Mideast visit

Two countries seek peace

by Mike McGuire

An intensive two-week study mission to the perennially-troubled Middle East has convinced Dr. Elizabeth Sterenberg, former professor of Political Science and International Relations at YSU, that a lasting peace is the longed-for objective of both the Arabs and Israelis, she said.

"Most of the people in the Mideast want peace and want very much to see the treaties signed," commented Dr. Sterenberg after returning home from the mission last week. "Their thinking is not all alike, but they are sure of one thing; nobody wants war again."

Dr. Sterenberg and 15 other professors from different universities around the country investigated the prospects for peace in the Middle East. The trip was sponsored by the American Professors for Peace in the Middle East.

"They set up a very fine trip for us," Dr. Sterenberg said, "making it possible for us to talk to many knowledgeable people and allowing us to visit a session of the Knesset (Israeli parliament)." The Knesset session the professors heard, however, dealt not at all with the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Most of the study mission had Sterenberg and her 15 companions hearing the opinions on the Mideast conflict of university professors, economists, an Israeli journalist and an Iranian oil man. Though the group heard "many differing opinions on how to achieve peace," Dr. Sterenberg said she was most impressed by the thoughts of Shimon Shmeir, a professor at Tel Aviv University.

In explaining the reasons for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's November 1977 peace initiative, Shmeir characterized the beleaguered Egyptians as "fighting a two-front war": one with Israel and another with their own country's formidable economic problems. Israel was burdened by similar troubles, with inflation there running at a rate of 40 to 50 percent, according to Dr. Sterenberg.

Shmeir also pointed out that the issue of international relations, as well as an economic struggle, were closely linked to Sadat's peace initiative. He said that a bloc of moderate anti-Soviet states—Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Morocco, Iran, and other smaller Arab nations—were uniting to put a stop to the radical leftist movements that the Soviets were fomenting in the Mideast. During 1978, however, the situation changed, and this bloc of states began to crumble, the most serious cause for the deterioration being the uprising in Iran against the Shah. American influence in both South Yemen and Ethiopia has been diminished through the

Talented accounting major comes into limelight for the Spotlight

by Wayne K. Tompkins

How would you feel if you auditioned for a play, landed a part, reported for rehearsal, and discovered that you were the only cast member who was not a theatre major?

Though accounting major Roy Scarazzo is not a theatre student, nor has he ever taken a dramatics course, he seems undaunted by the fact that he is co-starring with Spotlight Theatre veterans and theatre majors Christina Webb and Larry Kale in The Subject Was Roses.

True, this is Scarazzo's acting debut with Spotlight Theatre, but he has profited from numerous theatrical endeavors apart from YSU.

"I got interested in theatre when I was in the eighth grade," says Scarazzo. "I was the sound man for a production we did, because I was the only one with a tape recorder."

Scarazzo also stocked the backstage scene for Spotlight Theatre as the assistant stage manager for Blythe Spirit this past summer.

On stage, he has worked with Youngstown Playhouse's Children's Theatre, and in high school was in Neil Simon's Star Spangled Girl. Coincidentally, The Subject Was Roses and Star Spangled Girl both have only a three member cast.

Scarazzo says he auditioned for the current Spotlight production after an involuntary absence from the theatre. "I wanted to get involved again after being in the service for three years."

In his first audition for a part in a Spotlight production, Scarazzo saw serious competition from two other gentlemen. "I really do not know what made him (the director) choose me. I guess there were just qualities in me that my character was to have."

With a cast as small as The Subject Was Roses, one might wonder if student apathy proved to be an asset to a non-theatre major trying to land a part. "I don't think there is a problem with apathy. There might have been fewer people trying out for this particular play because the rehearsals ran through the quarter break," says Scarazzo.

In the play, Scarazzo takes the part of Timmy Cleary, a 21-year-old veteran returning home from the service. The plot revolves around his attempted re-adjustment to the situations at home with his parents, played by Webb and Kale.

Considering the fact that Scarazzo has had less formal theatrical training, is he subject to more attention from the director than his co-stars? "Because of the fact that I have been away for a while," states Scarazzo, "the director did have to show me how to move on stage again. But I do not recall him spending more time with me than the other characters."

Webb adds "Because he plays someone closer to his own age, coming home from the army as Roy did, he can more easily relate to his character than we can playing his parents."

It is hard to say why this would-be-accountant is so comfortable on stage with two theatre majors. Perhaps it is his general familiarity with the theatre, the type of character he plays, or the fact that he is so at ease with Kale and Webb since all three work together at University Book and Supply.

Whatever the case, he says he would definitely like to try out for another play. He is more partial to college work as opposed to community theatre.

Brown Bag lectures give lunchtime entertainment

by Diana Cicchillo

Students attending Kilcawley Center's first Tuesday Brown Bag Series were given information concerning where to take a question and in the second of the continued series Dr. Ronda gave some interesting facts about Sherlock Holmes.

Dr. Charles McBriarty, dean of student affairs, spoke at the first lecture, and explained to the students that his office is open to students with questions.

Any student seeking information, any kind, should go to one of the four offices designed to assist students. Two of the offices are located in Kilcawley Men's Residence Hall; one is in Kilcawley Center and the other is in Todd Administration Building. General information and overall assistance is there for the asking.

Although the main theme of the lecture was where to find answers to questions some students spoke out about particular gripes they have.

The most frequent complaint students have concerns teachers some who neglect to pass out a course outline and others who arrange classes for their own convenience even when students are unable to comply with the new times. A situation was mentioned where a teacher was teaching two classes at the same time in the same room with two different books. McBriarty was "amazed."

Another situation brought to McBriarty's attention was, as he put it, "unethical." A teacher was teaching such advanced material the students needed tutoring, no tutors were available and the teacher then charged the students a fee for helping them!

Other topics discussed were the possibility of student mailboxes on campus and the idea of an information booth, which has been installed in Kilcawley since the lecture.

"Sherlock Holmes is alive and well," said Ronda in his lecture at the second Brown Bag Series. Ronda stated that "asking if Sherlock Holmes is real is like asking if Mickey Mouse is real. If you look for him he indeed is there."

Ronda went on to say how Sherlock Holmes "always offers rational solutions" to the problems he encounters. If anything is beyond belief in the mysteries, the story almost always takes place in America, says Ronda. For the most part, the

Hare writing award to be given

The Robert R. Hare writing award was established in 1974, in memory of Robert R. Hare, a distinguished member of the faculty of the English Dept. of YSU. The award provides $500 each year to an English major at YSU who has demonstrated distinction in writing ability. The award will be given at the end of the spring quarter each year, with announcement of the award winner being made at the annual Honors Day Program.

A candidate applies by submitting his dossier to the chairman of the Robert R. Hare Writing Award Committee (Virginia Hare, new A & S Bldg. Rm. 213, Fifth Ave.) DEADLINE FOR 1979 AWARD, MARCH 2, 1979

REQUIREMENTS:

1. Demonstrated distinction in writing. Writing is defined as including poetry, fiction, drama exposition, journalism.

2. The candidate must be a full-time undergraduate English major at YSU.

3. The candidate may not have won this award the preceding year.

4. The candidate must submit a dossier (see below). Faculty who know of students who may qualify should urge these students to make their application by submitting their dossier.

PROCEDURE FOR APPLYING FOR AWARD:

The dossier must include a sample or samples of the candidate's writing. The maximum number of samples must be limited to three complete works, no excerpts from longer works. There is no limitation as to the length of a sample. The dossier may also include any other evidence of the candidate's demonstrated writing distinction that he feels appropriate such as:

1. Publication record (limited to the last three years)

2. Awards or prizes won for writing

3. Recommendations of faculty or experts in the field

4. Grade on paper submitted for a course in an accredited educational institution

5. Evaluations by specialists (such as editor of publication or teacher of writing course)

PROCEDURE FOR SELECTING THE AWARD WINNER:

1. The winning candidate will be selected by a committee appointed by the chairman of the English Department.

2. Although it is expected that this award will be given each spring, if the committee finds no applicant worthy of the award in a certain year, no award will be given that year.

Mideast visit

actions of Castro's Cubans and the Soviets. "And this poses a very serious threat to the interests of both the Mideast and the United States," Dr. Sterenberg declared.

Professor Shameri felt that Sadat would still want peace even with the development of a Soviet offensive in the Mideast—but, because of that offensive, he will ask Israeli Premier Menachem Begin to pay "a higher price for peace."

Because of these recent developments, Sadat will now ask Begin for a definite date for termination of Israeli occupation of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, which was agreed upon at the Camp David Summit last September, whereas before the Egyptian President would only have sought a "declaration of principles."

"The Israelis, in the interest of peace, will probably have to allow the Palestinians to establish their own state on the West Bank," Dr. Sterenberg said. She found out that some Israelis want this state to be linked with Jordan, while others fear that if it is not independent, Palestinians might take over Jordan and thus threaten Israel. Israelis, however, must provide for the Palestinians or else no peace will be achieved, Dr. Sterenberg said.

The uprising against the Shah of Iran—the major cause of the breakdown of the Mideast anti-Soviet bloc—is entirely the fault of the Shah himself, Dr. Sterenberg said she learned from the Iranian oil expert. "The Shah tried to force modernization on Iran too quickly, and went against the whole way of life of the Moslem people," Dr. Sterenberg said. "They (the Moslems) felt that the Shah was undermining their influence. Iranian students, sent to the universities by the Shah, got new ideas from their education and wanted to bring about reforms, such as spreading the wealth and improving the lot of the lower classes, which the regime does not want to do."

The Soviets also have a good chance to stir up trouble in Iran, Dr. Sterenberg said, because that country is rife with anti-Americanism—the direct result of the Shah's importing Americans into Iran to help modernize the country.

Dr. Sterenberg and the company of professors also had occasion to visit two Arab villages and to talk with the townspeople and mayors. One of these villages, Tamra, sits on land that is currently occupied by Jews on the West Bank. In Tamra, the mayor complained to the professors that Arab young people were being denied the educational opportunities that were available to young Jews, and suggested that the Israeli government should assist the Arabs living there with the school systems and irrigation. These people, said Dr. Sterenberg, "had some sympathy with the Palestinians." The professor reported that Arabs living in Israel are not required to serve in the Israeli Army, as are all Israeli men and women over 17.

In America, some of the press has been bad regarding the fact that Sadat and Begin were jointly awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, for the treaties have not yet been finalized. But Dr. Sterenberg says she thinks that the two leaders are deserving of the honor.

"I think they (Sadat and Begin) are trying very hard to bring about peace," she said. "The fact that they're simply making the effort is, in itself, an enormous step in their nations' long drawn-out conflict."

In assessing the two leaders, Dr. Sterenberg commented: "Sadat's initiative in making his peace initiative is expressing the mood of the Egyptian people." She continued that the people of that country are one with their President in wanting a cessation of their economic woes.

Of Menachem Begin, she is in agreement with an Israeli journalist she talked to who told her that "Begin is a very good politician within his own party, the Likud. He has worked well in getting Likud members to rally around him and support the treaties. But Begin went to the Camp David summit not quite as well-prepared as he should have been, and sacrificed a little too much."

Summing up the study mission, Dr. Sterenberg said that she "learned very much about the Mideast situation. Of course I had known of some of it through my teaching, but to actually be there and to know the situation was a true educational experience." Asked if she would consider returning to Israel, she replied, "I would very much enjoy going back. After all, you can't learn all you need to know in just two weeks," she added with a smile.

Sterenberg taught at YSU from 1956 and retired last year. Before beginning her YSU career she studied at the University of Chicago.

While here at YSU she was an active member of the faculty union, the OEA, serving on the negotiating committee and as OEA vice president for the academic year 1974-75.

Welcome back Nixon

In recognition of Richard Nixon's efforts to bring about normalization of relations between the People's Republic of China and the United States, Jimmy Carter has invited the ex-president to a White House dinner when China's Premier, Teng Hsiao-Ping visits America in January.

In light of the circumstances surrounding Mr. Nixon's departure from office, an event that occurred not too long ago, this action seems inappropriate to me.

Mr. Nixon resigned from office barely four and a half years ago, rather than face almost certain impeachment by the House of Representatives. The questions surrounding the incidents that led to his resignation, chiefly the Watergate-break-in and the subsequent cover-up, still remain, for the most part, unanswered.

While it is true that most of Mr. Nixon's aides, having been convicted of Watergate-connected crimes, have been released from jail, their debt to society has not yet been paid. Those who know the entire truth, about that shameful summer, (Mr. Nixon included) are not telling, and have realized large profits through books and lectures that barely touch upon what really happened, from break-in to cover-up.

President Carter's invitation carries with it a flavor of forgiveness, that all is well again, Mr. Nixon can come back home. That certainly is not, and cannot be, the case.

It is truly proper for Americans at this time to recognize Mr. Nixon's accomplishments, for without his overtures to Peking during his term in office, the historic events that are now unfolding could not have been realized. But must this recognition come in the form of a White House invitation? Couldn't Mr. Nixon meet the Chinese delegation somewhere else, perhaps the United Nations? I would think so. Would a bank invite an embezzler to an open house? I would hope not.

Travel Club plans nine day tour; Hawaii included

All those interested in traveling will be pleased to know that a new club has been formed on campus: The Travel Club. A registered student organization of YSU, the club was formed to arrange trips for the travel-minded students.

The recently established YSU Travel Club is already planning a trip for this year. Under the direction of club President Christine Galantis and their advisor, Dr. James Kiriazis, the club plans to tour Las Vegas and Hawaii towards the end of the summer. The trip is open to all interested students, faculty, staff, family and friends. The price is $695 based on double occupancy. Single rooms are $776 and $677 for triple rooms. The price includes seven nights at the Sheraton's beautiful Princess Kaulani Hotel in Waikiki, and two nights at the fabulous MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas. Tour highlights include a tour of Honolulu and a Prime Rib Dinner Show at the Tropicana's Tiffany Theater in Las Vegas, feature the famous "Folies Bergere".

For those interested in the trip, a meeting will be held Jan. 31, 1979 in Kilcawley Center, where you can see a film on Hawaii, and further details and information will be provided.

Sister displeased

To the Editor of the Jambar

This letter is being submitted with regard to the January 12th publication of the Jambar - specifically the section about Greek organizations. Days before, you requested of the sorority to which I belong a summary of our "main purpose, specific goals, upcoming winter quarter events, and a brief history of our organization" to be printed in this special edition. I gather the same request was made of the other sororities. I was pleased with the idea and grateful for the opportunity to publicize the efforts, achievements, and many benefits of my sorority. I fulfilled your request with much enthusiasm only to discover on January 12th that you didn't print one word I'd written. I realized the article would be subject to editing in honor of spatial conservation, but to ignore the entire content of an entire article that you requested seems a bit unethical to me. Likewise, not one paragraph was devoted to any single sorority's purpose or goals. Having been a part of sorority life for over three years, I can testify to the fact that the challenges offered by sorority life are noteworthy to say the least, and certainly do not center around "who swiped the toilet paper."

If in the future you decide to inform the student body of what sorority life is really all about, please let me know. I will submit the same article you didn't publish the first time around.

Helen Koutsourais
President,
Phi Mu Sorority

*(Editor's Note: The above information was requested of all sororities and fraternities at YSU. However, since only six of the Greek organizations responded to the request, the Jambar chose not to print this partial representation, but rather to print more general stories applicable to all Greek organizations.)*

Out of tune

To the Editor of the Jambar:

I would like to address this letter to the engineering students at YSU who may someday be involved in the construction of buildings that would house musical instruments, such as our own Bliss Hall. I hope that it will prevent another tragedy, such as the one I am about to relate, from happening.

At the present time, the pianos and organs in Bliss Hall are slowly but surely being destroyed by extreme changes of temperature and humidity. Being a music major myself, I am confronted daily with the effects of the varying atmospheric conditions in the building when I practice on pianos that are wildly out of tune and organs plagued with one mechanical problem after another, (not to mention their tuning problems as well). The wood in the instruments naturally expands and contracts with changes in humidity and the continuation of present conditions will inevitably lead to the demise of a few hundred thousand dollars worth of fine instruments.

Apparently there is no way to correct this situation, which is nothing new to anyone involved in the music department. It is merely my hope that another such travesty should never occur.

Off-campus housing can provide chance for "insectuous" living

by Larry Detwiler

When speaking of campus housing, one is speaking of off-campus housing, since there is virtually no on-campus housing, save for a handful of people. And I would imagine that the token dormitory is fumigated and debugged as often as possible. But what about the residences of the great masses of students who have earned the status of living in antique pigeon roosts on the north side? True, the price is right on that side of town, but as a building ages, says YSU's history department, it will have a natural tendency to get older. And vice-versa.

Luckily, I was able to talk to some of the hard-core northsiders who actually live in some of the ancient bug-bombs. Shimon Mace is one of these people who moved to the north side from Egypt over nine years ago to attend school here at YSU. He is presently working on his two year electrical engineering degree so he can complete the wiring in his 152-year-old structure. On Wick Oval, Mace said that the bugs did not bug him in the least, but did say he preferred the larger ones fried up with eggs in the morning.

World's fastest hypnotist

Eagles to appear at Kilcawley

Having appeared on more than 300 college and university campuses throughout the United States and Canada, Gil Eagles, well known psychic, will be appearing at YSU, Wednesday, Jan. 24, 8 p.m. in Kilcawley Center Chestnut Room. Admission will be $1.

Billed as "the world's fastest hypnotist," Eagles is a dynamic showman whose performance will demonstrate his incredible abilities of E.S.P. and hypnosis. Eagles uses total audience participation to skillfully and tastefully guide his audiences through the amazing and fascinating possibilities of the mind.

From his audience of total strangers, Eagles will draw names, numbers, innermost thoughts and answers to personal questions. With his skill of hypnosis, Eagles will unleash his hypnotized subjects' inhibitions, resulting in a laugh-provoking and most entertaining show. Good Taste and respect for the privacy and dignity of his audience always prevails.

Eagles was born in Tanganyika,

Archibald Kontex of Ohio Avenue, is another student involved with bugs and aging house problems. He stated "The bugs would not be so bad if I could only get those two dead dogs out of my cellar." Archibald continued that he knew Shimon Mace, coincidentally, and wants his notes back from Introductory Wiring 101, 1968.

Iglore Kleats probably lives in one of the dumpier houses on the north side since his residence was torn down two years ago. Kleats, who still resides in the garbage-covered basement said that the only time it's really bad is in the winter or when he must make one of his weekly appearances in class. Kleats went on to say, utilizing that clever quote from Spiro Agnew, "I like dis place a whole bunch of a lot."

Down the street from Iglorie lives Coco Puffs in another north side rendition of country living, city style. She's another undecided permanent senior living in one of the largest oak trees in Wick Park. She said the only problem she'd had with her place is that while cleaning her dusty archives of Anatole Deipote records, an American cockroach ran across an album jacket. Ms. Puffs also said that Shimon Mace had some of her notes.

The last north sider I talked to lived in a "rather nice" place on Elm Street, but he did not have a nose. As soon as I entered his dwelling I could detect the missing smell detector subtracted from his face. He told me that the ancient swinging door in his hallway robbed him of his nasal apparatus one evening when, as "no-nostrils" put it, "Apparently it had too much to drink." And in turn, three cockroaches carried away the dismembered nose and ate it. He also told me as I was leaving, that the northside houses stink.

Well, if bugs are a problem on the north side, in our campus housing, that is, then it doesn't appear to be much of a problem. At least not as much as S and M problems among the students. And that should be looked into, as well as Shimon Mace's class notes from "Introduction to the Carmen Opera and it's Wiring Problems While Teaching, Victorian Literature," a required course for English majors and American Indians.

A football player and his wife following the birth of their fourth son, received this message. "We've rejoiced over the addition to your team of a center, a guard, and a tackle. This, we presume, is the end."

The human race usually ends in a tie - a matrimonial one."

Ski Club offers bus trips to slopes; low as $38

by Ed Menaldi

If you are looking for a good time, at a reasonable price you don't have to look very far. The Ski Club is for you. If you don't know anything about skiing, don't let that stop you.

Ralph Valentino, senior, Engineering, is the vice president of the Ski Club and according to him, "your not skiing up to your potential unless you fall."

Valentino said, "The Ski Club has the reputation of giving some fantastic back rubs to sooth those aching muscles."

Matt Jenkins, junior, Business Administration, is the president of the YSU Ski Club. He reported that the Ski Club has a good package deal at Boston Mills for those interested in skiing.

There are five round trips this season by bus remaining. After the bus trips have been used there will be car pools. The price is $55 with rented equipment and $38 with no equipment.

Jenkins explained there is skiing from 7:30 to 11 p.m. every Friday, and a party in the lodge from 11 to 12 p.m., which includes beer, pizza, pop, potato chips, and a good time.

Valentino added, there are four lessons included in the program that are given by professional ski instructors, lasting 1½ hours each. He further added, the Ski Club skies in the same program as Keit State, A Akron, Bowling Green, and others.

As an activity Jenkins looks at skiing as a way of keeping winter fun.

Valentino points out that people don't do much during the winter. He looks at winter as a time to hibernate and get fat. But, skiing he said, keeps you in shape.

Valentino, compares skiing to swimming because it uses most of your body. "Skiing builds coordination and requires endurance to physical fatigue and the element of weather," he said.

Jenkins explains, skiing can be expensive if you get new equipment. However, he stated, it can be cheaper if you ski in a group situation, which lets you get a group price.

Valentino reported that the Ski Club is a registered organization, and as such is eligible to obtain funds from student government. He adds, "This year we obtained $1,705 from student government. This money is used totally to cut down on transportation, lodging, advertisements and indirectly dues."

Approximately 50 members are in the Ski Club, and it will grow," remarked Valentino. He continued, "At this point, we will come in contact with over 300 different skiers before the season is over."

Jenkins said, for those interested in a car pool trip this weekend to Southern Springs Penna. to meet between 3 and 4 p.m. Friday in front of Kilcawley. Price is $55 for mem-

Tournament held; team places third

by George Cheney

The YSU Speech Team placed third in overall sweepstakes at the Ohio State University Individual Events Tournament in Columbus.

With only seven team members participating, YSU placed behind Bowling Green State University and Ohio University, the two best teams in the state. This marks the fifth consecutive tournament where the YSU team has won a sweepstakes trophy.

Capturing first place in dramatic interpretation for YSU was freshman Frank Trimble. Trimble won with a selection from Paddy Chayefsky's Marty, and also took second in novice poetry and fourth in novice prose.

Senior Rick Schilling won second in informative speaking with a discussion of puppetry, and placed third in dramatic interpretation, fourth in prose, and fourth in poetry.

George Cheney, also a senior, took second in extemporaneous speaking with a talk on solar energy, and placed fourth in impromptu and speaking and sixth in persuasion. Cheney also placed second in pentathlon, which involves overall performance in five events.

Sophomore Rish Core placed third in novice prose with a selection from Poe's "Fall of the House of Usher."

Dave Cipriano, a freshman, won fifth in novice poetry, interpreting "Nightmare at Noon" by Stephen Vincent Benet.

Sophomores Peg Senzarino and Lateefa Duke also contributed to the sweepstakes total with each of their three events.

Today and tomorrow YSU will host the Third Annual Ohio Novice Individual Events Championships in Cushman Hall. Interested observers are welcome to attend.

YSU is awarded

$1,800 by Kodak

YSU has received $1800 in Kodak employee/alumni grants through Eastman Kodak Company's 1978 Educational Aid Program (EAP), announces Dr. Neil Humphrey, YSU Vice President for Financial Affairs.

In recognition of the contributions made by college and university graduates to the company's business success, Kodak employee/alumni grants ($150 to publicly supported institutions like YSU) are awarded to accredited institutions for each undergraduate or graduate year completed by those who graduate and join Kodak within five years of their graduation. The grants, awarded during the graduates' fifth year of employment, are made on behalf of those employees who are utilizing their academic training in the performance of their job duties.

Kodak employee/alumni grants made this year are on behalf of the following YSU graduates: Zena Grzywna Wych, class of '73, employed at Kodak Park, Rochester, NY; Olga Malito Pilak, class of '73, Kodak Park and George E. Zurawick, class of '69, Tennessee Eastman Co., Kingsport, TN.

"A sense of atmosphere and reality" are a part of the Sherlock Holmes mysteries explained Ronda. The stories are real in the sense that the names of people and places are real. The weather of England is also used to compliment the mysterious nature of the stories.

"Because he never lived he can never die," concluded Ronda in his lecture to celebrate the 125th birthday of Sherlock Holmes.

The trip includes two nights lodging in chalets, two breakfasts and one dinner. Your lift ticket is good from 5 p.m. Friday until 5 p.m. Sunday.

According to Valentino, a trip to Snowshoe and a cross-country event (which is like hiking and back packing, because you glide instead of walk) are scheduled for February.

Valentino said, "Because of the increasing popularity of the sport, the club is now sponsoring trips in conjunction with the Recreation Committee of KCPB, (Kilcawley Center Program Board). This helps us reach more people."

Placement Center holds annual Cleveland interview

For the third consecutive year, YSU was well represented at the annual Cleveland Job Interview Center. Students about to enter the job market were given the opportunity to schedule interviews with over 90 Cleveland area employers. Among the 90 employers were representatives from banks, business firms, health care agencies, government agencies, service organizations, and engineering firms. All were interested in talking with seniors and recent graduates about career opportunities available within their organizations.

Thirty YSU students rode to the Cleveland Interview Center on a chartered bus, a service provided free of charge by the Career Planning and Placement Office on campus. They were among the very first of hundreds to arrive for the Wednesday morning registration session. Some gained as many as seven interviews, while others gained fewer but nevertheless came away with valuable information and leads. The thirty YSU students scheduled a total of 75 interviews that day, with 32 additional interviews occurring the following two days. Some have already followed up with second interviews and company visits.

Next December, the Career Planning and Placement Office plans to coordinate another bus trip to the Cleveland Job Interview Center. At that time, all students graduating between June, 1979-June, 1980 will be invited and, in fact, urged to take advantage of this outstanding opportunity.

Women streak to sixth straight; men drop third in last four games

by Bill Snier

The YSU women's basketball team continued to show its dominance on the hardwood as the Penguins streaked to their sixth straight victory, a 95-43 victory over the Ashland Eagles.

The game, which was played as a prelim to the men's game with Ashland Wednesday night, saw the Penguins connect on a 44 of 78 from the field for a 56% shooting night.

Although the results were the same as the five previous contests, a new high scorer made her presence felt. Junior Carol Gifford connected on 12 of 16 from the field for 24 points to take game honors. She also hauled in 12 rebounds for the winners.

The Penguins sophomore tandem of Wanda Grant and Vicki Lawrence also featured in the victory. Grant tossed in 16 points and Lawrence chipped in with 10 along with 11 assists. Cindy Diatko also turned in another fine performance with 10 points and 11 assists.

Last weekend, the Penguins were able to continue their streak at the expense of two Division I opponents. The Penguins opened their successful weekend with a 77-59 victory over Marshall University. Then, on Saturday afternoon, the Penguins topped Ohio University in their closest game to date, 57-51.

With their undefeated string on the line, the Penguins will take on tough Bowling Green State University at Beeghly Center tonight. The Penguins will then return to the road on Monday for a date with Gannon College as the preliminary to the men's game with the Knights. Tip off time for tonight's match-up is set for 8 p.m.

The "road to experience" for the youthful YSU Penguins continued Wednesday night as the team put on a splendid offensive show, scoring 102 points. The trouble is ...the opposition bombed in 107 points as Ashland handed the Penguins their third loss in the last four games.

Last Monday night, the Penguins were forced to fight a rather sluggish performance and some very poor officiating on the way to a 59-50 loss to the Westminster Titans.

Penguin scoring sensation Dave Ziegler was held to only 14 points. Bruce Alexander topped YSU with 16 points in a losing cause. Westminster star forward Tim Glass led Westminster to their first victory over the Penguins in 23 years with 25 points.

On Wednesday, the Ashland

Eagles brought their run and gun show to Beeghly Center. The Eagles, who are averaging over 90 points per game, topped the century mark for the seventh time this season.

The Penguins had one of their hottest shooting nights of the season connecting on 46 of 79 from the field. But it was at the foul line, where the Penguins have been winning their share of games, that the team fell short. While YSU hit on 10 of 14 from the line, Ashland connected on 17 of 24 from the charity stripe.

Dave Ziegler recovered his shooting touch with 36 points to lead all scorers. Bruce Alexander with 18 and Mitchell Atwood with 14 backed him up in the scoring column. Ashland showed a very balanced scoring attack, placing six men in double figures. Mike Nichols and Russell Lewis led the Eagles with 26 and 22 points respectively.

The Penguins are off this weekend before traveling to Erie, Pa. on Monday for a game with the Gannon Knights. They will return home on Thursday for an MCC encounter with Northern Michigan. The Penguins are second in the MCC with a 2-1 record, one game behind league leader Eastern Illinois.

Football Honors

Honors continue to pour in for the successful 1978 YSU football team. Besides the naming of six All-Americans and Head Coach Bill Narduzzi being named as Ohio Coach of the Year, defensive tackle Sam Barbera has been named to the second-team Academic All-American team.

Also, a resolution was adopted by the Ohio State Senate on Wednesday, paying tribute to the YSU Penguins and Narduzzi. The separate resolutions were introduced by Senators Harry Meshel and Thomas E. Carney.

Gymnastics

The 1978-79 swimming season opened at Allegheny, yesterday for the YSU women's swimming team and first-year coach Gretchen Julian.

Coach Julian is looking forward to her first year with the Penguin girls, but states, "this will be a rebuilding year for the women's team."

Returning from last year's team is senior Mary Berard, who is a breast stroker and a middle distance freestyler, and sophomore Jeannine Crossley, also a breast stroker and a short distance freestyler.

"We have two very good divers in Joyce Seiple and Bonnie Dickson and they should do well," explained Julian "We have a difficult schedule this year.

Men's swim team springs upset over Fairmont State

by Melinda Ropar

The YSU men's swim team scored an upset victory over Fairmont State in their home opener last Saturday by the score of 63-50.

The win gives YSU a 2-1 mark on the season, while Fairmont, a respected NAIA division power, dropped their mark to 5-2.

Coach Tucker Di Edwardo commented on the victory by saying "Since our team has been plagued by injury and numerous health problems, I was extremely amazed at their performances. I'd have to say that it was one of the most gratifying victories for me."

Senior co-captain Paul Lonneman paced the Penguins by winning the 200 yd. backstroke in 2:00.82. His performance qualified him for the NCAA national swim meet to be held this spring.

Dov Nisman and Tom Bosse also featured YSU by each scoring two individual first place finishes. Bosse won the 100 yd. freestyle in 1:46.86. Nisman on the other hand, captured the 200 yd. butterfly in 2:00.63 and the 1000 yd. freestyle in 10:17.75.

Other first place finishers include Greg Stokes in the 50 yd. freestyle, Lee Brown in the one meter diving event, and the 400 yd. freestyle relay team of Todd Spencer, Jeff Christopher, Paul Lonneman, and Tom Bosse.

The team returns to action next Tuesday against Indiana (Pa.) at Beeghly Natatorium.

Another young team

Gymnasts to host meet Sat.

Still looking for their first win of the season, YSU's young women's gymnastics team will host Central Michigan and Miami (O.) in a triangular meet this Saturday, Jan. 20 at 1 p.m.

The Penguins, 0-3 this season, are a young and competitive squad composed of two juniors, five sophomores, and a freshman. Under coach Helen Mines, YSU has performed well this winter despite their overall record.

In losing to Eastern Michigan last Saturday by 11 points and Ball State by just seven points, Mines was pleased with the performance of several squad members.

Among those singled out for praise were sophomores Michelle Bogner, Barbara Ford, and Lisa Labason and junior Linda Pentz, a regional qualifier last year.
