Jambar Staff to Attend Penn-Ohio Press Convention

A 15 man delegation representing the JAMBAR and Youngstown University will be on hand tomorrow, March 14, at the Shenango Inn, Sharon, Pa., when the Penn-Ohio Collegiate Press Association opens its third annual spring press convention.

Some 75 collegiate newspapermen from six area colleges are expected to attend. Those colleges indicating their intention of attending are Allegheny College, Grove City College, Hiram College, Slippery Rock College, Thiel College, and Youngstown University.

The convention will consist of day-long panel discussions and idea exchanges in which collegiate staff members attempt to solve some of the problems encountered in putting out a college newspaper.

Notables to Speak

Two veteran newspapermen will deliver key speeches during the day. Dusty Miller, nationally-known speaker and publisher from Wilmington, Ohio, will deliver the evening banquet speech.

Luncheon speaker will be G.A. Harshman, president and editor of the Sharon Herald, and a highly reputable man in his profession.

Several other personalities who have gained fame in their respective fields will serve as panelists. They are Ted Berndt, account executive from Meek & Thomas Inc.; Sid Davis, news director of WKBN and WKBN-TV; Philip Snyder, editor, The GF Helper; and Lou Vicarel, public relations representative of the Republic Steel Corp.

Jim Quilty, of the JAMBAR staff, will head up a panel discussion on sports. Quilty is currently sports editor.

The JAMBAR staff is hoping for a repeat performance of last year when three top prizes went to staff members, including the coveted Best Newspaper Award.

Casting Opens For Coming Comedy Play

Tryouts for casting in the forthcoming play "See How They Run" will be held on March 16, 17, and 18 at four o'clock in Strouss Memorial Auditorium.

"See How They Run", is a three-act comedy planned to be presented by the University Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts on May 14, 15, and 16.

Definite casting will be held on March 19 and 20 at four o'clock in Strouss Auditorium. These tryouts are for both the acting and technical aspects of the play and are open to the entire student body.

Selective Service Board Offers Deferment Tests

Applications for the April 30, 1959 administration of the College Qualification Test are now available at Selective Service System local boards.

According to Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test for the Selective Service System it will be greatly to the student's advantage to file his application at once. The results will be reported to the student's selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student.

Eligible students who intend to take this test should apply at once to the nearest Selective Service local board for an application and a bulletin of information.

Ohio's January Highway Deaths Show Decrease

Traffic deaths for the first month of this year in Ohio dipped to the lowest January total since 1945, according to a provisional report just released by the State Highway Safety Director.

January's 1959 total was 110, compared to 140 in 1958 and 139 in 1957, for the same month. These figures reflect a drop of more than 21 percent, over 1958; and more than 20 percent over January 1957. The 1945 low for the first month was 63. During that year gas was rationed and much highway travel was restricted.

One of the interesting figures was the marked reduction in the number of deaths among drivers of vehicles involved in traffic accidents. The January total during the current year was 45, compared to 71 in 1958 and 68 in 1957. Friday proved to be the day of highest number of fatalities during the first month, 22. The age groups of 25 to 34 and 55 to 64 showed up with the largest number of deaths with 23 and 19 respectively.

Commenting on the report, Highway Safety Director Keyes stated that "we are indeed heartened with these statistics. We believe that much credit goes to the cautiousness of drivers and the persistent work of all our enforcement agencies."

Many Problems Need Solving Before Student Union Rises

Included among the powers of our Student Council is the management of a portion of the student activity fee. Five percent of this money is allocated each semester for a Student Union Building.

This money now totals $11,229 and is increasing approximately $900 per semester. The sum, while not staggering, is increasing rapidly, and suggestions are in order today for the Student Union Building of tomorrow.

Typical Questions
Where should the Student Union be located? Should it be in the parking lot north of the Library? In the position now occupied by Central Hall? In line with the engineering building?

What should the Student Union consist of? Should it be all lounges, or all reading rooms? Should card playing and other forms of amusements be permitted at all times? Should it have a snack bar?

These are a few of the questions that must be answered before the Student Union Building plans are drawn.

This is our school, our library, and it will be our Student Union. It should be noted that the administration is open for suggestions concerning any phase of the Student Union Building. Place your suggestions in the Student Council Suggestion Box in the lobby of the library.

Space Writer Predicts Man Will Hit the Moon In Another Ten Years

"It will be about ten years before a manned rocket will touch the Moon," was the prediction given by Arthur C. Clarke, world famous science-fiction writer and former Chairman of the British Interplanetary Society who spoke on campus last Friday, March 6.

Arthur C. Clarke

Several hundred students were on hand in Strouss Auditorium to hear the famous lecturer give his views on space travel and exploration.

It was through a fortunate "break" that the Student Council was able to land Mr. Clarke for a speaking engagement. Student Activity Funds paid for the talk.

Mr. Clarke was very entertaining and encouraged several students to question him after the performance. Slides were shown as a supplement to his speech. These depicted the proposed planetary rockets and showed interesting shots of several planets including the Moon, Mars, Saturn, and Jupiter.

Dispels Misconception

Speaking with a British accent, Mr. Clarke made it a point to emphasize that contrary to popular belief, the Russians did not get the "cream of the crop" of the defeated German scientists. Many more came to America than Russia, he said.

Mr. Clarke is the author of many famous books including "The Making of a Moon," "The 1952 Book-of-the-Month best seller 'The Exploration of Space'," "Prelude to space", and others.

Leonard Leopold gave the introduction and Dean Joseph E. Smith introduced the speaker.

Prophet Foresees War in 1960; America and Russia to Clash

By Pat McCarren

The KENT STATER last week carried the following historical feature about Michael de Notredame, 16th century French prophet-astrologer.

Writing under the assumed name of Nostradamus, he predicted world history with uncanny accuracy. He correctly predicted World War I and II, the rise and fall of Hitler and Mussolini and predicts, in 1960, war between this country and Russia --- an 11-day blood bath resulting in the death of millions.

In 3797, Nostradamus writes, earth history will die when this planet collides with the sun.

America to Win War

The story went on to mention details during the first few weeks of 1960. During this year, wrote Nostradamus, America will be invaded by "birds from the sky, with wings and breath of fire." The war will last 11 days and it will take 11 months to bury the dead, he wrote. The victor? America.

Following the war, Russia will become a weak power and America, England and France will unite to insure world peace.

Nostradamus, so the story goes, as if to prove the truth of his life work, died a quiet, natural death in 1566. He had predicted his own death to be in 1566.

Things such as this are interesting but rather frightening, to say the least. Let's hope old Nostradamus is wrong for a change. Don't forget that a good percentage of the males on this and any other campus are the right age for military service.

Purnell Room Clean-Up

Last week the JAMBAR carried a front-page story in conjunction with its Student Council series. The article was concerned with conditions in Purnell Room and rules and regulations set down by the Student Council involving conduct while in that room.

Several comments overheard between students indicated that the student body is not the least bit concerned about whether or not Council could enforce these rules. Some went so far as to openly pronounce their disbelief in Council's power to govern their actions.

Will these students please wake up! The days of high-school rebellion are over. This is an institution of young people dedicated to the task of getting an education. We are not a group of rabble rousers, defying laws for the sake of laughs, or joy, or whatever adolescent sentiment is derived from law-breaking.

For your information Student Council does have the power to enforce the Purnell Room regulations. Not only does it have this power, but it intends to crash it down upon the brow of the first student caught breaking its laws. Some people take a long time to learn. Don't say we didn't warn you!

Book Checking by Identification

Many columns of print have been dedicated to the building-up of our library and of conduct inside that building on the part of students. Recently, we had an intensive drive to build up the library through student donations. This campaign was very well conducted and highly successful.

Now we have another bone to pick. The present system of book checking is inadequate as we see it. There is too much time involved in which a student is required to go into his hip pocket (or purse) and fumble around looking for a tuition receipt which qualifies him to be called a student, and thereby entitled to use the library books he desires.

This is an inconvenience. In the first place, the tuition receipt is too large to fit snugly into a wallet or purse. It is a nuisance, but, unfortunately, it is the best method possible at this time.

What we would suggest would be an identification system not using tuition receipts, but rather bona fide Identification Cards, including a picture of the student. This is not an original idea, we confess, since most bigger colleges have been using this system for several years. This Student Identification Card could be used by the student for not only library book-checking, but also for student-discounts (where available) and we believe it will instill a greater sense of "belonging" to the students. We cast our vote for Identification Cards as the solution to the library dilemma.

Junior Prom Elections

In a short time the election of a Junior Prom Queen will take place. It is hoped that "professionalism" will not creep into this election as has been evident in previous elections.

It should be everyone's desire to win, whether it be an election or a football game. But is winning an election such an important achievement to involve ill feelings during and after elections?

Supporting a queen candidate seems to be a major function of sororities on this campus and they certainly make a "Hollywood" type production of it. Sororities should support their candidates earnestly, but not to the point of over-emphasizing winning an election.

No candidate should ever have to feel it is her obligation to win for her sorority. It should be enough for her and her group that she has been nominated.

Let's keep "professionalism" from creeping into college "queen" elections.

JAZZ . . .

. . . My Beat

Lynn C. Newland

Jazz has traveled a great distance from the side streets of New Orleans and it has grown in respectability and scope since that time. Still, however, the word jazz is undoubtedly the least understood and the most misused term in the world of music.

It is difficult to define the word jazz, it includes; dixieland, bop, swing, modern and progressive; all are synonymous and all denote a various form of jazz. Contrary to popular belief jazz does not include rock and roll.

A general definition of jazz might be: a music which is creative and uninhibited. By this, I mean that jazz is free, a jazz musician has no notes to follow, he is familiar with the tune he is playing, but the rest is improvisation.

Jazz has found a home on most college campuses, it is being supported by college students as has been proven by the astounding number of LP record sales.

Notre Dame "Newport"

To further promote interest in jazz the University of Notre Dame is sponsoring a Jazz Festival at South Bend on April 11. This will be a competitive jazz concert and will be judged by MENC standards which stress technical accomplishment as well as the creative ability of the group.

Prizes will consist of $200, $100, $75 and $50 dollars. Also, contracts may be awarded to winning groups by Mr. Holzfeind of the Blue Note and Mr. Oscar Marienthal of the London House and Mister Kelley's, all located in Chicago.

The applications for your group to enter this festival may be obtained by contacting the JAMBAR office.

Nosmo King Dates Co-Ed; Proves Nill Social Partner

By Frank Court

It has been proven, that infiltrating into our University are forms of degenerate monsters resembling cave-men of prehistoric days. The horrible truth is that these same animal-like creatures, disguised as civilized beings of the male sex have actually been known to date our innocent young co-eds.

Yes, it is hard to believe, but it has been proven by Stanley Schlurp, famous gossip columnist and fact finder from that typical smear publication, GANGERINE, who, disguised as a fire hydrant, observed a cave-man type student actually discarding bear skins and club.

The facts were later disclosed that the cave-man type student was none other than that dashing man about campus - Nosmo King. It seems, Nosmo had made a date for Saturday night with that campus cutie, Cecily Bloch. (It would be well to mention that Cecily was voted Miss Garbage Can of 1959, by the Garbage Can Manufacturers of the Amazon River.)

Anyway, when the savage Nosmo went to call on Cecily he made several uncivilized mistakes which caught the bloodshot eye of our hidden fact finder, Stanley Schlurp. For instance, Nosmo, when knocking on the door, completely missed the wood and sent his hand hurtling bloodily through the glass window. This is not the tragedy, the horrible part of the whole matter is that because of his cave-man antics, he spilled blood on the latest copy of the JAMBAR that was in his coat pocket. (Truly, an appalling deed.)

Fatherly Shake-down

Once inside the house, Nosmo was confronted by Cecily's Father, who, being a decent fellow offered his hand to Nosmo in a gesture of appeased friendliness. Nosmo, seeing the hand extended toward him, immediately mistook the hand for a hat rack and hung his coat and hat on it. This made a very bad impression on Cecily's father.

Saying good-bye to the family, Nosmo and Cecily left the house, perceiving that a very eventful evening was ahead of them. Arriving downtown, Nosmo headed for his usual parking place which was in the rear of Sewer Alley. Slamming his Stutz Bearcat to a tire -- shrieking stop, he turned off the motor and, forgetting about Cecily, dashed out of his seat leaving the poor girl to struggle by herself trying to open the heavy car door. The result was that Cecily snagged her handbag in the car's upholstery and losing her balance, she fell, ripping a hole in the upholstery. As she lay dazed on the hard cement, she gathered enough strength to call Nosmo to her aid. Nosmo, never before hearing of courtesy when on a date, now realized the error he had made. He rushed frantically to the scene of the terrible accident, and sobbing his ignorant heart out, he extended his hands and reaching down, felt the gaping tear in the upholstery.

Back to the Rocks

Disgusted with Cecily, for ripping his upholstery, he left her lying in the street, and vowing that this was the last time he would try to be social, he headed for the stone quarry and home.

These facts, impossible as they may seem, were revealed by Stanley Schlurp, yesterday at his office. While interviewing Stanley, he stated, "courtesy and chivalry are being trodden underfoot by uncivilized creatures and something must be done to curb it immediately. Time and time again he emphasized, "Something must be done, something must be done, something must be done." Sobbing, he cried, "Something must be done". Well, we are very happy to tell you that something was done! --- They took Stanley away this morning.

Bill Hollis Mixes Boxing With Schooling; Foresees Career as Boxer, Teacher

Bill Hollis is a Youngstown University student who finds time to do some amateur boxing. He is also a varsity football performer. His fight record to date is 21-5. He recently competed in the Golden Gloves tourney in New York and was a quarter finalist. Bill hails from Uniontown, Pa. and a few years back took an interest in the ring. He lost his first fight and was ready to quit then due to a bad cut over his eye.

The Golden Gloves attracted his attention upon coming to Youngstown. Last year he won the Youngstown and Cleveland light-heavy weight crown. He then went all the way to the semi-finals in New York and as a result was invited to fight in the Inter-City Golden Gloves and went on to win the crown at this event.

Wins Carey's Tourney

This year in Golden Gloves competition Bill came through with a championship in Tom Carey's Tourney in Struthers. He represented Tomez A.C.

Bill's next stop was the Pittsburgh Dapper Dan bouts. Here he won his first bout by a T.K.O. His last match in Pittsburgh was a real battle. His opposition was Cephus Huff. The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette said, "Hollis employed devastating right hooks to offset Huff's strong lefts to win a close decision."

The next step for Bill was New York and drew a tough assignment in the person of Tony Madigan, an Australian who already had 49 bouts under his belt and the British Empire Crown.

Here is the way Jack Smith, writer for the New York Daily News saw the bout. "You have to go a long way back before finding so stirring a bout as the one between Hollis and Madigan. Madigan had never before been floored. But Hollis, the left hook perfectionist did it midway through the first round. It wasn't a slip or a half punch. The Australian was tagged good and went down giving Hollis the first round.

Aussie Recovers

"Then Madigan went to work. He threw flurries of vicious punches to the body. Then a crisp right to the chin at short range. Hollis was fighting back all the time, but Madigan poured the punches in faster and faster to win the second round. He clinched the third round by decking Hollis with a right to the chin. The gamester climbed to his feet and punched away again. But Madigan kept driving home his powerful punches and the referee stopped it at 1:37 of the third round."

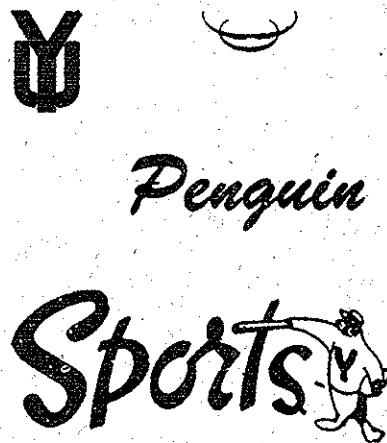

Madigan won the light-heavy crown the next fight. Jack Smith himself said that Madigan was the best fighter he has seen in the Golden Gloves and this includes Patterson, Robinson and Tony Anthony.

Bill said this of his fight. "He was the best amateur I fought. I learned a lot from him. He knew what to do when he was in trouble and could really hit."

As a result of his fine showing, Bill was asked to fight again in the Inter-City bouts on March 25 in Chicago. He will start training at Bear Mountain Camp in New York shortly.

When asked of his future, Bill said he would like to box in the Pan American games this year and next year to take a crack at the Olympic games.

After this he may turn pro or enter the field of physical education.

Looking Around...

By Pat McCarren and Frank Guarnieri

"All that glistens is not gold," (Merchant of Venice) and after last week we have been informed that all that rhymes is not poetry. Somewhere tonight a fire sale is being planned.

Congratulations to Roy Case, the recent father of twins. Karen, Karol, and Mrs. C. are doing fine, but Roy is still a little bit shook. Belated congratulations to Gerry Stanton, the PR's new sponsor. Our friends made a good choice.

Jack "Cannonball" Tesyk asked us to mention his name in this column. Al Lytle said not to forget Tau Omega here too. We are sure now that we have at least two readers for this week.

Signs of the times: Soft drink fans are mourning the loss of two very good friends -- the "6 oz. for 5¢" vending machines in the Snack Bar and the Cafe. The dime hungry giants that have replaced them give out 4 more ounces for that extra nickel, but oftimes that is more than you want to drink.

The popcorn on the Pollock House lawn is for the birds.

Tommy Toiletmouth is being heard around the campus. His little vulgarities send blue streaks of lightning through the air on the campus, in the SB and the Cafe, and in classrooms and labs. Hey Tommy, act your age, not your IQ.

One of the engineering profs, a fuel expert, was heard mumbling something about incomplete combustion during one of the recent bonfires near campus.

Who is the campus athlete who thinks that the lawn in front of the First Christian Church is for practicing the shot put? The young man who thinks he is the Greek god Mercury started hurling the shot from the front of Ford Hall, and after a few bounces on Wick Avenue, the shot put some nice (or not so nice) pot holes in the lawn of the aforementioned church. The custodian is looking for wheelbarrows full of dirt now.

Well Little One, today is Friday the 13th. Your luck should be better today than last month at this time, because you had that date to practice avoiding black cats, ladders, etc. So today ought to be pretty good. However, we noted that a few very rugged individuals were running around campus last nite turning loose several dozen black cats and putting up ladders against the walls and burning all the four leaf clovers in sight. Did you know that long ago in some parts of the world it was unlucky to cut your fingernails on Friday the 13th?

A Social Science test question read: "Would you rather make a deal with an intelligent devil or a good natured idiot?" The latter of course, we have to stick together.

Our thought for the day: That glamorous doll who combs her hair at the table in a restaurant sure loosens us for a friend.

In closing, lots of luck to you today, and tonite when you retire you will probably be saying like the rest of us, "I shooda stood in bed today."

Many more applied. Not all were accepted. In more than 200 U. S. colleges, 14,436 college sophomores met the high standards set. These students were selected to continue officer training in the advanced R.O.T.C. course. Why did each of these young men decide that he would benefit by fulfilling his military obligation as an Army officer? Here are two important reasons. Perhaps they'll help you make your decision.

1... TRADITIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES

As an Army officer, you're in command of men. More men than the number supervised by many civilian executives years older than yourself. To meet your command responsibilities, you employ a great many of the LEADERSHIP principles acquired in advanced R.O.T.C. training. And your executive potential develops while you gather LEADERSHIP experience. The executive ability you gain as an Army officer will be an important advantage in any civilian career. That's why employment directors often prefer men who have served as commissioned officers. These men have already proven their capacity to handle executive responsibility.

2... TRADITIONAL REWARDS

In every organization, greater responsibilities mean greater rewards. The traditional prestige of an Army officer is matched by material advantages. A second lieutenant earns a minimum of $355.88 per month—plus substantial fringe benefits. Think you might want to marry soon after graduation? An officer's salary can make things a great deal easier for a married couple just starting out. What's more, an Army officer is entitled to take his dependents with him, wherever possible. Imagine sharing the fun of travel with your wife—in the United States or foreign countries like France, Germany or Japan.
