A fifty-foot cut through solid rock marks the northern approach to Bagnell Dam, a hydroelectric development built 1929-1931 at a cost of more than $30,000,000. The dam was constructed on a point where the Osage Indian warpath once crossed the trail of DuTisne, intrepid French explorer.

Hello Hon
Today I got your post cards. It so very warm here
well I'm so long
wishing you good luck

Love Pete
