Miscalculations to cost YSU $2 million this year

by Lisa Williams

YSU students will not be looking at an immediate tuition increase although the University is faced with Ohio's $1 billion budget problem — a problem due to over-estimated revenues from November's spending document, House Bill 694.

President John J. Coffelt reported that YSU will receive $2,111,700 less during fiscal year 1981-82 than previously allocated. "By careful management, we will be able to finish the current fiscal year without fee increases or further reduction of staff," he said.

It was announced to Coffelt by Board of Regents Chancellor Edward Q. Moulton, that 17% of state appropriations for instructional subsidy are to be cut. Moulton added that another 16.3% will be cut next year, which, according to Coffelt, translates into a $4,619,000 decrease from appropriations which the administration had anticipated based on H.B. 694 and Ohio Board of Regents reports.

House Bill 694, the tax package which was to secure funds for higher education, raised the sales tax a penny and imposed taxes on cigarettes, repairs, installations, some soft drinks, car washes, and all insurance companies and public utilities. The package was Ohio's first permanent tax hike in almost 10 years.

However, Howard L. Collier,

Ohio's new budget director, told The Plain Dealer that with the prospect of last month's 12.5% unemployment going higher in January, the state faces a $1 billion problem.

Collier told The Plain Dealer that, at the close of the present fiscal period, state revenue sources would bring in $760 million less than estimated. He said in the article, "The state needs another $59 million for its public school loan fund and $164 million for rising welfare costs; 822,000 Ohioans are receiving some form of public assistance. The problems add up to $983.4 million."

A 1% across-the-board spending cut is expected to be imposed on state government, according to The Plain Dealer, "as soon as the paper work is done and business-oriented trigger taxes will be imposed on March 15."

The article reported that primary and secondary education

Adjunct support declined by Council ; election dates set

by Joe DeMay

Student Council defeated a resolution that strongly supported the efforts of the Adjunct Faculty Association to be recognized as a bargaining agent and set the dates for Student Council elections at Monday's meeting.

Bob Grace, senior, Education, who proposed the resolution, said it was time that Council give its total support to the AFA.

Student Government President Ray Nakley, who said he was not anti-union, countered with a report that too many questions about the adjunct group still had not been answered. Nakley cited the uncertainties of having two faculty unions on campus, the effects the union would have on student tuition and the group's lack of a policy on academic matters such as the Academic Senate and faculty evaluation.

Gloria Jones, vice-president of the AFA, was present in the gallery and tried to answer some of the questions raised in Nakley's report.

Jones said the major concerns of the AFA were basically related to raising the professionalism of the group. She mentioned the inability of adjunct members to use the library during the summer or non-teaching quarters as one opportunity for betterment that was denied them.

Jeff Hall, sophomore, A&S, argued that if the professionalism of the adjunct faculty was increased, then the whole level of education at YSU would be brought upwards.

Cathe Pavlov, junior, A&S, remarked that she didn't think Council's action would be of much help to the AFA.

The motion to support the AFA was then defeated.

Election Committee Chairperson Sherman Miles, senior, A&S, announced that Student Council elections would be scheduled for March 2 and 3. Miles reported that election petitions would be available beginning this Friday and must be turned in by the Feb. 10 deadline.

Miles also told Council that due to the complexity involved in setting up the voting machines that were to be used, it would be necessary that Council pay two

Future of blackout uncertain

WBBW broadcasts YSU-Akron game

by Chuck Housteau

Radio station WBBW's broadcast of Saturday's YSU-Akron basketball game ended a 12-game blackout of local radio broadcasts — a blackout which began when WKBN announced that it would not carry Penguin basketball games this season.

However, the status of future broadcasts by WBBW or any other local radio station is still uncertain. "There has been some interest, but nothing has been contracted," said Tucker DiEdwardo, assistant athletic director.

The basketball games have been without an electronic medium since WKBN, a long-time broadcaster of Penguin basketball and football games, announced in November only a few days before the opening of the cage season that the station would not transmit the upcoming season's games.

In a commentary on WKBN's television station channel 27 in November, Jim Campbell, sports director for the station and previous announcer for Penguin games, announced the discontinuation of broadcasts due to lack of sponsorship. He

Catholic vocations workshop scheduled for April

by Marilyn Anobile

Plans for a four-day, on-campus workshop dealing with vocational opportunities within the Roman Catholic Church are being formulated by a 13-member committee comprised of Diocesan clergy and YSU students.

The vocational workshop, tentatively scheduled for April 18-22, is being co-sponsored by the Youngstown Catholic Diocese and the Newman Center. The program has been titled "Options '82."

Committee members met Dec. 18 at the Newman Center to discuss the purpose of the workshop. Sister Mary McCormick, OSU, pointed out that 50% of the YSU student body are Catholic. She said the main purpose of the workshop, therefore, would be to inform Catholic students of clerical and lay job opportunities.

McCormick explained that those who now enter the ministry are older persons who have already graduated from college. The purpose of a college campus vocational workshop, such as the one scheduled here at YSU, is to make students aware of ministries while they are still pursuing an undergraduate degree, she said.

McCormick said that Options '82 would be modeled after a similar vocational workshop which was conducted at Kent State University in October. Daily morning prayer sessions and lectures explaining religious vocations and charismatic movements within the Church took place.

Proposed topics include discussions on ministries within a church environment, such as priests, sisterhood, deacons, etc., and outside, such as social work and counseling for Catholic agencies.

Although most of the proposed topics will focus on ministries, other discussions will center on the Church's stand on various issues, such as abortion, draft registration, engagement and marriage, sexuality, and on current events affecting the Church, such as the Poland crisis.

Members have tentatively agreed that Options '82 will begin each day with a 15-minute morning prayer session, followed by audio-visual displays and guest speakers appearing between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in Kilcawley. Also, pamphlets and other reading material will be made available at campus buildings.

Co-chairpersons for the committee are Sister Marion Dobos, OSB, and McCormick. Clergy members include Father Ray Thomas, Newman Center director; Father Jim Saluca, CTPS; Father Don King; Sister Mary Alisa

Lyons, SND; Sister Bernie Baltrinic, OP; and Sister Betty McCarthy, OSU.

The committee would like student input regarding possible topics of discussion for Options '82. Students can fill out the questionnaire in today's issue of The Jambor to provide their suggestions.

and higher education would suffer 85 to 88% of the cuts, or $736 million in lost dollars. "It would set colleges and universities back 10 years," Collier said, "taking into consideration adjustments," the article read.

The Plain Dealer could not report how the state's revenue estimates could have been so distorted. The article included reports from analysts who, "blamed the sharp drop-off in the yield from automobile sales taxes and slumps in revenue from the personal income tax, and non-auto sales tax, both attributed in part to rising unemployment."

Moulton declared that by the magnitude of impending state appropriation reductions, a condition of financial exigency for higher education is threatened, giving university boards of trustees and presidents the right to cut costs any way they deem necessary.

Dr. Thomas A. Shipka, YSU/OEA president, said that he believed the administration has more than likely been habituated to the failure of state legislators to accurately forecast resources in revenue. "All of us have found fault with the administration with regards to its fiscal conservatism. But it is moments like these which temper one's criticism," he said.

Regarding faculty negotiations, Shipka said that he did not believe that primary bargaining efforts would change because of appropriation reductions. "If we went in for token raises every time Ohio announced its imminent bankruptcy, YSU faculty would qualify here for foodstamps."

He said that he expects to secure wage packages assuring that faculty retain their purchasing power and remain competitive with other state universities.

House Bill 694 was the spending document which students from universities state-wide had been advocating to state legislators.

Ray Nakley, YSU Student Government president, said that he does not see the students' efforts as fruitless. "I don't think our efforts have been totally wasted. We will simply have to go back to the drawing board and find another approach; that is, if there are any approaches left. We must do the best we can to see that higher education is not "set back 10 years." We will start asking some questions regarding why higher education is to take the brunt of the cuts," he said.

When asked to speculate what reasons may exist as to why higher education is suffering most, Nakley said, "No comment."

Jordan Dentscheff, Student Government external affairs secretary and spearheader of most of last quarter's student rallies and letter-writing campaigns, agreed with Nakley.

"We accomplished a lot through those rallies. The legislators now know students are watching them and are concerned. They are more aware of the students' presence and concerns, and they realized that students are worried about the quality of education — that we are working with the administration, and that impressed them," said Dentscheff.

He continued, "How a $983.4 million mistake could take place, I'll never know. I understand that unemployment has risen state-wide by 1.6% since the budget has passed. And I understand that more people are drawing unemployment rather than more paying taxes. And I understand that a sluggish economy made for a mediocre Christmas season economically — and that because of this, Ohio could not and did not collect nearly the sales tax revenue that they projected. But a $1 billion mistake?"

Dentscheff said that from talking to other universities' student governments, Youngstown's overall financial picture looks much better than other campuses across the state. "Other schools will suffer severe cut-backs within the next few months. We know of at least one university that, from tentative figures, will even impose a $100 per quarter tuition sur-charge," Dentscheff said.

He said that Ohio State University students will be meeting at the end of this month to try to form some kind of strategy in keeping costs for students to a minimum. "We don't expect any immediate explosions, but for the next budget process, we will start examining the several different proposals for restructuring Ohio's tax system," he said.

Nat'l report says YSU has low crime incidence

by Yvonne Stephan

According to national collegiate crime statistics, YSU has low incidences of violent crime, aggravated assaults, robberies, rape and property thefts compared to other universities of the same size.

Considering universities in the nation with about the same enrollment as YSU, Kent State University led in violent crimes in 1979.

According to statistics by the National Uniform Crime Reporting Program (NUCR), reported in Campus Law Enforcement Journal, Kent State reported 39 incidents of violent crime, 30 which involved aggravated assaults.

The University of California in Santa Barbara ranked second in violent crimes among universities comparable to YSU in size. The campus had 30 incidents of violent crime, with 24 involving aggravated assaults.

YSU was not included in the 1979 NUCR data but crime statistics have been obtained for 1979 through 1981. The University had an enrollment of 15,303 in 1979; violent crimes that year totaled 19. During the 1980-81 academic year, however, enrollment was up to 15,664, with violent crimes decreasing to 13.

In 1979, aggravated assaults, disorderly conduct and aggravated menacing amounted to 11; however, in 1980, these crimes dropped to 10, and in 1981, declined to five.

Of all universities, regardless of size, the highest number of violent crime incidents was reported by Rutgers University with 76 incidents. Thirty-nine involved aggravated assault while 29 were robberies. Rutgers has an enrollment of 27,073.

Besides aggravated assault and robbery, violent crime was broken down into forcible rape and murder, according to the NUCR report.

The university with a comparable enrollment to YSU that had the most incidents of forcible rape is the University of South Florida; five forcible rapes were reported there. The University of Wisconsin had four such rapes.

Considering universities of all sizes, Indiana University in Bloomington and the University of Texas each had 11 forcible rapes in 1979.

YSU did not have any forcible rapes in the period from 1979 to 1981 according to statistics.

Murder statistics also show that YSU had a clear bill of health; stats reveal that the University had no murders from 1979 to the present.

However, at the University of South Carolina, two murders occurred in 1979. Other universities which reported one murder each are: California State College, enrollment 5,195; Indiana University in Indianapolis, enrollment unlisted; California State Polytechnic University, enrollment 14,677; and Michigan State University, enrollment 41,374. Focusing on universities of all sizes, Indiana University in Urbana had the highest number of aggravated assault incidents. Indiana University, with an enrollment of 32,688, had reported 44 incidents of aggravated assault.

In reported robberies, the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, which is comparable to YSU in size, amounted to eight. Georgia State University came in second with six robberies.

YSU reported three robberies from 1979 to 1982; one robbery occurred per year. Also in a YSU report, under the category of crimes against persons, one purse snatching occurred in 1979, one in 1980 and one in 1981. The report also cited six incidences of indecent exposure and related incidents (not including rape) in 1979, nine in 1980 and five in 1981.

In the NUCR report, the highest number of property crimes, at a college comparable to YSU in size, occurred at the University of California in Davis. Property crimes totaled 1,009, with larceny reported for 954 of the incidents.

Crimes on property include burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft and arson.

YSU reported 340 crimes against property in 1979; 348 in 1980 and 402 in 1981.

Comparing universities of all sizes, Ohio State ranks first in crimes against property, with 2,066 reported incidences, while Michigan State came in second with 1,952. Ohio State had a 1979 enrollment of 48,097 while Michigan State had 41,374.

Valley revitalization contest deadline set for Feb. 5

If you're short on cash but high on ideas, there is still time to enter a contest sponsored by a local business.

Students, faculty and staff are welcome to participate by submitting ideas which could lead to the revitalization of the Mahoning Valley.

The deadline which was originally scheduled for Jan. 20, has been postponed until Friday, Feb. 5. One reason for the delay is to allow students who enrolled this winter an opportunity to participate. Dr. Terry Buss, urban studies director, said. He added that so far he has received a low response. He said he was surprised that no faculty members have submitted ideas.

If anyone is interested, an official entry form can be obtained at the dean's office of his/her school, at the Student Government office, urban studies department, or by calling 742-3355.

Projects are not restricted to a specific format. They can be essays, products, demonstrations, works of art or mechanisms.

However, it is mandatory that the project leads to the revitalization of the Mahoning Valley either economically, socially, culturally, artistically, or politically. Projects which serve to help revitalize the Valley will be considered regardless of how great an impact they may have.

Regents reduce salary increase of Chancellor

The Ohio Board of Regents agreed to reconsider Chancellor Edward Q. Moulton's 26% salary increase, voted on Dec. 18, 1981, and instead, adopted an annual salary of $75,816 — an 8% increase for each of the last two years — at a recent Board meeting.

Board of Regents Chairperson Richard Krabach said that the Regents had voted to increase Moulton's salary to $82,000 from $65,000 after comparing the Chancellor's salary to that of chancellors in other states.

However, Ohio Director of Administrative Services William Kelp reduced the amount of the increase from 26%, late in December, authorizing only a 10% increase.

Kelp said he considered the increase "excessive" and said that he believed that the Regents should operate under the same fiscal restraints as other state agencies.

Editorial: He promised us . . . cheese?

Good news. Youngstown-area non-profit organizations are being invited to participate in the Ohio distribution to the needy of the 1.432 million pounds of cheese recently released from the federal government.

This happy announcement coincides with the one-year anniversary of President Ronald Reagan's inauguration and some other rather bleak news.

For it seems, unfortunately, that much of Reagan's hopeful campaign rhetoric has turned out to be just so many unfulfilled promises.

Take, for example, unemployment. Reagan promised that supply-side economics would do the trick — taxes would be reduced, the economy would grow, and unemployment would drop.

What actually happened? Unemployment is at its highest since 1939. Some 9.4 million people are unemployed nationally — that's a 8.9% unemployment rate. Though the administration predicts it will rise no higher than 9%, economist Alan Greenspan sees it rising to nearly 10%.

Reagan also promised to cut taxes, and though he did come through with his initial income-tax reduction, he now wants to increase excise taxes and perhaps adopt a value-added tax.

And what about federal spending? Reagan promised an all-out assault on big government to eliminate waste, fraud and extravagance from the federal budget.

But U.S. News and World Report reports that in fiscal 1981, federal spending was 23.1% of the nation's total output of goods and services. And according to the latest unofficial estimates, federal spending will reach 23.8% of the GNP in fiscal 1982.

One doesn't have to be a financial wizard to note the increase there, too.

After one year in office, Reagan still has a long way to go toward fulfilling his campaign promises. Perhaps he will offer some explanation in his upcoming State of the Union address.

While waiting, though, it's best not to take the bad news too hard.

After all, there's 1.432 million pounds of cheese to be distributed. That's good news. Isn't it?

Commentary: Creationism - a fundamentalist myth

by John Celidonio

The fundamentalists suffered a major setback this month, when an Arkansas law that required teachers to teach both creationism and evolution, both as equally valid theories, was overturned by a U.S. District Court.

While the court's decision puts a crimp in the fundamentalists' attempts to introduce their own brand of scientific truth to the classroom, it is only the first skirmish in what promises to be a long struggle.

This controversy, however, provides a good insight into the motives and rationalizations of the religious busybodies who have been so outspoken in recent years. As far as I can tell, none of them ever learned any history — except Biblical history, of course.

I see alarming similarities between today's fundamentalists and the Catholic Church's suppression of new scientific knowledge during the Renaissance and later. The pressures that forced Galileo to recant his theory that the sun, not the earth, is the center of the solar system are very similar to those the creationists are bringing to bear on evolution.

The fundamentalists' primary goal would seem to be to turn back the clock. Prayer in public schools, anti-feminism, and creationism are all attempts to bring back the "good old days" when the world was easy to understand.

Everyone, except for a few eccentrics, knew how the world began because the Bible told them. They knew what a woman's place in society was, too, and they also knew that prayer in the public schools, despite the Constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion, meant Christian prayer.

The ironic thing about the fundamentalists' attempt to turn back the clock is that they want to do so selectively. In pushing creationism, they reject the absolutely overwhelming body of evidence that supports the theory of evolution. That evidence, however, is based on fossil evidence whose age has been determined by radioactive dating.

This method of dating could, I grant, be incorrect. If it is, though, then all our modern understanding of physics is equally incorrect, which presents the creationists with the problem of explaining how a nuclear reactor, or radio-isotope cancer therapy work or how any number of other principles of modern technology happen to work.

Scientific evidence supports the theory that the earth is billions of years old, and that life originated in the oceans over 600 million years ago. The creationists, however, contend that the earth was created by God about 6,000 years ago, based on Biblical evidence.

They point to a few minor discrepancies in scientific evidence and ignore the remainder of the evidence. Ignoring that evidence will not make it go away.

I also have never heard the creationist explanation of how the earth fits into the

Humor: You can't snow John!

by Joe DeMay

I think it's time that somebody came forward and saluted John Coffelt for his courageous decision to keep the University open during last week's severe winter weather.

I know some of you out there are probably saying, "Is this nut really supporting Coffelt?" Well, you bet your jumper cables I am.

I think it's a shame that students don't support a man that's worried about the little guy.

I mean here was a University president that cares enough to make sure a student from Ashtabula gets his badminton class in.

And what kind of credit does he get? Zilcho. What he did get was a lot of complaints and people calling him nasty names. I'm telling you people though, John's a tough old bird. Sticks and falls may break his bones, but names will never hurt him.

Sure the conditions weren't the best, but are we going to let a few adversities get in the way of our education? John Coffelt said, "Snow way, baby."

Some students complained that water wasn't available in some buildings due to frozen pipes. John said, "Let 'em eat snow."

It's not important that students with calculators froze their sweet little digitals off. What's important is that they had a chance to learn.

This school's mascot is the penguin. The least we can do is show a little of our penguin-like qualities when facing penguin-like weather.

I hope I haven't been out of line in speaking for President Coffelt. I know he can take care of himself, but I haven't heard him say much to his critics. I was just afraid that maybe he got his tongue stuck on the metal piece to his sled or something.

Whatever the case, we still are facing a few more months of winter weather. I just hope that Coffelt will not buckle under pressure and close the school during the next blizzard we get. Just keep the school open, Dr. Coffelt. Sooner or later the students will get the drift.

Disputes student's observations of campus fraternities, sororities

To the Editor of The Jambar:

The following is an open letter to Jack Peterson, whose letter appeared in the Jan. 15, 1982, issue of The Jambar:

Dear Mr. Peterson:

Obviously your criticisms of fraternities and sororities are not based on facts but on a biased observation.

The influence of fraternities and sororities at Youngstown State is because of our numbers, now 300 plus. Most major events (except Homecoming) are held free to YSU students by sororities and fraternities. Youngstown State's Homecoming Committee for 1981 was half Greek and was also chaired by a member of the Greek system.

Our influence is felt in Student Government as well as in Student Council with many Greeks in key positions. Furthermore, last year sororities and fraternities raised over $3,000 for philanthropies and have given hundreds of hours to community service.

As for your criticism of rush parties, we have experienced our best quarter in years. Last fall quarter, we added some 70 new members and expect another good quarter this winter.

Likewise, to your observation of our use of sexist language, the term "little sisters" was devised by girl friends of fraternity members in the middle 1960s who helped fraternity members in many projects. The little sisters today have chosen to keep that name, not the fraternities themselves. Also, as members of YSU's Greek system, we feel that belonging to a sorority or fraternity has enhanced our college experience, and have developed us into adult women and men.

It is only people like you, with no facts, who give us bad PR and criticism. I feel sorry for you that you have never had the chance to be in a fraternity. I feel sorry for any organization you belong to, for you probably look at it with the same criticism as you do with us; you probably work against it instead of with it.

Likewise, I feel sorry for you that you haven't been able to go out, have a few beers with friends and blow off some steam, because someone might call you a boy. Thus, it seems to me that your college life has been one of solitude and without flavor of the other side of college education, and that your life leans toward boredom.

Claims Coffelt's decision reveals 'lack of concern'

To the Editor of The Jambar:

The decision by President John Coffelt to keep Youngstown State University open on Monday, Jan. 11, shows an appalling lack of concern for the safety of the students.

Coffelt claims that YSU had to stay open, or it would have lost some of its precious money. A better decision would have been to simply cancel classes, thereby keeping YSU open while not endangering the lives of the students. I am not exaggerating, for there were warnings not to travel unless it was an emergency. It is absurd to suggest that classes, on a day when many professors stayed home, are an emergency.

As one of the few (if not the only) universities in the state of Ohio open on Jan. 11, which was one of the coldest days of the century, YSU looked very ridiculous. I urge Coffelt to at least cancel classes when such frigid weather occurs in the future. He cannot put a price tag on the lives and safety of his students.

I also would like to urge fellow YSU students: the next time you hear that Youngstown State University is the only school in the area open, please exercise some common sense and stay home.

Questions editor's review

To the Editor of The Jambar:

The questions of what is art, and what is not a work of art, are questions which have been subjects of debate for centuries. The Jambar entertainment editor claims to possess the knowledge of what is not (art), at least, in his review of Thurber Carnival with the statement that the production "... is not a work of art, but ..."

Just what is his artistic and philosophical background on which he bases his qualification to make such a pompous and subjective statement? I think he has uttered an offense and has bitten off something he should not be allowed to be nibbling at in a newspaper of any integrity.

Relates art recovery facts

To the Editor of The Jambar:

This is to clarify the recent Jambar article concerning the recovery of several paintings stolen from Bliss Hall. My painting was one of the ones recovered after having been stolen last July. The circumstances surrounding the recovery were not explained fully and should be brought to the students' attention. The painting was recovered in an administrative office of the speech communication and theatre department where the staff stated that they "got it from storage." They later said it was being thrown out from the make-up room, and they saved it from destruction.

KCPB offers entertainment variety

by Marilyn Anobile

Video tape shows ranging from college-student suicide to Eric Clapton, recent box-office attraction films, a live marionette show and a lecture by an ex-Moonie are several on-campus events scheduled this quarter, courtesy of KCPB.

Video tapes of various subjects are being presented weekdays in the Pub and Program Lounge, Kilcawley. During the week of Jan. 25-29, for example, a video tape entitled College Can Be Killing, an investigative report on student suicides, will be shown. Other video tape presentations will include Animation Festival, featuring cartoons from 1957-72, Mary Jane Grows Up: Marijuana in the '70s and Eric Clapton and Cream.

Days and times for the presentations are available at the Kilcawley staff offices and at buildings on campus. Dave Johnson, Kilcawley program coordinator, said that students now can obtain a copy of VT Guide, a booklet modeled after TV Guide which lists the dates, times, location and a synopsis of each video tape. Johnson noted that VT Guide is making its debut this quarter and that several of the video shows are being shown in some classes.

KCPB film offerings will feature recent box-office attractions such as Arthur (Feb. 10, 11) and Body Heat (Feb. 25). Also, some "oldies but goodies" will appear on the screen, including The Graduate (Jan. 21), It Came From Outer Space, in 3-D (Jan. 28) and To Kill A Mockingbird (Feb. 4). Other films include Richard Pryor - Live in Concert (Feb. 18), Wizards (March 4) and Breaker Morant (March 11).

Johnson said that KCPB has scheduled recent films to combat competition with local cable television stations' movie channels. He noted that many of last quarter's KCPB films were being shown on the screens of local cable TV subscribers at about the same time.

Films are presented noon, 4 p.m., and 8 p.m., Thursdays, Chestnut Room, Kilcawley. Admission is 75¢ at the noon shows and $1 at the 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. presentations for those showing a current YSU ID card. Those not possessing an ID card will pay $1 at noon and $1.25 for the 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. shows.

David Syrotiak's marionette theatre will perform at YSU 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 3, Chestnut Room, Kilcawley. The marionettes have traveled 45,000 miles throughout the US, Canada, Mexico and Europe.

The puppets will perform a series of vignettes, such as the comic "Dance Recital," the whimsical little man and dog "In the Park," and the nightmarish mime trapped in the mirror of "Reflections." Admission is free.

In conjunction with Black History Month, artist Faith Ringgold will give a lecture on black feminist art 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 10, Ohio Room, Kilcawley. Ringgold is well known for her soft sculptures and masks. Her lecture is free.

Johnson pointed out that Ringgold's artwork will be displayed at the Kilcawley Art Gallery from Feb. 8 to 12.

Ex-Moonie Chris Edwards will relate his experiences with the religious cult group 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 24, Chestnut Room, Kilcawley. His lecture is free.

Edwards, a Yale graduate, will tell the audience how he became a Moonie in 1975 as well as the brainwashing involved. Also, he will relate his deprogramming experience and will discuss religious cults in the 80s. He is author of the book, Crazy for God.

Backgammon, billiards, chess and wiffleball tournament play has begun on campus. Besides these games, a Uno singles tournament and a shuffleboard elimination will begin next month.

Uno tournament play will get underway 7 p.m., Friday, Feb. 12, Program Lounge, Kilcawley. A winner will be determined on low accumulative scores at the end of the evening. Application fee is $2 and must be paid by Wednesday, Feb. 10.

Shuffleboard tournament will begin with pairings on Thursday, Feb. 18, Recreation Room, Kilcawley. Those who win the best out of 5 games will be declared winners of a match. Game times will be arranged after pairings. Double elimination will be played. A registration fee of $2 must be paid by Wednesday, Feb. 17.

Several live bands will perform this quarter at the Pub. Some of the live bands include Iron Mountain (Jan. 22), Thomas John from radio station WSRD (Jan. 29), Trilogy (Feb. 2) and the B-Minors (Feb. 12). Bands performing Tuesday will play from 8:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., while those performing Fridays will play from 1 a.m. to 4 p.m.

John's performance will take place in the Chestnut Room, Kilcawley.

Comics to bring laughs to YSU

In December of 1959, a club called Second City opened on Chicago's north side and, a year later, it started conducting improvisational workshops. In its 22-year history, Second City has been home to many of today's stars of comedy. The group has toured the US and Europe and has a nationally syndicated television show called SCTV.

On Wednesday, Jan. 20, Second City will bring a unique blend of comedy to YSU for a performance 8 p.m. in the Chestnut Room, Kilcawley. Tickets are $1 with YSU I.D., $1.50 for the general public.

The national touring company of Second City involves four actors and two actresses who utilize set pieces as well as improvisational techniques to entertain its audience. Second City has proven to be a fertile ground for actors and actresses. Just a few of the "alumni" include several of the original Saturday Night Live crew (including Dan Aykroyd, John Belushi, and Gilda Radner), Robert Klein, Alan Arkin, Valerie Harper, Linda Lavin, Jerry Stiller and Ann

Second City touring company

Meara, Elaine May and Mike Nichols, Joan Rivers and David Steinberg.

Over the years, Second City has made several appearances in London, including a short series in the early 60s. In 1973, the group established a second home in Toronto and, in 1975, established a third resident company in Los Angeles. The television series, SCTV, premiered in 1977 in 55 market cities and is now syndicated nationally. The performers in Second City have made their mark in the entertainment field.

IRA plan available at Credit Union

An Individual Retirement Account (IRA), available at the YSU Credit Union, is a tax-sheltered savings plan that allows every wage earner or self-employed individual to defer up to $2,000 per year from federal income tax until retirement.

A Spousal IRA is also available to individuals married to non-working spouses; this allows a maximum contribution of $2,250 per year.

Earned interest compounded in an IRA account also is tax-deferred until retirement, thus allowing the individual to build a fund larger than would be possible with taxed dollars.

A GREAT WAY TO SERVE

Criticizes article on Zeigler

To the Editor of The Jambar: I would simply like to say that Bruce Burge has the makings for a great future with The National Enquirer or The Star.

His article about Dave Zeigler's Kent State debut is typical of the petty, belittling type of writing which is featured in the aforementioned publications.

Zeigler was one of the finest basketball players ever to attend YSU and a very personable individual as well. Burge's attempt to reduce him to a "shadow" on the court and an idiot off (the court) is both unjustified and malicious.

Zeigler's transfer was not based on a personal grudge against YSU. I suggest that if Burge holds a personal grudge against Zeigler, who still has many friends on this campus, he should express it somewhere other than in his writing.

Lauds Bengal's, 49ers' success

To the Editor of The Jambar: Congratulations to Edward DeBartolo Jr. and his San Francisco 49ers. They, along with the Cincinnati Bengals, have shown that the American Dream is more than just a dream — it can be reality.

The 49ers and the Bengals will meet in Super Bowl XVI Jan. 24, and one of these super teams by the game's conclusion will be crowned the world champion of pro-football. Despite the outcome between these two new pro-football powers, there is a more important point; there will be a miracle victor.

Many experts had picked the San Francisco 49ers and the Cincinnati Bengals to finish last in their respective divisions. The 49ers were spotted by Las Vegas gamblers as a 1 to 60 shot at the outset of the season of making it to the Super Bowl. Head Coach Bill Walsh's 49ers, who were 6-10 in 1980, beat the odds by producing a remarkable turnaround mark of 13-3, the best in pro-football in 1981.

Rosselli optimistic

Pens need surge to earn playoff spot

by Chuck Housteau

While the current edition of the 1981-82 basketball Penguins is floundering in a slump that has seen YSU win only once in its last six tries, head coach Dom Rosselli remains optimistic that his team can still gain a spot in the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC) playoffs in March.

"Most of our remaining games are against OVC opponents, so the team's goal is to get into the league playoffs," said Rosselli, whose troops stand at 3-4 in the conference and presently reside in fifth place.

Despite the recent losses, Rosselli seems to feel that the team is steadily improving. "Our record could just as easily be a lot better," said Rosselli, in reference to the fact that the Pens have dropped five contests by four or less points. "A lot of those games could have gone either way."

And so, at the halfway mark, the Penguins' record stands at a dismal four wins and nine losses; as the team often comes close but rarely wins.

Inexperience and injuries have definitely been a thorn in the side of the Pens in the recent side. Bruce Alexander has been idled since December with a pulled abdominal muscle and his status is still unknown. Steve Martin, who has been YSU's only dominant defensive player, missed the Akron game with an ankle injury and is listed as questionable for the Cleveland State game on Thursday.

Depth, which Rosselli expressed would be a plus at the beginning of the season, has failed to surface, and is forcing Rosselli to stay with his starters for most of the game. In Saturday's Akron game, a 64-62 last-second loss by the Penguins, Art McCullough and Rob Carter each logged 40 minutes, and Dave Klenovich and Ray "Truck" Robinson both played 38 minutes.

The lone bright spot for the Pens in the first half has been the play of McCullough, who is averaging 19 points per game and who plays with intensity the full 40 minutes. Against Akron, McCullough swished in 25 points, grabbed a game high eight rebounds and handed out three assists.

"Art's a gamer," said Rosselli of his young shooting wiz, "He's not the smoothest looking ball-player out there, but he's steady and he does everything well." Williams is another player who has come in for some praise from Rosselli, "He has the potential to be one of the finest forwards we've ever had."

At 6-7 and 190 lbs., the Akron

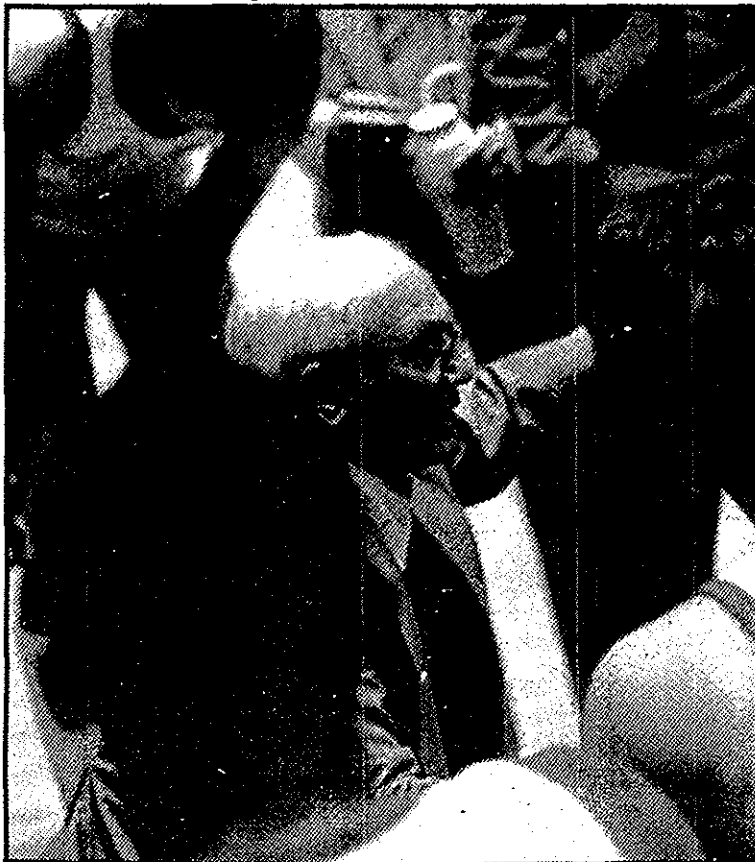

Buchtel native is just beginning to show his stuff. Against Tennessee Tech, Williams poured in a career high of 26 points and, against West Virginia, he played his best all-around game scoring 21 points along with six rebounds and four blocked shots.

Teamwise, the Pens often get big leads, but fail to hold them. This seems to be the trademark for the team that plays just well enough to lose.

Team speed and the lack of an intimidator in the middle are the biggest problems facing the team to date. "Martin's our best player defensively on the boards," commented Rosselli in evaluating the team's play up to this point.

"Our inside game has hurt us the most, especially defensively," Rosselli pointed out, citing the Akron game as an example, "A lot of times, their guys would just reach over ours for a rebound."

If the second half is to be any better for the Pens, these situations will have to be remedied — and quick. Thursday, powerful Cleveland State, fresh off a two-point upset over Illinois Chicago-

Sports desk: Who's the underdog?

by Marilyn Anobile

Mid-January — that time of the year when football fans have just recovered from the deluge of those college bowls and are now gearing up for the game of all gridiron games — the Superbowl.

This year's Superbowl, specifically Superbowl XVI, is a bit unusual. We football fans will not be seeing two powerhouse teams or one powerhouse and an underdog team playing; rather, we will be viewing two underdogs clashing on the 50-yard line when the gun is sounded next Sunday at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., to begin play.

Besides the rarity of two underdog teams competing in this annual sports event, Superbowl XVI also will feature two "local" teams. No, not the Pittsburgh Steelers or the Cleveland Browns. Instead, we have the AFC champs, the Cincinnati Bengals, lined up against the San Francisco 49ers, owned by Youngstown Edward DeBartolo Jr. Not as local as we might wish, but local enough.

Both teams are underdogs. Who would have believed that the Bengals and the 49ers would be Superbowl contenders during the 1981 season? Why, just last season, the Bengals finished last in the AFC Central Division while the 49ers certainly could not have boasted of their 6-10 won-loss record.

So, we have two Cinderella teams competing for the title of football's best. Now comes the big question: Which team will win?

Let's first evaluate the Bengals (no partiality, of course). Probably the key to Cincinnati's miraculous season was quarterback Ken Anderson's superb performances against opponents in 1981. He and his teammates manhandled the Buffalo Bills and the San Diego Chargers in the playoffs. The Bills and the Chargers were just stifled by the Bengals, although the Chargers are claiming that the sub-zero temperatures in Cincinnati two weeks ago adversely affected their performance.

The quarterback also was a key factor in the 49ers' successful season — that is, of course, Joe Montana. He and his teammates successfully defeated their opponents in regular season play and finished the year with the best record in the NFL, 13-3. However, the 49ers struggled in their NFC championship game against the Dallas Cowboys, winning the crucial game in the final minutes 28-27.

Now, back to the original question: Which team will win? This is a difficult decision. First of all, the Bengals and the 49ers will be playing on neutral territory after having played both of their post-season games at home. Second, weather won't be a factor, if the Chargers are correct in their analysis, since the playing field is within a domed stadium.

It seems, therefore, that either team has a good chance of becoming football's best.

I usually favor the underdog team when the Steelers are not in the Superbowl, but since both teams are equally underdogs, I'll have to choose the "under-underdog."

Since I'm sure that the experts will favor Cincinnati (probably because the Bengals had appeared in a playoff game once in the mid-70s while the 49ers

Pete's Beat

How about this weather, sports fans? I love it! However, it seems our winter sports teams don't like it too much and it's showing in their won-lost records. The men's basketball team is 4-9, the women cagers stand at 6-7, the wrestling team is a dismal 1-10, and the women gymnasts are off on the wrong foot at 0-1. Oh, well, baring a drastic turnaround by the winter sports teams, I'll just have to look forward to the spring sports. I'll sure miss the weather, though.

WRESTLING TOURNEY — Speaking of winter sports, the Penguin wrestlers struggled to an eighth place finish this past weekend at the Ohio Collegiate Wrestling Championships. Previously undefeated Pat Day, who wrestles at 167 pounds, won his opening round match but injured his ankle, forcing him to forfeit his last two matches. Day still leads the Penguin grapplers with a 12-2 seasonal log.

GYMNASTIC TEAM LOSES — The Pens finished 1-2 in the vaulting event in recent lidlifter competition with Slippery Rock. Marianne Sefcik won the event while freshman Bridget Welsh gained second. Sefcik also placed third in the balance beam and floor exercise, and third on his master's degree at Grambling. Congratulations and good luck, Russ.

TRIVIAL TRIVIA — Remember last week's question? No? It was: Name the two players from the same university who led the nation (college) in individual scoring for four consecutive years. The answer: Frank Selvy and Darrell Floyd, who played for Furman University. Selvy led in 1953 and 1954, while Floyd topped the charts in 1955 and 1956. This week's question promises to be a toughie, whispered to me by someone who really knows his basketball stuff. Ready? Okay. Who was the last NCAA player to average both 20 points and 20 rebounds a game? No, it's not Wilt Chamberlain or Lew Alcindor (or even Dave Zeigler). Call me at 742-3094 if you think you know the answer. Ask for Pete.

ATHLETE-OF-THE-WEEK — Goes to sophomore caeer Art

McCullough for his performances against Akron and West Virginia last week. McCullough hooped 25 points and snared eight caroms against Akron Saturday, and netted 16 markers versus West Virginia Wednesday while playing his customary 40 minutes. Congrats.
DAVE ZEIGLER COMMENTS — The jury is still out on the performances by former YSU cage star Dave Zeigler who transferred to Kent State and recently suited up in his first start for the Flashes. The Jambar sports department and Bruce Burge have received mail calling for our heads because of a negative review of Zeigler's first game. We don't hate Dave, it's just that we try to call them like we see them. Or tell it like it is, if you prefer Howard's motto. Judging by the mail, Zeigler left a lot of friends here at YSU. It's too bad he had to leave at all.

 See you next time.

 people from the County Board of Elections to set up the machines at a cost of $120.
 In other Council action, Council defeated a motion by Ed Menaldi, senior, CAST, that would have named former Congressman Charles J. Carney as an honorary adviser to Student Council. Several Council members laughed outwardly when Menaldi presented his resolution. J. W. Horton said that as publicity chairperson he "didn't want another headache." Vice-Chairperson David Betras said he was disappointed by some of the comments members made. "How can you ostracize someone you've never even met?" Betras said that Carney was a former Council adviser and had been an asset to Council in that position. Menaldi noted that Carney would stand up and speak out strongly for what he believed. "That takes guts, folks," he said.

The Carney motion failed. During remarks by Council members, Betras chastised Council for being lazy. "There are only about four members on Council that are working," he said. "The rest of you just sit back, wait for legislation to come up and then just shoot it down." Hall echoed those comments by saying that members were too lazy to look into issues like the adjunct faculty question on their own.

• Council approved funding for three campus organizations. The Industrial Engineers were granted $400 to attend an engineering conference; the Voice of the Third World, $170 for a film and publicity; and the Iranian Student Organization, $210 for an Iranian Appreciation Night to be held on Feb. 13.

 have never appeared in post-season play), I'll go for the 49ers; however, I predict a very close game.
 So, as we begin to make our bets (small or large) and as we begin to experience the hype of pre-Superbowl activities — the TV special with Bob Hope, the interviews with players, coaches and fans on television news programs and in newspapers, the special sales and the playing of a team's song on the radio waves — all I can say is "May the best Cinderella team win and emerge with the coveted Vince Lombardi trophy."

Betras admonished Council members to "get off their asses and work instead of living off the cow."
 In other Council business:

212, Tod Administration Offices. Entrants will be assigned a confidential number to insure fairness. All entries will be judged by local businesses and all judgments will be final.

Lauds Bengals', 49ers' success

As for the Bengals and Head Coach Forrest Gregg, and ex-superstar offensive guard who played for the legendary Green Bay Packer teams of old and with the Dallas Cowboys knows what pro football world championships are all about. The Bengals, like the 49ers, had a 6-10 record in 1980, but in 1981 they had 12 wins and 4 losses — the best in the AFC.

In these times of American depression, these two kings of pro-football have uplifted the spirits of many Americans, especially the poor and middle-class citizens by showing them that the American Dream — hard work, dedication, and continuous fight for victory — can be highly regarding. In Super Bowl XVI there will be no loser. There will be more than a world champion. There will be a moral victory for all Americans to share in. In Super Bowl XVI, the American Dream can only win and not lose.

Although University security performed their job and recovered the painting, they were relatively indifferent to the circumstances surrounding the event, as was the art department. It is important that students know of this lack of interest, for both indifference and insufficient security may result in the loss of their valuable projects.

The storage room should be locked and staffed at all times (the Art Department now promises to do this), and all departments should be aware that these works are students' property and are not available for use as free decorations.

rest of the universe. Were all the billions and trillions of stars in the universe also created 6,000 years ago? The Bible doesn't say too much about them because the Bible dates from a time when men didn't understand just what all those lights in the night sky were.

But the creationists apparently don't reject another piece of scientific knowledge — the speed of light. If light (and other electromagnetic waves, such as radio-waves, X-rays, and so on) really do travel at about 186,000 miles per second, then it has taken the light from many of those stars we see far more than 6,000 years to reach us.

Since creationists don't reject radio, television, telephone, or any of the other technological tools of the modern age, how can they selectively reject another foundation of that technology — the age of the earth?

They do, though. We accept many things today that would have been totally unbelievable to the ancient Hebrews who first put the Old Testament into written form. Perhaps the creationists would like to try living as people did then for a while, giving up all modern conveniences, to prove their faith in the Bible.

Somehow I doubt it.

Study finds women students defer to male profs

CLEVELAND, OH (CFS) — Women students are more deferential toward their male professors than toward their female professors, according to a new study of the names students call their teachers.

Dr. Rebecca Rubin of Cleveland State University began her study "because I noticed on written evaluations many of my students would use my nickname, and I wondered why."

Rubin then surveyed "a great number" of students at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, where she was then teaching. Students were asked what terms they'd use to get the attention of their professors in both formal classroom and informal situations.

"Female students consistently use the familiar address term with their female professors while affording their male professors more status with the use of the 'professor' title," she says.

She attributes the difference to "sexual status stereotyping" and to "assumed similarity." She explains that "people assume they're more similar to people than they actually are. I think some of the older female students tend to identify with some of the younger female faculty members. So they use less status differential."

Rubin also notes earlier studies showing "female secretaries tend to identify with the female faculty members in their departments, and are more likely to call male professors" by their professional titles.
