Thanksgiving Day Greetings

We extend hearty Thanksgiving greetings to everyone. May your turkey be a bird of perfection . . . your table a Horn of Plenty . . . and a happy gathering place of all the family.

Loney, Patrick Are Elected To High Newmanite Posts

Jack Loney, college junior, and Elizabeth Patrick, senior, have been elected president and secretary of the Ohio Valley Province of Newman Clubs. Elections took place at the annual convention held here Nov. 9, 10, 11. One hundred and fifty delegates from Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, and West Virginia attended.

Other officers elected are: Avalone Lone of Purdue University, vice president; Mary Ellen Snyder of Wayne University, treasurer; Kay Masley of Wayne, extension chairman. Father Holland was selected province chaplain.

Loney was president of the local Newman Club for the last two years. He is a business administration major. Miss Patrick is enrolled in the elementary education department and is society editor for the Jambar.

Pres. Howard W. Jones addressed the convention delegates at the communion breakfast held Sunday morning at the Catholic Center. He praised the Newman Club's strong influence for good on the campus.

Bishop James A. McFadden thanked Youngstown College for its co-operation in the convention.

Main speaker for the gathering was George Kelly, acting managing editor of the Vindicator, who discussed "Censorship and Freedom of the Press."

The convention was closed by a reception at the Catholic Action Center followed by the benediction given at the Cathedral.

Purdue University will be host to the Newman convention next year.

Mimes Club To Sponsor Show for Bonds Nov. 28

The Mimes Club will present a "Victory Revue" in support of the current bond drive at the Nov. 28 assembly. The show will be musical, featuring vocal and dance numbers. Bob Hum, director of the production, states that something unusual in the way of comedy is also planned.

Last Friday try-outs were held for the play to be presented this semester. Mrs. Karl Dykema, faculty director, was in charge of the auditions.

The Mimes list 42 active members at the present time. Any student interested in dramatics may join the group.

Hi-Eds Discuss Vets At Meeting; Party Planned

The "Education of Veterans" was the topic of discussion at a recent meeting of the Hi-Eds, with Olga Poiniski giving a report and leading the discussion.

With the veteran enrollment increasing in the high schools, Miss Poiniski pointed out the duties of the teacher to help orient the veteran to school life and its activities, giving as examples the Arizona and Connecticut veteran plans.

At the following meeting on Nov. 16, Dr. Wilcox supplemented the discussion through his personal experiences.

A Christmas party is planned for Dec. 11. The next meeting will be held on Dec. 7.

Alpha Psi Omega To Lower Points

Due to the absence of drama courses in the curriculum, the YoCo cast of Alpha Psi Omega national dramatic fraternity will temporarily lower its point requirements for membership. The step is being taken to enable students formerly denied membership because of the few opportunities to earn drama points, to join the organization. Inactivity in the drama department is due to the current shortage of available instructors.

The temporary constitution will be in effect through Jan. 29, 1946. Requirements for membership under this constitution are as follows:

The candidate must be a regular full-time student.

All dramatic work must be done at this college.

Membership will be granted for any seven of the following points:

Seven points for a lead in an opera.

Seven points for a lead in any play, including assembly productions.

Three points for a minor role (at least 10 speaking lines).

One-half point for a bit part (under 10 lines).

One-fourth point for each hour of stage-craft.

One-half point for serving on a committee (make-up, electrician, etc.).

One point for chairmanship of a stage-craft committee.

Seven points for writing a play or show which is produced.

A scholastic point average of at least 1.5 is required.

All students who believe they are eligible for membership under the new rules are asked to submit their records to Miss Stella Cassano, faculty advisor to the fraternity, by Nov. 29. An extra installation for students who become eligible during the current semester will be held before termination of the temporary constitution. The memberships will be permanent.

Officers of the YoCo, Eta Phi cast are: Robert Burke, president; Grett Rothermund, vice president; Virginia D'Isa, secretary-treasurer.

It is a mistake of many good people that they aim to be happy themselves and improve others.

Such generally fail in one or both particulars.

If they would reverse the aim, and strive to improve themselves and to make others happy, they would not only accomplish that, but would encompass the other also.

Teas Featured at YoCo; Faculty Wives Entertain

Women students, with freshmen as honored guests, and faculty members were served tea in the college auditorium Thursday afternoon, Nov. 9. The affair was the first annual Autumn Tea given by the Young Women's Group Social.

Mrs. H. W. Jones, Mrs. G. W. Wilcox, and Miss Frieda Chapman poured at the lace-clothed table centered with white and rust chrysanthemums. Tapers of green and white, the group's colors, graced the table.

A popular melody of songs, played by Miss Gladys Peppel at the organ, preceded the musical program. Miss Madeline Pucci sang several numbers, and Miss Leona Erhardt at the piano with Miss Peppel at the organ, played an original composition, "Fantasy in C Minor," by Miss Peppel.

The tea was arranged by Miss Antoinette Carrino, general chairman, and Miss Stella Cassano, faculty advisor.

Faculty Wives Entertain
Wives of faculty members entertained the mothers of freshman students and the wives of veterans at a tea given in the auditorium last Thursday afternoon.

The program included a greeting by Mrs. H. W. Jones, wife of the president, and brief talks given by Dean Wilcox, Dean Smith, Louis Deesz, head of the engineering department, and Viola Paroz of the faculty. Jerry Watt gave a review of college activities. Musical numbers were introduced by Mrs. Raymond Dehnstiel. Miss Dorothy Gard, Miss Gladys Peppel, Miss Lois Keck, and Miss Edith Baxter provided the music.

The college colors were emphasized, a pyramid arrangement of red and white mums centering the tea table.

Possibly man could live twice as long if he didn't spend the first half of his life acquiring habits that shorten the other half.

It's a good rule to be game—but not everybody's.

Happiness starts sprouting when worry stops spading.

Faculty Member Chosen 'First Lady of the Year'

Miss Mary Haddow, faculty member, has been chosen "First Lady of the Year" by Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. The "First Lady" was honored guest at an afternoon tea given by the sorority Sunday, Nov. 11, at Hotel Pick-Ohio.

Miss Haddow was elected by secret nominators, prominent men and women outside the sorority, for her fine contributions to the city. The award was based on outstanding work in her field and for her accomplishments as chairman of the Youngstown Junior Red Cross during the war. Miss Haddow is elementary director of the public schools.

A Pause to Give Thanks

For the first time in four years, America is holding Thanksgiving in peace. For four years, Americans have been fighting and dying for the same principles that early Americans strove so hard to gain. This year we may be thankful that we have retained those freedoms which made men fight starvation and cold to found a new and free nation. The freedoms set up in the Atlantic Charter, those of religion, speech, freedom from want, and freedom from fear, are the same ones that made men endure hardships at Plymouth. We have passed through a great test. We have lost much in making them secure. Let us pause and be thankful for their benefits.

We might ask ourselves for what we, as college students, have to be thankful? First, we have been allowed to continue our education through the war years while students in other countries fought for their very existence. We have had the material things of college life left untouched. We have had coke parties and our between-class gatherings in the Lounge. We have had our paper in which we could express our own opinions. Through the war years we have had many things for which we may be thankful.

Now, in this year of peace, we are thankful for the hope of surviving peace. Many of our servicemen are returning to college, and we are grateful for their safe return. There are many others who will not return and to them we offer thanks. Their sacrifices made our future possible. Beneath the veneer of college life, there is a quiet "thank you" to all those. We know that they paid the price for our freedoms. To them and to God we are thankful. For this sacrifice, all we can do is, as Ernie Pyle put it, "Pause, bow our heads, and murmur, 'Thanks, pal.'" Our response must be to appreciate this gift fully and to vow to everlasting peace throughout the world. Only then will our thanksgiving be a reality.

The Billboard Tells Us . . .

To coin a phrase — "Billboards can speak louder than words." Every now and then these structures carry a real message effectively, thus abandoning their usual function of hiding the countryside. A billboard seen along the highway recently tells the reason for the current bond drive more eloquently than a thousand labored words. It pictures a mother with her hands folded in prayer, her face relaxed, but still bearing the tell-tale lines of the worries of war. With four simple words it tells the whole story: "The Victory Loan in Gratitude."

According to reports received from Alice Woodside, bond chairman, only $100 in Victory bonds and $20 in stamps have been bought or sold by Youngstown College students so far in this, the last war loan drive. Could we have forgotten so soon to be grateful for so much?

No one needs to be told what should prompt our gratitude. The preceding editorial lists but a few among many. And we need only to search our hearts to find our own private reasons for pausing to murmur "thanks" at this Thanksgiving season.

It is not hard to understand why bonds are more difficult to sell this year. People bear the end of the war banner high. But it is a little hard to face the realization that V-J Day made so much stronger an impression on us than all the daily reminders that "war leaves a debt to be paid in money and in the mending of broken lives." And that the threat of inflation still hangs precariously over the country should concern us now as during the war. With thought, some very practical, down-to-earth reasons for buying Victory bonds can be brought to mind.

During the war Youngstown College went over the top in all its bond campaigns. Last year the college sold a grand total of $25,695 in bonds and stamps. Only a portion of this total is expected of us now, after the war.

Our task is more difficult than before, but no less vital. Remember, you are not asking anyone to do you a favor when you ask them to purchase a Victory bond. The favors come later when the bonds mature. Youngstown College cannot afford to lessen its efforts just because the shooting is over. We must prove our sentiments of this Thanksgiving season by backing to the limit—as the billboard says—"The Victory Loan in Gratitude."

Looking Around

. . . with Judy Megala

Thanksgiving Day! With its turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie, and no snow. The day when all of us offer thanks for the things we have and for the nyons we're soon going to have. Among things we're thankful for we'd like to include: the theater passes we get for those ads; for our wonderful stooges who keep us informed on the latest sail; men on campus again; and the wonderful school spirit that gets more contagious every day.

The Frosh Breakfast. Gobs of food. Mad, mad! rain making us wonder what we did to deserve all this. Wonderful pancakes by Melva Mantle and her committee. Wonderful pan-cakes at the Gob Shop, too, HEY. Just ask us. The bag rush—knee-deep in mud stuff. Millard Biggs—even deeper in mud. John Shay and Tiny dancing with each other. The incessant bridge game. Parmenter winning, as usual. The huge stag line. Lots of men, as unusual. Cokes and potato chips. Dick Houser showing us he's quite a jitterbug. The maddening "Chicoree Chick." More potato chips. The presence of the dean. The presence of the dean's pipe. Dancing duo: Kenny Love and Leona Erhardt. Phyllis Grein dividing her time between Jim Fenton and Willie. The four-hour "500" game played by Jackie Smith, Tony Mastadonna, Jack Crepps, and Danny Marlos. Dancing with our favorite men. "Till the End of Time." Still more potato chips. We're getting sick of them, too. P. S.—Hopes for more picnics.

POEME:

"It's time to start to save our dough,
Quit going to the Warner,
For everywhere we look we see
There's Christmas 'round the corner."

Bow ties, rag curlers, beautiful faces, sans make-up are ushering in the pledge season. . . . Debby Butts belongs to that sharp national sorority: Chi Omega. . . . After attaching his name to at least 60 per cent of the males in college we finally know who Jack Cappy is. . . . A threat to Hammerstein and Romberg: Gladys Peppel, composer of the beautiful "Fantasy in C Minor" . . . Lt. Bob Bashone writes: "A man never feels the lack of a college education keenly until he has to help his kids with their 6-A homework" . . . The literature in the lounge is improving—now everyone and everyone's brother is reading "Super Duck" . . . Our vote for a good jitterbug goes to Ed Chap . . . One of our newer business men is Andy Geewax, part owner of the Delmar tie shop . . . Our wish of the week: Some day we'd like to write a column to please John Batch . . . Phi Sig day: Actives and pledges decked out in white shirts and blue neckties . . . Wedding bells will ring for Paul Serene and Marge Greth come Nov. 21. Congratulations! . . . The Gamma Sig "Court of Dishonor." No sympathy for the pledges . . . It's going to be "Anchors Aweigh" for John Conrecode . . . That hat's being passed to collect pennies to buy pencils for Jack Parker.

DOTS WHILE DASHING . . .

Grett Rothermund week-ending at Columbus . . . Our editor fainting at the sight of blood . . . Unwelcome guest: a stray moth causing that disturbance in Doc Smith's class . . . Bob Schettino changing colors when Professor Dykema mentioned paper curlers and marriage . . . Lt. Gera Liskay and Sgt. Al Downie, former Kappa Sigs, furloughing and visiting us . . . Jane DeLuca dropping that Red Cross money, and all of our Sir Gallahads picking it up . . . Steve Phillips trading his frat pin for a ranch in Texas . . . Dave Allen, Sis Anderson, Shirley Skinner, and Ross Hindman taking up new course: "Why Do Squirrels Like Nuts" or "Isn't It Nice to Take a Walk in the Park" . . . Stacy undergoing a major head operation. Net result: holes in her head . . . Note to Joe Bezzy: Just which arm DID you break in that automobile accident? Quick recovery, HEY? . . . Jinny D'Isa's locker resembling Fibber McGee's closet . . . The scramble in the lounge when the candy man comes . . . Ed Simko getting promoted to that assistant manager job. But don't ask him about it—he's shy, you know . . . Tony Cooke selling tickets to anybody who'll listen . . . Professor Dykema drinking THREE cups of cocoa at that sharp Sigma Tau Delta meeting.

We must leave now—with a reminder NOT to eat too much turkey, and DO come to the Dead-Turkey Hop tomorrow night!

Youngstown College has scored again! JACK LONEY, one of our more prominent students, has been elected president of the Ohio Valley Province of Newman Clubs. Jack was elected by 150 Newman representatives from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Kentucky at last week's convention held here. Congratulations!

Jack is a junior this year, majoring in accounting. His post-college plans aspire to a political or business career.

Although a part-time student this year, Jack is very active in school affairs. His past record includes presidency of the Newman Club for two years and presidency of the Phi Sigs. He is also an important cog in the industrial wheels of the Carnegie-Illinois (he tells us).

On the lighter side, Jack confides that he likes poker, going out with the fellows (?), dancing (in his own distinctive style), and "As Time Goes By" when he is in a sentimental mood. He definitely dislikes any display of weakness of character or dishonesty. When questioned as to his viewpoints on women, he said that he is strictly impartial just as long as they are women.

The office is a great honor to Jack himself, and it certainly speaks well of Youngstown College's growing reputation. All our best wishes for success and luck are with Jack.

PEACE

To pause at the end of the day, To look up at the star-pricked blue
To see the sunset, of the sky,
To hear the distant call of a lark, And wonder, and worship,
To feel with the night's breeze And thank Him who gives . . .
The greatness of God and His love, This is peace.

CAMPUS COMMENTS

By Kenny Love

GET IN LINE —

With considerable pushing and shoving I managed to wedge myself within the entrance to YoCo's much-used Lounge. A few dazed seconds were spent as I accustomed myself to the thick clouds of smoke that blanketed the room. Then, with careful steps, I picked my way through the class-cutters, rug-cutters, and throat-cutters to the other side of the room and took up a position where I could, at frequent intervals, thrust my head out a window, and breathe some of that stuff so essential to the non-smoker.

Thus, having obtained my objective, I began my usual survey of the room's contents. Familiar faces jumped into view in their familiar places and then the horrible realization struck me full in the face—WHY? I had seen those same people in those same chairs not less than six times during the day. Could it be that these people had been there all that time? Quickly I pushed the incredible thought from my mind and consoled myself with that wonderful word, COINCIDENCE—of course, that was it. It was just coincidence that these same people should happen to get out of classes in time to get back to those very same seats before someone else beat them to it. My! I wonder if Mr. Ripley knows?

It is true that our college has a very fine scholastic standing—one that we can be proud of. All of us, I am sure, are interested in keeping our present status quo at least as high as it is. Let us, therefore, keep in mind the ancient legend of the "straw that broke the camel's back." May this discourage prospective LOUNGEHOUNDS. Amen!

If the above should suggest in any way that I think the LOUNGEHOUNDS should study more and lounge less, please don't hold it against me. It is just that "yours truly" has not been able to clamp on to a seat for the past two weeks.

The Moral of It All:

Scholastic standings DO go down as the seats in the Lounge become limited.

BILLBOARD —

In the last few years our fair country has been the victim of an abundance of those ugly contraptions called "billboards." Our beautiful countryside has been literally littered with them. If things get much worse one will have to buy a jeep and cruise along behind the billboards to get a look at the remnants of nature. In fact, you have a 50-50 chance of waking up some bright morning and finding a billboard in your front yard asking you to "Visit Joe, for Faulty Vision."

This brings us around to the inspiration for the above. It is the masterpiece that has been erected on the corner of Rayen and Wick Aves. Now, had the unsung genius who fostered this project thought of it sometime within the last few years, all would have been well. We admit that the Rayen School Building has undoubtedly been an eyesore to the city. But, now that the building is almost completely remodeled and is once again a credit to the city, we are blessed with a monstrous billboard that nearly hides the new Engineering School.

Unfortunately, the college has no jurisdiction over this corner lot and, therefore, we are more or less behind the well-known eight-ball. We have a lease on the land between the building and the Wick and Wood corner, but the lease extends only 10 feet beyond the building on the Rayen Ave. side. Woe to the lowly earthling who clutters up the country with billboards! We have a name for such people, but censorship forbids.

GOOD EATS —

—We include the following for the drooling benefit of those who missed the Frosh Breakfast. Menu: orange juice, pancakes dripping with syrup, assorted donuts and coffee. How Melva and her committee can cook! The 250 students who were there can testify to this.

With the Greeks . . .

By Elizabeth Patrick

Once more the Thanksgiving Holiday is fast approaching. Greeks have a nice holiday, but don't eat too much turkey for you must be in good condition for the "Dead-Turkey Hop."

Plans for the installation and the initiation of the pledges are nearly complete.

PHI SIGMA EPSILON

Sixteen new members were installed into the Phi Sigma Epsilon Fraternity, at a formal ceremony, Thursday, Nov. 15, at the Y. M. C. A. After the installation, the members enjoyed a cool dip in the pool.

Plans are being made to initiate the new members at a later date.

GAMMA SIGMA

The Gamma Sigs held "Court of Dishonor" last Wednesday at Buechner Hall with Shirley Skinner and Virginia Callahan as hostesses. The pledges were informed of the appropriate dress for a pledge by Jinny D'Isa, pledge mistress.

Rough initiation was held at Mary Elaine Malloy's home last night. A good time was had by all.

The formal installation dinner will be held at Stoneleigh Tea Room next Wednesday at 6:30.

Officers of this season's pledge class are: Joan Owens, president; Lois DiBiase, vice president; Martha Jahn, secretary; and Helen Wymer, treasurer.

After signing the official chapter roll book, the pledges received their pledge pins and colors, and instructions for the informal initiation from the pledge captain, Donna Taaffe.

The remainder of the evening was spent informally at cards and dancing. Refreshments were served buffet style. Yellow and white chrysanthemums between white tapers in crystal holders centered the lovely table.

The Youngstown College Orchestra played its first performance of the year in chapel, Wednesday, Nov. 14. Soloists, besides those in the orchestra, were Wilma Adams, Mary Ferranti, Lois Keck, Joseph Penner, Helen Roberts, Bill Robinson, Lucille Weisel, and "Doc," who rendered his "Eighty-Eighth Pencil-Sharpener Concerto for Piano Lids." Accompanists were Edith Baxter, Olga Booth, and Phyllis D'Orsi.

The constant chattering of the past weeks inevitably concerned preparations for S. A. I.'s going national. Under the able direction of Supervisors Mrs. Dehnstetel and Sims, the third floor furniture and equipment has been satisfactorily completed. Painters LaCivita, Fortunato, Sims, and S. A. I. frat girls have laid down their brushes. Their work merits special recognition and praise.

We haven't as yet seen Bill Mathews, but rumors have it that he may be with us again. Bill is another returning YoCoite.

Professor Schmitt still puffs his cherished pipe; Professor Cook still possesses handwriting that can make you cry with envy; Mr. Holzhausen still is on the go with energy galore; and still Miss Guarnieri patronizes the Erie Railroad. Time and the faculty go on.

Here's to a swell Thanksgiving holiday. Take some time out to relax and enjoy life, but also take some time to appreciate life—right now that's a privilege.

Newman Club to Hold Bowling-Dancing Party

The members of the Newman Club will enjoy a bowling-dancing party on Saturday, Nov. 24.

The bowling party will be held at the McKenzie bowling alleys, and dancing will take place at the Catholic Action Center.

Admission to the affair will be by membership card only.

Pat Lynch and Jack Monahan are co-chairmen.

As an old Scot friend says: "A conscience may not keep you from sinning, but it will keep you from enjoying it."

R. L. L. Makes Plans For Christmas Service

Plans are being made for the annual Christmas candlelight service sponsored by the Religion in Life Club each year. The service will be held in the sanctuary at the First Christian Church on Tuesday, Dec. 18. The entire student body, faculty, and friends are invited to attend. Co-chairmen for the affair are Elaine Adams and Melva Mantle.

A Christmas party to be held for the 100 members of the club is being planned. December 15 has been set as the date.

There was a large attendance at the swimming-dancing party held at the Y. M. C. A. last week. Photographers were there to take pictures of the group.

Rev. Norman Farr, popular with R. L. L. members, will be the speaker at the next meeting to be held at the First Reformed Church on Dec. 2 at 3:00 o'clock.

DISCHARGED: Alex Downie and Gay Liskay from the army air corps. Alex and Gay, both Kappa Sigs, attended Youngstown College from '38 to '42. Alex served in the African theater for 29 months, while Gay was in the China-Burma theater 24 months.

Those Puritans -- Service Shorts - - - - -

Thanksgiving Day turns our minds to the Puritans, 102 men, women and children huddled into a boat 100 feet long and 20 feet wide, the Mayflower, braving the stormy Atlantic from September to December, 1620. Much has been written about the Puritans. George Stantayana analyzed the New England character in his THE LAST PURITAN. Not an exciting book, but philosophical and ironic.

Marquand's H. M. PULHAM, ESQ., recently in a movie, tells the real story, the story Fulham didn't tell in his autobiography for the 25th reunion of his class at Harvard.

THE LATE GEORGE APLEY, by the same author, is now playing on Broadway. It was originally a novel and has some fine character writing, contrasting Brahmin and toady, Puritan and Irish, young and old.

SEED OF THE PURITAN, by Elizabeth Kaup, is the portrait of a political boss who has enough of the negative virtues of the Puritan to keep him out of trouble.

Mary Ellen Chase is another writer whose novels have the New England background. In A GOODLY HERITAGE, she recalls a happy, hardy life in the 1890's, governed by a Puritan and cultured tradition.

Her WINDSWEPT is the story of a house on the Maine coast that is the cherished center of the lives of the Marston family.

Robert Frost's poems of New England have become so popular that records have been made of his readings of some of them. You really understand a poem when you hear the author read it himself.

Less well known, but just as much a spokesman for that section of the country, is George Abbe. His first book of poems, WAIT FOR THESE THINGS, has put into verse the impressions we have all felt, but couldn't express.

We think that we'll read a little American history over the vacation week-end. We may not be able to tell you offhand the date of King Phillip's War, but there's a bit of history we never did forget: Priscilla's query, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

Following are some excerpts from letters and the addresses of former YoCo students now in the service. The Jambar, welcoming their letters, wishes to pass their addresses to you. All would appreciate hearing the news from home.

Kandy, Ceylon

Dear Editor,
Recently I received the first two editions of this year's Jambar and found reading about YoCo and its activities as enjoyable as ever. "With the Greeks" was still minus the Phi Gam, but before many more semesters, it will be in there competing with the others.

The 11th of November will see the completion of my second year at Headquarters, South East Asia Command, under Lord Lewis Mountbatten. Prospects look bright for a "Sentimental Journey Home" in the near future.

Inclosed you will find a copy of the Signpost, our bi-weekly contribution towards morale in this area. Circulation is 350.

Thanks again,
A former Phi Gam,

Dear Gang,
Just a note to let you know I've received the Jambar and nothing could be more welcome than the alma mater publication. It helps bridge the gap between here and home.

I'm stationed here at the Naval Hospital and am working as the associate editor of the hospital paper.

Lots of luck and best wishes.

Dear Editor,
Somehow, reading the Jambar seems to bring back old memories and make one feel as if he were still a part of things at YoCo. It's a real morale builder.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor,
Today Jim Hammond and I received the Jambar and it sure was a pleasant surprise. It was just like spending Friday afternoon in the Lounge.

Jim and I are at ship repair base here at Honolulu. You might be interested in knowing that we met Joe Costarella, an ensign in the navy now, here at the base. We have spent several nights talking about the old days at YoCo.

I should like to take this opportunity to thank you for the Jambar and wish you and the staff lots of luck.

Sincerely yours,
Harry Williams

Dear Editor,
A short time ago I received a couple of issues of this year's Jambar, and I want to thank you. I enjoyed it last year very much and am looking forward to following the college life again this year.

Dear Editor,
Thank you for the Jambar. It's swell hearing about the old gang again and it brings back a lot of nice memories.

I'm working now in the Officer of the Day's office. We are in charge of radio work—an emergency set, inter coms and two-way systems.

I would enjoy hearing from YoCoites and am looking forward to your next issue.

Sincerely,
James Donald Nye, Bug. 27c.

Butler Art Etchings

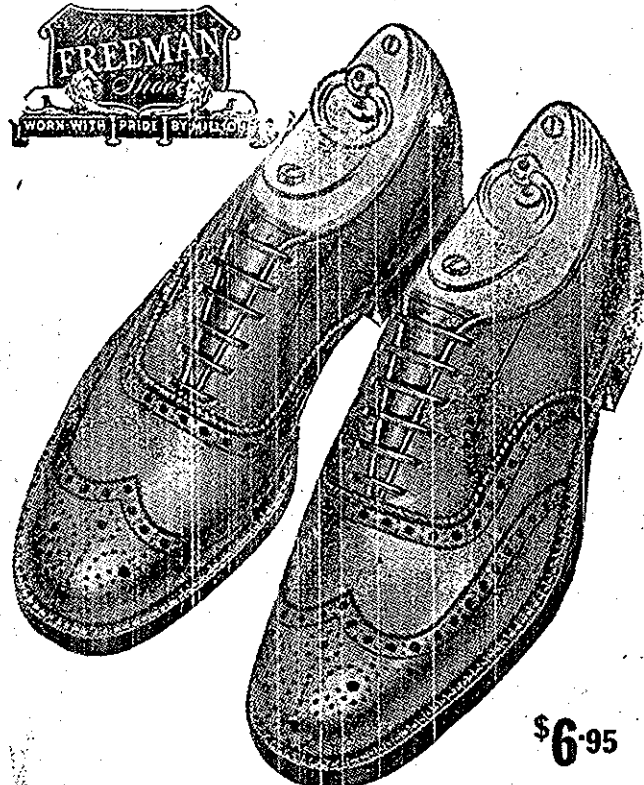

By Lorine Denkelberg

For those who are interested in etchings or lithographs, Butler Art Institute is showing a few by both Agnes Tait and Lauren Ford. The exhibit runs through Dec. 9th.

A number of them hold a particular fascination for me. Agnes Tait's "The Sailor's Cats" pictures two supposedly Chinese cats sitting on a high ledge surrounded by cacti and overlooking the city. The color contrast is particularly appealing. "The Navajo Child" shows an Indian girl caressing a little lamb. Other members of the party, a covered wagon, and a snow-capped mountain form the background. "The Florist's Cat" presents a realistic theme.

Lauren Ford appears to feature domestic and human interest scenes; these often incorporate a religious motif. "The Nativity No. 1" is one of these—beautiful in its simplicity. Another, "Christmas No. 2," is an outdoor scene showing children waving to winged seraphs. All are skillfully done.

All those interested in such an exhibit are urged to attend.
