Upcoming events stress importance of good health

By FRANCENE M. MOKROVICH
Staff Reporter

Most of us don't think twice about walking around campus to get to class. Yet, something good for the community can be obtained by walking an area that is comparable to this distance.

On May 1, a walk around campus will kick off the start of Holistic Health Month, said Dr. Tony Whitney, physical education.

Holistic Health Month is a new name for an old idea. Previously it was called, Health Fair or Health-O-Rama. Each has been characterized by a series of events to draw attention to the importance of good health.

There are 10 committees on campus that have events planned for the month.

The committees range from those concerned with nutrition to those that concentrate on substance abuse.

The Holistic Health Walk is sponsored by the exercise and fitness committee, which is chaired by Whitney.

In years past, Whitney has chaired previous Health-O-Ramas.

The walk is set to begin at noon with a proclamation by Youngstown mayor Pat Ungaro that will declare May as Holistic Health Month. Also expected to attend is YSU President Dr. Neil Humphrey, the deans and various departments heads.

The walk is about one mile long and begins at the Rock. The route then leads the participants around the outside of the core of the campus. The event should only take about a half an hour said Whitney.

The first 500 people who register for the walk will receive the Rockport Guide to Fitness Walking.

Students who do not register are encouraged to show up at the Rock at noon.

Members of student organizations are encouraged to attend wearing a shirt displaying their groups' logo.

Also, organizations like fraternities

Student Government adopts amendments to constitution

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

Without President Brian Fry and Vice-President Dan Haude at the helm, Student Government voted to amend their Constitution and By-Laws, as well as elected a new chair to the Discipline Committee.

In a unanimous vote, the Government voted to adopt constitutional amendments under sections 100, 200, 300 and 700, regarding such policies as student representative and committee attendance and voting rights.

According to the amendments under section 100, each representative is required to attend and remain at the regularly scheduled meetings, which are held Mondays at 4 p.m., until 5:30 p.m., unless excused by the Executive Committee. Members are currently allowed to miss no more than two meetings.

In the same instance, members of a standing committee are not permitted to miss more than three committee meetings, which are to be scheduled by the committee chair and will last through one full quarter.

Voting rights were also an issue with the amendments.

Amendment 310.01 in section 300 states "The Executive Committee of the Student Government shall consist of those five members of Student Government holding offices: President, Vice-President, Second Vice-President, Secretary and Parliamentarian. Of these five members, only the President will not vote, except in the case of a tie."

Advisors of the Executive Committee are not permitted voting rights either, according to the amendments.

Under the section dealing with Student Government advisors, the body voted to accept amendments that state that a minimum of one faculty and one administrative advisor shall be approved annually by the Government each spring quarter at the second to the last meeting.

The term of each advisor will last until the end of the following spring quarter.

In other business, Student Government elected representative Jerry Savo as the new chair of the Discipline Committee.

The former chair, Jonathan Brian, announced his resignation at the meeting.

Brian stated that the reason for his actions is due to the fact that he and a fellow YSU student are planning to run for presidential office for the upcoming academic year.

Summer in the city

Mobs of sun-starved students clamored to the great outdoors yesterday as the temperature reached up into the 60s. Even Dr. Stephen Reese, English, (above) caught the bug, conducting his English 690 session near the fountain concourse. However, other students, such as Beth Becker, junior, A&S, (left) chose to seek a little shelter in the shade and find a quiet moment to study.

Life experiences prompt return to college

By NANCY KERTIS
Jambar Managing Editor

"The majority of the non-traditional students are in school because life experiences have not left many options," explained Diane Tucek, senior, professional writing and editing.

Tucek said when she graduated from East High School 33 years ago, she put off college to get married. When her husband passed away she found herself without any real vocation.

Although Tucek was extensively involved in community activities such as PTA and Red Cross, it was volunteer work, and not a foundation to build a career with.

Diane is currently in her fourth year at YSU and she still recalls her first quarter of college in 1986.

"I decided to take only one class, just to see if I could do it," said Tucek.

Tucek took a class with her son and recalls, "I felt so uncomfortable being older."

Tucek said, "I would study twice as long and twice as hard, and my son never even read the book."

With a smile on her face Tucek said, "I was ecstatic when I received a B in the class."

In addition to being a full-time student for the past four years, Tucek has been a tutor in the writing lab for the past two years.

"I love school now, but it wasn't always that way," Tucek explained. "The first two years were real hard, but I have fun now, and I have made so many friends."

Tucek said that one of the hardest barriers to overcome was learning how to study all over again. The best thing about going back to college was being able to mix with people of all ages. "I no longer feel uncomfortable about my age; I love being with the younger students. They encourage me and I have gained much confidence because of their encouragement. Going to college is wonderful, and I encourage more people my age to go," said Tucek.

Next spring quarter, Tucek will graduate with a B.A. in professional writing and editing.

When asked what she plans to do after graduation, Tucek said, "I like copy-editing, but I don't know what I plan to do. I'm not worried about it, I'll find something."

Tucek plans on spending the summer working for Kelly Services, but when fall rolls around again it will be back to the books.

Jambar Editors

YSU Student Publications Committee is now accepting applications for the 1990-91 positions available on The Jambar, Neon and Penguin Review staffs.

To be eligible for any of the positions, applicants must be full-time students in good standing, as well as have a class standing that will enable them to complete the normal term of office.

Positions and current stipends available at The Jambar, YSU's newspaper, include: Editor-in-Chief, $5,001; Managing/Make-up Editor, $2,501; News Editor, $1,000; Copy Editor, $2,501; Assistant Copy Editor, $1,000; Sports Editor, $2,000; Advertising Manager, $3,001; Sales Manager, $2,000; and Entertainment Editor, $2,000.

The following positions with stipends are also available during the summer quarter: Editor-in-Chief, $1,500; News Editor, $500; Managing/Make-Up Editor, $500; and Copy Editor, $500.

Applicants should have taken Basic Journalism and preferably have written for The Jambar for two quarters. Applications are available in The Jambar offices.

Positions and stipends available at the Neon, the University yearbook, include: Editor-in-Chief, $3,000; Sports Editor, $2,000; Academic Editor, $2,000; Seniors/Copy Editor, $2,000; Group/Greek Editor, $2,000; Marketing Manager, $2,000; Darkroom Technician, $2,000; and Student Life Editor, $2,000.

The position of Editor-in-Chief for YSU's literary magazine, the Penguin Review, is also available for the academic year, with a stipend of $900.

Applications for Neon, and Penguin Review positions are available by contacting Bassam Deeb, chair of the Student Publications Committee, ext. 3532 in Tod Hall. The deadline for all applications is May 4.

All listed stipends are subject to change for the 1990-91 academic year.

Japanese professor to lecture about biodegradable plastics

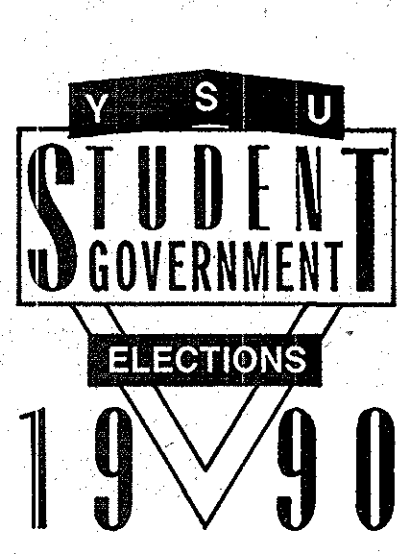

Dr. Shigehiro Hirano from Tottori University, Japan, will present an important chemical lecture on Friday, April 27, at 3 p.m., in Ward-Beecher, Room 6030 at YSU. This talk is entitled, "Chitin-Chitosan Chemistry" and is open to the public.

Chitin and chitosan are examples of biodegradable polymers (plastics) which can be made from renewable resources. These potentially new plastic materials relate strongly to the environmental emphasis of Earth Week and the need for safer and better materials.

Dr. Hirano, who is visiting the United States from Japan, is an internationally renowned scientist and a recognized expert on the chemistry and applications of chitin and chitosan. These natural polymers are obtained from lobster and insect shells.

Dr. Hirano has more than 200 publications and is visiting YSU after presenting some of his recent research findings at the American Chemical Society meeting in Boston. These results will be presented at a symposium on "Polymers from Biotechnology," which was organized by Dr. Charles G. Gebelein, chemistry. Gebelein also presented a paper in Boston on polymers.

Bush needs to do more for hostages

For the first time in nearly three and a half years, an American hostage has been released from captivity in the Middle East.

Robert Pohill took his first breath of freedom on Sunday after being held 39 long months as a hostage.

President George Bush thanked Syria and Iran for their assistance in releasing Pohill, but said he could not "have total forgiveness in my heart as long as one American is held against his will."

Seven more American hostages are "being held against their will" and the President should be more assertive in trying to gain their release. The release of Pohill was not initiated by the Bush Administration. Instead, it was by Pohill's captors.

While Bush continues his "sit back-and-wait policy," seven other Americans are suffering.

The United States should not celebrate simply because one more hostage has been released. A long list of hostages still remains. A real victory and celebration will be appropriate when all the hostages are released.

Until then, it's a long wait.

Students should be exempt from classes within their major

At YSU, students who play intercollegiate sports do not have to register for a physical education class because they receive credit for playing varsity sports.

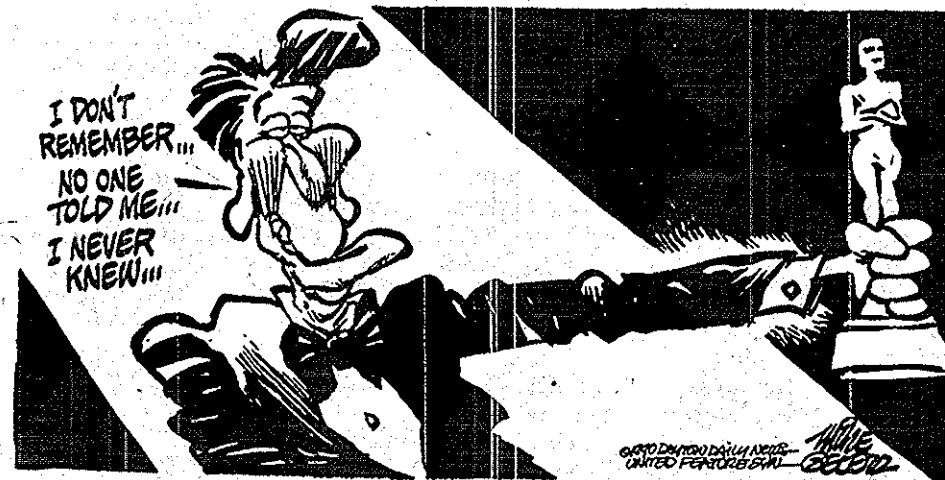

The University should expand on this policy by permitting students to receive credit for certain classes if they are already working in that field on campus.

For example, if a student wants to become a secretary and is employed as a receptionist on campus, then that student should not be obligated to take certain classes that are related to that student's job.

If the University does not exempt this student from certain classes, then the student's "on-the-job performance" should also be taken into consideration when grading.

Students who are already working in their field on campus are receiving on-the-job training. This valuable experience they are receiving should be considered if the work the students are doing is related to their major.

COMMENTARIES

What has this world come to?

Too many people think that the subject of AIDS is over-rated, but is it?

A couple of days ago, I heard on the radio some AIDS victims in Columbiana County were going around sticking their dirty needles in the change compartments of pay phones so that anyone who would stick their fingers in there looking for change would get pricked and could very possibly become infected with the AIDS virus.

I don't understand why AIDS victims want to increase the spread of AIDS. It is such a devastating disease. The fact that there is no known cure is enough to scare almost anyone into complete abstinence from sexual activity.

I understand how some people have rejected AIDS victims and made them feel alienated and alone, but every day we learn a little more about the virus. We learn to take into consideration the thoughts and feelings of the AIDS victims themselves.

I can also understand how bitter some of the victims may become towards people who don't have the virus, but putting dirty needles in a pay phone, having sex with a non-infected person, and giving blood to a person who suffers from hemophilia isn't going to solve anything. There is still no cure.

We have to work together to fight this virus that is literally taking the lives of hundreds of people every day.

When AIDS victims try to get revenge on non-infected people, it pushes the AIDS victims to a further point of isolation.

Journalism is a quality profession

The other day in one of my classes we were talking about the career we are considering.

When I was asked, I replied, "Journalism."

Then came the odd looks because I said the "j" word. Yes, I want to and am going to become a journalist—the profession that is stereotyped as being heartless, cruel, dirty and crude.

Let me set the record straight. Not all journalists are heartless and will do anything just to get some "dirt" on someone.

In fact, many journalists are not the "sleaze or slime" of the Earth.

I'll admit, some journalists make mistakes, but that doesn't mean they are not credible. Doesn't everybody make a mistake once in a while?

People need journalists.

Just think for a minute. If there weren't any media in the world, everything would shut down.

If something happened in Washington D.C., it might take weeks before anyone in California found out. And when they did find out, the story would be more twisted than Chubby Checker.

All forms of media are important.

Voice of the People

Holistic Health walk can benefit individuals

Dear Editor:

The article on creative activities for Holistic Health Month presents a most efficacious antidote to violence and conflict.

Quite true, competition most often results in violence and conflict and might even be the hidden root of tragedy — suicide by the young when defeated in their competitive efforts.

Competing with one's own resources, however, is healthy and can bring great satisfaction. Competition among persons (or peoples for that matter) is not even valid, because the competitors are endowed with different natural gifts and qualifications to begin with. Therefore, they do not compete on equal footing. To make the most of what one is, or has, does not offend the other and may, instead, bring about a spirit of pride in one's own achievement and a friendly recognition of others' success.

Perhaps this brilliant innovation, promoted by students, may yet reach outside Academia and put to shame the "dog eat dog" mentality.

Athletics garners much of students' general fee

Dear Editor:

Wouldn't it be nice to know how YSU spends your money, especially with all this noise about a tuition hike? Here's a brief summary of how the general fee is split up for this school year (89-90): (by percentage)

Intercollegiate Athletics 42
Kilcawley Center 18
Scholarships & Financial Aid 7
Career Services 6
WYSU-FM 5

All Others 13
All others include (in decreasing funding order): Student Residence Development, Student Government, Jambar, University Theater, Intramural Recreation, Student Activities, Health Enhancement Services, Miscellaneous Non-instructional activities, Neon, Day Care Services, and club sports.

Personally, I don't like to see intercollegiate athletics receive such a big slice of the general fee. It is interesting to know that out of a $157 general fee, about $66 goes for athletics. That's almost $200 for three quarters! I believe that's a hell of a price to pay for "free" athletic tickets.

There are a few other ways that I don't like to see my general fee and tuition money spent. A major one is teacher salaries. It's obvious that the student evaluations don't work because I feel many of the professors and instructors aren't really being paid what their worth while many aren't paid enough. However, you'd be stunned at what many of the worst teachers are making.

You can find out how YSU spent every dime they collect. Just ask the attendant at the check-out desk in the library for the 'YSU Salary Working Papers and Annual Budget', or simply, "the budget book." The budget for the 90-91 school year won't be available until July, and I can't wait to see it.

All the financial information you ever wanted to know about YSU and its enterprises is in the book. You can use this book anytime you want to know how YSU is spending your money. For instance, see what your teachers are making before you side with YSU/OEA or the administration when the next strike occurs.

Oh, and if you think the bookstore ought to be subsidized by YSU, you might want to see what the cost of their inventory is. It's on page 247 in the second part.

Don Mathews III
Sr., Mech. Eng.

AIDS

People are beginning to become even more cold-hearted than they were in the past, and the reason is because they fear for their lives.

Nobody want to have AIDS, but the victims put themselves at risk by their lifestyles. How can they possibly justify trying to give the disease to an innocent person?

The way I see it, AIDS is a worse threat to our entire world than a nuclear war. AIDS has the potential to wipe out our entire population if we don't learn how to control it.

Maybe that is what some of the more bitter AIDS victims want to happen. Since they are dying, why shouldn't everyone else suffer too?

It is sad to think how the world has become today.

Sometimes I can't help but wonder if there is any hope left at all.

Program set in Williamson

YSU — YSU will offer "A Mini-Conference on Operations Research" April 19 and 20 in the Cafaro Executive Development Suite of Williamson Hall.

The program will provide an opportunity to discuss technical problems of operations research with nationally known experts in the field.

An overview of the well-publicized Karmarkar algorithm and its applications will be given by Dr. Aydin Ulkucu of AT&T Advanced Decision Support System.

Journalism

People should realize for every "sleazy" journalist, there is a quality journalist.

Take for example Ernie Pyle. Not Gomer Pyle, but Ernie Pyle, the journalist who covered World War II and was killed while doing so.

If it wasn't for Pyle, the people of the United States would not have known what was happening with the war.

His accounts brought the war into the peoples' homes.

Then there were two young journalists from The Washington Post by the names of Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward.

These two bright men broke the Watergate scandal. If it wasn't for journalism, Watergate would have never been exposed.

Who was or is a better sports writer than Red Smith of The New York Times? Smith's vivid details and elegant style of writing made him a favorite of all. Still active today is the witty Mike Royko and the knowledgeable Hendrick Smith.

In fact, journalism could also be extended into television.

Currently, the hard-nosed rough style of Sam Donaldson is a shining light for the business.

Donaldson will not "back down" from asking tough questions. He doesn't care if it is the President of the United States or a crack addict in New York City. Many people don't like his style, but he is well respected.

To complement Donaldson's style is Connie Chung. Chung, who is a professional all the way when handling news events, is very under-rated by some of her peers.

She may seem very pleasant and likable, with her pretty smiling face, but she is a bear when conducting an interview.

So next time a major news event breaks, just think what it would be like if there were no journalists to cover it.

The world would be in a sad state if such an event ever occurred.

Economist to visit YSU on Thursday

DR. SEYMOUR MELMAN

YSU — Economist and author Dr. Seymour Melman will discuss economic conversion from military to civilian production when he appears as YSU's Schermer Scholar-in-Residence on Thursday, April 26.

His free, public lecture will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Ohio Room of Kilcawley Center.

Melman, professor emeritus of industrial engineering at Columbia University, teaches a course called "Political Economy of Peace and Disarmament" at Barnard College and Columbia's graduate School of International Affairs.

He has written nine books, including Profits Without Production (University of Pennsylvania Press, 1987), and The Demilitarized Society (Harvest House, Montreal, 1988).

Melman serves as chair of the National Commission for Economic Conversion and Disarmament. He recently testified in support of legislation before the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs.

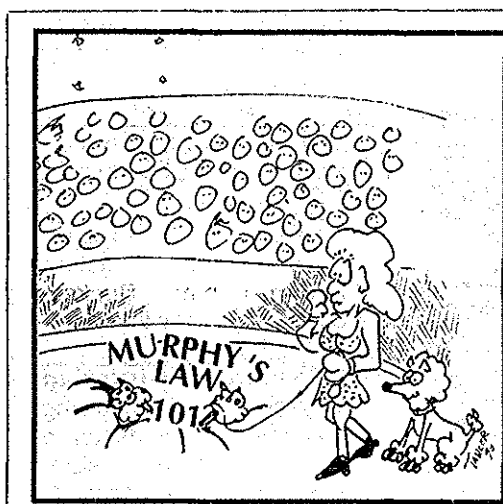

Melman's research demonstrates the effect that military spending has had on civilian production.

He has a bachelor's degree in economics from the College of the City of New York and a doctorate in economics from Columbia.

Established in 1980, the Schermer Scholar-in-Residence Program was funded by an endowment from the Frances and Lillian Schermer Charitable Trusts administered by the Youngstown Zionist District of the Zionist Organization of America and B'nai B'rith Mahoning Lodge 339.

The lecture series seeks to advance the interest of the Schermer family, in young people, education the Jewish community and the community at large. Each year, speakers and performing artists explore contemporary issues in a series of public presentations.

A hush fell over the crowd as the logo pulled itself free and crushed the star attraction, Fifi the Wonder Dog. Apparently it didn't care for dog acts.

REVIEW

Eric Clapton captures crowd at the Coliseum

By MOHAN SUBRAMANIAN
Staff Reporter

Virtuoso/ n.pl.: one who excels in the technique of an art; esp.: a highly skilled musical performer.

If one were speaking of the violin, the great Yitzak Perlman would come to mind. But if you're talking guitar, you're talking Eric Clapton — "Slowhand" to his fans.

Last Tuesday night's performance to a near capacity crowd at the Cleveland Coliseum proved that nobody can play a guitar with Eric Clapton's expertise.

From the opening strains of his newest hit "Pretending," to his encore rendition of one of his oldest, "Crossroads," Clapton electrified the audience.

Clapton's current album Journeyman is aptly titled. From the beginning of his career with the Yardbirds and throughout, Clapton has remained true to his craft.

When he left supergroup Cream and played with the relatively unknown Blind Faith, people wondered about his motives.

Why would anyone leave stardom and success for obscurity? "To explore and improve his guitar playing," were his reasons.

The third song of the evening, Bob Marley's "I Shot the Sheriff," got Clapton in the groove.

Backed by an excellent rhythm section that featured Nathan East on bass and Greg Philanganes on keyboards, Clapton blazed through his solos. His hands were moving effortlessly, as he brought the crowd to its feet.

The concert was paced perfectly and Clapton accommodated all his fans by playing a healthy mix of old and new.

Clapton had an excellent back-up band and wasn't afraid to let them strut their stuff.

The entire band clicked on "Tearin' Us Apart," off the August LP. The song was a duet done with Tina Turner on the album, but the woman singing in Clapton's band was great. The crowd joined the band and danced away, turning the Coliseum into a huge club.

Clapton is the best ambassador the "blues" ever had.

He brought the beauty of a music created by African-Americans to the white masses. His blues influence was present throughout the evening. It was as if he dared anyone to say he was too commercial.

The strongest songs of the evening were his classics. "Layla," "Cocaine," "Can't Find My Way Home" and "Knockin' on Heaven's Door," were flawless.

The show lasted 2 hours and 15 minutes and closed with a blistering version of "Crossroads," an ironic song for someone who's come through many.

Drug and alcohol addiction nearly took his life, like so many other rock and roll greats, but Clapton has survived. Indeed he seems re born.

Some of his earlier classics were recorded when he was strung out. They still sound great, but it seems that sobriety has added a stronger edge to his style than any chemical ever could.

You can take Hendrix, Page, Townshend, et. al. On the Olympus of rock guitarists, Eric Clapton is King.

Paul McCartney brings his show to Cleveland

CLEVELAND— Belkin Productions has confirmed the ticket information for the Cleveland Stadium appearance of Paul McCartney.

Reserved seats for the July 20 concert are $30 (plus a service charge) and went on sale this past Saturday, April 21.

This will be the only Midwest Concert appearance of Paul McCartney.

Tickets will go on sale at 9:30 a.m. at all Ticketron Locations. Customers may charge by phone at 524-0000 in Cleveland or throughout the Midwest at 1-800-225-7337 or 1-800-543-3041.

Tickets will not be sold at the Stadium Box Office and some locations may accept cash only. There is a limit of (8) eight tickets per person.

Paul McCartney comes to Cleveland as a part of the fourth leg of his first U.S. tour in 13 years. In recent performances, McCartney has played up to 15 Beatles tunes including "Sgt. Peppers Lonely Hearts Club Band," "Can't Buy Me Love," "Let It Be" and "Back in The USSR."

He also pulls out several Wings classics as well as various solo material.

McCartney plays a 2 1/2 hour show backed by a five piece band featuring Linda McCartney, guitarists Robbie McIntosh, Hamish Stuarts, Paul "Wix" Wickens on keyboards and drummer Chris Whitten.

Commenting on the new dates, McCartney said, "The tour is on a roll and we're knocked out that the fans are giving us yet another chance to play in North America — I guess it shows you can't keep a good band down."

Paul McCartney will continue to use his tour as a platform for the environmental group, Friends of the Earth.

He will play one show only at 8:30 p.m. For further information contact Belkin Productions at (216) 247-2722.

On their toes: The Van Pelt Dance Ensemble of Columbus will perform excerpts from Walk the Earth at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 26, in Ford Auditorium in YSU's Bliss Hall.

The Mill Creek Ramblers release Sing a Song of Seasons

By DAWN MARZANO
Entertainment Editor

At one time or another we all can use a break from listening to music such as rock, heavy metal, alternative, pop, and even jazz, and the Mill Creek Ramblers can give you just that.

The Mill Creek Ramblers are traditional musicians who have played extensively at concerts, festivals and school programs. Their repertoire consists of Appalachian music, Bluegrass, traditional Irish and a very special Children's program.

They have recently produced an album called Sing a Song of Seasons, which is a collection of original children's songs written by Judith Minogue. The album is a celebration of the changing seasons of nature and of our lives within those seasons.

According to Judith Minogue, the album is traditional. "I wanted to preserve the musical tradition. Also when I started, I wanted it to be a children's album, but then I realized it was more than just a children's album. It is for all ages because it speaks to experiences that both young and old can relate to."

Besides Judith Minogue, who plays hammered dulcimer, piano and sings vocals on the latest album, The Mill Creek Ramblers are comprised of Dr. Brendan Minogue, who sings lead vocals; Barry Robbins on guitar, mandolin, vocals, tambourine, spoons and bones; and Bill Lewis who plays bass and banjo.

Dr. Minogue is a professor in YSU's philosophy department.

Special guest performers on the album include: Frank Krygowski, a professor in YSU's engineering department; Samuel D'Angelo, limited service, F&PA; and Susan Russo, professor in YSU's art department, who did the cover art on the album.

The Mill Creek Ramblers formed about six years ago, and Mrs. Minogue said that the album, Sing a Song of Seasons, took the band about 13 months to complete.

"When you work on an album you can realize how you come to depend on other people. It was amazing how much everybody contributed," Mrs. Minogue said.

Also on the album is Mrs. Minogue's music mixed with mountain and traditional music, which gives the music two parts, the transition being in the middle.

"In about a year I'd like to produce another album," Mrs. Minogue added. "I really enjoyed doing the last one. I'm starting to plan for it now and already have enough material for the next one."

Sing a Song of Seasons can be ordered direct through Brookline Productions, 158 Brookline Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, 44505, or by calling 743-3916.

The Mill Creek Ramblers can be seen live on Memorial Day weekend, when they perform at the Beaver Valley Bluegrass Festival.

Playhouse presents Alice in Wonderland

YOUNGSTOWN — The Youngstown Playhouse Youth Theatre will open the box office Monday, April 30th at 9 a.m. for a new musical version of Alice in Wonderland, adapted from the classic Lewis Carroll story by Playhouse Artistic Coordinator David Jendre.

Jendre is also the composer and choreographer of the production and will direct the cast comprised of 23 students and adults from the Youngstown area.

They are: Dawn Christian Maxey, Greg Kutsko, Todd Storey, Susan McQueen, Jennifer Campbell, Carlton "C.J." Jenkins, James McClellan, Candy Schultz, Lydia Floyd, Matt Brown, Michael Cowher, Amber Pompilli, Lee Prosenjack, Tom O'Donnell, Kara Yorks, Erica Eliser, Heather Jacobson, Adrienne Shears, Craig Hileman, Michael Tabor, Asim Pleas and Sean O'Malley. Janice Sanguinetti is stage manager.

Alice in Wonderland will be performed Fridays, May 11 and 18 at 7 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays, May 12, 13, 19 and 20 at 2 p.m.

Symphony to perform final classical concert

YOUNGSTOWN — The Youngstown Symphony Orchestra will present its final Classical Subscription Concert of the 1989-90 season on Saturday evening, April 28, at 8:30 p.m. in the Edward W. Powers Auditorium.

Music Director David Efron will conduct music by Prokofiev, Mozart and Beethoven.

Repertoire for the concert includes Prokofiev's "Classical Symphony," "Symphony No. 1" by Beethoven and Mozart's

"Piano Concerto in D Minor, K. 466."

David Efron will again present his popular pre-concert lecture at 7:30 p.m. in the Auditorium. The lecture is available without charge to all ticket holders.

Another highlight of the evening will be a special presentation of Kathryn Walker of Boardman. Mrs. Walker, currently Principal Second Violin in the Youngstown Symphony, will be retiring after 22 years of service to the Orchestra.

Tickets for this concert are available at the Youngstown Symphony Office, 260 Federal Plaza West, or by calling (216) 744-0264.

Hawkins, Sfara to share duties as YSU fullback

By TIM LEONARD
Staff Reporter

Replacing fullback Steve Jones will be a tough task this spring for YSU Head Football Coach Jim Tressel. So tough, in fact, that it will take two players to replace Jones.

Tressel is hoping 5-foot-8, 200 pound senior Leo Hawkins and 6-3, 240 pound sophomore Lou Sfara can take over where Jones left off last season.

"I'm hoping we can duplicate Steve Jones' performance, but with two people," said Tressel. "That's what we're shooting for. I don't think Lou could do it, nor do I think Leo could."

Jones finished last season with 765 yards rushing and 10 touchdowns along with 21 receptions for 169 yards. He finished his YSU career with over a 100 receptions.

"[Jones] played 794 snaps [last season], which is incredible when you think about the fact that Leo [Hawkins] played 430 and Archie [Herring] played 390. Think about how much playing time we lost when we lost Steve Jones," said Tressel.

According to Tressel, Sfara will receive most of the playing time at fullback. He said Sfara is expected to play 65 percent of the time at fullback while Hawkins plays the remaining 35 percent of the time.

But fullback isn't the only position Hawkins will be playing. Hawkins will continue to share the tailback position with Herring. It was Hawkins and Herring who shared the tailback position last season where they rushed for a combined 1,748 yards.

The fullback position is a totally new position for Hawkins, who has never played fullback during his football career. "I have never had to block," said Hawkins, an Austintown High School graduate.

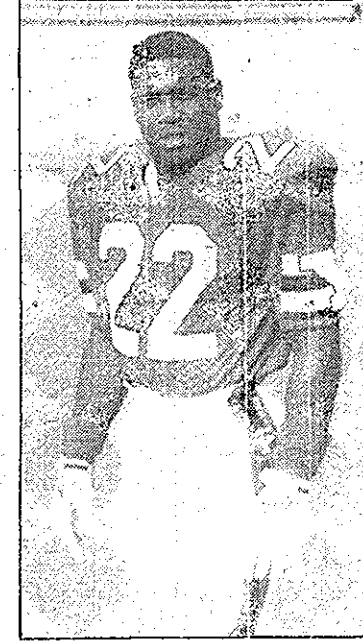

The biggest difference between Jones at fullback and Sfara and Hawkins sharing the position, according to YSU Assistant Coach Jim Bollman is "about five years worth of experience."

According to Hawkins, with he and Herring in together it may make it a little tougher on the opposition.

"This helps a lot," said

Hawkins, "because now Archie and I are in their together. Last year we alternated a lot.

"If I came into the game, I would run the ball. If Archie came into the game, we ran the option. Now they can't key on just one of us."
