanding contributions to the University.

During Saturday's commencement 109 graduates received an associate's degree, 528 received a bachelor's degree and 110 received a master's degree.

The associate degrees awarded were: seven associate in arts, 41 associate in applied business, 58 associate in

Board welcomes students during first-time meeting

Selling condoms on campus may be the hottest student issue recently addressed by the YSU Board of Trustees but it may not be the most important; two student trustees, the first ever, were welcomed at the March 24 meeting.

For the past 16 years House Bill 34 has been tossed around the Ohio Senate, according to Amy McFarland, junior, engineering, who was appointed for a two-year student trustee term. In its earlier form, she said the bill would have provided for two student trustees with full voting privileges on the University Board of Trustees at each of Ohio's state schools.

As it stands, the bill, which she reported finally passed in 1988, provides for two student trustees with voting privileges in committee but no voting privileges at board meetings.

"I feel students could handle full voting privileges," she said, adding, "student trustees would have to prove themselves first and foremost" before full voting privileges would possibly be considered. "It can always be changed," McFarland emphasized, students could always be given full voting privileges. However, full voting privileges are not in the near future, she admitted. "It took 16 years for House Bill 34 to be passed and who knows, it might take another 16 years for students to vote."

Nevertheless, McFarland stressed "having decision makers directly involved with students is a great start."

Ralph Crum, sophomore, A&S, who was selected to serve a one-year term, said although student trustees can't vote at board meetings, they are on equal terms with other trustees in committee where, he added, "the brunt of the work gets done."

Anticipating upcoming meetings, McFarland said she wants to work on developing things students need. "I would like to make an impact on a number of things."

Crum said he would like to have input on student housing issues. "Housing can definitely help our University grow, that's one of the things I'd like to do."

As ironic as it may be, this meeting may have been Crum's first

Spring is no break for police

By JONI DOBRAN
Jambar News Editor

Several activities kept Campus Police busy over Spring Break while most students were away from the University.

On Thursday, March 23, Josephine Turjanica, who works in Jones Hall, reported the damage which occurred to her car as she was exiting a parking lot, the police report said.

Turjanica told the officer she was exiting the F-3 lot (south of Williamson Hall) at approximately 5:10 p.m. As she drove onto Rayen Avenue, the control arm gate came down, striking the car's vinyl top.

Damage to the car included several tears on the vinyl on the driver's side. The report also said Parking Services was notified of the faulty control arm.

Just before Spring Break occurred, Neon adviser Nancy Diana notified police on Friday, March 17, of several items which have been missing from the Neon office.

The report said the equipment was last seen over Christmas break. Listed as missing are the following: an electric typewriter, $318; a Nikon FE2 camera and 35-72 mm lens, $514; a camera motor drive, $289; a Nikkor 20 mm lens, $200 and a Konica 80-200 mm lens, $220.

Also filing a report at the police station on St. Patrick's Day was Michael Lottier, junior, WSBA.

Lottier told police his car was parked in the M-12 lot on Lincoln Avenue from 10 a.m.-11:15 a.m. while he was taking a final. When he returned home and began washing his car, he noticed a six-inch scratch on the car's passenger side quarter panel.

The report said Lottier also told police the "key job" couldn't have happened anywhere else but in the lot, because he didn't have the car at any other locales.

Fingers replaced as counting tools

By MARILUISE SOLE
Jambar Reporter

If Johnny can't add or subtract, Dr. Hong Yung Kim of YSU's elementary education department may have the solution and it is easier than counting on your fingers.

Dr. Kim has been given a research grant from YSU to further his studies with the "K-counter."

Originally dubbed the "Kim-counter," the professor's invention is a simple wooden counting device similar in appearance to an abacus in its format and function — high-tech in an old fashioned way.

The "K-counter" is designed to fit the hands of primary grade children, for whom the device is directly targeted.

Ten sliding beads represent each of the 10 fingers. As most students would use their fingers to count, children using the K-counter push the beads up and down to represent numbers.

"In this way students are able to build a mental image of numbers without counting on their fingers," said Kim, adding, "A tremendous amount of time is spent teaching children to add and subtract. When children use their fingers to figure out a math problem, they take more and more time as the problems become more and more complex."

The YSU professor said teachers often resort to flashcards and encourage their students to memorize problems and answers. Kim stresses that in such a system children are not using their minds to compute answers so it doesn't increase their math skills.

Better than fingers: Dr. Hong Yung Kim, elementary education, demonstrates his new counting device designed to help primary grade children improve their mathematics skills.

Using the K-counter, children are not required to memorize all the basic mathematics facts. Students use the complementary numbers of five and 10 in their mental computations instead of rote memorization.

"In the primary grades, we have to help them in some efficient way so that by second grade they can learn more," said Kim.

The professor finds this of the utmost importance, citing recent mathematics skills studies in which the United States came in last among six tested nations.

The study, the first International Assessment of Educational Progress, reported the U.S. scored below average in using intermediate mathematics skills to solve two-step problems.

University makes move away from majority rule

Much good news came out of the most recent Board of Trustees meeting, but one particular item deserves special mention.

Aside from the approvals to install condom machines, sell beer at Youngstown Pride home games and expand the University's boundaries, trustees accepted a proposal that creates two important administrative positions at YSU — Minority Enterprise Counselor and Coordinator of Non-traditional and Evening Student Services.

The needs of both groups have long been under-fulfilled at this University and others. Minority business owners seeking help from the Cushwa Center for Industrial Development have swamped the center, and administrators in turn have not been able to offer as much assistance as was demanded. Nontraditional and evening students have not been able to enjoy the same programs or opportunities available to students who attend daytime classes. Nontraditional and evening students comprise a considerable portion of the YSU population but, as their numbers have grown in recent years, student support programs have not.

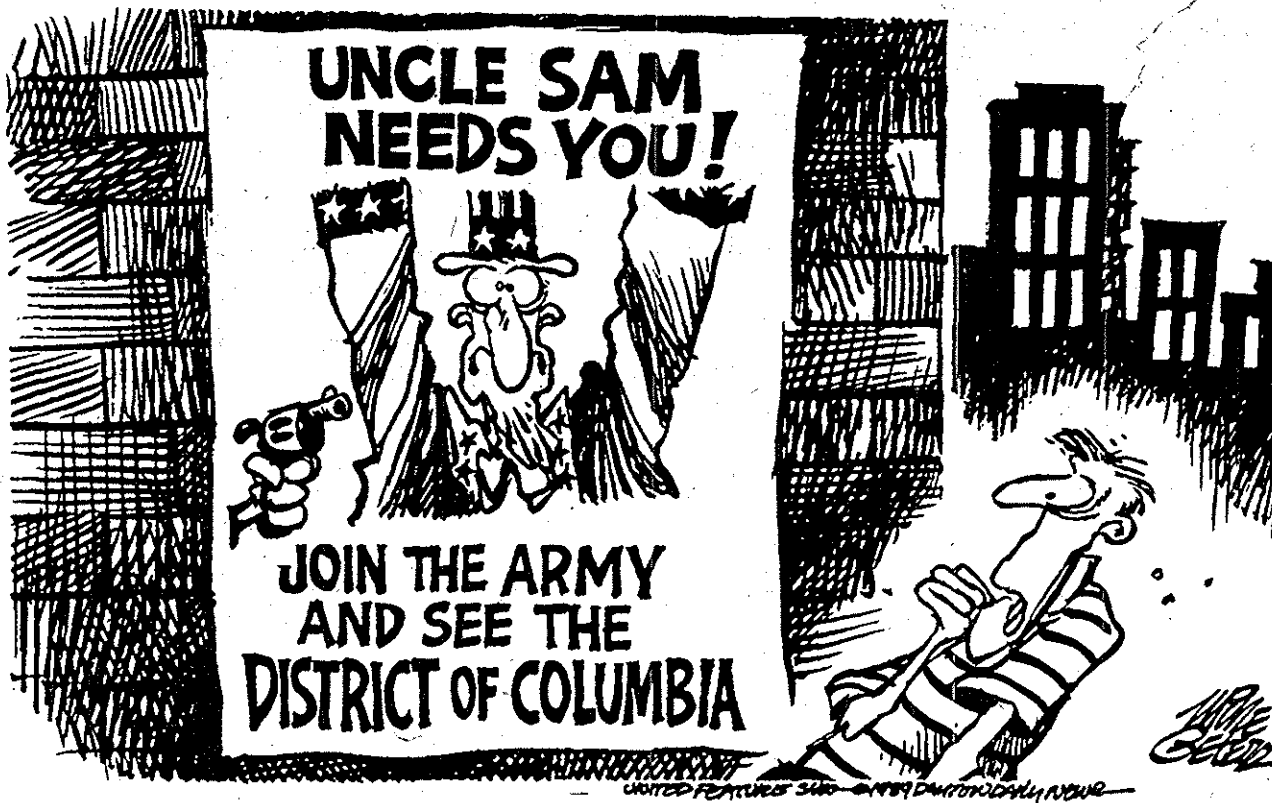

Adding one person for each of these areas is not a solution in itself but it is a step in the right direction. Hopefully more steps will follow so that services benefit all students — not just the majority.

Farewell, William Lyden

When William J. Lyden was named to YSU's Board of Trustees in November 1975, he was appointed to finish the unexpired term of the late Albert Shipka. Fourteen years later, having served that term and completed a full term of his own, Lyden's service to YSU ended at Friday's meeting.

Lyden has been outspoken at times and hasn't always been on the winning side, but he has actively supported students and student viewpoints. Even at his final meeting, Lyden fought for approval of an amendment that would prevent an increase in tuition as a result of new housing plans.

He may not have emerged victorious in all his crusades, but he has gained respect for his dedication. On behalf of all YSU students, The Jambar would like to thank Lyden for his years of service and wish him well in future endeavors.

Baseball's Rose wilts in public eye

The year was 1920. Eight members of the Chicago White Sox were leaving the Federal court house in the Windy City — including the team's biggest star, "Shoeless Joe" Jackson. The eight members of the Sox had been charged with throwing the 1919 World Series to the Cincinnati Reds. Legend says that, as the defendants were leaving the court house, a young fan of the White Sox and especially Jackson came up to the Chicago slugger and uttered the immortal line: "Say it ain't so, Joe."

The eight were eventually cleared of the charges, but baseball commissioner Kenesaw Landis barred the eight conspirators from baseball for life, ending the careers of several stars in their prime. The message was clear — betting on baseball would meet with swift and sure punishment.

I've reiterated this little story because 60 years later, baseball is again involved in a gambling scandal that includes one of the all-time legends of the game — Pete Rose, manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

BRIAN J. MACALA
 Managing Editor

Rose's name has become synonymous with baseball and all-out hustle. His name is mentioned with legends like Cobb, Ruth, DiMaggio, Mays and Aaron. His achievements and records could fill a book. And now all that he has gained and achieved may be lost due to gambling.

This whole mess about Rose has really hit home with me. You would be hard pressed to find a more devout Reds fan in this country. I know the starting line-up of South defeats North in climate conflict

Well, I finally did it. After spending years in sub-freezing weather, I traveled to a place where the mercury went below the 70 degree mark only when the sun went down.

I finally went south for Spring Break. After spending previous Spring Breaks in the colder climates of Vermont, with a pair of skis strapped to my wool-socked feet, I went to Daytona Beach clad only in swimsuit and sandals.

Oh, of course, I wore other clothing as well; I didn't live in my suit. I wore tank tops and shorts and skirts. During the entire course of my vacation I kept thinking that, gee, if I was in Vermont, I'd be wearing a hat, scarf, mittens and my ski suit.

On the trip down, I was excited but also a little skeptical. I mentally compared and contrasted

JONI DOBRAN
 News Editor

every aspect of what I termed the "North and South Conflict."

First of all, it took us 16 hours to drive to Daytona, whereas it only takes 10 to drive to Vermont. Now, this really isn't much of a big deal, but you try to share the back seat of a Chevy Celebrity with someone who is 6'1" and complaining of cramped leg room.

Two students die during break Rose

YSU — The deaths of two YSU students were reported at the end of Winter Quarter and finals week.

Services were held March 13 for Marianne F. Sherwood, 25, of Youngstown, who died of pneumonia March 10 in Northside Medical Center. Sherwood, a full-time freshman student in the College of Arts & Sciences, also attended Sts. Peter and Paul Ukrainian Orthodox Church and was a leader of Girl Scout Brownie Troop 606, Austintown. She leaves her parents of Austintown and a daughter among others.

Todd J. Wargo, 19, of New Wilmington, died March 20 from injuries sustained in a two-car accident in Wilmington Township. Wargo also was a freshman at YSU, majoring in accounting, and was a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity. He leaves his parents and a brother at home as well as maternal and paternal grandparents.

the 1939 squad and the team's all-time leader in assists for shortstops. For six months a year, I live and die with them.

Pictures of Rose, Johnny Bench, Tony Perez, Joe Morgan and Sparky Anderson hang on my bedroom wall. I suffered when Rose left in 1978 for Philadelphia and rejoiced when he returned in 1984. He turned a bad team into contenders.

Now the once high regard that I held Rose is a bit diminished. Suspicion has now entered my mind. I heard Rose gambled on horses and he may bet on football and basketball games, which doesn't bother me at all. We all have played an office pool of some sort at least once.

The suspicion comes from whether or not he bet on baseball and the Reds, something that could result in a lifetime banishment from the game he has given so much. Betting on baseball will cost him a year's suspension, but that will carry with it a stigma that will be with him forever.

Personally, I don't feel that Rose would bet on the Reds. As much as he loves baseball, I doubt he would jeopardize it all. As for betting on other games, I don't know. I'd like to believe he didn't, but the jury is still out. The best news would have him cleared of the allegations.

If there can be a bright side to this whole episode, I think it may be the fact that for once, a scandal in baseball doesn't involve drugs. Had he been busted for drugs, a cloud would have fallen over baseball that may have taken years to blow away.

If Rose is guilty, then the punishment he gets is deserved. But he would not be the only loser if found guilty; all baseball would suffer.

I hope he's cleared. Even at the age of 21 you still need some heroes to admire. I'd hate to replay that scene from 60 years ago and be the teary-eyed kid who cries: "Say you didn't cheat, Pete."

Conflict

Once we were there it took us practically all afternoon to be permitted into our hotel room because of a mix-up in scheduling, but it allowed us to spend that afternoon on the beach. Being shut out of my room never happened to me in Vermont, but if it had, my only alternative would have been to shiver in a snowdrift somewhere.

The biggest difference, obviously, was the temperature. Mother Nature is much friendlier the further south you venture.

I chuckled to myself as I thought of people wearing bikinis and jams while schussing down the side of a mountain, or others wearing ski boots while surfing through the waves. Odd thoughts, indeed.

The crowds were almost overwhelming. Everywhere you went were college students walking or cruising in their cars, with radios blaring. If you sat and listened to all the cars as they drove by, it would be akin to continually changing your radio dial.

At times, though, the crowds really started to get to me. I'm not one who enjoys being pushed or shoved; dodging people becomes old after a while. I knew there would be an onslaught, but I wasn't quite prepared for the masses in attendance. Even moonlight strolls along the beach brought a greater number of people than I thought.

Occasionally some of the students became really obnoxious, especially this group of guys who were tossing a football back and forth right in front of us as we laid in the sun. Their game consisted of one picnic table piled with beer cans per team, and the object of the game was to throw the football and bowl over the cans. When they weren't knocking over the cans, they were trying to (unsuccessfully) catch the pigskin, often sending it whirling onto our blanket. A sheepish thank you is little consolation after a football has slammed onto your stomach.

But, even with the bad times, the good times far outweighed them and, needless to say, I was impressed. I mean, hey, where else could you see people hanging out of convertibles, screaming at those who were walking down the street?

After all my comparisons and after my return home (which, by the way, alleviated my parents' fears quite a bit), I would have to say that, at least in this battle, the south won over the north.

Although I'm graduating and this will be my last Spring Break, it was definitely my best Spring Break. Yes, I still love the winter and snow and skiing, but give me a suntan and warm weather anytime — especially for Spring Break.

Navigator guides career decision

By STARR E. McCLURE
Jambar Reporter

When faced with making a career choice, do you feel that you are stumbling around in the dark, lacking direction and purpose? Or have you already found your niche in the occupational world but don't have the faintest clue about searching for employment? If so, take heart. YSU Career Services' computerized systems, Discover and Career Navigator, can assist you in discovering your career potential and charting a course of action.

These two user-friendly systems, located in the Career Services office in 3025 Jones Hall, can help any student who is unsure of his or her next career move.

Discover, which has been in operation for four years, is especially beneficial to undetermined students seeking information on possible occupations. Information acquired during Discover sessions can be stored over time, thereby allowing the student to review his or her career choices and make any changes needed. Discover operates in two distinct ways: the guidance approach and the information approach.

The guidance approach is designed to guide students through a series of nine modules, each dealing with a separate area in career planning. The user can elect to take an interest inventory which will be used in profiling occupations that are related to the user's self-assessed interests, abilities, experiences, and values. Throughout the nine modules, the user can acquire information about occupations, and more importantly, compare different occupations in order to more accurately discover the occupation which may suit him or her best.

The other approach taken in Discover is the informational approach. The user can obtain information about occupations, trade and technical schools, colleges, external degrees, as well as financial aid, non-traditional college credit, job-seeking skills, military training and resumes. Discover has information on over 400 occupations and over 1200 schools.

The information system, or Career Navigator, is designed for students who already know what they want, but need to find out how to go about getting it. Career Navigator is also user-friendly, and like Discover, it can generate computer printouts of your work. However, unlike Discover, the information is not stored. Therefore, it is necessary to plan about one to two hours in order to successfully use the program.

Career planning is life planning, and Career Services is there to help with Discover and Career Navigator, along with their counselors and their library which has information on over 1300 companies. If you feel that Discover or Career Navigator may be helpful to you in your career journey, call Career Services and make an appointment, or stop in and talk to one of the counselors for more information. The information you discover may be just the answers you were looking for.

Members score final victories

YSU — Season-ending victories for members of YSU's Forensics Team were scored at two tournaments that took place at the end of Winter Quarter.

Five trophies were collected by two YSU students at a March 11 forensics competition at Kent State University. Al Franklin, sophomore, F&PA, won first place for his poetry program that concentrated on selections originating during the Vietnam War and also won second place in prose. Rebecca Tally, freshman, F&PA, received first place honors for a discourse on talking with children and third place in poetry. Tally and Franklin then teamed up to garner a first place finish in dramatic duo competition.

Tally and Franklin were again victorious at a March 18 tournament at the University of Northern Kentucky, which marked the end of the regular season. Tally won first place in persuasion and finished fifth in pentathlon, an award based on a participant's scores in five different events. Franklin received third place in poetry and Jim Guerriero, sophomore, F&PA, was only one point shy of participating in finals for prose.

Team members are preparing for the upcoming National Forensics Association's championship tournament at Upsala College in New Jersey.

Caring, daring entrepreneurs are lecture topic

YSU — The Monus Entrepreneurship Chair is co-sponsoring a lecture by Jan Morlock, vice-president of the Women's Economic Development Corporation (WEDCO) at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 30, in Kilcawley Center.

The lecture is the second in a series of lectures on entrepreneurship and is open to anyone interested in entrepreneurship, especially women.

Morlock is one of the founders of WEDCO, a Minnesota private, non-profit company organized to assist women to achieve their economic and personal goals through the ownership of a business. The company has been labeled as one of the most successful of its kind in the US.

Since 1983, WEDCO has provided over $750,000 in start-up capital to women entrepreneurs through a loan fund. The company has helped over 3,500 women since it was founded six years ago.

In addition to providing loans, WEDCO provides management and technical guidance and assistance to the beginning entrepreneur.

WEDCO and Morlock were featured on a April, 1988, segment on CBS's 60 Minutes, concerning the company's efforts to keep people, especially women, off welfare.

The title of Morlock's lecture is: "Succeeding as a Women Entrepreneur...Women Who Care and Women Who Dare." She will lecture on the success of WEDCO and how such a program might be developed in the Youngstown area.

In addition to the Monus Entrepreneurship Chair of the Williamson School of Business, the lecture is co-sponsored by the following: the Cushwa Center/Small Business Development Center, the Office of Continuing Education, the Youngstown Area Development Corporation, Executive Link, the Edison Office of Entrepreneurship and the US Small Business Administration.

To make your days at YSU hassle free, pick up a free copy of the Handy Hassle Handler, a guide to all services available to the YSU community.

Patricia Bleidt, director of Student Developmental Services, which is a division of Student Services, said her office "has been handling the publication for three to four years."

Revised annually, the directory contains valuable information about student organizations, academic services and health related services. Easy to use, it provides concise instructions and necessary phone numbers for situations students may eventually encounter during their college careers.

Bleidt said the goal is to have the Handler available for fall quarters but added there is presently a supply at the information desk in Kilcawley and in the Students Serving Students office in Jones Hall.

For more information about obtaining a copy of the Handy Hassle Handler, call the Kilcawley information desk at 3516 or the SSS office at 3536.

Room houses ghosts of past

By DOROTHY KAGLIC
Jambar Reporter

Ghosts of the past slip from the pages of the old books and memorabilia that make up the "Rare Books and Special Collections Room" on the fifth floor of YSU's William F. Maag Jr. Library.

Two Italian books — one dated 1570 — the other, 1584 — are the oldest in the collection. In addition to these books, the collection includes books from the Cuttenberg Press, a framed dated original wood block print of a leaf from the Nuremberg Chronicles, and a palm-sized book of hymns from various authors printed by a Henry Kurtz in Trumbull County, dated 1844.

According to Carol Wall, public services librarian of Maag Library, these are but a small portion of the 2,000 original editions of literary and historical works that make up the ever-growing collection. The collection has been in its present location 13 years.

"Most of the books and collection articles have been received through monetary and book donations from private individuals," Wall said.

In addition to the old books listed above, a set of French encyclopedias, the Encyclopedie ou Dictionnaire Raisonne des Sciences, dated 1959, along with the collection Explorations and Surveys: Mississippi to the Pacific Ocean, published in 1856 by the U.S. War Department, take their place among the articles of times-past.

The articles are prone to deterioration due to their antiquity and Wall said measures have been taken to assure a constant temperature in the room. Also, instead of pasting the call numbers on the book jacket, Wall notes that a paper with the pertinent information is placed loosely inside the book's pages.

The collection includes a cross-section of books and maps, and other materials, Wall said.

Wall stressed that, because of the delicate condition of the materials, the books and collections must be used within the confines of the room, which is open to the public.

Checking the volumes: Carol Wall, public services librarian, surveys the 2000-plus rare books on display in Maag Library.

Continued from page 2 and last. Because the student trustee program is new, many wrinkles needed to be ironed out of the selection process, McFarland said. For that reason, Governor Richard F. Celeste was unable to select the trustees as soon as was hoped, she explained.

YSU student trustees were notified of their selection during finals week, Crum said, but because of the way the law is written, his term will expire May 5, 1989.

"I really want a chance to see what I can do in committee," he emphasized, admitting he'd like to be selected to serve a two-year term and plans on entering the selection process again.

Student Government's Constitution and By-laws Committee is currently "working diligently in polishing the selection process," McFarland reported. Hopefully, the process of selecting five nominees from which the governor will choose will be started winter quarter instead of spring quarter McFarland said, which should allow for an easier, more continuous flow from term to term.

Overall, "I'm really pleased with how the board has taken us in with open arms," McFarland concluded.

Preparation unlocks door to successful test-taking

By SHARON BUENO
Jambar Reporter

Each year, millions of high school juniors and seniors march to testing centers to put their years of education on the line taking either the American College Test or Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Students who plan to attend college, whether at YSU, which has an open admissions policy, or one with a minimum entrance exam score requirement, should take every avenue available to prepare for these important exams, says Ann Rasor, coordinator of testing at YSU.

Either the ACT or SAT is accepted as an entrance exam for most universities and colleges in the US, said William Livosky, director of YSU admissions. The tests serve as a way of setting a standard for students from different high school curricula and grading policies, he explains.

Both tests are designed to test the student's knowledge of concepts in English, math, social studies and science.

Test results can have a profound effect on which colleges a student can consider because many colleges have SAT or ACT admissions standards, she explained, adding that scholarship awards as well as admittance into specific university programs are often affected by the exam's outcome.

Rasor added, however, that though the scores are sometimes used to determine college admittance, other factors such as the student's high school grade point average usually weigh more heavily in admissions decisions.

Although it is advised that students study ahead of time, Rasor said, the amount of actual studying for the test is up to the individual.

It boils down to "how important the test is to the student," she noted, explaining that students who are trying to qualify for scholarships may take the test more seriously than others.

Included in this group are those students seeking athletic scholarships, Rasor said.

Under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, student athletes must achieve a minimum score on their entrance exam as well as have carried a specified grade point average in high school in order to take part in athletics.

Both Livosky and Rasor concurred that the test scores are not a direct measure of a person's intelligence, but can serve as indicators of how well a student might be academically at a particular college.

"The ACT and SAT are only predictors of academic success," Rasor stressed, explaining that the best indicator of success is high school performance. However, on average, the test provides students some idea of how hard they will have to work to earn grades at a particular college, she added.

The Youngstown Employment and Training Corporation is seeking applicants for the position of Jobs Club Coach. Individuals in this position teach pre-employment and job-seeking skills to agency clientele, including topics such as interview skills, resume writing and organizing a job search. A suitable applicant would be a current student with junior standing, majoring in education, sociology, psychology, speech communications or related area, must have excellent oral and written communication skills and must be able to effectively interact as a group leader. Must be able to work mornings. This is a part-time (no more than 20 hours per week) position. Wage is $4.75 per hour. Applications are available at the YETC office, 9 W. Front Street, Youngstown, from 8am to noon and from 1pm to 4pm Monday through Friday. Deadline for applications is 4pm, April 17, 1989.

The K-counter, he said, gives children a sense of achievement which will carry over into other subjects and successive grades.

"It's fun, it's systematic and it's a hands-on experience for the child," said Kim. "Children who do well form patterns that are lifelong."

Kim said there's a 90 percent probability that if by the third grade a child is doing well in math, he will continue to do well in the subject throughout the school years.

The professor will take his newly designed K-counter to Boardman's West Boulevard Elementary School during the 1989 school year. After studying the effects of the K-counter on students at West Boulevard, Kim will try a large-scale nationwide study. From there he may even commercialize the K-counter for public use.

Trustees cover issue of YSU condom sales

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Reporter

Students soon will see condom machines in both men's and women's restrooms in four campus buildings on campus after YSU's Board of Trustees passed a resolution, 4-3, in favor of campus sales.

The proposal was the result of recommendations from the University AIDS Task Force, which was created two years ago to study methods of securing the health of YSU students, faculty and staff and promote education about AIDS. Task force members noted that condoms currently are sold at 10 of the other 12 state-assisted universities in Ohio.

Trustee Elizabeth DeLuca was one of the three trustees against the installation of the machines.

"Our obligation as a University is to educate and set moral and ethical standards," said DeLuca. "Our obligation is to teach about AIDS."

Trustee William Lyden agreed with DeLuca. "We should not baby them [students]. They are supposed to be leaders," said Lyden. "You have to take responsibilities."

Dr. Loretta Liptak, health and physical education and member of the task force, presented information to the board, saying there was a need for condoms after a survey of 1,000 students showed more than 85 percent favored condom machines on campus.

When the students advance to multi-digit math problems, the results are very impressive. The students become mental computers, instead of using their fingers, he said.

The new grant will allow Kim to develop a new updated version of the K-counter which will be used in his West Boulevard project.

The idea to name the building after the Fedors was first introduced in a Oct. 28, 1988, commentary in The Jambar. The commentary pointed out that the building was the only one on campus without a name and called upon the Board of Several students and citizens from Campbell followed the lead and pursued several members of the Board to act upon the proposal made by the student paper.

William Lyden, chair of the board's Building and Property Committee, proposed the name change to the whole board which passed the resolution unanimously.

Graduate quartet to perform

YSU — A free concert will be given by the YSU graduate string quartet Saturday, April 1 at 8 p.m. in Bliss Recital Hall.

The concert will feature selections by Franz Schubert, Ludwig van Beethoven and Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky. It is open to the public.

Quartet director John Wilcox, music, said he is pleased to offer the opportunity to hear the quartet to the community. "There has been a revitalization of chamber music in America and we are proud to have such a fine string quartet representing the Dana School of Music," said Wilcox.

The Western Reserve Quartet is supported by a joint program with the University and an internship through the Youngstown Symphony Orchestra. The members perform with the YSU Community Orchestra and the Dana Chamber Orchestra at various University functions and concerts in the Mahoning Valley.

"We are committed to building an excellent string program at Dana and such a quartet is a means to that objective," Wilcox said.

The four graduate students bring a wealth of experience and talent to the group.

Husband and wife members, Ming Gao and Si-cheng Liu are from Nanjing, China. Gao was a violin teacher at Nanjing Arts College and is a graduate of that school. He studied further in Shanghai Conservatory and at the Conservatory of the University of Missouri, where he received a master's degree in music performance. He was also the concertmaster of Nanjing Experimental Symphony Orchestra, acting concertmaster of the Missouri Symphony Society Performing Arts Center and assistant concertmaster of the Kansas City Chamber Orchestra.

Liu was assistant principal cellist of the Nanjing Experimental Symphony Orchestra. She holds a bachelor's of arts degree from Nanjing Arts College where she was a member of the faculty string quartet. She earned a master's degree in music in cello performance from the University of Missouri-Kansas City. She has been a member of a number of orchestras including St. Joseph Symphony Orchestra and Missouri Symphony Society Performing Arts Center Chamber Orchestra.

Eric Chu, a native of Shanghai, China, received degrees from the Shanghai Conservatory of Music and the St. Louis Conservatory of Music. His teachers have included the world famous violinists Taras Gabora and Jamie Larado. Through his career, Chu has performed in numerous concerts in many cities in the United States.

Harriett Pappas, the fourth member of the quartet, received a bachelor's degree in music education on scholarship at the Ohio State University. She taught in public school and played professionally in the Columbus area. Just four years ago, she switched from the violin to the viola, which led to her interest and acceptance into the Western Reserve String Quartet. Pappas is to receive a master's degree in music education from the Dana School of Music in August 1989. She plans to return to teaching.

PAC plans spring calendar

By ROB CICCOTELLI
Jambar Entertainment Editor

Once again the PAC has big plans for spring quarter.

Included in the schedule are aerobics classes, a geological hike lead by Dr. Ann Harris, geology, and a series of events to celebrate springtime which should provide plenty of "Fun in the Sun."

The aerobics classes will be held at 4 p.m. April 17 to May 10. The $6 fee must be paid at the Kilcawley Information center by noon, Monday, April 17.

There will also be a black hair show at 11 a.m., Tuesday, April 18 in the Kilcawley Arcade.

On Saturday, May 6, Harris will lead a free geological tour of Mill Creek Park, weather permitting. Those interested in the hike should meet at the Ford Nature Center in Mill Creek Park at 10 a.m.. Additional information is available at the Information center.

"Fun in the Sun," PAC's spring quarter event, will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24 in Kilcawley. This year's event will include contests and outdoor games, weather permitting. Prizes for the contests will be provided by Panama Jack, Johnson and Johnson and Beach Buff.

Concert series continues with duo

YSU — The talents of two sisters will be featured in a four-hand piano recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 29 in the Bliss Recital Hall on the YSU campus.

The Kaplan Duo — Nanette Kaplan Solomon and Iris Kaplan — is scheduled as part of the Dana spring concert series.

The duo, known for their unique blend of individual virtuosity and exciting interpretations, will perform the works of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Robert Starer and Darius Milhaud. The program will also include the works of Johannes Brahms and George Gershwin.

The piano duet team has appeared in concert series in Pennsylvania and New York. The sisters have also performed as soloists and in concerts throughout the east coast from Massachusetts to Florida.

Both women began their careers as students at

German choir to sing on campus

YSU — A 40 member German choir will perform in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 30 in Bliss Recital Hall on the YSU campus.

The chamber choir, known as Kammerchor, is from the University of Augsburg. It is directed by Professor Kurt Suttner, who also serves as conductor and music director of the Via Nova Choir of Munich.

The works of Heinrich Schutz, Franz Liszt and Felix Mendelssohn and several 20th century choruses, folk songs and madrigals will be included in the performance.

Suttner, a professor of choral music and music education at the University of Augsburg, is a graduate of the Academy of Music in Munich. He has also directed commercial recordings, published a book on developing tonal factors for 20th century choral music performance and presented lectures at international choral workshops in Ireland and France.

The event is free and open to the public. It is hosted by the YSU Dana Chorale.

Dana Chorale to perform Sunday

YSU — The Dana Chorale will present a special concert featuring the works of well known composers at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 2 in the Bliss Recital Hall on the YSU campus.

The Dana Chorale, which includes a select 26 member chamber choir, is directed by Wade Raridon.

The group will perform the works of Heinrich Schutz, Josquin Des Prez, Healey Willan and contemporary American composer Rene Clausen.

The featured work of the concert will be Benjamin Britten's setting of poems of Christopher Smart titled Rejoice in the Lamb which was written in 1943 and scored for chorus, soloists and organ.

The program will also include three secular choruses of Britten, the choral dances from his 1953 opera, Gloriana, as well as American spirituals by Wendell Whalum and Andre Thomas.

The Dana Chorale, which has appeared before the state convention of the Ohio Music Educators Association in Columbus in February, completed a critically acclaimed concert tour of Europe in 1982.

The event is free and open to the public.

The winning entrant will receive $150. Entries will be judged by the 1989 Homecoming Committee. For more information about the contest contact Lynn Haug in the PAC office on the upper level of Kilcawley.

Family play to be staged

YSU — On Saturday, April 1, Spotlight Arena Theatre will be transformed into the tiny kingdom of Boggy Bottom. By The Bay as YSU's Family Entertainment Series presents the play, Princess and the Pea.

The Hans Christian Anderson fairy tale was adapted into an audience participation play especially for the Ohio Performing Arts Company's "Tale-tellers." The Tale-tellers, professional adult actors who tour children's theatre throughout Ohio and western Pennsylvania, will perform this special show at 11 a.m. for "children of all ages."

The play is about Prince Fitzwilliam looking all over his kingdom for an "absolutely royal" bride. With the help of the court jester, Sir Simon Sezz and the entire audience, the story proceeds packed with fun and excitement. The experienced Tale-tellers, who present over 200 performances each season, will delight and entertain young audiences.

The production is directed by Wendy Buchwald Pakalnis. Set design and costumes are by YSU faculty member, Rich Schilling.

Tickets for the performance are $1.50 and can be reserved by call (216) 742-3624. Reserved seats will be held 30 minutes prior to the performance.

Tickets may be picked up in advance in Bliss Hall, Room 3006, Mon-Fri, 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Parking will be provided in lot M-9 behind Bliss Hall on Walnut St., accessible from E. Raven. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

And they're off and running, jumping and throwing. And they're winning, too.

The Penguins opened their outdoor track season nine first place performances between the men's and women's teams Saturday at the YSU Early Bird Invitational in which seven teams participated.

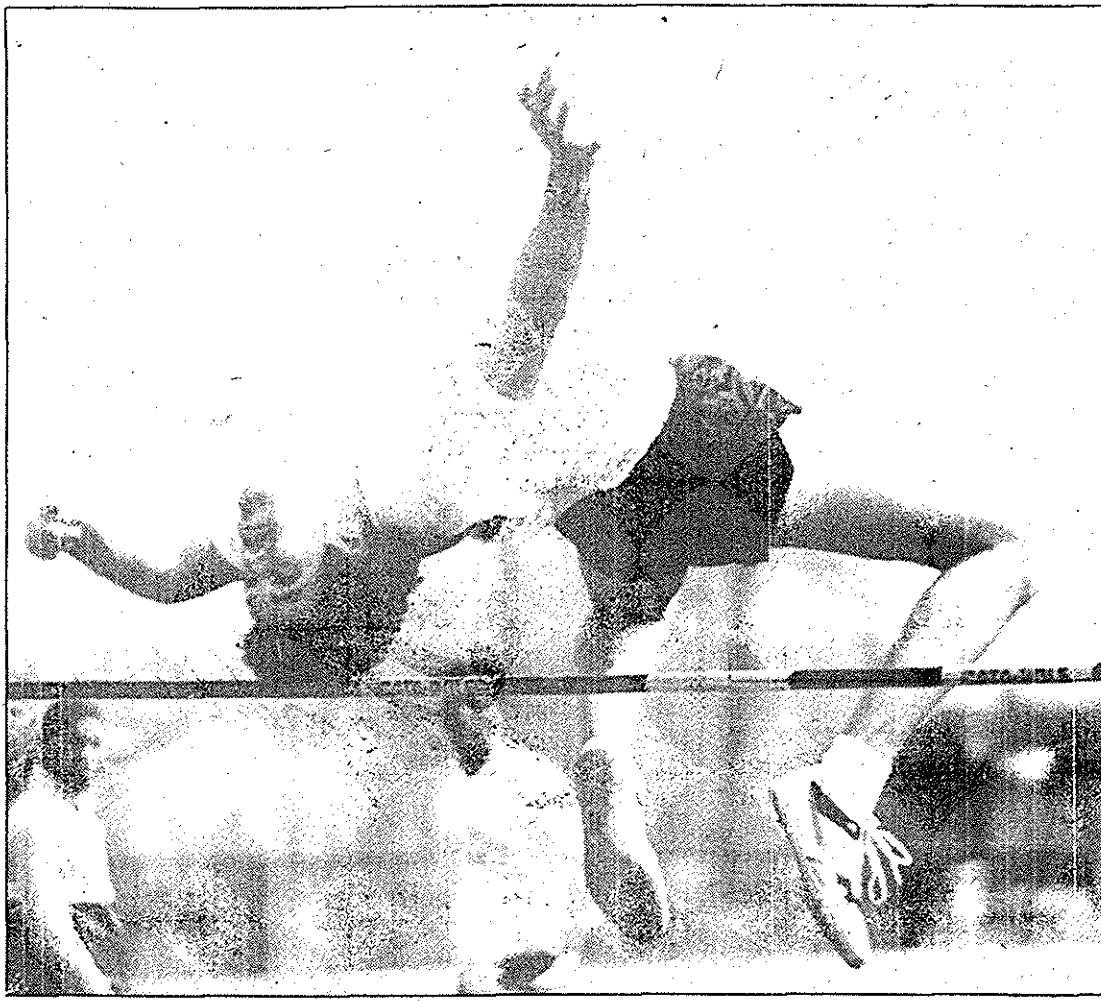

The top YSU athlete was Dave Ritter, who placed first in three events — the high jump (6'7" 1/4), javelin (180'10") and 110 meter hurdles (16.4).

John Vence tied Ritter for first in the 110 meter hurdles. Vence also took first in the 400 meter hurdles (59.2).

Also placing first the YSU men's team was Tim Jewitt, who finished first in the shot put (44'11" 3/4) and discus (126'04").

On the women's side, the coach Patty Metzler saw her Penguins place first three times. Lori Sickle placed first twice, in the shot put (38'6" 1/4) and the discus (122'09"). Paula Vekes placed first while throwing the javelin 85'8".

The wear and tear has taken its toll.

The synthetic turf at Stambaugh Stadium will soon be given a face lift after the Board of Trustees unanimously passed a resolution for the needed repairs.

The current turf was installed in 1982, and the average life is about seven years before a new one should be installed.

Because the turf has been maintained so well it will only take certain repairs to extend its life another three to four years.

The repairs on the turf will be done by AstroTurf Industries Inc., and will not exceed $23,800. The money will be provided from the AstroTurf Replacement Fund.

Softball record at 3-9 after trip

Students flocked to Florida for fun during Spring Break, but when the YSU softball team went to Florida it was for business.

For the first time ever, the softball team descended to Florida to open their season. It was not all fun in the sun as the Penguins came back north with a 3-9 record.

"I thought we would do better," said head coach Ed Strous. "Injuries to some key personnel may have contributed to some of the losses, but I think we beat ourselves in some games."

The Penguins lost a key player the third game of the season when outfielder Julie Yuhasz broke her forearm when hit by a pitch. Yuhasz will miss the rest of the season. The injuries continued when third baseman Chris Timko had to have eight stitches to close a cut after being spiked.

Penguins finish Florida road trip 1-8

By RUSSELL FARMINTINO

While many YSU students were out enjoying Spring Break in one way or another, the YSU baseball team was in Florida on a nine-game road trip.

Unfortunately for the Penguins, there was not much to enjoy on this road trip. YSU dropped eight of nine tilts on the road-swing and after a fine 8-1 fall campaign, find their overall record at 9-9.

Twice, the Penguins faced Wright State and Illinois-Chicago in their first four contests. However, the verdict was the same in all four games as Wright State defeated YSU 11-4 and 16-1 and Illinois-Chicago triumphed 14-9 and 13-8.

Nothing really went well for the Penguins in their pair of games with Wright State. In the opener, the Penguins found themselves down 9-1 after 3 1/2 innings and could never recover. Joel Brennan knocked in two runs in a game that saw Jim Timko absorb the mound loss. The second tilt was even worse as Wright State scored 12 times in the third inning to put the game away. Joe Herubin suffered the loss on the hill.

The Penguins fared better in their two games with Illinois-Chicago but the results were the same. UIC jumped out to a 9-1 lead after two innings of the opener and the Penguins just could not come all the way back despite a late rally. Bob Susa suffered the mound loss in a game that saw Bob Janeda go 2-for-4 with an RBI to pace YSU. The second game closely resembled the previous encounter as UIC jumped to a 12-1 lead after three innings and YSU could never catch up. Jim Sotlar cracked a three-run double to pace the Penguins attack. Susa again was the mound victim.

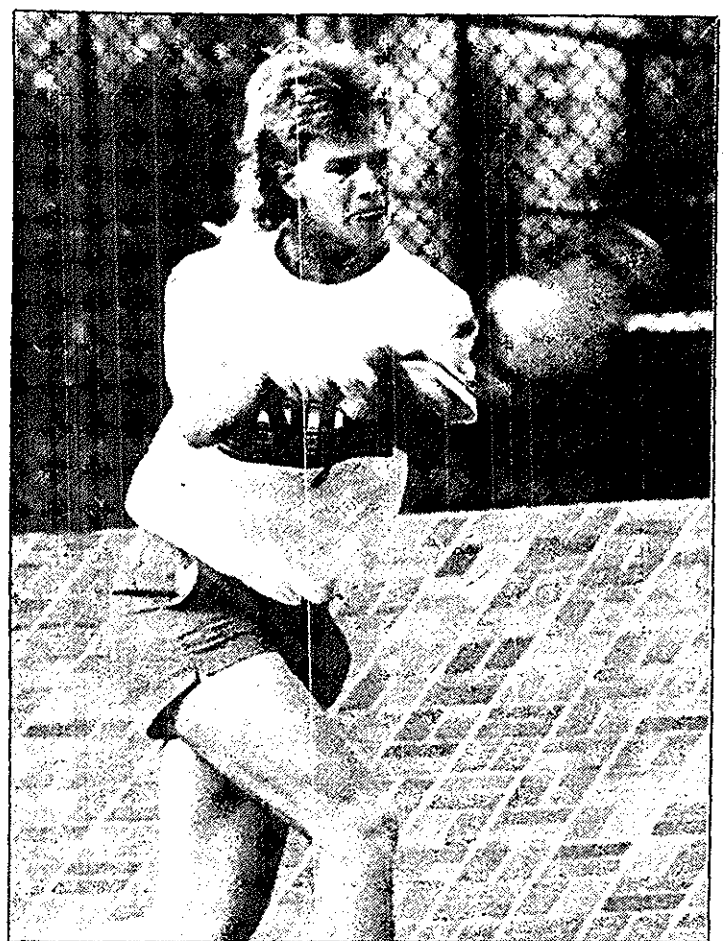

Next up for the Penguins was a contest with Bowling Green State of the MAC. The change of opponents did not change the Penguins luck as the Falcons were victorious, 14-6. Again the Penguins fell into an early hole, trailing 10-3 after four innings. Freshman Chris Durkin enjoyed a fine game, going 2-for-4 with two triples and an RBI while Sotlar cracked a three-run homer. Doug Harrah took the loss on the hill.

The Penguins finally struck gold in their next encounter, defeating Canisius 11-9 to break their five-game skid. Durkin went 2-for-4 with a three-run homer; Sotlar went 2-for-4 with an RBI; Brennan went 2-for-4 with a triple and three RBIs; and Jerry Dennis went 1-for-2 with two RBIs. Herubin gained the mound nod.

YSU then proceeded to next play Southwest Missouri State. Unfortunately, the momentum from the Canisius win did not carry over as the Penguins were beaten 13-5. Sparking the Penguins were Rob Armstrong and Janeda, who each went 2-for-5 with an RBI. Timko suffered the loss on the See Baseball, page 15

Penguins men's tennis suffers fourth loss Softball

Eyes on the ball: YSU's Dan Haude spends Monday afternoon practicing

The YSU men's tennis team dropped their fourth dual match of the season, 7-2, to Cincinnati University at Hieton Head, S.C. last Friday.

Both the men's and women's teams were plagued by rainouts, with the women's team unable to play at all during the week.

In single's play, sophomore Dan Haude, the men's number one singles player, defeated his Cincinnati opponent in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

He later teamed up with junior Brian Fry to upend their opponents, 12-8.

"Dan Haude put in a real good match," Don Getz, men's and women's tennis coach, remarked, adding that Fry had played well in his singles match.

Getz felt the rain the week affected the team's overall play.

"The rain definitely affected our sharpness," he said.

"Cincinnati didn't overpower us," Getz continued, adding that their opponents had played earlier in the day while YSU was coming off a week-long lay-off.

After their opening win, the Penguins hit a six game losing streak which included a three close losses by the scores of 2-0, 4-3, and 5-3.

The other win came on a 5-0 shutout of St. John's. Chris Rohan gave up only two hits and three walks as she gained her first win on the season.

All five of the YSU's runs came in the sixth inning as Jen Aurilio knocked in two of the runs.

The final win game in the last game of the trip as the Penguins beat Ashland College 5-2. Elaine Jacobs, Michele McKee, Tammy Schaeffer and Diane Hoagland all had the hot lumber for YSU as Sherry Huff picked up the win.

Track

"I was pleased with the effort," said Metzler. "I know that time, height and distance wise we have a long way to go. But I was pleased with the team's effort."

Intra-state rival Akron provided the next opposition for the Penguins. After tying the game at 2-2 in the third inning, the Penguins saw the Zips score four times in the fourth to salt the game away as YSU lost 6-3. Sotlar went 2-for-2 with 2 RBIs to pace the Penguins. Harrah was the losing pitcher despite giving up only six hits.

The Penguins wound up their road trip with another contest with Southwest Missouri State. Unfortunately, the Penguins ended their odyssey on a sour note as the Bears jumped out to a 12-4 lead after three innings en route to a 16-12 victory. Jerry Davidson paced the Penguins attack by going 2-for-3 with 4 RBIs and Sotlar and Janeda chipped in with two hits apiece. Price took the mound loss.
