Williams visits council, gives awards

(See related story page 4)

by George Denney

Public service awards and resolutions honoring former Student Government President Tony Koury and Student Council Chairperson Bob Wasko were presented by Congressman Lyle Williams at a special Council meeting Monday.

During the meeting, Wasko announced his resignation effective Sept. 1.

Williams, when presenting the resolutions, stated, "I want to show my appreciation (of work done by Koury and Wasko) and show that we're aware of what individuals mean . . . to the future of the Mahoning Valley."

The awards, in the form of plaques, are for "leadership, commitment, and achievement."

The resolution presented to Koury concludes that he "worked with the Board of Trustees of YSU, the Alumni Association, the Ohio State Student Association and various committees he served on during his tenure to promote student causes . . . and is a founding member of the American Student Association."

Williams said of Koury, "We are counting on him as an individual to help the 19th District and the Mahoning Valley."

Wasko's plaque was similar to Koury's and his resolution noted that "his accomplishments as the chairman of the Student Council have elevated the influence and stature of Student Council at YSU and in the Youngstown community."

Williams said that "being here

(at Council) is a special privilege." He added, "Sometimes we fail to realize the importance of the youth for being the central part of the energy of our country."

"If we could combine the wisdom of our senior citizens and the energy of our youth, we could solve most of the problems we have today," Williams continued.

Williams, chuckling, said that he would like to have sponsored a bill in Congress honoring Koury and Wasko but that it would have taken much longer than organizing a resolution.

Ray Nakley, present Student Government president, said, "We should realize that what Williams said is that the youth of our country will not go unnoticed."

In other business at the meeting, Wasko suggested that Council elect a new chairperson at another special meeting since a quorum, necessary to authorize results of such an election, was not present at the Monday meeting.

Wasko is planning a special Council meeting Sept. 2. Council should then elect a new chairperson and vice-chairperson. The Council vice-chairperson seat was vacated by Jeff Laret when he became vice-president of Student Government.

Laret also vacated his position as representative-at-large. The seat was filled by Bob Grace, Junior, Education. Grace had received the next highest amount of votes during the previous student elections. His first Council action was to propose a study for a ramp in the Ward Beecher breezeway for handicapped students.

Nakley presented his president's report to Council. The report included the denial by the YSU administration of a professional boxing promoter's request to stage a nationally televised boxing show in Beeghly (the denial is said to be based upon profits which would be made at a state-funded institution) and the search for a new academic vice-president (President Coffelt should approve one of our persons selected by the Senate Executive Committee).

The report also mentioned the hiring of Jack Fahey, coordinator of student activities and Frank Lamas, coordinator of housing—a new position.

Other items discussed at the meeting were a letter to Coffelt from Nakley about releasing student information for the Selective Service (see Jambar, July 24), a recommendation for a resolution to condemn the $51,000 sidewalk relocation project and a report from the July American Student Association Convention attended by six members of Student Council/Government.

Nakley also stated four appointments to his Cabinet: Bruce Lev, Junior, Arts and Sciences, as secretary of external affairs; Joe Daprile, Junior, Business, as secretary of finance; Jim Polko, Junior, Business, as secretary of major events; and Bonnie Dickson, Senior, Business, (cont. on page 3)

Republic Steel vice president

Alumnus Wigton to speak at commencement

Paul N. Wigton, Republic Steel Corporation's vice president for steel operations and a leader of the YSU Alumni Association, will be the speaker at the University's 58th Annual Summer Commencement 10 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 23, Beeghly.

Wigton, a native of Linesville, Pa., has been a leading supporter of YSU for many years—as a student, alumnus and steel executive.

In 1950, he enrolled at the University, when called Youngstown College. After seven years of combining full and part-time studies, Wigton obtained a B.S. in chemistry in 1957. During most of that period, he also was a full-time employee of Republic Steel. Furthermore, during his senior year, Wigton filled a vacancy on the chemistry department faculty/staff.

He returned to YSU from 1959 to 1961 and completed all available metallurgical engineering courses by attending night classes. Wigton later completed a senior executive course at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Wigton became a metallurgical engineer at the Youngstown plant of Republic Steel's Mahoning Valley district in 1959. During his years at Republic Steel, he was named general superintendent of metallurgical services for the district in 1971, assistant to the district manager in 1973, and district manager in 1975.

Wigton was transferred to the company's headquarters in Cleveland in 1978 and became assistant vice-president of steel operations. He was promoted to vice-president of steel operations for the corporation May 15 of this year.

He is a member of the American Institute of Metallurgical Engineers, American Society for Metals, Society for Non-Destructive Testing, the Association of Iron and Steel Engineers, and the American Iron and Steel Institute.

In April 1979, Wigton received the "Outstanding Person" award from the Mahoning Valley Technical Council.

He has served on boards of trustees for a number of civic and cultural organizations and is currently on the Board of Directors of the YSU Alumni Association. Wigton was chairperson of the Alumni phase of the Sports Complex campaign.

Commencement will be broadcast live by WYSU-FM, the University's fine arts radio station, beginning at 9:55 a.m.

Editorial: Cuban unrest

Last week six commercial jets were diverted to Cuba. Saturday, an Eastern flight and a Republic flight from Miami and a Delta flight from San Juan, Puerto Rico, were hijacked to Cuba within a 24-hour period.

According to a report in The Cleveland Plain Dealer, "the six hijackings were the most in a single week in U.S. history, and the three Saturday were the most in a single day."

Fortunately, all passengers, crew members and planes were returned safely to the U.S., while the hijackers, labeled as "disillusioned Cuban refugees," were held by airport authorities in Havana.

These hijackings closely follow a rash of rioting by some 118,000 angry and frustrated Cubans housed in refugee processing camps since their arrival in this country in May.

Various reports attribute their anger and frustration to poor living conditions within the camps, boredom and impatience with the American system of finding resident sponsors for the refugees.

America has always been a land of immigrants and refugees seeking religious, political and/or personal freedoms. And whether they came 200 years ago or two months ago, they all share the same hopes for a better way of life. However, it seems the difference between those refugees of yesterday and those of today can be measured in degrees of patience.

While our ancestors were content to wait and work for opportunities and freedoms they desired, the Cubans resort to hijacking and rioting. Committing these dangerous and illegal acts in a country where they are seeking freedom only serves to emphasize the "anti-social element" label given to them by the Cuban government.

The refugees grow anxious and will not recognize the U.S. law which requires that sponsors must be provided for them before they can leave the camps. Their impatience seems almost ironic since most of the Cubans have waited years for an opportunity to come to America.

If living conditions in Cuba were intolerable enough to prompt a mass exodus and unbearable enough to uproot a culture, surely the refugees can compose themselves long enough for U.S. officials to carry out the resettling process. Patience seems a small price to pay for freedom.

Bloodmobile Visits

The Bloodmobile visit scheduled today at the Red Cross Chapterhouse has been relocated to the Youngstown Vindicator office, Vindicator Square. Persons wishing to donate can stop at the Vindicator today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Contact the Vindicator personnel office at 747-1471 for more information.

The next Bloodmobile visit will take place 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 28, Ohio One Building, 25 East Boardman St. Contact Conrail's Superintendent office at 742-5344 for more information.

Both visits are open to the public.

Poison Control Lecture

The Northeastern Ohio Chapter of the American Association of Critical Care Nurses will hold its monthly meeting Monday, Aug. 25, Classroom 5, St. Elizabeth Hospital Medical Center School of Nursing.

Guest lecturer Carol Markusic, R.N., staff nurse at the Poison Control Center of Mahoning County, will speak on poison control.

The meeting is open to interested R.N.s, L.P.N.s and student nurses. A $1 fee will be charge for non-members.

Letter: Claims negligent reporting

To the Editor of the Jambar:

A common complaint about college newspapers is that they tend to neglect to thoroughly research the stories they present. We find this to be the case in the Jambar's recent editorial denouncing the appearance of "Pete and Pop" in the Bookstore.

Since you were sent a press release describing "Pete and Pop's" appearance, I find it hard to believe you missed the KCPB logo, the words Kilcawley Center Program Board at the top, the words "their appearance is free and sponsored by KCPB" at the end of the first paragraph, and my name and phone number as contact person. Would proper credit (or blame) for the appearance of "Pete and Pop" get in the way of your comments?

Feel free to comment on KCPB activities; we welcome the reaction. But please take the time to get your facts straight. You would be surprised how it improves your credibility as a college newspaper.

Professors consider landscaping soothing to distraught students

by Paula Terlecky

Gently rolling hills dotted with trees, curved walkways, a fountain and assorted flowers edging carefully manicured green lawns . . . if this description sounds peaceful and relaxing, then perhaps YSU's landscaping is serving at least part of its intended purpose—that is, to be aesthetically pleasing.

Commenting on the use of rolling hills and lush green grass, Dr. Jerome Small, psychology, stated, "Soft things are more of the buildings.

Small added that persons must live in their environment and that landscapers try to make it (the environment) as livable as possible.

"We are definitely an urban University," he said. "This is an attempt to bring a touch of nature back. It's certainly more relaxing."

Considering the psychological benefits of the campus landscaping, Small remarked, "It's an environment more appropriate across campus now, in comparison with 12 years ago, is getting aesthetic pleasure and that this could boost his morale.

He recalls that the quadrangle used to have a parking lot in the middle which often became quite muddy. "No one seeing the campus today could imagine it 12 years ago."

Greenman commented that the landscapers had a rectangle to work with and that the resulting hills and curves within it got rid of the monotony.

One of the best achievements, according to him, was their designing of the old library and the covering of its exterior with a brick facade.

"I think the designers of the campus have done a very good job in creating an interesting scene," Greenman affirmed.

The mounds and curves of the landscaping might invite a Freudian interpretation . . .

aesthetically pleasing than hard things. Hills hide one thing from another. This gives the illusion of more space."

The mounds and curves of the landscaping might invite a Freudian interpretation, but Small is doubtful that this was the intent of the landscapers.

He pointed out that the buildings enclosing the quadrangle of the campus are all modern styles—sharp and rectangular. The hills, mounds and sidewalks are curved to soften the harsh effects for intellectual reflection."

Dr. Martin Greenman, philosophy and religious studies, had an additional theory about the influence of the campus landscaping.

"A person is always aware of his environment, although not consciously," he stated, adding that when a person is depressed, the cause of the low morale could be in the person's surroundings.

Amplifying his thoughts on the campus landscaping, Greenman said that a student walking as assistant secretary of finance.

Nakley also appointed non-stipend personal assistants: Neil Yutkin, Graduate, special assistant to the president; and L. Anthony Pacca, Sophomore, Engineering and Bill Williams, Sophomore, Arts and Sciences, as assistants.

Concluding the report, Nakley announced three new student organizations. They are The Union of Hispanic Students of Youngstown, The First Aid Club and the E.C.O. Club (an environmental group).

Nakley also presented to Council a new "faculty evaluation instrument" and is now seeking endorsement for it.

The next regular Council meeting is scheduled for Monday, Sept. 29.

Wasko: It's time to make the move

by George Denney

Bob Wasko, Student Council chairperson, resigned at Monday's Council meeting. The resignation is effective Sept. 1.

"It was a tough decision," Wasko said, "but I feel it's time for me to make the move."

Wasko stated that he was accepted by the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science two weeks ago and that he made his decision just two days before the special Council meeting.

After graduating from mortuary school, he plans to return to the Youngstown area to work with his father in the family business.

"I feel my goals have been accomplished in YSU Student Government," Wasko said. "We helped bring professionalism into Council and into the Student Government offices." He commented that the resolution and award presented to him by Representative Lyle Williams "was an honor."

Wasko stated that by getting publicity from the outside media, including The Jambar, "we (Student Council) were able to get community support for our goals, and we are better respected by the community and the YSU administration."

The Council chairperson had praise for actions taken by Council, including a resolution asking for the immediate release of hostages in Iran. Wasko noted that the resolution, passed just after the hostages were taken, prompted a thank-you note from the U.S. government.

Council also was able to have former Congressional Representative Charles Carney as an honorary advisor. Wasko remarked that Carney's presence enabled Council to work with government beyond YSU.

He suggested that the student body get "more actively involved in Student Government" and stated that Council and Government is a "great mechanism to get things done on campus, and goals will be accomplished."

Wasko commented that his favorite anonymous quote is: "Doing a good job may not be enough. Success often means both performing well and making sure the right people know about your performance."

He intends to remain active in politics after returning from mortuary school. Wasko was elected to Council in Winter 1978, was elected chairperson in Spring 1979, and was re-elected to the same position in Winter 1980.

Beeghly will host NCAA Swimming and Diving Finals

by Marian Davanzo

The NCAA Division II Swimming and Diving Championships will be held March 19 to 20, 1981, at the Beeghly Natatorium.

This is the second year in a row and the third time in the past five years that the Penguins have been chosen to host the event, announced Jerry A. Miles, director of events for the NCAA.

"I think that it is an unprecedented honor to bring the swimming championships back to Youngstown State," noted Head Mentor Tucker DiEdwardo.

"Even though there is a lot of work involved with the YSU personnel, it (the championships) brings much national recognition to Youngstown State and financial reimbursement to the Youngstown community. It is well worth the efforts," he added.

Echoing DiEdwardo's sentiments is newly appointed Athletic Director Bill Narduzzi. "Tucker is a highly organized coach who has done one super job in hosting the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships in the past.

"With the facilities that we have here in the Beeghly Natatorium and the way that Tucker runs the affair, it (the championships) has kept YSU in the national swimming picture," Narduzzi commented.

Last year, Oakland (Michigan) University won the championship as it totaled 312 points, with California/Riverside a distant second at 263. No fewer than 11 national records fell in the three-day affair.

Penguins open at Murray State

YSU gridders begin pre-season drills Aug. 25

YSU Head Coach Bill Narduzzi and his staff will welcome over 100 players this weekend as pre-season practice begins Monday, Aug. 25 at Harrison Field on the campus.

Practices are set for two-a-day sessions beginning Monday, with morning sessions scheduled from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and afternoon sessions scheduled from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The two-a-day sessions will continue until Saturday, Sept. 6.

One-a-day sessions will begin Monday, Sept. 8, in preparation for the season lidlifter when the squad will travel to Murray, Ky., to take on the Murray State Racers—last year's Division I-AA quarter-finalists.

During the first three days of practice, the squad will practice without pads; beginning Thursday, Aug. 28, full equipment will be used.

The first scrimmage game set will take place 9:30 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 30, at the Liberty High School field. A family picnic and outing will follow the game at the Shady Run picnic grounds.

Several sidelights to the pre-season practices will occur. Jim Traficant, a local drug enforcement officer, will speak to the squad on drugs and illegal substances Tuesday, Sept. 2. Noted Mid-American Conference official Ted Humphrey will discuss the various rule changes and interpretations for the upcoming 1980 football season with the squad and coaches Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Talent Night will be the feature Thursday, Sept. 4, while an afternoon scrimmage Friday, Sept. 5, will finish the two-a-day sessions. The players will have a rest before the one-a-day sessions begin the following Monday.

The scouting staff will head to Murray, Ky., Saturday, Sept. 6, to watch the Murray-Southeastern Missouri tilt.

Thursday, Sept. 4 has been established as "Photo Day." Local media and all interested members of the media are invited to take pictures of any members of the 1980 football squad on that date. The photo session begins at 1 p.m.

Any and all requests by the local media about interviews and pictures of those associated with the 1980 football squad should be referred to Greg Gulas, sports information director, at (216) 742-3483 at least a day ahead of time.
