DAVID CHARLES SWEET

Dr. David Charles Sweet brings to Youngstown State University a wealth of experience as a leader in higher education, government, and research. During his first year as president, Dr. Sweet focused on stabilizing enrollment, increasing campus diversity, building partnerships throughout the Mahoning Valley, and strengthening YSU's financial position.

Prior to becoming president of YSU, Dr. Sweet was founding dean and professor of the Levin College of Urban Affairs at Cleveland State University. Through a focused agenda on academic, research and community outreach programs, the Levin College earned national recognition and ranking by U.S. News and World Report as number two nationally in the specialty of city management/urban policy.

Dr. Sweet played a formative role in the creation of Ohio's Urban University Program (UUP), and served as chair of its governing committee. Under his leadership, UUP became a national model for building successful university-community partnerships. Prior to his career as a university administrator, Dr. Sweet served as the Director of the Ohio Department of Development and as a Commissioner on the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. Early in his career, he headed regional economic research programs at the Battelle Institute.

Dr. Sweet recently concluded three years as chair of the Board of the Northeast-Midwest Institute, a Washington, D.C. think tank that provides policy research for members of Congress and federal, state, and local officials. He was elected as a fellow of the prestigious National Academy of Public Administration in 1998. Dr. Sweet is the only academic to serve as president of the American Economic Development Council, the largest association of economic development professionals.

Dr. Sweet received his B.A. from the University of Rochester; M.A. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; and Ph.D. from The Ohio State University. He recently co-edited the book, The New American City Faces Its Regional Future, as well as other publications dealing with the role of urban university-community partnerships.

Dr. Sweet has been married to Patricia for 36 years. They have four children—Britton (Tamarra), Melissa, Marc (Carol), and Kathryn—and three grandchildren.

LEE S. SHULMAN

Lee S. Shulman is the eighth president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. The Foundation, created by Andrew Carnegie in 1905, has as its mission "to do and perform all things necessary to encourage, uphold, and dignify the profession of teaching."

Shulman was the first Charles E. Ducommun Professor of Education and professor (by courtesy) of psychology at Stanford University. He was previously professor of educational psychology and medical education and founding co-director of the Institute for Research on Teaching at Michigan State University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago.

Shulman is a past president of the American Educational Research Association and has received the organization's highest honor, the career award for Distinguished Contributions to Educational Research. He has served as both vice-president and president of the National Academy of Education and received the 1995 E.L. Thorndike Award for Distinguished Psychological Contributions to Education from the American Psychological Association.

Since 1990, Shulman has collaborated with other researchers on programs and research to strengthen the role of teaching in higher education. These studies have emphasized the importance of "teaching as community property" and the central role of a "scholarship of teaching" in supporting the needed changes in the culture of higher education.

At the 2000 annual meeting of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU), 250 University presidents heard the keynote presentation of Dr. Shulman where he highlighted the work of Youngstown State University in furthering the goals of the scholarship of teaching and learning.

Since 1998, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has named 114 academics from across the country as Carnegie Scholars. The scholars are selected for their potential as researchers in scholarship of teaching and learning, but also for their promise as leaders in shaping the future of their fields and their institutions as they move toward devoting more scholarly attention to teaching and learning. Of the five Carnegie Scholars named from the state of Ohio, three are from Youngstown State University. YSU is one of only six universities in the nation with more than two Carnegie Scholars.

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The gowns, hoods, and caps worn in academic ceremonies today are relics of clothing worn in medieval times by students and professors.

The hoods representing degrees granted by various colleges and universities have linings in the colors of the granting institutions. In addition, the facing of the hood represents by its color the discipline in which the degree has been granted.

The bachelor's degree gown is worn closed; the master's gown is worn open or closed, depending on its tailoring; and the wearer of the doctor's gown has the privilege of wearing it open or closed. The sleeves of the three types of gowns are of different lengths and cuts, and in addition the sleeves of the doctor's gowns have three horizontal velvet stripes. A university president's gown has four horizontal stripes, denoting presidential status.

The tassels worn on the caps may or may not be of the same types. In some institutions all bachelors' and masters' tassels are black; in others, the colors in the tassels reflect the degree received. The tassels worn by doctors may be black or gold thread.

THE PRESIDENT'S REGALIA

President Sweet's attire is representative of the academic regalia of the doctoral degree. The hood's satin lining reflects the scarlet and gray of The Ohio State University, his alma mater. The hood's blue velvet trim again reflects his doctorate. His black gown is trimmed with velvet panels featuring the YSU seal, which is embroidered with gold metallic thread and outlined in red. The gown's sleeves are decorated with four velvet doctoral bars outlined in red coding that denote his presidential status. The president's tam is eight-cornered with a two-button gold metallic tassel.

PRESIDENTIAL MEDALLION

This one-of-a-kind presidential medallion was designed and created for Youngstown State University by Wendell August Forge in Grove City, Pennsylvania. Dr. Sweet is the first president to wear this impressive medallion.

This mixed-metal creation features alternating medallions of sterling on bronze and bronze on sterling of the YSU seal. The larger medallion is a combination of sterling on bronze and is engraved on the reverse with the names of the six presidents who have served YSU since its founding.

YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY

Approaching its Centennial anniversary, Youngstown State University has a proud heritage of providing an education to anyone with the motivation to learn and to realize aspirations. Today, 12,250 students attend YSU on its attractive 140-acre campus. YSU is proud of its mission "To provide open access to high-quality education through a broad range of affordable certificate, associate, baccalaureate, and graduate programs."

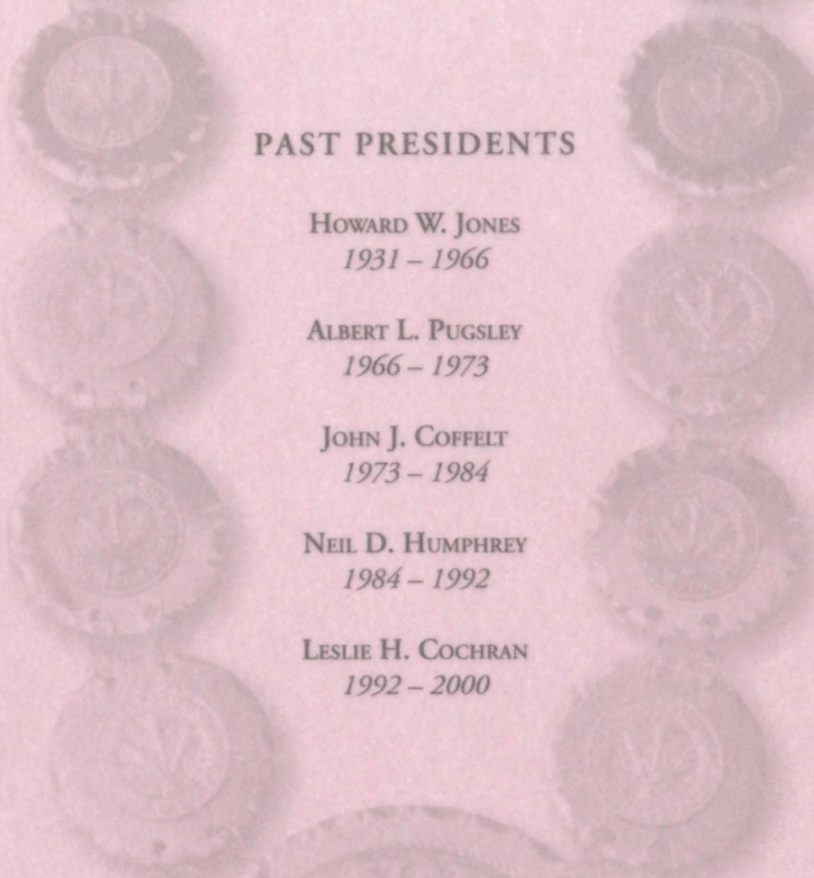

From its earliest days, YSU has viewed education as a way to enrich students' lives and their communities. Once known as Youngstown College, YSU was officially formed in 1908 and has served as a law school, a school for immigrants seeking to assimilate, and a refuge for those working to improve their lives. YSU can trace its roots decades earlier when Mahoning Valley residents gathered in a downtown Youngstown YMCA reading room to read newspapers and attend lectures and workshops.

Professor James A. Leonard stated in 1895 at the opening meeting of educational classes for the YMCA, "We must combine strength of muscle and skill to enable the mind to solve the cause and effect of the great changes that we observe around us." More than 100 years later, Dr. Leonard's comments are being fully realized. Youngstown State University is an outstanding institution:

- Our students graduate ready for professional careers and consistently score well on national certification exams. Additionally, YSU graduates are employed or continuing their education at a rate higher than the state average for other public institutions.
- Our academic programs are top-notch and many have been recognized as among the best in the nation.
- Our faculty includes people who have been selected as the national and international leaders in their fields.
- Our goal is to advance the intellectual, cultural and economic life of the state, the region and, most importantly, its people. YSU views itself as a university of the community, as demonstrated by its wide variety of cultural experiences to its many partnerships with organizations and businesses.
- Our administration is dedicated to outstanding teaching, scholarship and service to the community.
- Our entire University is dedicated to promoting diversity and enhanced understandings between people of different backgrounds, heritages, races, perspectives, and histories.
- YSU's 17 athletic teams, The Penguins, are a source of pride for the campus and the entire Mahoning Valley.

YSU became part of the state's higher education system in 1967. It is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and a member of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. YSU's professional programs are accredited by 20 national accrediting agencies. The University also is a consortium member of the Northeast Ohio Universities College of Medicine, which offers the six-year B.S./M.D. program.
