Clemons to leave YSU for NBA

JIM CLEMONS

Coach takes post with Chicago Bulls

By TIM LEONARD
Jambar Managing Editor

After two years at YSU, Penguins basketball head coach and former NBA player Jim Clemons is headed back to the pros, according to sources close to the situation.

Two reliable sources told The Jambar that Clemons, who had played in the NBA, was headed for the NBA's Chicago Bulls as an assistant coach.

YSU has announced a 9 a.m. press conference set for this morning in the Penguin Room in Stambaugh Stadium.

One of the sources, who works in the YSU athletic department, said the press conference is a joint-announcement by YSU and the Chicago Bulls.

The source said that Clemons' replacement was not expected to be announced tomorrow.

This is the second time in the last two years that YSU has lost its basketball head coach. Two summers ago, head coach Bill Dailey died after suffering a heart attack two months before practices were to begin. Clemons replaced Dailey less than a month later.

Clemons weathered through two subpar years with records of 7-21 during 1987-88 and 5-21 during 1988-89.

When telephoned yesterday afternoon, Clemons would not respond to any questions posed during the conversation.

Clemons was an assistant coach at Ohio State prior to taking the YSU coaching position. Previous to that, Clemons played basketball in the NBA, most notably with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Limited choices face Bush in hostage crisis

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

The recent events in the Middle East have raised many questions about what actions the United States should take to gain the freedom of the hostages.

The available options for the government are few and difficult, according to Dr. Keith Lepak, political science.

Lepak said President Bush seems to be handling the situation very well by being practical and methodical.

"Bush is trying to explore all the avenues," said Lepak.

One possible way to gain the freedom of those captive would be to negotiate with the captors through a third party.

Lepak said the USSR should be considered because of their improving relations with Iran.

"A third party is needed because of the different groups and factions throughout the Middle East," he said. "It is the only feasible route."

Lepak said there is a power struggle in Iran since the Ayatollah's death. Because of Iran's political instability, this will make negotiations difficult for the United States.

If the United States were to take military action, the best attack would be a surgical attack, a small covert operation, according to Lt. Col. Paul Fellingner, military science.

"It would have to be done quickly," said Fellingner. "They [the military] would have to be in and out."

Fellingner said the drawback to a surgical attack is not knowing where all the hostages are located.

"Somebody would get hurt," he said. "It is extremely difficult at best."

One reason for this is due to insufficient information, or intelligence, being gathered by the United States.

Col. Richard Murdoch, military science, said that obtaining such information cannot be done overnight. Instead, he said, it takes years to install an agent within the culture.

Lepak said the United States government probably does not lack intelligence, but the problems arise when there is too much information.

"The information the United States receives is fragmented," he said. "There is conflicting information."

Faculty, administration at standstill with talks

By MIRIAM KLEIN
Jambar Staff Reporter

No agreement has been made thus far in the contract negotiations between the YSU faculty and Administration and the meeting that had been scheduled for today has been cancelled. As yet, there are no other meetings being scheduled.

YSU faculty have been in the process of negotiating a new contract with the Administration since June. At that time, the Administration rejected recommendations, made by a state appointed fact finder, that had been endorsed by the faculty.

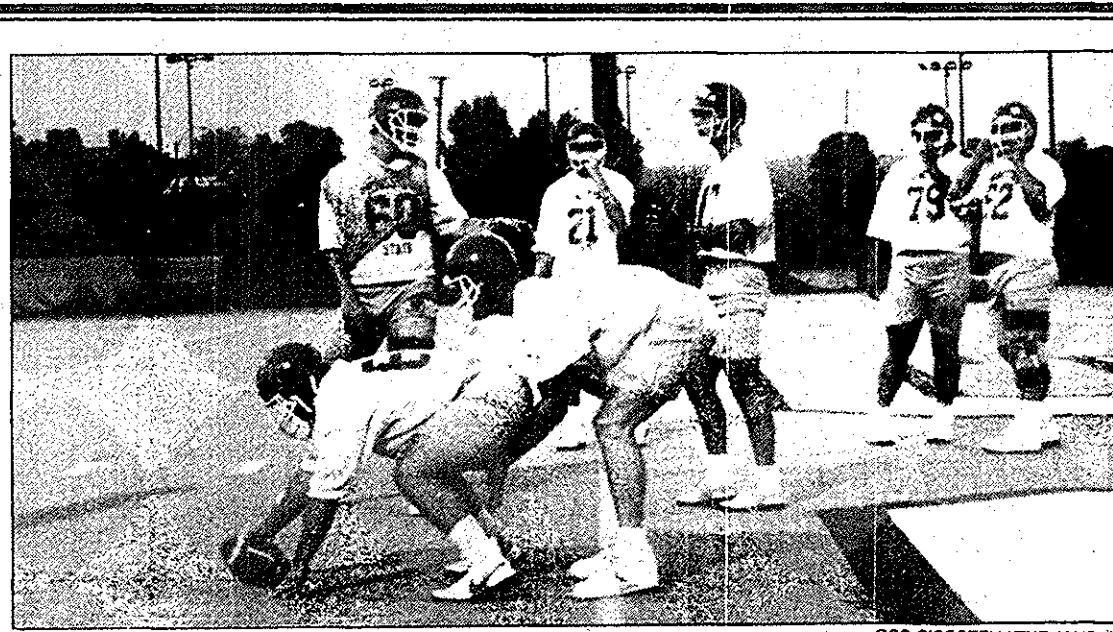

According to Dr. Paul Dalbec, physics and astronomy, and president of the YSU chapter of the Ohio Education Association, among the issues that have caused this delay in the talks are: faculty workload, salaries, benefits and early retirement.

Dr. Taylor Alderman, vice president, personnel services, declined to comment.

As far as a possibility of the delay leading to a faculty strike in September, Dalbec said "I don't know how the process will evolve, but decisions will have to be made the closer we get to the [strike] deadline."

A strike could delay the start of fall quarter or operate with limited service staff, but "that would be the Administration's decision," said Dalbec.

A lady's purse was stolen from the stairs of the Lincoln Avenue entrance to Cushman Hall Friday, Aug. 4.

At approximately 1 p.m.,

the victim stated that she had been waiting for the Downtown Trolley and at 12:20 p.m. she boarded the Trolley leaving her purse on the steps.

Officer Gayle Magnuson stated that along with the purse, a Gucci style handbag with grey print, a Dollar Bank savings passbook was reported missing.

Magnuson also said that after a brief search of the area no evidence of the purse could be found.

Dr. Loch receives service award

By KATHY WILMS
Staff Reporter

Dr. John R. Loch, director, Continuing Education and Educational Outreach at YSU, was the first to be awarded the Special Award for Service by the Ohio Council on Higher Continuing Education Association (OCHEA) at their annual July meeting in Dayton.

Loch was presented the award for his contributions to OCHEA as one of its founders.

OCHEA offers professional development and new skills to degree and non-degree persons alike, said Barbara Ludwig, coordinator, Continuing Education at YSU. OCHEA is designed to aid businesses at different levels to update their technical knowledge and clientele, Ludwig said.

Loch has held positions of vice president as well as president elect, 1986-1987, for the Public Colleges and University Constituency Association. He was co-chair of the Regents Committee which founded OCHEA.

Along with serving in many other positions, Loch recently documented the history of OCHEA as its editor, said Ludwig.

Six years ago Loch was instrumental in combining the two different organizations, the Ohio Continuing Education Council (OCEC) and OCHEA, which were separate two year and four year programs up until that time.

"There were 100 institutions state-wide involved," said Ludwig. "Private and four year institutions were brought together under one group. We have had other states contact us, asking us how we structured the program," said Ludwig.

Within Ohio there are 130-135 members in OCHEA, Ludwig said. Loch's contribution has helped to make the Ohio program innovative and one after which other states would like to model their programs, said Ludwig.

Loch has helped to create a program that is non-accredited but in tune with marketing of business for professional development and quality customer service though higher education, said Ludwig.

"Things are taught a little differently than in the credited program because the people who are paying for the programs want things more practical as opposed to straight lecture theory," said Ludwig.

Loch is chair of the Ohio-Pennsylvania Higher Education Network which is a consortium of area colleges and universities. The consortium is working to propagate continuing education and adult programs.

Indians should not be uprooted

For once, the Cleveland Indians woes are not on the field, instead the new problem stems from a possible new stadium.

The brothers, Richard and David Jacobs, who own the Indians want to move out of Cleveland Stadium and into a modern complex in downtown Cleveland.

The only problem is that the Jacobs wants Cuyahoga County and its people to pay for the stadium through taxes. If not, the Jacobs say they will move the Indians to another city.

Before the Jacobs' fly off to a new city, they should wait and look at some possible options.

On Wednesday, The Plain Dealer reported that Youngstown's Edward DeBartolo Sr. has offered to buy the Indians and construct a new stadium.

Cuyahoga County Commissioner Timothy Hagan said that DeBartolo can build the stadium through "financial methods that would not require new taxes."

DeBartolo's efforts might be futile because of his ownership of race tracks. Major League Baseball does not want its owners to have any interests in horse racing. Already this decade his dealings with the horses thwarted his 1980 bid to buy the Chicago White Sox.

If DeBartolo cannot purchase the Indians, then the Jacobs should look into this method of building a stadium without raising taxes.

The Jacobs should be patient and wait five more years to see if possibly another method in building a stadium arises.

To move the Indians would be a tragedy since they are one of the oldest franchises in baseball.

Crime rate down on campus; police applauded for actions

A recent report from the FBI indicates that the crime rate has dropped at YSU.

In number of violent crimes on campus, YSU ranked ninth out of the 13 Ohio public universities.

The report which appeared in the Tuesday, Aug. 8 edition of The Vindicator said YSU recorded "a sharp drop in violent crime — reporting only one case [aggravated assault] — and a decrease in property crime."

By comparison, the University of Cincinnati reported 11 robberies, two rapes and two aggravated assaults.

The University police force should be applauded for their efforts to keep YSU as safe as possible from violent crimes.

The drop in the crime rate will be another asset for the University when recruiting students to attend YSU.

COMMENTARIES

Student's apathetic about AIDS

There are a new group of would be immortals. They do not reside on Mount Olympus, or in the tales of the Baghavad Gita, they live in Youngstown and attend YSU. These people also go out to bars and engage in the usual mating rituals without considering protecting themselves from AIDS.

The galling thing about this situation, is that the daily news we hear about the dangers of inadequate protection do not seem to be having any effect upon promiscuous behavior. I called the AIDS hotline to ask a simple question: should heterosexuals be overly concerned about the AIDS issue? Yes, they said, we should. The incidence of AIDS cases among heterosexuals went up 5.8 percent in 1988. And it isn't getting any better. But surely YSU students are practicing safe sex? Don't believe that. I took some opinions from my friends, male and female, and was shocked by the results.

Mohan Subramanian

Males are by far the most reckless species of life on our planet. They just don't care. Unless forced to take responsibility, they would rather pass the buck. Ouch! That hurt alot more than I thought it would. I asked several friends if they used condoms. The overwhelming answer was: "If I have any." Condoms are really scarce commodities these days, I know, but did you ever think to buy any in advance? The old days of carrying a condom in your wallet are coming back so

Take the bite out of hot "dog" days

Well, here it is August again. I'm still in school (ugh!) and the dog days of summer will soon be upon us. This means that the inevitable question, "Hot enough for ya?" will soon be asked by every small-talk aficionado from here to Kalamazoo.

Instead of having to answer this small but annoying question with a sarcastic "No, I wish it was at least ten degrees hotter with a wee bit more humidity in the air" and then hurting the person, who asked you, the answer, could be a pleasant

After all, why waste a perfectly good act of violence on someone making small talk? So, if you haven't figured it out yet, this column is dedicated to giving you some tips on how to stay cool when things get hot.

Valley housing will be subject of a YSU study

YOUNGSTOWN — Thanks to two grants from the Ohio Board of Regents, housing conditions in the Mahoning Valley will be the subject of a study by YSU's Center for Urban Studies.

Center director, Dr. Gil Peterson, who was awarded the funds, said the first grant, for $10,500, will provide support for a study of the housing market in Mahoning and Trumbull Counties.

This research will be simultaneously conducted with the Urban Studies Centers at the University of Akron and Cleveland State University. The combined efforts of the three universities will provide coverage of the housing market of northeastern Ohio.

The study will focus on the rate and location of new construction, abandonment, demolition, and housing conversion. Forecasts will be made to determine the pattern of housing development in suburban communities as well as the inner city. The impact of infrastructure requirements and the tax base will also be included. The results of this study should be available in February.

The second grant, for $45,000 is to support an investigation of the impact of mortgage foreclosure on residential development. This study is designed to examine FHA and VA foreclosure and property disposal policies to determine their effects on structural deterioration and neighborhood blight. Issues such as temporary mortgage assistance, loss of tax revenues, and absentee ownership will also be examined. This study is to be completed in October, 1990.

Along with the YSU in-kind contribution, both research projects combined will total over $100,000.

Letters to the Editor

Higgins should be remembered

Dear Editor
The following letter has been endorsed by Student Government. We would like the support of YSU students in this matter.

As American citizens and freedom loving individuals, we have been tremendously disturbed by recent events in the Middle East. We are particularly aghast at the murder of Lt. Col William R. Higgins, USMC, and the willful imprisonment of innocent Americans in Lebanon.

Whereas it is not possible for us to take direct action in this matter, a gesture of a symbolic nature would do well to represent our disdain at the Hezbollah and our concern for those held hostage.

We, therefore, propose that the American flag in front of Jones Hall be lowered to half mast for the remainder of August, in mournful tribute to those hostages that have thus far died and those still being held against their will. Such an act would more than adequately See Letter, page 5

Student defends Robinson's views

Dear Editor,
After reading the August 3rd edition of The Jambar, I couldn't help but write what has been on my mind since this fracas came up about Police Chief Robert Robinson's remarks.

Don't the officers realize one never knows it all, and one always needs improvement — no matter what field of training they have had?

I feel President Neil Humphrey made an effort to see a black man was hired as the chief to try and eliminate some of the bias against hiring a minority. He should be commended on his good intentions, and has made a good start.

Sgt. Robert Brown, who has been on the force the longest and knows YSU like the back of his hand, should be commended because he is a man who wants the department to be number one in all aspects.

I am glad this problem is over and the chief can carry on and do his job by keeping our campus among the best for our safety and welfare. We need a good caring chief and good caring police people.

Carry on chief, for this lady is behind you and believe me if you are the man I believe in, you'll make it and do fine as our chief.

This lady will never fail to fight for justice for all mankind. That is what caring is about.

Chordas is appointed director

YSU — Ronald K. Chordas of Boardman is the new director of Youngstown State University's Human Services Development Center.

The Center, established in 1985, is a public service department which serves as a community resource for health and human service organizations. The center works with a variety of community service agencies in identifying and solving problems and in raising community wide issues concerning human services.

Through his practical background, Chordas brings professional knowledge of how non-profit organizations work. He was previously with Potential Development Program Center where he served as executive director from Jan. 1983 to July 1989, and as the center's program coordinator from Sept. 1972 to Dec. 1982.

Chordas holds a master's degree in education and a bachelor's degree in psychology, both from YSU. He is currently completing a doctoral program at Kent State University in which the coursework includes counseling and personnel services and organizational development, which he believes will benefit his new position.

"I'm really impressed with YSU," said Chordas. "I came from a small agency. At the Center there are innumerable University resources to tap and a broader base of knowledge to share with the community."

Through the University's resources, Chordas is able to refer agencies to the wide variety of support services YSU has to offer. "I'm learning what the Center's capabilities are and developing a plan to get these resources and services available to the agencies," said Chordas.

Chordas added, "Each human service provider has a system, and I want to become familiar with how they operate and help in developing service networks."

He also plans to meet with individual agency directors, groups and community leaders to obtain their input and find out their needs.

An involved and active community-minded individual, Chordas' affiliations include the steering committee of the Collaborative Early Intervention Project for Mahoning County Children, and the state Early Intervention Transition Committee. Currently, Chordas is vice president of Downtown Kiwanis. He is a member of the National Association for the Education of Young Children and the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

ing, Lepak said another option would be to do nothing, an policy advocated by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Lepak said there is the possibility that if the United States does act, it would increase the chances for more hostage crises in the future, adding that by taking no action, the Bush administration would be hurt severely.

Lepak also said that Israel's capture of Sheik Obeid was a understandable act on their part. "They acted in their own interests," he said. "They hope they can make a deal and get the release of their people held hostage."

Third annual Red-White date is announced

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

For the third straight year, faculty, staff and students at YSU will be called upon to show their Penguin spirit as The Jambar will sponsor Red-White Day.

The Jambar has announced that Oct. 13 will be Red-White Day.

For the first time, the big day will not take place before the University of Akron football game.

Because the Akron game is played the first week of classes, Red-White Day will be held the day before the Northeastern Huskies play the Penguins.

Because of its success the last two years, an office decorating contest will be held again.

The staff of The Jambar will judge which office is the best decorated and most spirited. The winning office will win a pizza party courtesy of The Jambar.

The winning office will be announced at a pep rally scheduled for noon on the campus core.

The Jambar staff would like for all students, faculty and staff to dress in red and white on Oct. 13 to show their pride in YSU.

Letters and registration forms will be sent to all campus offices and organizations by mid-September.

Last year, the Kilcawley

Center Staff offices were declared the "most spirited office" with the Financial Aid office winning it the first year.

The week is highlighted on Saturday as the YSU Penguins take on the Northeastern Huskies. Saturday's game also marks the annual Homecoming Game.

The Penguins have posted a 1-1 record playing after Red-White Day.

Candlelight vigil to be held for Higgins

By DAVID MARADO
Staff Reporter

"It is of the utmost importance that the youth of today take notice to what is happening in the world. Youth often takes ridicule for apathy, now we would like to show the people of Youngstown, Ohio and the world that we care about our future and the futures of our children," said YSU Secretary of Legal Affairs Brian Schwelling in reference to the candlelight vigil to be held Wednesday, August 16, at 8 p.m. at Jones Hall, for Lt. Colonel William Higgins and the other hostages being held in Beirut, Lebanon.

The vigil will feature music, followed by a short address by Schwelling who will introduce the speakers for the evening.

Among those expected to speak at the vigil are Brian Fry, president of YSU student government, Mayor of Youngstown, Patrick Ungaro, and area clergy including Jewish Rabbi Meyer, Lutheran Pastor Pete Michaelson, Roman Catholic Priest Father Siffrin, and Baptist Minister Dr. Cornelius Booker said Schwelling.

The vigil will take place Wednesday, August 16 at 8 p.m., not Thursday August 8 as stated in The Vindicator. All are welcome to attend.

Area teachers to present projects

YSU — On Friday, August 11, teachers from Mahoning, Trumbull, Columbiana and Ashtabula counties will display the products of a summer-long training program held at YSU.

Twenty-eight teachers of grades five through 12, after taking three courses in the Scientific Method and research in chemistry, physics and astronomy, geology, biology and psychology and the social sciences, will present their own science research projects.

The program is supported by a grant from the Ohio Board of Regents' Education for Economic Security Program and coordinated by District 15 of the Ohio Junior Academy of Science.

For the next academic year, these teachers trained as "science coaches" will be financially supported to aid in the development of extracurricular activities in their schools to encourage student science projects and competition.

Judging of the projects will be from 9-11 a.m. School administrators, local civic leaders, and the general public are invited to an open viewing from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Room 6046 of the Ward Beecher Science Hall on the YSU campus.

Ohio Arts Council to hold conference at Wick-Pollock

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Arts Council will hold its annual meeting and conference in Youngstown from September 20 through 22 at the Wick-Pollock Inn. "Kaleidoscope," a celebration of cultural diversity in the arts, is the theme of this year's meeting.

Artists, arts administrators, organization representatives and others interested in the arts are invited to participate in workshops, meetings and social events designed to stimulate discussion and provide resources for future planning and programming.

Deadline for pre-registration is September 5; an early registration discount is available until August 25. Registration packets are available from the Ohio Arts Council and its distribution centers across the state. For further information contact Ron Larson at the Ohio Arts Council in Columbus. The two day conference on Wednesday evening, September 20, will begin with a World Music Concert on the campus of YSU. A full day of workshops is planned for Thursday. Topics include audience development, developing cultural diversity in programming, the arts and travel and tourism, grants and guidelines, and communications strategy. Thursday evening will feature a cocktail reception and dinner at several sites, including the Butler Institute of American Art and Powers Auditorium.

MARY SCHMIDT CAMPBELL

There will also be a sneak preview of the Ohio Historical Society's Museum of Industry and Labor, a building designed by Michael Graves which is slated to open in early 1990.

Mary Schmidt Campbell, New York City Commissioner of Cultural Affairs, will present Thursday morning's keynote address on cultural diversity. A former Ford Fellow, Campbell received a PhD in humanities at Syracuse University. She has taught English Literature at Nkumbi International College, a school of South African refugees in Zambia, Africa, and in 1977 was appointed Executive Director of the Studio of Museum in Harlem, an African-American fine arts museum. Recently, she co-authored the book Harlem Renaissance: Art of Black America.

Big apple artist in Warren

A special summer show will be the next exhibit at the Trumbull Art Gallery in Warren, Ohio. "80 Years of Rebel Art" will feature a dual show of recent works by Robin Arnold and "Woobly."

Robin Arnold is from New Paltz, New York where she is an assistant professor of painting and drawing at the State University of New York. She has shown extensively in the eastern United States and has been featured in national exhibitions in Massachusetts, Nevada, Nebraska and New York.

T.P. doesn't heartbreak fans

By MOHAN SUBRAMANIAN
Staff Reporter

The pulse of American rock music is steady and strong thanks to Gainesville, Fla. native Tom Petty and his band the Heartbreakers. Playing before a near capacity crowd at Blossom Music Center Tuesday night, Petty proved that he is the best American rocker around. Sorry, Bruce.

The show started with "Real Love" from Petty's new solo album, but it was the classics "American Girl" and "Listen to Her Heart," that christened the evening, launching the crowd into a dancing and singing celebration. Petty kept the crowd moving with a stirring rendition of "Free Fallin'."

Petty's latest LP Full Moon Fever, was a solo project featuring only one Heartbreaker on every song, lead guitarist Mike Campbell. Many fans wondered if Petty would tour solo, but Petty eased all worries by telling the crowd, "...these are the wonderful, fabulous Heartbreakers and I'd never leave home without 'em." The Heartbreakers are: Benmont Tench, keyboards, Stan Lynch on drums, Howie Epstein on bass, and Campbell on lead. Few bands are as cohesive as these guys.

Petty got right back to business with two beautiful acoustic renditions of "The Waiting," and "Even the Losers." The pain and longing of loves won and lost were captured in these two songs.

There were many first time Heartbreaker fans at this concert (I've been to four) who were delighted by Petty's interaction with the audience. It is rare to see a performer like Petty come to a town and say the usual "We're glad to be here..." and really mean it.

Since Petty's close affiliation with fellow Travelling Wilbury Bob Dylan, he has taken on a more political posture in his music. He did that at Blossom with a short message to the crowd concerning the importance of our environment. Petty invited the environmental group Greenpeace to accompany the band's U.S. tour. Petty didn't preach. He had a message to impart. When it was received, Petty went back to playing music.

As the show progressed Petty told the crowd he is, "...learning to behave in public again," but was bad as he played the quintessential Petty song "Breakdown." The new single "Won't Back Down," was well received by the crowd. The numerous "rookie" Petty fans voicing their approval at a familiar song.

Petty pulled some nice surprises during the evening. A swinging piano riff featuring Tench tickling the ivories, was a simple salute to the jazz of the 20's. And to show his diversity, a raucous rendition of the Clash's "Should I Say

Hospitality degree is approved

YSU — A new degree program has been approved for YSU and three existing YSU programs have been awarded $732,076 in Academic Challenge grants by the Ohio Board of Regents.

The board approved the newly developed Associate of Applied Science in Hospitality Management, which will be offered by YSU's College of Applied Science and Technology.

Studies have indicated a need for trained personnel in the hospitality industry, both nationally and locally. The program is designed to prepare students for entry and mid-management positions in the areas of front desk, convention planning, sales, housekeeping, and restaurant operations.

The trend in the industry is to promote from within, and an associate degree would aid career advancement. Recruitment and registration for the two-year curriculum are under way.

Academic Challenge grants, which are designed to increase the quality of the strongest programs at state universities, were awarded to YSU's marketing and English departments, and the Dana School of Music.

The English department received $382,255 which is to be used to increase the number of full-service faculty members by four, and provide more faculty support and leadership for the department's programs.

The marketing department, which offers the country's only B.S. in B.A. with a minor in mall management, received a grant of $128,831. The funds will be used to supplement mall management department expertise and expand professional development opportunities.

The $219,990 grant awarded to the Dana School of Music will go toward the Applied Music Enhancement Plan, which provides for a professional string quartet in residence to substantially strengthen YSU's string offerings through intense chamber music concentration. Most universities' string quartet programs focus primarily on graduate programs. YSU's program would offer unique, important concentration on the training of undergraduate students.

AIDS

why not get hip. You'd think a responsible decision like that might increase your odds. And ladies you're not that innocent yourselves. Female friends actually told me that they would rather NOT have a guy wear a condom. Now that takes the cake. The, ah, discomfort of a condom seems to me to be outweighed by the health risks. You should demand that your partner wear one.

We are adults when we reach college. The decisions you make about your life now decide your future. If all of us are adults enough to have sex, we better get with the program. AIDS kills. There is no second chance.

Now for all of you righteous folks out there, I am not condoning nor promoting a casual attitude about sex. BUT if you are going to have sex, be smart. Think about your future now because if you get AIDS all you have to do is die. AIDS is not merely for drug addicts and homosexuals anymore.

Petty

or Should I Go?"

Petty ended the show with "Refugee," featuring Campbell's trademark 12-string, and "Runnin Down a Dream." The encore number's included the unrecorded and rarely heard "Red Rooster," a song showing off the Bluesy side of the band, and "Jammin Me."

As they left the stage, I knew that rock music in America was alive and well. Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers are uniquely American. They are rockers who keep a humble attitude about themselves and their music. If you missed this show, they play again on Aug. 24 at A.J. Palumbo Theatre in Pittsburgh. Check them out, you won't be sorry.

Through her works, Robin attempts to have her art serve as vehicles for spiritual expression. Subject and medium are interdependent in her work, each contributing to the expression of the life force or energy which animates our physical forms.

"Woobly," the second feature, will be an exhibition of art work published by the I.W.W., International Workers of the World. Artists include: Joe Hill, Ernst Riebe, Joe Troy, C.E. Setzer, and Carlos Cortez. This exhibit consists of prints and cartoons which depict the history of the labor movement.

The public is invited to the opening Saturday, August 19 from 7 to 9 p.m. The show will continue through September 8.

a very pleasant lounge on the first floor and, restrooms conveniently located on each of the buildings' five floors.

Heat-Beater No. 2: The sprinklers. Why should the lawns have all the fun? Let's see it, some of those sidewalks have more water on them than the small African nations. So, in your bathing suit, some towels, and your imagination you'll be cooled off in no time flat. You could play games like "Put Your Mouth on The Sprinkler" or "Whoever Gets the Wet Doesn't Have To Go To the Bathroom." Or, maybe you could just lay quietly on the concrete and let the water do its thing. Hours of enjoyment await those who choose this method.

Heat-Beater No. 3: The fountain. How often do we take note of this nautical wonder located in our very campus? Not often enough. Just think, an oasis all our own. A couple of palm trees, maybe a hammock and some sand and we could have had amounts to an island paradise. How far off can the professor and May Ann be? Not very.

Heat-Beater No. 4: Language sequence. Too late for this summer, if you're still around next summer, take the foreign language sequence offered by the university and be sure to skip a few classes. That ought to keep you out in the cold at least until the quarter is up.

Heat-Beater No. 5: Hypnotism. This is not recommended for the week. What you do is go to your friendly neighborhood hypnotist and tell him or her to put you under a spell in which you think it is January in Youngstown all the time. But, be careful. If you start to wear wool long-johns and boots, ask to be taken out from under the spell. We don't want to lose anybody to heat exhaustion.

There you are, folks, five easy, inexpensive ways to lick the dog days that are sure to be hounding us in no time. Take advantage of this advice and you'll be able to say "Move over, rover" to those dog days. But, remember the easiest way to stay cool is to be cool.

Tressel begins his fourth season at YSU

ROB CICCOTELLI/THE JAMBAR

Freshmen start summer workouts under lights

RICHARD M. JENKINS
Jambar News Editor

The YSU freshmen held their first scheduled practice of the season at 8:30 p.m. under the lights on "Dike" Beede Field Tuesday night.

With excellent weather conditions, the freshmen took to the field in their helmets and shorts to loosen up and get accustomed to the astroturf.

For approximately two hours, the 30 recruits, including one walk-on and one injured player, were taken through the basics of YSU's football program. This was the first of the 13 practices the freshmen will go through before they put on their equipment.

This group of recruits consists of 10 players from the Youngstown area and six from Western Pennsylvania as well as 15 others, including one from Germany. One player, a walk-on punter, will be joining the team later in the week.

According to Head Coach Jim Tressel, the reason for bringing the freshmen in a week before the veterans is to teach them the fundamentals that they need to know.

"With the freshmen, we start from the beginning. We bring them in a week earlier and then the veterans to get them familiar with our way of doing things," Tressel said.

This allows each position coach the opportunity to teach his players the fundamentals before they come in contact with the returning players, he said.

"It's hard to tell exactly what we have until we see them in pads but they do seem to be ready. They have a good look in their eyes and I feel good about their level of enthusiasm," said Tressel.

Tressel also stated that although this is an important time, he refuses to make any judgments until he has the chance to see them in full equipment.

"It's happened in the past that players perform differently before and after equipment has been issued and therefore I try not to judge anyone until the pads get put on," said Tressel.

Tressel also mentioned that the veterans will be reporting to camp on Friday, Aug. 11 and that picture day will be held on Saturday at 9:30 a.m..

The Tribe could win the pennant??

It's August 10.

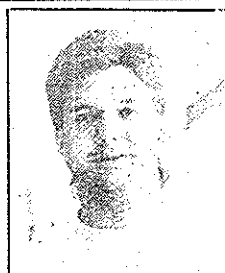

The Tribe is in third place in the American League East and there are 50 games left in Cleveland's definite future.

This is the first time in my life that the Tribe has had the chance to show the baseball world that they can play on a championship level despite the disbelief around the league.

However, this event will never take place unless the big hitters make some contact with their bats in the coming weeks. It seems that all the big sticks are sleeping while the arms are working hard day in and day out.

Don't misunderstand me, I have a lot of confidence in the Indians, but I am all too familiar with one part of their game or another falling short in the home stretch.

I just wish that this year since they are so close, Chief Wahoo and the boys could pull it out and win a pennant for every die hard fan that has been waiting since 1954 (I've only been waiting since 1966).

Richard M. Jenkins

At three and a half games out, the Tribe will be facing every team that could pose a problem for them at least five more times this season. I cannot help but see that the Tribe could be the masters of their own destiny if they play up to their potential.

The key to the outcome of this season is the potential the Cleveland Indians do possess. Right now the pitching is there and the hitting could be there. With the proper management and good defense, the Tribe could have a 1954 season in 1989.

Dravecky returns to majors

Former YSU pitcher Dave Dravecky will make his triumphant return to Major League Baseball today as the San Francisco Giants take on the Cincinnati Reds. This afternoon's game will be Dravecky's first appearance in MLB since going through offseason cancer surgery.

The southpaw permanently lost half of the deltoid muscle of his pitching arm in the surgery.

Dravecky has pitched three complete games in the minor leagues during his rehabilitation. He pitched for the San Jose Giants in Division 'A' for the first two victories completing his stay there with a 1.69 ERA and one shut out.

After leaving Division 'A' Dravecky moved onto Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League where he pitched for nine innings giving up seven hits, two runs and two errors.

Dravecky reportedly feels good about having five days of rest before he gets into the pitching rotation with the Giants.

He hopes to regain the form he had when he helped lead the San Diego Padres into the 1984 World Series against the Detroit Tigers after coming back from a 2-0 deficit against the Chicago Cubs in the National League Championship Series.
