ARAB SYMPATHIZERS—supporters of the Palestinian Liberation Organization chanted slogans and marched around campus Tuesday to display their disagreement with American policies towards the mideast situation.

Faculty evaluation causes serious conflicting views at university

Despite denials by those closely connected with the faculty evaluation program there is evidently some dissatisfaction within the University faculty concerning the program.

Citing the "tremendous cooperation of faculty and students" Dr. Fred Feitler, director of the Office of Instructional Improvement, is very pleased with the progress achieved with faculty evaluation thus far.

Dr. James Douglass, chairperson of the Faculty Evaluation Committee, also stated that the fall quarter student evaluation went "amazingly well" considering the inevitable problems encountered on a first run.

Both Feitler and Douglass were disappointed with the negative emphasis of previous evaluation reports. Both stressed the progress that has been made and said the number of problems has been minimal.

Two meetings were held last week of the department chairpersons of the Faculty Evaluation Committee. According to Douglass, these meetings were mostly concerned with faculty peer evaluation, which is being planned for next fall quarter. He also said that problems with student evaluations were "only mentioned by one or two people."

But other faculty sources contacted said that many faculty members are dissatisfied.

One faculty member, who feels the program is of "great value", said that many instructors feel that their status within their departments is threatened.

Despite the fact that instruction is supposedly the main role of the faculty at this University, the traditional means to promotion has been through publication and committee work, according to this source.

This faculty member, who wished to remain anonymous, contends that many of those who

Site preparation begun for med. sciences campus

Site preparation has begun on Rootstown land on S.R. 44 south of I 76 purchased for the basic medical sciences campus of Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine.

The basic medical sciences facility should be ready for the first class of 42 six-year combined B.S./M.D. students and beginning faculty members to start third year classes in August, 1977. Students are presently enrolled at one of the three consortium universities—Akron, Kent and YSU—which are developing the new state medical school.

Ground was broken on December 17, 1975, at ceremonies on the Rootstown site attended by 450 persons.

The State Controlling Board, on January 12, 1976, released $10.8 million for construction of the complex, which will include student and faculty laboratories and offices, a library, vivarium, administration offices and power plant.

A pre-construction meeting with all the prime contractors was held March 17 at the offices of Lawrence, Dykes, Goodenberger, Bower and Clancy, Canton architects who designed the facility, to coordinate the scheduling of activities connected with construction.

Council members say Brown won't run again

With the student government elections set for the end of this month, the word, according to several student council members is that incumbent president of student government, Bill Brown, will not run again. He has held the office for two years.

When contacted Wednesday, Brown denied the rumor and said he plans to run.

Several committee members and student council officers, however, said that Brown will pull out of the race and support Sigma Chi president Keith Bacon and secretary of student organizations Sheri Moore for president and vice-president respectively.

Bacon told The Jambar Thursday that he will run and that Brown is aware of his candidacy, but regarding the question of whether Brown will pull out of the race to support him, Bacon said, "I'd rather hold back on answering that now. I'm not sure of how it will shape up." He added that the way it looks now, Sheri Moore will be his running-mate.

Another candidate who has made it known he will run for the presidency is student council member George Glaros. Glaros, a sophomore in pre-law, is council's delegate to the Ohio Student Association and has been on council for one year.

Forms available for SG candidates; elections

Students wishing to run for the presidency or vice-presidency of student government can pick up petition forms in the student government offices starting today, and must return the forms, with 100 signatures, by April 14.

Elections are set for Wednesday and Thursday April 28 and 29 pending approval of council. Lynn Johnson, chairperson of student council says that the early date is due to the tight scheduling of the Mahoning County Board of Elections machines. Elections are usually held late in May.

In order to qualify to run for either office, students must have 72 hours, and be in good standing. No student government or student council experience is required.

A meeting of the candidates has been set for 9 a.m. Monday, April 19, and ballot spots will be chosen on April 21.

The charge of the president of student government according to Johnson is to represent the students in all interactions between students and administration, and she added that the position is of equal status with the chairperson of student council.

Senate Meeting

The Academic Senate will meet today at 4:00 in Schwebel Auditorium. All members are urged to attend this first meeting of the

New location planned for computer center

The YSU computer center, which has been available to computer and engineering students, as well as many others, is planning to relocate in the newly completed T&CC building in June.

Tom Doctor, who is manager of analysis and programming at the computer center said, "We hope the new building will be completed by June. It should be a nicer facility compared to what we have here now. We still have a lot of work to do before moving to our new quarters. A lot of physical planning has to be finalized before the move can take place."

The Technology Installation, which is located in the Engineering Science Building, Room 133, is the department which will be moving in T&CC in June. The business installation and the engineering installation will remain at their respective posts, Lincoln Project, Room 408 and engineering science building, room 251. No moves have been planned for them in the near future.

The new computer center, which will occupy rooms 3089, 3090, and 3091 in the T&CC building, will have six unitech keypunchers with remote job entry station, so that students can submit their jobs, fifteen television terminals, and five portable hard copy terminals. Through these they are able to perform interactive computing and problem solving.

"Because they will be in a classroom environment," said Doctor, "the instructors will have to schedule laboratory schedules well into advance."

"The Student consultants who are there will be there for assistance only," Doctor said. "They are not there for the purpose of doing other students

H-P 45 calculator owners find it can perform extra service

by John Creer

YSU students who own the H-P 45, a digital calculator manufactured by Hewlett Packard, may be unaware that their little electronic whizzes can perform an extra service.

Properly sequenced, the H-P 45 can become a digital stopwatch. Hours, minutes, seconds, and hundredths of a second are displayed after the right set of keys are pressed.

This special function of the H-P 45 was first revealed in an issue of Electronics magazine. A Gannon College (Pa.) engineering student, David Ogawa, has discovered other combinations, too.

The following key sequences will place the H-P 45 in the digital stopwatch function, according to Ogawa.

The RCL key is pressed, followed by simultaneously pressing the CHR, STO and R arrow keys. Other combinations are: RCL, then CHS, STO and R arrow; or RCL, then CHS, 7 and 8, states Ogawa.

CHS starts and stops the timer. CLX sets the timer to zero but will not start or stop the timer. EEX will alternately display or blank the hundredths. Epsilon plus stops the timer, notes Ogawa.

Pressing the decimal keys sets the calculator mode in normal D.M.S. mode, continues Ogawa. Numbers in the x register will not be lost going into timer mode if they make sense in hours (decimal point), minutes, seconds, hundredths of a second (H.M.S.), or D.M.S.

The timer, adds Ogawa, like a standard digital watch, goes through two twelve-hour periods each day if it is left on.

There will, cautions Ogawa, be a definite error per unit time.

Ogawa believes that the digital stopwatch feature can be found in the H-P 45 because of identical circuitry to the more expensive H-P 55 model which is advertised as possessing the stopwatch addition. The H-P 45 lists price at $195. The H-P 55, on the other hand, cost $325 according to Ogawa.

"The timer," Ogawa notes, "uses a built-in oscillator. The accuracy is poor, however, so the clock must be calibrated or replaced with a quartz crystal timepiece."

This reporter and Dr. Richard Burden, math department, verified the discoveries after several misses. Burden, who owns an H-P 45, was unaware of its hidden function. He notes that the H-P 45 is expensive and that "only one in my classes owns one."

Most students, say Burden, prefer to use calculators manufactured by Texas Instruments, which are priced considerably lower.

Dr. Burden and I tried the stopwatch combinations on the H-P 35, a model similar to the H-P 45, but to no avail.

Despite the stopwatch feature, Dr. Burden feels that "It wouldn't be a must for the average student."

Burden also points out that "if it (stopwatch function) was such an added attraction for students, Hewlett-Packard would have advertised it as such, instead of having it discovered."

It just could be that the Hewlett-Packard people didn't know about their H-P 45's surprise function until they read about it in Electronics magazine.

Applications taken by Major Events
for work areas

The Major Events Committee is now accepting applications from students interested in working on one of the four area work forces of the committee. These areas include: Production (set-up), Advertising, Hospitality and Ushers (crowd control).

As there are only a small number of openings, applicants will be thoroughly screened before being selected. Only those individuals who are willing to fully commit themselves to the responsibilities of the above positions need apply.

Applications may be secured from the Student Activities office in Kilcawley Center, and should be returned no later than 5 p.m., Friday, April 9.

Remodeling plans set for Jones, Rayen Hall

For further campus development, plans are being made for the remodeling of Jones Hall, as well as the installation of various aids for handicapped persons in some buildings, according to Nick Leonelli, director of campus development at YSU.

"No written program has been put out yet for the renovation of Jones Hall," said Leonelli, "but we expect it shortly. When the interior of the building is completely remodeled, it will house administrative offices, the bursar's office, admissions office, registration area, records department, placement office, financial aids and graduate school office.

"Presently there are no classes being held in Jones Hall with the exception of the language labs, which will eventually be moved elsewhere," he stated.

"Also, much of Rayen Hall will be vacant, with the business education and business technology departments moving out shortly," he said. "The nursing department has already moved out and some work will be done here also.

"There is also a program here to overcome handicap and safety barriers in some older buildings," said Leonelli, "but the money hasn't come in yet.

The main buildings involved are: Ward Beecher, Rayen Hall and Dana Recital Hall. Here we plan to install ramps where they are necessary, special toilets, fire alarms, elevators, fountains and other necessary items. These plans will be held off until the money which has been allocated by the legislature comes in. We haven't even hired any architects yet," he said, "but we plan to do so in the near future. These plans should be underway before fall quarter of 1976, depending upon the availability of the state money."

Financial aids has CETA job opportunities available

Students looking for part-time employment for minimum wage through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) must meet certain requirements.

Participants must have been unemployed for 30 days, working part-time at minimum wage or been economically disadvantaged (annual income totaling less than OEO guideline cash welfare recipient or a public assistance recipient.)

Participants must also be residents of the Mahoning County, exclusive of the city of Youngstown.

All applicants will be screened by the Financial Aids Department to determine economic status.

The final decision on placement will be made by the Mahoning County Manpower Service Center.

SC to finance rec gear; student escort unsupported

Student Council voted funds for the purchase of recreational equipment for student use at Beeghly in its first meeting of the quarter last Monday.

Council member George Kafantaris reported on his efforts to get traffic signals installed on Lincoln Avenue and on the progress of the grievance procedure report. Future funding of the campus escort service was discussed and Major Events Committee Chairperson Tom Jones announced that a concert featuring the J. Geils Band has been scheduled for April 17, with Golden Earring and the Stampeders.

Marc Stec, chairperson of the ad-hoc recreation committee, issued a report on the amounts, type and cost of recreational equipment needed. A total of $494.77 was allocated and the equipment being purchased includes raquetball rackets, squash rackets, basketballs, badminton rackets and footballs. The athletic department, through Athletic Director Paul Amodio, provided five of the ten basketballs Council sought and will also possibly provide the footballs. Stec noted that the equipment Council was purchasing was "top quality" merchandise which should last a year or possibly two years.

Council went through lengthy maneuvering to get the $494.77 from their contingency fund. The fund currently holds about $300 and must last for the remainder of spring quarter. First, $250 was transferred from the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) into the contingency fund. The YAF, which was dissolving, had donated the money for Council, to use as they saw fit. The remainder, $244.77, was transferred from the speakers' fund into the contingency fund, and the entire amount was then allocated for the purchase of the equipment.

Some Council members expressed concern over the storage of the equipment with the other athletic equipment at Beeghly. "Council should check and make sure this equipment is not being used for instructional purposes," said Council member Jim Senary. "Too many people have keys to get at the equipment," noted Council member George Claros. "I'd like to see the equipment kept in a big wooden box with a padlock." He added that Intramural Director Will Katerberg had said he would take responsibility for the equipment.

Kafantaris reported that he attended a Youngstown City Council session the Wednesday of finals week in his efforts to get some kind of traffic signals installed at Lincoln Avenue by Lincoln Center and Ohio Bell. He was told that traffic counts would be taken and lights or stop signs would possibly be installed.

Student Government President Bill Brown questioned under what capacity Kafantaris had gone to Council. Kafantaris said he had gone on his "own initiative" but also as a "student representative." He explained that The Vindicator had misrepresented the capacity in which he had attended the session. "You should have gone down as a Council Representative," said Brown. "It should have been voted on by students in Council."

Kafantaris also told Council that the grievance procedure report was out of committee. Brown said it was currently in the hands of the Deans and was being revised. Kafantaris charged the administration with "watering it down." He said there seemed to be pressure from the administration to kill it and he urged Council to get behind it.

Kafantaris claimed Dr. Taylor Alderman, asst. vice president for academic affairs was "the most vocal administrator against the report." He charged that "Alderman and the English department are the biggest critics of the procedure." He further complained that first Alderman had been against the scope of the procedure and now he was against all of it. In a letter on the revision, however, Alderman said the scope was "still undefined" and "If anything...is broader."

Brown reported that he and former Council member John Denney had met with YSU President Dr. John Coffelt on the funding of the Campus Escort Service. Coffelt said it was a good idea but would not fund the $7,000 program from the University budget. The $7,000 would provide for four escorts, a dispatcher and office supplies for the year.

"We (Council) have two choices," said Brown. "We could either not fund the escort service or we could find the money within our $79,000 budget." However, he cautioned that "this will probably involve some program cutbacks and some organizations will be unhappy." Brown, nevertheless, expressed optimism that the program could be funded from Council's budget.

Seniors can apply now for YSU pin

Applications for YSU Pin recipients are available in Kilcawley 116. Seniors graduating in March, June and August are eligible to apply. Points for leadership in extra-curricular activities are matched up to the level of honor points for academic credit. Applications are to be returned or before April 16.

Elections

With elections for student government president and vice-president almost a month away, there is plenty of time for students to figure out who deserves to be elected.

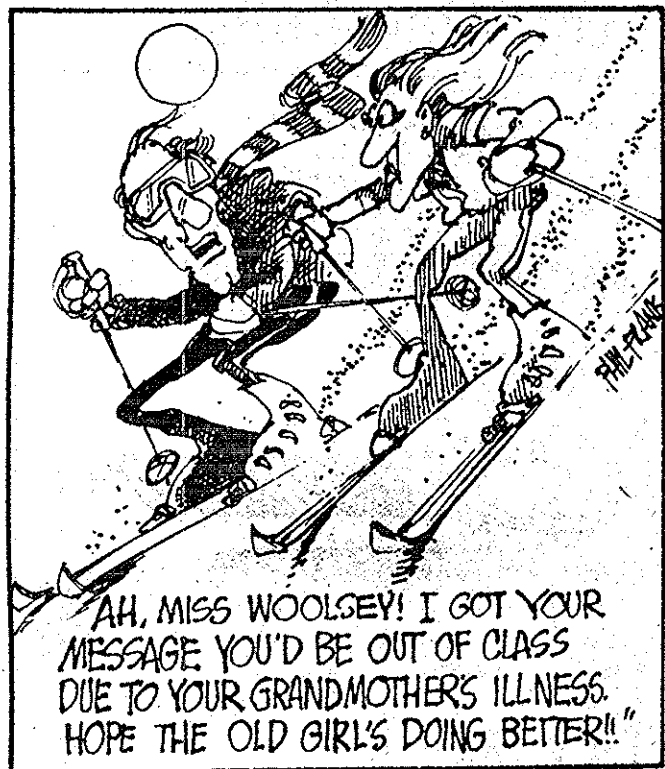

A common complaint about any student elections is "I don't know anybody on the ballot." In the next weeks, there will be ample opportunity to meet the candidates, (student government candidates are traditionally delighted to meet with potential supporters) find out what their qualifications are and what their motives are for running.

Student council meetings will prove an interesting battleground between differing factions as the election nears. Any student can attend the council meetings. They are held Mondays at 3:30 p.m. in Room 217 Kilcawley and seats are provided for spectators.

If greater than average numbers of students do not turn out to vote in this election, a small, organized group of students will ultimately have total control of policy decisions that affect the student body.

Know the candidates this time around—start watching them now.

Comments on 'Greek holiday' sadness

To the editor of The Jambar:

The date, March 25, probably did not mean anything to most Americans. It was just a day, like the rest. But, to Greek-Americans, March 25 is a very important and meaningful date; it marks the heroic accomplishments of the struggle for Greek Independence from Turkey in 1821. Ever since 1821, Greece has been free from the barbarism of Turkey, but today, in 1976, this day was not as festive as other March 25 celebrations.

This date was a sad one because, once again, the nation of Turkey has taken over a land that does not belong to them; the once proud and beautiful island of Cyprus. Now, this island has been transformed into a literal hell, thanks to the gracious and kind invading Turks.

One day the island was full of vitality, life; it beamed with richness. The people of Cyprus were happy, they had each other, love and a strong belief in their religious faith, which is the Greek Orthodox religion. They lived life very simply and were extremely joyous. To them, living life to the fullest extent is all that really matters. Then, one day, completely unexpectedly, the Turks decided to invade and take over a majestic land that did not belong to them.

Yet, there is still another view to look upon, and that is the idea of caring about people's life and dignity. If you consider yourself a morally good person, then you should care. Due to the ravages of war brought to the island by the Turks, there are many refugees, 200,000 in number. These innocent people must live in tents after being turned out of their OWN homes. Many have died because of the heinous actions of the Turks and there are countless orphans suffering from pain, disease and sorrow.

Therefore, how can we, as Greek-Americans, celebrate joyously on March 25 when this terrible nightmare is happening to our own people? We Greek-Americans have empathy for all people, especially our own. Thus, this March 25 was no holiday. It was a day we felt sad and literally cried because of the injustice that is placed upon the island of Cyprus.

Refutes 'marijuana is used gum' logic

To the editor of The Jambar:

This article is in reply to the one in The Jambar, March 12, in which a gentleman compared marijuana to "used gum." The author states that anyone who takes a "known evil" into his system has based his morals, ethics and principles on delusion. He further contends that such persons have lost or never attained reasoning ability or else they would not do such self-destructive things. Thus, he concludes that "baby aquals (sic) drug abuser," and "Marajuana. equals used gum." He ends the article with the plea to stop drugs and signs "A Man in Christ."

It is not this one's intention to malign the above-mentioned author nor to attack his convoluted, if not amusing, logic. It is perhaps of more value to examine the attitude displayed and its relation to the "drug problem." I believe that this attitude stems not only from a lack of scientific understanding of the effects of drugs, marijuana in particular, but basically from a lack of understanding of the human nature that accounts for the act of chemically inducing altered states of consciousness.

I cannot help thinking that all of what society is doing to combat the "drug problem" is the drug problem. There is a general feeling that if drugs could be eradicated the problem would be solved. It seems that we have missed the moral of the Prohibition days. Furthermore, the current trend in drug education seems to be little more than sophisticated scare tactics.

The real problem may lie in our whole way of thinking, our whole technological, materialistic value system. This system exclusively uses reasoning or logic to define reality. Thus, anyone proclaiming a reality based on a non-intellectual or intuitive capacity of the mind is considered foolish. However, there seems to be no importance given to the basic human quality that demands a transcendence of ordinary or intellectually-based consciousness. It is this quality that incites children to whorl around until dizzy or hyperventilate to the point of unconsciousness while adults indulge in alcohol, drugs, or the more esoteric spiritual practices. It is seldom that we as individuals take time out from our daily involvements to try to understand something as basic as our own consciousness. We are only too willing to leave the workings of our minds in the hands of the "scholars," a burden they galdly accept, and then we wonder why life contains so many blind alleys.

If current trends of drug abuse continue within the existing social context of condemnation, it is obvious that casualties will continue. On the other hand, complete lack of restraint seems absurd. Failure to resolve this conflict is due to the process of reasoning from previous conclusions or beliefs. It is just this "fill 'em full of facts" attitude that is responsible for our violent, plasticized, quality-less lifestyle. Many of us have seen this in some classes. It is our subservience to the God of Rationality, whether it be technology or a rational religion, which is the true opiate of the masses.

Of course, we cannot function without the technological mind, nor can we survive if it is not guided by an awareness of quality. A mental evolution is necessary to transcend this duality. It may be that certain psychoactive chemicals can be used as tools to explore altered states of consciousness which in turn may produce the needed shift of awareness. Some may object that this is a dangerous doctrine and that it may disrupt one's thinking ability entirely. Instances of mental debility may in fact be due to the inability of the subject to correlate his new experiences with the accepted picture of the world. Such trauma occurs when any strong belief is tampered with by drugs or otherwise. The majority of drug highs appear to be pleasant if not beneficial and the vast and ever-increasing numbers of drug users would seem to indicate that there is something valid in this type of experience.

If one takes this thesis seriously and discounts drug use as a panacea or an escape, then one must begin with the attitude that a transcendent experience cannot be wholly defined nor sought in terms of ordinary consciousness. In fact, ordinary consciousness will be redefined in relation to this new awareness. It may also be found that drugs are really not important in that they do not contain, but merely catalize, the experience. They might very well be dropped in favor of more sophisticated methods such as yoga.

In conclusion, I think that the drug problem is directly related to problems of self-knowledge. Our fears and weaknesses with their contingent ideas and beliefs block our ability to see and learn.

Blames USA for oil increases

To the editor of The Jambar:

In 1973 when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries increased quadruple the price of oil every nation in the world started to complain. Everybody blamed the OPEC nations, but I put the real blame on the U.S.A., who has benefited by this increase.

All the money which OPEC get from selling their resources comes back right to the US in order to buy military equipment which the OPEC do not need. US is so interested in selling its equipment to OPEC nations that sold more advanced equipment than the US Army currently has. Who recommends this equipment? American advisors.

Look at it in another way: for several years (up to 1975) the US had a deficit of $2 billion, the balance of payment deficit and since the oil prices has gone up this has caused the prices of goods in the common market and Japan to go up (since they import most of their oil). Therefore, the prices of US goods, compared to European and Japanese goods, are cheaper now than a few years ago. As a result, in 1975 the US had a balance of payment surplus of $4 billion.

Now you decide who has benefited from this price increase?

Faculty evaluation

have been promoted, thus attaining status within their department have neglected their roles as instructors by concentrating on these other areas. Thus, they fear any "systematic" and "objective" evaluation of their instructional method. The contention is that previous evaluations were non-objective, often based on "hearsay" and interpersonal relationships within the departments.

The source added that any objections made by these faculty members won't be in these terms but will probably be directed toward the method being used. Since no method is perfect, objections will persist. But in the eyes of this faculty member at least a fairly objective method has been found and should be utilized.

Conversation with other faculty members found that most objections were stated in terms of the limitations of the method now being used.

One member of the School of Business faculty said that because of different course content and instructional method one form, as is being used, cannot possibly be equally applicable to each and every course.

One limited service instructor said that the student evaluations shouldn't be considered a criterion for promotion.

No faculty member was found who would state his or her objections in terms other than those stated above. That is to say, no one interviewed objected so strenuously as to indicate that they were in basic disagreement with the idea of student evaluation of instructor.

The unnamed source quoted above said that those that fear a "loss of status" will not publically state their philosophical objections because this would result in a loss of prestige throughout the whole university community.

assignments. The functions that they have there are twofold; to see that the equipment is running properly by reporting equipment failures and to provide the best level of customer service to students and faculty. Because if something goes wrong and the student employees don't tell us, then we won't know about it."

"There will be manuals for the students to use, and there will always be consultants around to show the students and faculty how to operate these machines," he said. "And I think that in general the consultants are the finest group of student employees on campus, because it really takes a high degree of judgement and initiative. These people are largely unsupervised so it requires someone who is capable and dedicated. It most definitely prepares them for future employment better than just classroom work."

Doctor said he foresees more problems associated with expansion. More than one consultant might be needed if some of the devices are going to be serviced either eight or twenty-four hours a day.

The computer center is also planning to open a fourth institution by next fall in Ward Beecher Science Hall, room 105. Doctor says that the computer center will be needing more consultants by the fall quarter due to the rapid expansion of number of people being serviced. Applicants may apply for jobs in room 253 Engineering Science Building. Although data processing or related courses are not required, they are considered extremely helpful in this type of work.

The computer center is open to any and all students and faculty members. Each installation is open on Monday through Friday at 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. They are also open on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hansel and Gretel meet Wetzel the Wizard

Hansel and Gretel meet Wetzel the Wizard was the play presented by a special creative dramatics class taught by Jeanne Elser, speech and dramatics, over the spring break. The performance was the culmination of the 10 week class and was presented to grades one through four at Immaculate Conception.

"I was very pleased with the play," said Elser. "We had the audience sit on the stage in order to have them actively participate in the play. We used costumes, makeup, and pantomimed some of the props."

She explained that the plot was based loosely on the Hansel and Gretel theme, but added another character, a wizard played by David Powers, a member of the creative dramatics class.

"We really tried to get the children in the audience involved," said Elser. "For instance, at one point in the play, Hansel and Gretel had to pick berries but couldn't find any. We asked the children to become berry bushes. They were so excited! Some of them crouched low and spread their arms and others reached high to be tall bushes."

Elser continued that at another point in the play, Hansel and Gretel are sent out into the forest. The audience was asked to pretend that they were the forest and make the sounds of wild animals.

"You never quite know what will happen when you perform in such impromptu fashion," remarked Elser, adding, "But the audience responded beautifully!"

She commented that the children especially loved to help Powers, the wizard, who is also a professional magician, perform his tricks throughout the play.

"Creative dramatics aims to educate the audience," stressed Elser. "For example," she said, "We concentrated on improving the first graders' reading comprehension skills. We would take words that the first graders were learning and would incorporate them into exercises during the play."

She explained that Hansel and Gretel would read a sentence leaving a blank, such as: "Face witches house, and take three forward." The children in turn, would supply the missing word.

Elser explained how her class learned and practiced throughout the quarter in preparation for the play.

Elser said that the class met on Saturdays from 9 a.m. 1 p.m., and for the first three weeks, worked with ideas. For instance," she noted. "We did pantomimes, theater games and improvisational exercises in class." She commented that the class used two texts, Development through Drama, by Brian Way and Creative Dramatics in the Classroom, by Nellie McCaslin.

"We used the ideas of Brian Way who believes that theater should be performed by adults for children," said Elser, adding, "But that the children, as the audience, should be active in the play." She commented Way believes theater should be informative as well as educational, a concept incorporated into the Hansel and Gretel play.

Elser said that in the fourth week of the quarter, the students would take turns and go out twice a week to teach classes of eight to ten at Immaculate Conception. She noted that the students would teach based on what they had learned in the classroom.

"I had an exceptionally good class," said Elser. "There were only six of them, and it took a group effort to make the course successful."

Rocky Filimon, a member of the class, responded, "If you like acting, this class really provided a great opportunity. It was fun to work with the younger kids and teach them what we had learned in class."

"I really liked the class a lot," commented Peggy Murphy, another class member, adding "developing creative drama was satisfying experience for me."

Last of the Red Hot Lovers

By Albert Lind Jr. and Kathy Mamajek

Tuesday evening saw the debut of the Youngstown-Warren area's first dinner-theater, Heaven, on Fifth Avenue opposite the University. The clientele was the over-thirty crowd, due in part to the $9 admission package, which included a fairly good dinner that offered a variety of entrees and the performance of Neil Simon's appealing comedy Last of the Red Hot Lovers.

In Act I Barney was portrayed as whiney, over sensitive and unsure, dabbling in the world of extra-marital affairs with Elaine Navazio, a completely hard-bitten, tart-tongued shrew with absolutely no redeeming qualities. This over harsh characterization, coupled with all of Barney's whining, made for an uncomfortable first act.

Rog carried Act II with a more lucid, witty, accurate portrayal of Barney, one we could live with. The handwriting had ceased and we were no longer asked to pity Barney, but instead, to react with him to a flighty, kinky, blonde pick-up played well by Penny Lane.

The evening was generally very pleasant; the dinner atmosphere couldn't have been better, while the response to the play became more relaxed and cordial as things progress. It is hoped that this new experiment in Youngstown entertainment will become an established alternative to the too-prevalent bar/nightclub scene.

Tuesday night's opening performance was good. It started off a little sluggish but built to a smooth, easy second act and a funny, evocative conclusion. The cast included Rog L. Gonda as the conservative 47-year old seafood restaurant owner-manager Barney Cashman, Toni Manzetti as the hardened Elaine Navazio, Penny Lane as the wacky Bobbie Michele and Barbara Hoyt as the depressed and frustrated Jeanette Fisher. Rog and Barbara are both specially-trained proteges of promoter-director-producer Lee Engler, and coincidentally presented the two outstanding

Dali

The Dali Museum was dedicated by the famous Spanish painter, Salvador Dali in Beachwood, Ohio on March 7, 1971. The museum contains some 300 of Dali's works including The Ecumenical Council, The Hallucinogenic Toreador, and The Dream of Columbus.

The museum is the only permanent exhibition of works by a single living artist in America and is located in the IMS Building at 24050 Commerce Park Road in Cleveland. The museum is free and open to the public though it is privately run. Due to occasional visits by large school groups, admission is by appointment.

I Love You, Rosa

The film is sponsored by the Israeli Student Organization, Jewish Student Fellowship and Student Government.

Any school interested in bringing a group to these performances should contact Larry Jones at 847-0571 for information. The Saturday matinee also includes a theatrical workshop at 10:30 a.m.

All evening performances are at 8 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling 847-0571. Ticket prices are $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students, and $1 for KSU students.

Quality you can trust...

Texas Instruments electronic calculators. More math power for your money

You need math power, no matter what your major. And TI puts more math power at your fingertips more economically.

How can TI give you greater value? The answer lies beneath the keyboard. There, major technological advances have achieved greater and greater power at lower and lower costs.

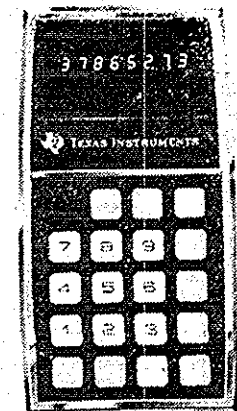

TI-1200 and TI-1250...
 real quality in low-cost calculators with replaceable batteries.

The TI-1200 gives you percentages at the touch of a key, has an automatic constant in all four basic functions for streamlining repetitive calculations, full-floating decimal, and 8-digit display. You can carry it to class or lab in pocket, purse, or briefcase...$12.95*. (AC adapter optional.)

The TI-1250 does everything the TI-1200 does...plus a full-function, four-key memory. You also get a change-sign key...all for $18.95*. (AC adapter optional.)

 great looks, great performance. And it's rechargeable.

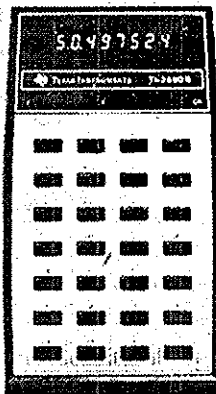

A crisply styled portable with percent key, full-floating decimal, automatic constant in the four basic functions, and an easy-to-read 8-digit display.

The TI-1500 slips neatly into pocket or purse, operates on rechargeable batteries and AC...$29.95*.

Why TI calculators are quick and easy to use.

All TI calculators described here use algebraic entry. This allows you to key-in a problem just as you would state it...in the same natural manner in which you think. No system is easier to master.

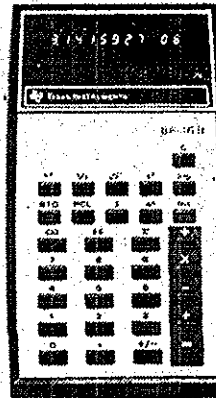

TI-2550-II...
 a versatile powerhouse with memory.

This eight-ounce, 8-digit portable does percentages automatically, and has a four-key memory system.

Science keys, too. Reciprocals, squares, square roots, and a reverse to invert fractions and recall next-to-last entry. Automatic constant in all four basic functions and a two-place or full-floating decimal. Rechargeable batteries and AC...$49.95*.

SR-16-II...

This portable wizard will not only whip through mere arithmetic but also through complex technical problems. Solves sum-of-products or quotient-of-sums without re-entering intermediate results or rewriting the problem for sequential operation.

Special function keys include square root, square, reciprocal, raise a displayed number to a power (y^x), raise "e" to a power (e^x), logs and natural logs.

Automatic constant, independent memory, full-floating decimal, and scientific notation. Replaceable batteries (AC adapter optional)...$39.95*.

SR-50A and SR-51A...
 slide-rule calculators.

The SR-50A solves complex scientific calculations as easily as simple arithmetic. Algebraic entry system with sum-of-products capability.

The SR-50A performs all classical slide-rule calculations—roots, powers, reciprocals, factorials, common and natural logarithms and their inverses, trigonometric (sin, cos, tan) and hyperbolic (sinh, cosh, tanh) functions and their inverses—all in full-floating decimal point or in scientific notation. The versatile electronic memory allows data to be stored and retrieved or added to memory...$79.95*.

The SR-51A performs all classical slide-rule functions, then goes on to statistical functions. Such as mean, variance, and standard deviation. Factorials, permutations, slope and intercept. Trend line analysis. And there is a random number generator as well as 20 preprogrammed conversions and inverses. The SR-51A allows decimal selection of from 0 to 8 places and has three user-accessible memories...$119.95*.

A lasting investment in the future, a TI calculator will not only serve you well as you work toward your degree...but will stay with you as you pursue your career. See them wherever quality calculators are sold.

Robert Vaughn to talk on Mass Media at YSU

Actor Robert Vaughn, who gained international fame in The Man From U.N.C.L.E. will speak on "The Mass Media Today" at 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 7, at St. John's Episcopal Church. Vaughn replaces Elliott Gould in the Series.

Vaughn, who received a Ph.D. degree in mass communications from the University of Southern California, is known as a film and television star, television and radio host and raconteur, director, author and student of the political scene.

He had the leading role in The Lieutenant and The Man from U.N.C.L.E. and received national acclaim for his portrayal of President Harry S. Truman on ABC's special Portrait: The Man from Independence. Following two years in England filming The Protectors television series he returned to American films, portraying a U.S. Senator in The Towering Inferno.

These two roles, that of senator and president, gave rise to rumor that he might be a candidate for public office. But Vaughn, who was an ABC reporter at the 1972 Democratic National Convention and covered a 1970 British election, declares that "I'm an actor by profession and by choice, and I consider it a choice profession." A close friend and confidante of several top public office holders, Vaughn has often aired his political views as talk show host over KABC radio in Los Angeles.

After receiving his doctorate in 1970, Vaughn had his thesis published by Putnam's in 1972 under the title of Only Victims, a chronicle of the blacklisting of Hollywood actors and writers during hearings of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. "A number of people," he said, "were anxious about the inclusion of their names in the book because they had informed on their friends during this period."

For four years Vaughn was seen on the top-rated Man from U.N.C.L.E. series by millions of viewers. Since then, however, he has worked hard at divesting himself of his Napoleon Solo image.

"I enjoyed playing the part," he agrees, "but Solo was too much of a chimerical figure. I don't like the idea of being pigeon-holed into playing one-dimensional figures."

The New York City native has been nominated as best supporting actor for The Young Philadelphians, along with other awards including the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's Golden Globe. For his role as the politically-minded district attorney in Bullitt opposite Steve McQueen he was nominated for the British Oscar.

After appearing in many stage presentations in college he became resident director and leading man at the Albuquerque Summer House Theatre from 1953-53. Upon receiving his master's degree in drama in 1956 from Los Angeles State College, he began his full-time acting career.

Funds for the Artist Lecture Series are provided by YSU and YSU's Student Government. Funds for YSU's Skeggs Lecture Series are provided by the Leonard T. Skeggs Foundation. Both series sponsored Vaughn's appearance. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Introducing Vision Center's

It takes the indecision out of the decision to buy contacts.

If you wear eyeglasses, you've probably thought about getting contact lenses. You've probably also had second thoughts about whether you'll like them or not.

That's why Pearle Vision Center now offers our "Love 'em or Leave 'em" Plan. Try contacts. Wear them. Live with them. And then, within 30 days of purchase, if you decide they're not for you, we'll refund the cost of the lenses. This plan does not cover soft or bifocal lenses.

You owe it to yourself to see how you like contacts. And now Vision Center has a way for you to do that. Without owing anything to us.
