Proposal revives plan for rec center

Students can vote May 18 and 19.

Editor's note: This is a first in a series of articles that will examine all aspects concerning the new campus recreation center.

It's baaaaaacccccckkkk. The student recreation center proposal that stirred up so much controversy last year has been resurrected from the ashes. Last year, the proposal for a student recreation center was a hotly-debated subject on campus and was finally rejected. Another student recreation center proposal has been brought forth this year, and the Student Recreation Committee hopes to include it on the May 18 and 19 ballots.

Jason Pavone, Student Government College of Business representative, and Heather McAtee, senior, food and nutrition, are co-chairs of the Student Recreation Committee. Their plan calls for renovations to Beeghly Center and the construction of a new recreation facility. The new facility would include tennis and volleyball courts, a large group activities area, an intramural sports program area and a 200-meter walk/jog track.

"Last year the proposal by administration was a track facility, not a rec center," said Pavone. "We have taken that proposal and asked what the students would like."

Pavone and McAtee showed the plan to Student Government with a petition signed by 5 percent of the student body. Pavone said a proposal to the floor of Student Government needs backing by at least 1 percent of the student body.

Student Government was scheduled to vote Monday night on the wording of the proposal for the May ballot. McAtee said the committee has referendum to bring the proposal to ballot themselves. For referendum to be included on the May ballot, a petition must be signed by 5 to 6 percent of YSU's population. She said they have more than 700 votes on the recreation center petition already.

"We came to Student Government to get some different voices and ideas," said McAtee.

"We want the students to have a voice," said Pavone. "If they don't like it, they should vote no, but they should have the opportunity."

The new recreation center plan includes fees never to exceed $30 per quarter or $45 per semester. The student fee will not be assessed until the construction and renovations begin.

"The university is working on some numbers to help students and everyone make an informed decision about the rec center — to give some idea what it is going to cost," said Vern Snyder, executive director of University Development. He said they are not quite sure of what the costs will be yet.

Snyder said it will be a long-term commitment, and he thinks everyone is examining the issue as necessary.

"It might be as much as a 25-year commitment, so you have to look really hard at the issues to make sure everything is considered," said Snyder.

Seminar to shed light on sensitive medical issues

Medical ethics are a topic in everyday life.

TELA DURBIN

Medical. Ethics. The two words may seem unrelated, but put them together and they become one entity. Because of the recent turmoil concerning cloning, DNA testing and confidentiality issues concerning AIDS, medical ethics are becoming a topic of everyday conversation. A seminar addressing these issues and more will be held this weekend.

"Everyone may not be interested in medical ethics. But everyone is sick at one time, or intimately involved with someone who is sick," said Dr. Cynthia Brincat, philosophy and co-director of the YSU Dale Ethics Center. "By attending the seminar and being exposed to ethical practices, they will be better served."

The Society for Health and Human Values will hold its three-day regional spring meeting, titled "Whose Ethics? Which Medicine?" The tacit and explicit development of a Medical Ethic" beginning Friday in Kilcawley Center. Professionals from many fields are scheduled to speak about medical ethics. YSU's Dale Ethics Center

WFMJ to feature YSU in weekly news segment

Susan DeLeo will showcase early morning YSU activities on the weekly show.

At 6 a.m. very few people are awake and functioning.

However, channel 21's morning news program WFMJ Today, which has committed to conduct live broadcasts from YSU at least once per week, promises to give people a reason to be early risers.

Linda Lewis, director of public relations, said the idea is still in the planning stage. "Basically, we want to talk about the life that goes on here between 6 and 7 [a.m.]," she said.

WFMJ on-site reporter Susan DeLeo is coordinating the segments, which will be shot live from YSU and will showcase activities surrounding the university.

The literary arts will come alive at YSU Thursday when renowned American poet and author Tess Gallagher presents a reading of poetry and fiction 5 p.m. in DeBartolo Hall Rm. 132.

The event is part of a series of readings sponsored by the YSU poetry center, which works to promote the literary arts at YSU and in the Youngstown community.

"She's one of the best-known and most capable writers in the country," said Dr. Steeven Reese, director of the poetry center. "She's the most distinguished writer we've had in the program this year."

Gallagher will read a mixture of poems and selected stories from "At the Owl Woman Saloon," her recently published book of short fiction.

Reese said the reading will be worthwhile for students.

Buechner Hall Truly Has Everything

This beautiful residence hall for women, located mid-campus at YSU, is truly first-rate. Single and double occupancy rooms are completely furnished, including linens, telephones, and free cable. The building is fully air conditioned, and staff and guards provide professional, 24-hour security. Weekly maid service, exquisitely decorated lounge areas, quiet study environment, on-premise dining room and home-cooked meals, fitness room, and laundry rooms are other features supplying their share of full-comfort living.

Sound expensive? Not at all. Thanks to the large bequest of the Buechner family, which completed the building in 1941, more than half of all residents' room rental is still absorbed by the Buechner fund. The remainder required from residents including 15 meals per week, is $837 per quarter for double occupancy and $907 per quarter for single. Payable weekly. Your inquiry is solicited.

and The Consortium Ethics Program at the University of Pittsburgh cosponsored the event. Brincat is one of the meeting's coordinators.

"I would definitely be interested in hearing some of the talks," said Angela Niehorster, senior, elementary education. "Everyone has an opinion when it comes to cloning, and I know there is a lot more to medical ethics than just the issue of cloning."

"Medicine is changing," said Brincat. "If it didn't, we would still have leeches on us. [Early medical practices used leeches to extract blood for a variety of ailments.] Medicine has evolved and by doing so, new ethical practices arise. This conference gives us a chance to explore these issues."

Medicine has always required formal codes, hence the age-old Hippocratic Oath doctors must take before becoming practicing physicians. The field of medicine has grown and evolved, raising new ethical questions.

"It is obvious [people in medical fields] can do a lot of things, but should they do them?" said Brincat. "Medicine used to be more 'physician knows best,' but it is changing to include patient advocacy and pay more attention to ethics."

Brincat explained different viewpoints will be provided and explored in the presentations.

"We are going to explore the feminist approach to bio ethics," said Brincat

"We also have a lot of different professionals speaking together — we have a historian and a philosopher, a physician and a sociologist and a nurse and a political theologian. We will be hearing from all different professions and what they have to offer."

Possible story ideas include art exhibits, theater rehearsals, coffee shops, the planetarium and even lawn care, DeLeo said.

Although the segment runs only about 10 minutes, she said it will let the community see a side of YSU they may not otherwise have the opportunity to see. It is a behind-the-scenes look at YSU.

Christine Calabretta, sophomore, accounting, said it might be difficult to find activities taking place that early in the morning but more people will get a inside view of YSU if the segment repeats on news programs later in the day.

Only one broadcast from YSU has been aired so far.

- 7) So many people work out in Beeghly right now, we need a place for gangs to form.
- 6) It's another building on-campus where on-campus crime won't be reported.
- 5) It's a place where YSU police can hang out.
- 4) Another building will create another challenge for students to smuggle in alcohol or other illegal substances.
- 3) Students will transfer here just to hang at the rec center.
- 2) Metro college students will have a purpose — other than financial aid or registration problems — to come to campus.
- 1) More cool, boring jobs for students.

Poetry

"[The reading] is a chance for students to get an idea where literature comes from — how it's produced," Reese said. "This kind of exposure to literature is vital, as opposed to just seeing it on a page. It's important to remember that living, breathing people produce it."

Reese said the reading will be an opportunity to experience her work the way it was intended.

"It's one of the rare chances to hear literature by its author, who can also explain and comment on it," Reese said.

Gallagher, former wife of the late author Raymond Carver, has written several books of poetry, fiction and essays and even worked on a few screenplays.

Originally from Port Angeles, Wash., she is now the poet in residence at Bucknell University.

Both her poetry and fiction is currently being taught in YSU classes.

Reese said he hopes at least 200 students and faculty will attend the presentation.

The poetry center, now in its fourth year, sponsors readings and lectures and promotes literature in the YSU area.

Cambodian poet U San Oeur will read poems in his native language Khmer at another poetry center-sponsored reading May 5.

YSU has good intentions, but terrible timing

YSU can't get it right at the right time no matter what it is. For example, take the switch of quarters to semesters or the bid for and against a new recreation center.

YSU originally was on semesters and switched to quarters. Then the university realized everyone else is on semesters, so now the university is starting the process to switch back. And Kilcawley Center was originally a student union, and now it's a food factory. So, why not build a new building that can replace all the lost services and more?

Make sure you want a recreation center, because you'll have to pay for it.

Last year, Student Government didn't allow the recreation center agenda to be on the ballot. This year a petition guarantees you will get the chance to vote for or against the construction of a recreation center May 18 and 19.

The recreation center would be like a student union with a mini theater, television lounge and pool tables — kind of like combining Kilcawley Center with Beeghly.

There used to be about 12 pool tables in The Pub, but apparently there was no need to keep them. There was also a television lounge in Kilcawley that is now used for storage, and Beeghly already has available services students rarely use, forcing their operating hours to be cut severely.

If you have an opinion, let your Student Government representative know now or else pay for a mandatory health club membership after construction begins.

A Closer Look

BY JENNIFER HALIBURTON

30 years later — still reaching for a dream

It has been 30 years since Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated for standing by his convictions for equality and championing the rights of all individuals, regardless of color, to be treated with respect. I can't help but think he would be frustrated and disappointed by society's inability to make a reality from his dream of a country where people are judged, "not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character." After all this time, America's deficiency of people of different colors living harmoniously without the threat of racism continues to be just wishful thinking, and the incapability of blacks and whites to find even a common ground on the future's outlook indicates the vast distance that remains between the races.

A recent poll conducted by the CBS news program "48 Hours" revealed that six out of 10 whites think the state of race relations in America will improve in the future, while six out of 10 blacks believe it will only get worse.

The pessimism held by a large number of blacks comes from discouragement felt about the current state of equality and the doubt that a future with equal opportunities for employment, housing, education and just plain acceptance will ever come to fruition. Drawing the conclusion that this type of existence is nothing more than fantasy, many blacks believe no matter how much more qualified or talented than their white counterparts, they must put in twice as much effort and do three times as much work just to be considered worthy of a position in society.

"I'm just speaking as a human being who's been involved in life experiences in this particular community," said William Blake, director, Student Activities. "There has not been an opening of the floodgates in terms of building relationships between and among people of various colors in society. The things Martin Luther King Jr. was attempting to do in the '60s are still things that need to be done in 1998. There is no sense of reciprocity for black people ... in this society."

At the same time, many whites have taken a more optimistic stance on the status of minorities today — a stance some perceive as naive. While there is a belief hurdles exist on the path to achieving racial harmony, the "48 Hours" poll shows most whites generally view the future of race relations as a bright one.

"Growing up in what I believe was a very ethnic city (Campbell) with plenty of cultural diversity, I never felt like there was a racial problem," said Greg Gulas, coordinator, Student Activities. "While many think race relations will get worse, I'd like to think that they will get better. But I readily admit we do have a long way to go before harmony can be realized."

King spent his life committed to expelling racism in the hopes of one day living in a world that notices one's merits instead of one's color. While his pursuit of this hope ultimately led to his death, it would be a shame if we let his dream die because we turn a blind eye to the whole situation or are too fed up to continue the fight.

Student clarifies common misunderstandings of Islam

JAMAL Y. AHMED
MUSLIM STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION

As a student majoring in religious studies at YSU, I found it intriguing how little Christians and non-Christians know about Islam. Islam is the most misunderstood religion in the West, so I will address what it is and answer some frequently asked questions.

First, let us examine what the word "Islam" means. It is derived from the root S-L-M which means "peace." In a secondary sense, it means "surrender." The implied full connotation is when one's life is surrendered to God then that person receives peace from God.

Despite Islam's overwhelming proximity to Christianity religiously, geographically and philosophically, Islam remains a stranger in the West. For example, many people think Islam is an Arab religion made for the Arabs. There is nothing further from the truth. The truth of the matter is Arabs are a mere 5 percent in Islam. Shocked? This is just the tip of the iceberg about Islam. Until recently Islam was described as Muhammadanism, this is false and offensive to the Muslims.

This description of Islam as Muhammadanism is an implication the Prophet Muhammad created Islam. Once again, nothing is further from the truth than this myth about Islam. In fact, generally speaking, Muslims take umbrage when they hear such a fallacious depiction of their religion. Prophet Muhammad did not create Islam. God, who created Adam, Abraham, Moses, Jesus, Muhammad and everything in the heavens and earth.

Prophet Muhammad was only a vehicle and a mouth-piece for God. Islam is the old-time religion for humanity once a person becomes familiar with its essence. It is a comprehensive, monotheistic way of life. Islam points out that since Jesus wasn't on the earth long enough to establish his teachings, his career's work was left incomplete. Therefore, the Qur'an, (Islam's Holy Book) was reserved to be the teacher for humanity, and to be the spiritual guide.

Socially, Islam inspires all people and shows them how to pass dignity and kindness for humanity regardless of their ethnicity or beliefs. It puts great importance on love and brotherhood.

Economically, Islam's maxim or model is an analogy of the body's circulatory system. For example, since circulation requires that the blood must flow undisturbed so another sector will not become morally and financially destroyed, so the arteries of society and of humans must remain open. This is certainly a philosophy acceptable to the vast majority of people I have met in the West. If anyone cares to know more about Islam, kindly page me at 404-5448.

Circus stirs ethical questions for some

The return of spring to Youngstown also marks the return of the Aut Mori Grotto Circus. For the past 10 years it has been a family tradition to attend the circus. I, along with the rest of my family, have always looked forward to this event. Recently, however, I had a change of heart as a result of an environmental ethics class.

What, you say, could environmental ethics have in common with the circus? The answer lies with the animals — more directly, the exploitation of exotic animals — lions, tigers and elephants. As long as we perpetuate the belief that the only animals entitled to any rights whatsoever are Homo sapiens, we will never attain the environmental equilibrium so necessary for the perpetuation of our existence. As long as a child's image of a tiger or an elephant is one behind bars or performing in a circus act, we've failed to reach this equilibrium. Seeing these animals behind bars will never increase awareness to the intricate importance of their place in the web of life.

I would like to note I am not a staunch animal-rights activist. And I am not blind to the fact this event helps to raise a substantial amount of money for well-meaning charities every year. However, it is not beyond the abilities of those who arrange this event to ask that the exotic animals be excluded from the performance. If this were accomplished, more people who currently boycott the circus in our area would be happy to attend and support the benefiting organizations.

DAYTON - The Lady Penguins softball team grabbed six wins during the weekend to extend their winning streak to eight-straight.

"Our bats are coming around - we are making fewer errors," said Head Coach Julie Croft. "We have really started to bring it together."

In Friday's doubleheader, YSU clobbered the University of Dayton 9-1, 1-0.

Sophomore Holly Royal connected on 1 of two at bats, scoring two runs and driving two in. Sophomore Rachel Zehnder went 2 for 3 and scored for the Lady Penguins.

Senior Chris Notareschi knocked in three runners in the third inning on a single and a two-run double, while going 2 for 2.

Taking the mound for five innings was senior Michelle Gongwer. She allowed only one run in five hits.

One run was all it took for the Red and White to pull out the 1-0 win in the second game against Dayton.

Junior Tammi Schmalenberger went 1 for 3 and was the only Lady Penguin to cross the plate, while junior Melanie Pangallo tossed seven innings, throwing a no-hitter.

YSU played strong against Central Connecticut State, taking two wins of 5-3 and 9-1.

The Lady Penguins blasted four runs in the third inning and one in the fifth, enough to withstand Central's three-run seventh inning comeback.

Freshman Mistine Hamilton led the way with two runs, while hitting 1 for 2. Zehnder went 2 for 3, hitting in one RBI and Royal batted 1 for 1, scoring a run.

Gongwer pitched seven innings, giving up eight hits and striking out nine batters.

YSU scored for runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to pull ahead for the 9-1 win over Central.

Zehnder, Notareschi, Hamilton and senior Heather Miller all crossed the home base twice for the Red and White. Zehnder registered two RBIs, while Notareschi went 3 for 3.

Pangallo picked up the win, giving up five hits and striking out three batters.

The Red and White swept Marshall under the rug Sunday, 6-1, 6-5.

Schmalenberger pounded 3 for 3, scoring twice, while Notareschi went 1 for 1, scoring a run and knocking in one RBI.

Sophomore Dani Brown went 2 for 3 and drove in two RBIs.

Gongwer went the distance on the mound, picking up her eighth win of the season.

Marshall started early in the second game, taking a 3-1 lead in the second inning, but five runs in fourth and fifth innings helped the Lady Penguins to prevail for the 6-5 win.

Junior Chris Maynard went a perfect 2 for 2, driving in and scoring a run, and Notareschi continued to display her dominance, batting 1 for 1 and crossing the plate once.

"Hopefully we'll continue to improve as we go along," said Croft.

The Lady Penguin's record moves to 14-22 and the Lady Penguins will play at home today against Pittsburgh at 3 p.m.
