About the building —

The groundbreaking today represents another significant achievement for higher education in the State of Ohio. Funds for the construction of this facility were made possible largely through the efforts of Governor James A. Rhodes, who proposed the 250 million dollar bond issue that was approved by the voters in November, 1963. The land on which the building will stand was acquired through the Urban Renewal Program of the City of Youngstown. The building will be owned by the State of Ohio and leased to the University for a fifty-year period with option to renew the lease for another fifty years. It is dedicated to the development of engineering education and scientific research.
