Prevention Committee formed to improve safety

This is the first in a series of articles dealing with campus safety and YSU Security.

Do you feel safe at YSU?

The Personal Safety Committee exists at YSU where you can express your views on campus safety.

The committee was formed over one year ago to ensure the personal on-campus safety of students and faculty members.

The committee members provide support for victims of on-campus crimes, work closely with Campus Security officers to keep track of reported incidents, provide awareness programs and activities to educate students and faculty members on personal safety, and to make suggestions to Campus Security and the University Administration on ways to improve campus safety.

Committee Chairperson Pat Bleidt acknowledged that the committee seeks to improve personal safety by making changes on campus. However, the committee cannot accomplish much unless they receive suggestions concerning crime prevention.

"We would like to hear more from the members of the University community with their concerns relating to campus safety," she said.

Bleidt admits that the committee faces the "problem of See Safety, page 12

Federal financial aid jeopardized by Congress

From the College Press Service

The latest effort to balance the federal budget could be the worst thing to happen to student aid this decade, education lobbyists say.

Both the House and Senate last week passed versions of a bill called the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill that would portend deep cuts in federal student financial aid through the rest of the 1980s.

A House-Senate conference committee met to iron out differences between the two versions of the bill, but both versions would slash student aid spending to try to balance the federal budget.

"The entire education community has opposed any version of Gramm-Rudman," American Council on Education (ACE) lobbyist Larry Zaglaniczany says.

The bill calls for Congress to cut the deficit 20 percent annually until the budget is balanced.

But Congress would have to spare certain programs — Social Security, the interest on the national debt and about 40 percent of the defense budget — in making cuts. Education is not among the sacred cows, Zaglaniczany explains.

The House has added programs to be spared, but not the student aid programs, reports Kathy Ozer, legislative director for the United States Student Association (USSA).

"The more you pull off the table, the larger the cuts will be on that which is left on the table," asserts legislative aide William Blakey for Sen. Paul Simon (D-Ill.), long a student aid proponent.

Ozer predicts some student aid programs could be cut in half if either the House or the Senate version of the bill passes.

However, nobody is sure because the depth of the cuts depend on the deficit's size.

Predictions of the deficit's size have been greatly underestimated in recent years, Ozer observes.

The Congressional Budget Office now believes the deficit will reach $220 billion this fiscal year, up from $40 billion in 1980, before the United States' huge military buildup and the tax cuts of 1981.

The House and Senate versions of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill differ mostly in form.

The Senate version allows the president to cut budget items at his discretion if Congress cannot make the 20 percent reduction as mandated by the bill.

The House version of the deficit bill has a recession clause, which deactivates the budget cuts if the economy falters, she adds.

Educators and students are worried that giving President Reagan authority to cut the budget himself would doom most federal student aid programs, which the president has sought to cut dramatically every year.

But no one is really sure about the balanced budget bill's impact because Congress won't have a final list of which programs will be spared the axe until the end of the month.

"Such uncertainty is the biggest problem," Zaglaniczany says. See Budget, page 2

PARROT MEETS PENGUIN

KELLY DURST/THE JAMBAR

The Pittsburgh Pirates' Parrot mascot and YSU's Pete the Penguin mascot appeared Monday in Kilcawley Center. The Parrot drew four prizes. Monday's winners were Larry Basiste, Mansour Mansour, Phil Guerriere and Karen Len. Winners must pick up prizes by 8 p.m. after drawing day in the Pub.

Money donated for development

By NANCILYNN GATTA

"To help maintain the quality of the students and to maintain the strength of the graduating body" is the reason why Dow Chemical and Sohio have provided monies for the Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering Department at the Rayen School of Engineering said Leslie V. Szirmay, professor of chemical and metallurgical engineering.

Sohio has donated $5000 for the use of the faculty for further development of the department. Dow Chemical has donated $2000 to be used by students in the form of scholarships.

The scholarship money will be divided to provide scholarships for four undergraduate students. The students will be selected by the faculty at a meeting on the basis of need and high academic standards.

"A great many of our students are working but See Scholarship, page 6 zany says, who is unwilling to guess about the ultimate impact. "Those who live by the crystal ball end up eating the glass."

Some, in fact, don't think student aid will suffer much in any case.

"I don't think you will see any one program gutted. We are very careful not to single out any one program," says Larry Neal, press secretary to Sen. Phil Gramm (R-Tex).

Neal does think congressional efforts to exempt programs from budget cuts invariably jeopardize those not protected.

The threat to federal student aid programs, which include Pell Grants, College Work-Study, Guaranteed Student Loans, State Student Incentive Grants and National Direct Student Loans as well as some specialized programs, follows three years of college lobbyists' efforts to fight back the Reagan administration's repeated attempts to cut them.

After agreeing to dramatic cuts in 1981, Congress has kept most programs intact, freezing their budgets or increasing their funding levels marginally, Ozer recalls.

The proposed budget for this fiscal year, for example, includes spending of about $8 billion on student aid, about the same as 1984-85, according to United States Department of Education data.

Moreover, an increasing percentage of the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) budget is going toward collecting delinquent loans, says Dick Hastings, who heads the Education Department's loan collection efforts.

To compensate for the freezes, tuition has had to increase at twice the rate of inflation so far this decade, Ozer says.

But even "those victories could turn sour under the theme of reducing the deficit," Ozer frets.

Education lobbyists contend the arguments they've used to keep the federal student aid budget stable the last few years aren't working against the balanced budget bill advocates.

"Gramm-Rudman is so political that many members of Congress are not listening to reason. Facts and figures just don't do it," Larry Zaglaniczany laments. "We are doing everything we can, but we haven't been too successful."

Ozer adds that other bills to slash student aid programs may be added to the bill to create an omnibus deficit cutting program.

One Gramm-Rudman version, for example, would trim the allowance bankers receive for making GSLs.

The proposed allowance cut, added to the consequences of the deficit bill "will have a compounded impact," and force many bankers to get out of the GSL business, banking lobbyist Bill Clohan says.

YSU Forensic Team delivers results

By JOHN NEPHEW
Jambar Feature Editor

In the YSU Forensic season opener held at Heidelberg College, everyone was a winner. The five team members attending, all reached finals and brought home plaques.

Gail Sickafuse won first place honors in prose interpretation. The dramatic duo team of Floyd Davis and Chris Fidram placed first in their event. Bob White finished fourth in after-dinner speaking with his humorous original oratory. Lonnie Clinkscale brought back sixth place honors in persuasive speaking.

Their coach, Kathleen Golden, speech communication and theatre, hopes their early success continues throughout the season.

Coach Golden said the Forensic team provides an outlet for students with an academic ability. She compared the competition experienced by the Forensic Team members with physical sports. Golden stated public speaking will help one, "sharpen and develop one's speech and social skills."

Any students with theatre or high school forensics are encouraged to join the team. Practice is held once a week on an individual basis for maximum results.

The Forensic Team will be giving readings in the Pub on Thursday afternoons. They will travel to Bowling Green and Marshal University to further test their academic ability.

Right on time

Merry Christmas!!!

I must be the silliest person in America by not realizing that Christmas is right around the corner. My mind must be elsewhere because there are enough signs around to tell me that it is that time of year again.

Christmas decorations and albums were out during Halloween and I still waited until now to acknowledge it. I feel ashamed and out of it.

I tried to make up for it and beat the Christmas shopping rush but it was too late. The "rush" was already here. Besides I didn't know what to buy because my mind was on Thanksgiving. Apparently, we now give thanks at Thanksgiving because Christmas will soon be here.

I hope I didn't miss many of these nifty, gift-giving holiday specials. They surely must have started by now.

I hope that my fellow friends and foes will forgive me for my neglect at dishing out holiday cheer. It's just that I've been used to holidays coming up one at a time.

But I'll make up for this mistake next year. I'll start my shopping, Christmas album buying, decorating and whatever other commercial and materialistic endeavors that are necessary for the Christmas season in August of '86.

That way I won't miss out on a thing.

COMMENTARY

Now that's artistic appreciation

I knew something was bound to happen to those sculptures displayed in front of Kilcawley Center. One sculpture (and the one I found most interesting), had to be removed because of damage done to it by vandals. And not only was the sculpture tampered with once — but twice, in two separate incidents.

The sculptures were part of the "Five Sculptures Plus" exhibit at the Kilcawley Center Art Gallery which showed the works of five sculptors from Columbus.

The first time I saw the sculptures I was pleased. It made the campus look so much more interesting and I thought of how great it would be if we could have permanent displays all over the campus.

Obviously the six men who damaged the work don't agree with me. They thought it would be fun to knock them down.

It's too bad that an exhibit on a college campus had to be dismantled because of immature vandals. What pleasure did they get out of damaging a work of art? It's certain that they weren't concerned with the pleasure the work was giving to others. They only thought of themselves.

Five of the vandals are YSU students. You can see how much they appreciate the beauty of our campus.

One of the vandals is from the United States Army. That says a lot for the "discipline" he must have received. Is vandalizing what the slogan "be all that you can be" means?

Kilcawley Center always looks its best and it looked even better with the temporary addition of the sculptures. It's too bad that an attempt to bring some art out of the gallery and more into the public eye had to end like it did.

Kilcawley Center Art Gallery coordinator Sherri Hill has brought consistently fine shows to the Kilcawley gallery. Exhibits throughout the year offer something for every taste and seem to be geared towards students. The shows are displayed in ways that catch your eye the minute you walk in the door.

What I find most interesting about the Kilcawley Center is that the shows are usually pretty avant-garde. While there's nothing wrong with the more traditional shows offered at other galleries, the shows at the Kilcawley Gallery are somewhat daring.

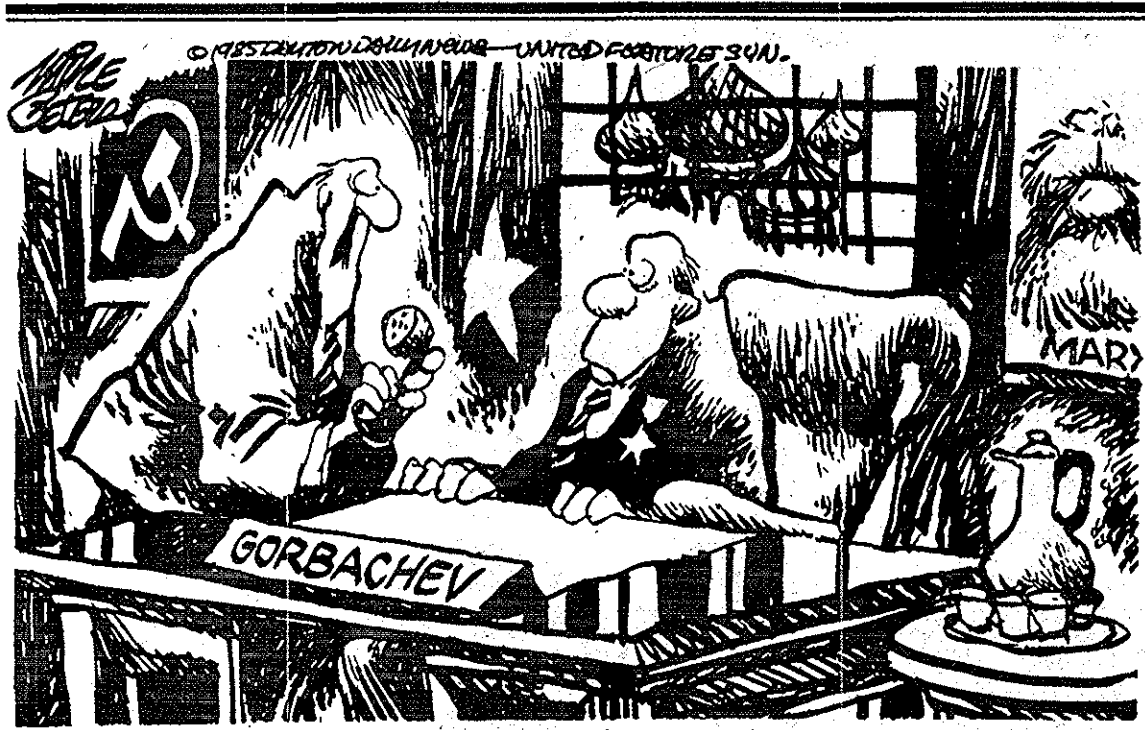

I'll admit that if someone asked me to explain exactly what those sculptures outside of Kilcawley were I wouldn't be able to.

So what. They looked good. They brought some life to a dreary fall landscape. And they showed to outsiders that YSU cares about art.

Well, not everyone at YSU. Not those six men that thought they'd have some fun.

APATHY BUSTERS part VIII

This week begins a series of activities leading to the Great American Smokeout '85. YSU's Student Government, with a little help from their friends at the American Cancer Society, has declared that Thursday, Nov. 21, will be a day during which all smokers are encouraged to a smoker and want to help them quit for the day, you can sign up also.

On Tuesday, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. there will be a hugging and autograph booth set up in the arcade. The "Todd Squad" will also be circulating around Kilcawley during lunch time.

More hugging is scheduled for Wednesday. The booth will be in the Arcade between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Also on Wednesday, Rollin' Radio will be parked outside Kilcawley Center between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Then on the Great American Smokeout day itself — that's Thursday — WHO's A.C. McCullough will host a Trivial Pursuit game in Kilcawley Program Lounge. Beginning at 1 p.m. contest winners will be announced and other drawings will be held in Kilcawley.

It's not often you can get involved in something that's fun and also good for you.

Seeks pen pals while serving time

Dear Editor,

I'm writing in hopes that you will assist me in my most earnest of endeavors at this time. Presently, I'm incarcerated within the Westville Correctional Center. Due to a minute arrest involving an insurance incident, my release is due in June 1986. However, during this time my initiative is using my time wisely and gaining "knowledge which is power." I enjoy writing and conversation with people, regardless of their race, age or sex. Having experience in public relations and numerous travels across our beautiful country, I'm open for discussion on many interesting topics. However, my pen pal list is relatively short. If just one student within your school would be interested in writing and sharing with me what's on their minds, I would be most grateful. I am looking forward to your return replies. May God Bless You All.

"The department is in very strong struggle to improve our graduate program," said Szirmay. The donations will help further this degree in the graduate program.
The department tries to keep knowledgeable of new developments, such as higher technology. The faculty has attended continuing education courses and the money provided could be used for these purposes.
The money could also be used for future research projects and to help students attend the North Center Regional AIChE Convention where students competing against universities twice as large as YSU have done very well in the past.
Though the allocation of the money is by the faculty discretion, Szirmay added that anything that will help with the departments development will be considered for its use.
"The money helps greatly to unify the department and to develop stronger faculty-student relations," believes Szirmay. The money will be routinely provided as long as these companies are satisfied with the YSU graduates they have hired.

Seminar offered

By LISA SOLLEY
Jambar Staff Writer

What can be done with a career in social work? Have this and many more questions dealing with a career in social work answered from 12 p.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, in the Scarlet Room, Kilcawley Center.

Career options in social work is co-sponsored by Career Services and the Counseling Center. The event will discuss career options with a social work degree, career paths and licensing.

YSU speakers will include Dr. Lee Slivinske, social work, who will moderate the event, and Dr. James Kiriazis, chairperson of sociology, anthropology and social work dept., will present information on opportunities in the field and information on licensing. Local speakers include: Eileen Galvin, Mahoning Childrens Services Board, Sarah Pearson, Park Vista Retirement Community, and Attorney Robert Douglas, attorney representing Congressman Trafficant.

Judy Kaczowka, graduate assistant Counseling Center, explained that this session is designed to answer questions for students who are undecided or are thinking of a career in social work.

Kaczowka says, "The speakers will address the audience for about 15 minutes each and will discuss issues like how they helped them get a job and what minors will make a person more marketable."

The workshop will be taped for those persons unable to attend on Thursday. The equipment and tape will be available for reservation at the Career Services office.

Career Services sponsors four of these workshops a year. These career options are chosen randomly or for majors that have a need to be explored. A question and answer period is scheduled after the speakers and refreshments will be served.

Two views: YSU boudoir farce delights audience

By MARK PASSERRELO
Jambar Staff Writer

Those zany French! Give them a simple thing like the institution of marriage and they find a way to complicate it tremendously. If the situations in Georges Feydeau's A Flea in Her Ear is any example, half of France suspects its spouse of infidelity and the other half has a good laugh at the other's expense.

Feydeau's classic comedy of jealousy, now playing on the University Theatre stage, is filled with mistaken identity, comings and goings and pratfalls. In short, lots of laughs.

The plot (what there is of it) concerns a wife's suspicions that her husband is fooling around. Together, with her best friend, she hatches a scheme to catch the errant husband at the Kitty Kat Inn, a sordid little place complete with revolving beds.

Other comic embellishments include several lecherous fellows, an insanely jealous Spaniard, a Prussian military man with only one sort of conquest on his mind, a Casanova with a speech impediment and not one but two "french maids."

A comedy like this is as hard to bring off as a soufflé and it is tribute to the cast that things move along at a good clip with the dead spots between laughs very short. Witnessing the frantic chases and well taken pratfalls in act two are ample evidence of this cast's hard work.

Excellent performances are given by Paul Carson in the dual roles of the accused husband and his look-alike, Matthew Koran as the mumbling Don Juan and Staci Kamil as the glamorous proprietress of the Kitty Kat Inn.

Members of the audience who attended A Flea in Her Ear, the current YSU Theatre production, were questioning the success of the show as the play began. But when the curtain fell the audience was treated to a delightful evening of mad-cap farce.

A Flea in Her Ear, written by Georges Feydeau, takes place in Paris in the home of Victor Emmanuel Chandebise, played superbly by Paul Carson. As the plot develops it becomes a current cycle of misunderstandings concerning the question, "Who's cheating on who?"

Although the pace of the show began a bit slow at first, the actors broke through opening night jitters and became an array of characters ranging from a wild Spaniard, to a Prussian officer, to a French porter.

Doug Toman and Kelly Leihgaber are delightful as the married servants of the house. Leihgaber quite easily outfoxes her husband, who thinks she has been home safe and sound when actually she has been out having a secret rendezvous with Camille Chandebise, portrayed to perfection by the talented Matthew Koran. Koran is the show stealer of the 16-member cast. Although you rarely can understand what he is saying, due to the fact that the character is to have a speech impediment, Koran manages to tickle your funny bone from the moment he enters, to the instant he exits the stage. He along with Michael Angelo as Carlos, the jealous Spanish husband, completely steal act one with their verbal and physical comic timing. Angelo, a veteran of the YSU stage, is wonderful to watch as he plays the part to the hilt.

Cathleen Connors and Pamela Miller are entertaining as Yvonne and Lucienne, the two women who inspire the idea of writing a secret love letter to Yvonne's husband from an unknown admirer to test his loyalty. Yvonne must know if her husband is cheating on her to determine whether she should have an affair with Romain Tournell, her husband's best friend. Mark Samuel is charming as the unsuspected lover.

If you think the plot sounds confusing so far, you haven't heard anything yet! The setting for act two takes place in the Kitty Kat Inn. An establishment where with a push of a button, beds spin into different rooms for the convenience of the customers.

Gary Frankowski creates the role of the Inn owner, Augustine Ferailon, with great energy and polish. He has trouble keeping the Inn in order, let alone keeping his sexy, voluptuous wife, Olympe, under control. Stacy Kamil brings this cameo role to life as she catches your eye, while strutting her stuff across the stage as only Mae West herself could do.

But, of course, a place like the Kitty Kat Inn would not be complete without a chambermaid. Tina Lavorata is delightful as she moans and groans her way through her chores. Lavorata is a mixture of Carol Burnett's cleaning woman and Hazel.

Along with the character Victor, Paul Carson doubles as the Inn's porter, Poche. Carson's comic timing is excellent as he changes from Victor to Poche with split second costume changes.

Others deserving praise are Tom

Pesce as the over-sexed doctor, Herman Guy as the Prussian guest and Todd Dicken as the hilarious bed-stricken uncle.

Jane Shanabarger has once again done a superb job of designing stunning french gowns that nearly steal scenes as they appear on stage. Along with Dr. Frank Castronovo, the scenic designer, they have captured the french style to the tee.

Castronovo has created an elegant and versatile set that literally takes quite a beating every performance.

Farce is without a doubt one of the most challenging of acting styles due to the fast tempo and comic timing that is required. Dr. Dennis Henneman has done a fine job of molding the production into a successful event. A Flea in Her Ear is a major challenge for any director, designer or actor. The YSU Theatre Department has measured up to the task with ease.

The wild Spaniard (Michael Angelo) tries to kill the speech-impaired Camille (Matthew Koren) in this scene from A Flea in Her Ear.

Miller, Mark Samuels and Gary Frankowski all offer fine performances. Hysterical character roles that add much to the show are played well by Michael Angelo, Todd Dicken, Tina Lavorata, Herman Guy and Tom Pesce.

Dr. Frank Castronovo's reversible set is ingenious and appropriate. The costumes by Jane Shanabarger are delightfully whimsical.

Perhaps the only problem with this show are the troubles with dialects and languages. Those characters who must speak a foreign language (there are several) don't seem quite at ease with the dialogue.

Flea is a good show with a good cast and well worth a look.

Women's coach excited about talented recruits

YSU women's basketball coach Ed DiGregorio lost point guard Margaret Peters, who graduated last year. DiGregorio described her as one of the best point guards in the OVC last year.

However, DiGregorio was glowing as he described the talent YSU was able to recruit.

"We feel we've recruited excellent talent," DiGregorio said. "We're going to be very quick and very exciting." But, he also said they will be young. "When you're young you make mistakes. That's something we're fighting against."

Making up the new personnel are: Stephanie Coie, a 5-8 point guard from Beaver Local; Debbie Burkett, a 5-10 forward from Canfield, who DiGregorio described as a "great shooter"; twins Cara and Carla Hendrix, both 5-10 forwards from Hubbard; Irene Kondeleone, a 5-8 guard from Warren Harding; Julie Yuhasz, a 5-10 forward from Warren JFK, who averaged 27 points per game; and Mabel Nelms, a 6-5 center from South High School. DiGregorio said that Nelms is the "sleeper" of the group.

DiGregorio will have 1984-85 Ohio Valley Conference first team selection Danielle Carson back to anchor this year's squad. At the OVC Press Day in Lexington, Kentucky, Carson was chosen by conference coaches to the pre-season OVC first team.

Other returning players who DiGregorio had praise for were Dorothy Bowers, Tanya Simone, Shannon Finn, Audrey Daniszewski and Bridgett Rosco.

DiGregorio said that Bowers, a 5-10 center, came on strong at mid-season last year and had an outstanding second-half of the year.

Tanja Simone, a 5-7 guard, got a good deal of playing time last season, DiGregorio said, and became a better all around player.

Saturday, Nov. 23, the Penguins get their first real test when they host Duquesne.

TO THE TIP — Dorothy Bowers (33) and Debbie Burkett (24) "sky" for the basketball as the YSU Women's Red-White inter-squad scrimmage gets underway. The White won last Wednesday, 73-57. Senior Danielle Carson scored 29 points for the White, while sophomore Dorothy Bowers tallied 30 points for the Red.

Penguins selected for CoSida honors

The YSU Penguins have placed two members on the CoSida (College Sports Information Directors of America) District IV Academic All-America squad.

Senior Nick Xides, a punter from Canton McKinley High School, and senior Brian Miller, a fullback from Bridgeport High School in Barton, Ohio, were named last Friday.

Xides has a 3.43 cumulative grade point average in Speech Communications.

Xides, the defending Ohio Valley Conference punting champion, has won the title twice in his four year career at YSU. This year he is averaging 41.9 yards per punt after 10 games. Miller has a 3.68 cumulative grade point average while majoring in Accounting. In 1985, Miller has rushed for 245 yards and has caught eight passes for 74 yards. He has scored three touchdowns on the season.

Both of the Penguins will be placed on a ballot later this month for voting on the national Academic All-America squad.

mittee faces the "problem of trying to make people aware of services that are available to them to ensure safety."

Faculty members and students should be aware that the Escort Service, the Shuttle Service, access to emergency telephones and an engraving service provided by Campus Security are available to them in order to ensure their safety.

The engraver is available to all YSU students. The engraver can be used to stamp stereos or other items stampable that if stolen the item can be claimed. The engraver is available at Campus Security and can be checked out for several days.

The committee is a reformation of the Task Force that former University President John Coffelt established in 1978. The Task Force was the organization of four female faculty members to provide support and help for victims of personal crimes while protecting their anonymity.

The committee is made of several members who are all instructed to protect the confidentiality of anyone who reports a problem. The members of the Personal Safety Committee include: Dr. Jack Bakos, chairperson of the civil engineering dept.; Dr. Charles Dobson, psychology; Sarah Brown Clark, English; Dr. Gratia Murphy, English; Jim Miller, executive director of Administrative Services; Dr. Edna Neal, executive assistant, office to the vice president of Student Services; Ed Salata, executive director of facilities; Jean Warnio; Sandy McConnell, Campus Security and Charles Rich, sophomore, engineering.

Students should contact any of the members of the committee through their departments or schools.
