Student centers are topic of regional conference here

The 1978 Region VII Association of College Unions fall conference will be held at YSU this weekend. Entitled Close Encounters of the 7th Kind, represented by schools from Michigan, Ohio and part of Ontario, the regional conference will focus on current issues and trends involving student centers.

"We expect about 200 students and representatives to attend," notes Phil Hirsch, director of Kilcawley Center, and along with Jane Moore, of YSU, co-chairman of the Conference Planning Committee. "We've got what we think is a great program dealing with college union management and programming, both educationally and socially. We expect participants to learn through exposure to some of the sessions, as well as through interaction with other participants."

The conference, which opens Friday at 5 p.m., closes Saturday night with a New Year's Eve Party. The program has been put together by the Planning Committee, which is composed of members from the University of Akron and Kent State University, as well as from YSU. Members from YSU taking part, in addition to Hirsch and Moore, include Rich Delisio, Carol Hayward, K.J. Satrum, Mark Shanley, Ann Stewart, Sherri Hill, Janet Sofranec, and Rosanne Celliti. In addition, President John Coffelt will welcome the delegates and Kevin Fahey, former director of programming at Kilcawley Center, now Associate Director of the Student Union at University of Connecticut, will participate.

Film shows richness of ethnic culture here

The hour-long documentary film, America's Ethnic Symphony, narrated by Academy Award winning actor Martin Balsam, will be aired at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 17 on Channels 45 and 49 WNEO WEAO Akron/Kent/Youngstown.

Dr. James Dale, political science, YSU, was executive producer of the film, which was produced by the International Institute of Youngstown in conjunction with YSU's Television Center and was supported, in part, by a $50,000 grant by the Ohio Program in the Humanities.

In searching for a nationally recognized actor whose background and personality would be most sympathetic to the spirit of the film, co-producers Dale of YSU and Elizabeth Szabo of the Institute and Director Larue Hall of the University of Akron decided to try to persuade Balsam to do the narration which ties the documentary together. Starring in the highly acclaimed Cold Storage on Broadway at the time, he flew to Cleveland to do the taping.

Bronx-born Balsam was a charter member of the Actor's Studio and received his first critical acclaim in the Broadway production of Paddy Chayefsky's Middle of the Night with Edward G. Robinson.

His TV credits include major roles in Playhouse 90, Studio One, Dr. Kildare, and The Defenders. Last spring he starred in the CBS special, The Seige.

The color documentary was filmed at the Institute's 1977 Youngstown Folk Festival and at various Youngstown locations. Using Youngstown as an example, it portrays the rich diversity of ethnic culture in America and, through personal histories, points up the benefits and problems of ethnicity here.

Portions of the film have already been incorporated into a Public Affairs series for NBC - owned and operated stations under the title of Ethnic America: Take 2 to be shown on WNBC New York Oct. 16-20, KNBC Los Angeles Nov. 13-17, WMAQ Chicago Dec. 11-15 and WRC Washington Jan. 8-12 with a panel discussion by Dale, Szabo, Carl Bonutti of Cleveland State University and Dr. Henry Leonard of Kent State.

The musical sound track was provided by YSU's Dana Symphony.

Set for next weekend

Folk festival forthcoming

YSU's faculty and students are again deeply involved in the International Institute's annual Folk Festival to be held next weekend at Stambaugh Auditorium.

Elaine Juhasz of the art department designed the cover motif for the 36-page program book which will be available for $1 during Festival hours, Saturday, October 21, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday, October 22, 1:30 to 11 p.m. The motif is also being silk-screened on t-shirts which will be available in all colors and sizes at a special booth.

Marilyn Kocinski's folk dancers will perform on Stambaugh's main stage Sunday.

Students from the Teachers' Corps acted as guides for the thousands of fourth graders from Youngstown's public and parochial schools who were bused to the Festival yesterday and today. Howard Pullman, Estelita Lencyk and Lee Peterson of the corps were members of the committee which planned the Education Days.

Graduate student Sue Bannon has been a special assistant to the Festival director, Elizabeth Szabo, and also compiled an International Break Cook-booklet which will be available for $.25.

Dr. William Binning, Edna T. MacDonald, Dr. James Dale and Dr. Stevens Redburn, all members of the Institute's board of trustees, have been active in preparations for this seventh annual Festival which will feature the food, arts, crafts, music, dance and folk lore of over 60 nations.

'Dizzie' provides jazz happening

by Naton Leslie

Jazz was "happening" at the Centennial Room in the Holiday Inn on Belmont Avenue last night. Featured there is a jazz quartet; a drummer, a lead guitarist, a bass guitarist, and a curious man on trumpet and congo drums. The Drummer was smooth and accurate, the guitarist was unique, the bass player inspired, and the horn player was John Birks "Dizzie" Gillespie, a man whose name will vouch for his performance.

Gillespie, known worldwide as the inventor of "BeBop" (an off-spring of jazz) and the master of trumpet and percussion, made his Youngstown debut a memorable experience. Playing a mixture of his own past compositions, and borrowed material, Dizzie won over a somewhat hesitant audience last night.

Gillespie will be performing nightly at the Holiday Inn Sept. 13-15.

Dizzie's performance could best be described as amazing. His trumpet solos were virtually without equal. Always present, but never intrusive, Dizzie's horn supplied the unifying element in the performance.

Providing the beat for the quartet was Mickey Roaker, a man whose name has appeared on countless albums for countless studio musicians. In addition, Benjamin Franklin Brown on bass guitar and Rodney Jones on lead guitar tied melody and rhythm to Dizzie's horn-blowing.

Brown, Jones and Roaker delivered startling solo's as each took turns throughout each song. Jones, however, stood out as the most versatile of Dizzie's band. A young man, Jones astonished the audience with guitar riffs that seemed near impossible.

Scat talk, a brand of jazz vocals Dizzie invented, was absent from his performance. However, a member of his audience mounted the stage to supply this missing element.

Dizzie's performance is a lifetime opportunity to witness musical history.

A free press?

In many of its recent rulings, some of which directly involve the press, the United States Supreme Court has continuously overlooked Constitutional guarantees specifically those concerning freedom of speech and a free press. This past summer, for example, the Court ruled that college newsrooms are liable to search and seizure of notes and files. This trend, consistent with the conservative character of the Court, continues with the ruling last week keeping New York Times reporter Myron Farber in jail for contempt of court for not surrendering his notes taken while covering a murder case.

Let us examine some background on the case involved. Farber was covering a story concerning the mysterious deaths of three patients at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell, New Jersey. Due partially to his own investigations, a physician, Dr. Mario Jascelevich, was indicted on three counts of murder. Jascelevich's attorneys subpoenaed Farber's notes, saying they were vital to their client's case. Farber refused, responding that the notes would do nothing to clear Jascelevich, and pointed out that in any event he was protected by the Constitution and by "shield" laws in New York and New Jersey that protect the confidentiality of a reporter's sources. Farber and the Times were cited in contempt of court, and Farber was sent to prison until he turned over his notes: the Times was fined $5000 a day.

He appealed the case, throughout the lower courts and up to the New Jersey Supreme Court, but all were turned down. Finally, last Friday, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that it would not yet hear the case, and remanded the decision to the New Jersey Superior Court, where the case originated. Judge Theodore Troutwein of the Superior Court upheld the original decision and sent Farber back to jail, where he has served 29 days.

The Supreme Court's refusal to hear the case, to make a ruling covering journalistic privilege, is more than a stall of constitutional process. It is a total ignorance of the right to a free press, and with it, the attendant right of free speech. This comes as no surprise, given the character of the court. It is a disappointment, however, to realize that those we entrust with the safeguarding of our rights are intent on throwing them away.

Despite a direct violation of constitutional law, this ruling, and rulings like it violate a journalist's code of ethics. That code protects the confidentiality of his sources, and ensures certain measure of trust, perhaps a journalist's most valuable asset. In failing to recognize this, the Court jeopardizes not only the press, but the Constitution itself, and, ultimately, the nation.

To the editor of the Jambar:

When a child is born, it requires the constant attention of at least one significant adult twenty-four hours a day. If the child is to develop as a healthy, productive individual, this significant person will be needed until the child is eighteen years old. Once the child starts school, this person could be the school bus driver, policeman, counselor, athletic director, etc. These people are provided by society in order to insure that the child has every opportunity to develop fully.

If the cost of these individuals averages out to $2.50 an hour per child, society will invest $60 a day, $21,900 a year, and $394,200 of its resources in developing and educating each eighteen year old youth. If, in the society as a whole, there are two children per family unit, the society will invest, in round figures, $200,000 of its resources in developing each eighteen year old youth. Would it be considered impractical or unprofitable for society to invest an additional $6,000, or $50 per academic hour, to provide these individuals with a tuition free education through the college level and double their mental and productive efficiency?

Now, let us look at the matter as a sound and practical business investment. The median income of an individual with an eight grade education or less is, in round figures, $5,000 a year, a high school graduate $10,000, and a college education $15,000 a year. If society invests $6,000 in order to provide an individual with a tuition free education

Runners will vie in 2nd Peace Race here in November

Frank Shorter and a field of world-class runners will compete in the Free World's second International 25 Kilometer Peace Race in Youngstown, Ohio, on Saturday, November 11, 1978.

The race begins at 12:00 noon in Youngstown's Mill Creek Park with entries from more than 30 states and a host of foreign competitors.

Shorter took a silver medal in the 1976 Olympics and won the 1976 National AAU 25 Kilometer championship in Mill Creek Park. He enjoys the woodland setting, calling it "one of the best in North America."

Other outstanding U.S. runners in the Youngstown Peace Race include Tom Fleming of Bloomfield, N.J., an alternate on the Olympic team and winner of the New York Marathon in 1974 and 1975, John Vitale of Bridgeport, Conn., who placed second to Shorter in 1976 race in Youngstown, and Randy Thomas 3rd in Boston in 1978, with a Marathon time of 2 hr. 11 minutes, also entered.

Fleming says the Mill Creek Course is the "paragon for future Olympians" because of the varied terrain, steep hills and meadowlands with paved roadways.

The Youngstown Peace Race is patterned after the International Peace Race in Kosice, Czechoslovakia. World-class runners from Europe, Asia,

Service table aids

Evening students

by Bob McKimmy

A service table operated by Student Affairs is on the second floor of Kilcawley Center near the Spring Street entrance. This table is in operation each Monday through Thursday evening between the hours of 5:00 and 8:00 p.m.

Charles McBriarty, dean of student affairs, said that the purpose of this table is to provide information to the part-time and night-time student about services, programs, and activities available to them. Its purpose is also to assess the needs and concerns of these students.

Through these contacts it will be determined if there is a need for the Bursar's, Registration, and Financial Aids Offices to be open at night.

Participants manning the table are McBriarty, David Bertelsen, assistant dean of student affairs; Patricia Bleidt, assistant dean of student affairs; and Phil Hirsch, director of Kilcawley Center. Printed information is also available at the table.

Initial response to the service table has been good.

McBriarty encourages any evening student to stop by.

Penguins seek record-breaking win; now third in national rankings

by Bill Snier

The Penguins will be attempting to write chapter six of their success story on Saturday afternoon when YSU journeys to Wilberforce, Ohio for a date with Central State.

The Penguin coaching staff refers to this 1978 season as a book with each game becoming a new chapter in that book. Bill Narduzzi's Penguins will attempt to make Central State into chapter six of that book.

The Penguins are currently ranked third in the nation in the latest Division II poll. Two other Mid-Continent Conference teams - Akron and Northern Michigan also hold places in the top ten.

There may lie the biggest problem the Penguins will have with Central State. The Marauders are considered more or less a "breather game" on the YSU schedule. The Penguins may attempt to take Central State too lightly with archrival Akron due here next week for the Homecoming game. YSU must take one game at a time to continue their success and not be caught looking past the Marauders to Akron.

This will be the seventh meeting between the two teams with the Penguins holding a 7-0 edge. The Marauders enter the game with a 1-3 record with two of their losses coming by a total of only three points. Central State and the Penguins have one common opponent in Eastern Illinois with the Marauders losing 41-16 while YSU was victorious 40-24.

The Marauders are averaging 22.5 points per ball game while giving up 22.2 points on defense.

Quarterback Jeff Postel leads the Marauders' offensive charge. He has completed 38 of 104 passes for 643 yards and five TDs. The running attack consists of sophomore Luther Cox, who has picked up 165 yards in 41 carries, and freshman Larry Kelly, who has contributed 135 yards in 40 attempts.

People to watch defensively for the Marauders include linebackers Ivan Seahorn and Richard Armour, tackle Ken Smith and defensive back Johnny Radford.

Game time at Wilberforce, Ohio is 1 p.m. You can hear all the action on either WFMJ radio with Jack Corrigan or WKBN radio with Jim Campbell. In case you missed last week's thrilling game with Eastern Illinois, be sure to catch highlights of the game on WFMJ-TV, Channel 21's "Penguin Football Report" with Jack Corrigan and Bill Narduzzi at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Conference Notes
YSU is currently tied for first place in the MCC with Akron, both are 2-0...YSU is the only undefeated team in the conference...YSU still leads the MCC in rushing defense and offense...YSU is third in total offense and second in total defense this week... The Penguins top the league and the nation in scoring offense and are second in the MCC in scoring defense...Marschell Brumfield leads the MCC in scoring as well as leading the nation in the same category with 72 points...Broomer is now second to Poke Cobb in rushing.

Mountaineering #2.

SELECTING THE PROPER GEAR

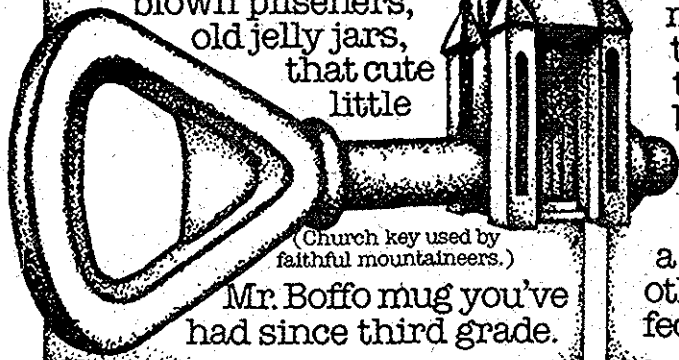

The Busch® label is where it all begins. Note the snowy, craggy peaks affixed thereto. They are the mountains.

You are the mountaineer. And this is an ad. The subject of which is selecting the proper gear for mountaineering. (It all fits together so nicely, doesn't it?)

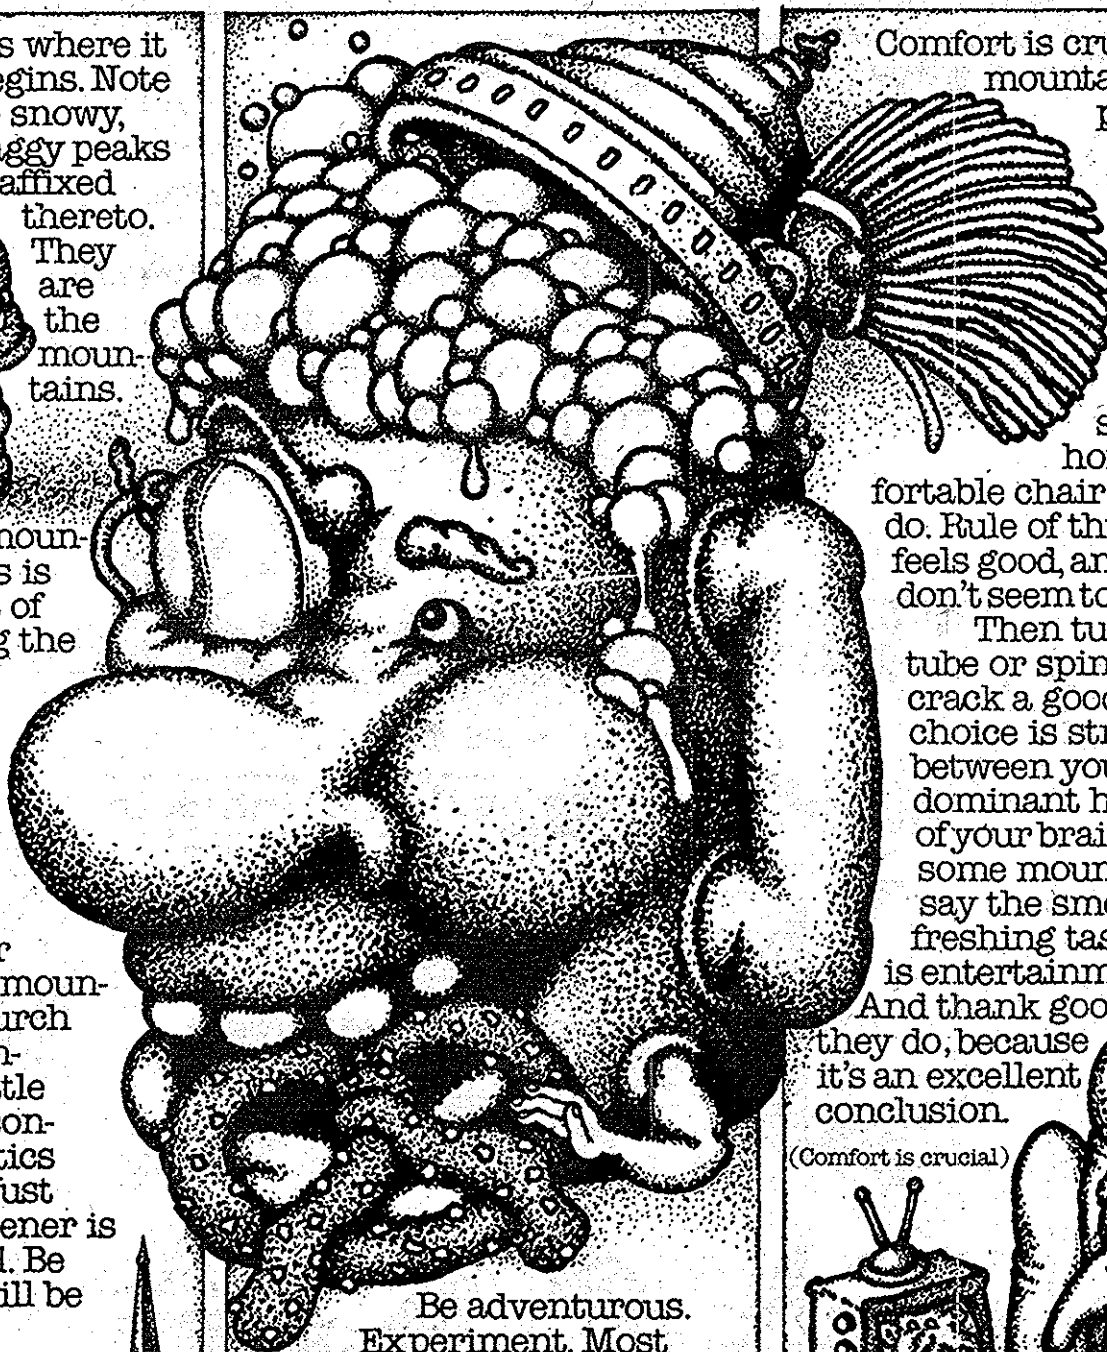

First and foremost, you'll need to pop the mountain top. For this task, faithful mountaineers use a church key. Secular mountaineers use a bottle opener. Don't be confused by these antics with semantics. Just remember, the opener is your primary tool. Be true to it and it will be true to you.

Second, choose a glass. Here the options become immense. German steins, hand-blown pilseners, old jelly jars, that cute little (Church key used by faithful mountaineers.)

Mr. Boffo mug you've had since third grade.

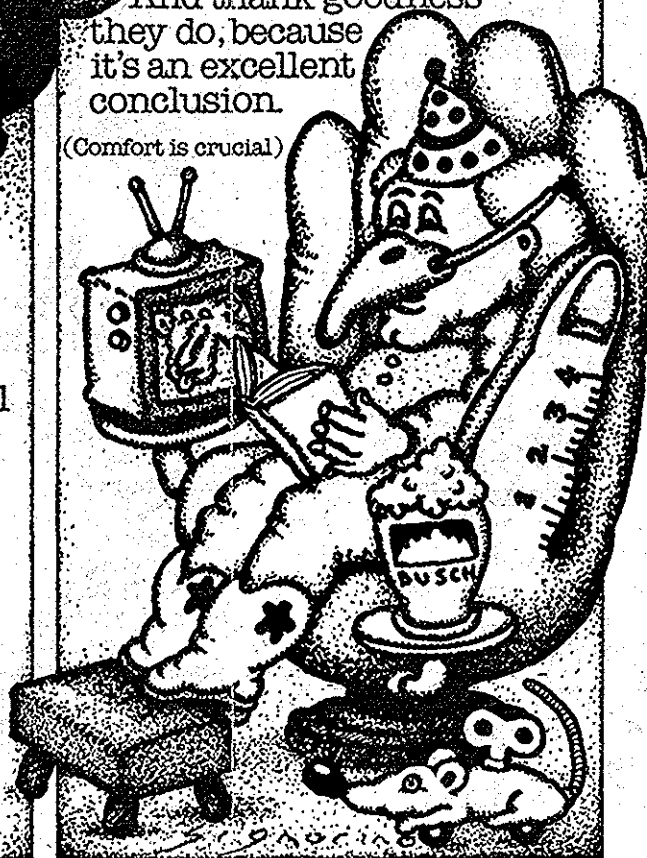

Comfort is crucial. If you mountaineer in public, pick a padded bar stool, preferably one that spins (to facilitate admiring the scenery). At home, a comfortable chair or sofa will do. Rule of thumb: if it feels good, and the police don't seem to mind, do it.

Then turn on the tube or spin a tune or crack a good book. The choice is strictly between you and the dominant hemisphere of your brain. Of course, some mountaineers say the smooth, refreshing taste of Busch is entertainment enough. And thank goodness they do, because it's an excellent conclusion.

(Comfort is crucial)

Be adventurous. Experiment. Most mountaineers have a personal preference. You'll develop one too.

Food is next. Proper mountaineering, not to mention proper nutrition, requires a smorgasbord selection of snacks. Some mountaineers have suffered from a potato chip deficiency, a pretzel imbalance or other serious dietary defects. Plan ahead.

Don't just reach for a beer. BUSCH Head for the mountains.
