Technology center named to honor Senator Meshel

By JO ANN KOLARIK
Jambar Copy Editor

The University's new high tech building was officially named Harry Meshel Hall at the Board of Trustees meeting on Friday, June 15. The trustees also approved an operating budget for 1984-85, and the award of an honorary Doctor of Business Degree to Edward J. DeBartolo.

In a resolution to name the building, the trustees stated, "Senator Meshel's efforts were a major factor in the allocation of $15 million to construct and equip a building at Youngstown State University for use by the Computer Center and the academic programs teaching computer science and technology."

Meshel is a native of Youngstown, and a graduate of East High School. He graduated with honors from YSU with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He went on to receive a masters degree from Columbia University, and also completed advanced study in management science at the University of Wisconsin.

The senator has called YSU's high tech facility, "the most important contribution of the University to the community," and predicted it will lead the way in forming a new economic foundation for this area and all of Northeastern Ohio.

The trustees also approved a $56,966,332 operating budget for 1984-85, $4,107,094 or a 7.8 percent rise from this year's budget. Although the budget anticipates a fall enrollment of 15,767, down 82 students from last fall, the state instructional subsidy will be up 10 percent or $2,620,000.

Tuition will remain at $1335 for full-time students this fall, but room and board will increase to $2190 for the academic year.

The mailing charge of the Neon will now be $10, a $7 increase, as recommended by both the Neon staff and the General Fee sub-committee.

Parking fines will be divided into two classes. Class I violations continue at $5 fines; however, Class II violation fines will be $13. Class II includes parking in: handicap zone without a permit, parking at a No Parking sign, tow away zone, loading zone, official use only zone, or in the campus core area.

The trustees gave formal approval for granting the degree Doctor of Business, honoris causa, to Edward J. DeBartolo at Spring Commencement. In a resolution to authorize the degree, the trustees stated that "Mr. DeBartolo has given generously of his time and financial support to humanitarian causes and people in distress and through hard work and personal ingenuity has contributed to the American tradition of success."

Promotions to assistant professor were approved for Dr. Vivian Carver, H & PE, Dr. Patricia Gilmartin-Zena, sociology, and Dr. Mary Anne Pitman, foundations of education. Confer emeritus status was approved for the following faculty and professional/administrative staff who retired from the University with at least ten years of service: Paul E. Beckman, Jr., Professor Emeritus; Marvin W. Chrisp, Professor Emeritus; Philip J. Hahn, Professor Emeritus; John L. Kearns, Professor Emeritus, Agnes M.

Former YSU basketball standout Ricky Tunstall was drafted in the eighth round of the 1984 NBA player draft. The New York Knicks made Tunstall the 179th pick of the draft only one round later than Akron standout Joe Jakubick, who went to the Cleveland Cavaliers in the seventh round.

The last YSU player to be drafted by the NBA franchise was Jeff Covington, a fifth round choice of the New Orleans Jazz in 1977.

YSU to offer new majors

By GEORGE NELSON
Jambar News Editor

The YSU Academic Senate voted to establish a telecommunications major within the department of Speech, Communications and Theatre at their final meeting of the 1983-84 academic year on June 6. A report offered by the Senate's Academic Programs and Curriculum Committee revealed that over 200 students currently enrolled as Speech Communications majors have expressed interest in a telecommunications major.

In a prepared statement,

Virginia Phillips expressed concern over the curriculum's focus — television and radio media. She stated that telecommunications includes other definitions such as data processing, telephone, telegraph and teletype communications. She said she hoped that the establishment of the proposed telecommunications major would not endanger future development of data communications.

Dr. Alfred Owens, speech communication and theatre, said, "Our focus is how people communicate with one another as mediated by electronic devices from the perspective of the television and radio."

Senators proposed several titles to clarify the curriculum's focus, which were voted down. "I see no reason for expansion of this name to cause a specificity which may not be necessary," said Dr. Bernard Gillis, provost.

Dr. George Sutton, dean of the School of Engineering, added that any title which would limit the focus of the program would "handcuff (the curriculum) from emerging into the 20th Century."

The telecommunications major requires that students participating in the program complete a minimum of 60 quarter

University recognizes employees, retirees

YSU's third annual Awards Dinner, held June 8, honored three Heritage Awards and paid tribute to nine faculty, staff, and administrators, who are retired or have 20 years of service.

The Heritage Award recipients included: Dr. David M. Behen of LaGrange, Ill., former chairman of the History Department; Pauline E. Botty of Austintown, former dean of women who established the Department of Sociology and served as its chairman; and Christine R. Dykema of Canfield, former chairman of the Foreign Language Department.

The Heritage award program is sponsored by a grant from the YSU Foundation. It was established in 1980 to recognize former faculty and staff whose unique contributions to the university have had a major impact on its development. Nominees are limited to persons whose service to the university ended at least a year before the nomination.

Plaques honoring recipients are placed in the Maag Library foyer. Dr. Behen joined the Youngstown College faculty in 1954 and in 1956 was named chairman of the history department, a post he held until 1967. Dr. Behen received a Watson Merit Award in 1964 and a resolution of appreciation from the Ohio House of Representatives and State Senate when he retired in 1978.

He was instrumental in the drafting of a constitution for the University Senate and was an original member of the Senate, serving as its first elected presiding officer. Upon retirement, the University Senate appointed him an honorary member of the Senate, the first faculty member to ever earn that accolade.

Also honored a Heritage Award was Pauline E. Botty. She joined the Youngstown College in 1946, established the Department of Sociology and served as its chairman from 1948 to 1968. Botty also served as dean of women from 1953-56 at YSU and during her tenure as dean, YSU women graduates won approval for membership in the American Association of University women. Botty retired from YSU in 1971.

Christine Dykema said it was a real pleasure to be honored with the Heritage award. Reflecting over 40 years of teaching, she said there were "a lot of changes." For example, Dykema mentioned that when she joined YSU in 1938, the "entire full-time faculty was 12-or-13 members. It was a small school and the ratio of men to women back then was 5-to-1," she said. Dykema said she taught classes in the basement of buildings like Jones Hall and had to "dash around large pillars." After the second World War the college had a "sudden burst" of students. "There was a real need for more teachers, books and rooms," she added.

Soon, the college began to grow she remembers. "Naturally, because of its much larger size, the college lost some of its intimate feelings among colleagues," Dykema said. "But, the final remodeling of the campus made it a very beautiful campus... I certainly enjoyed it there."

Dykema was named chairman of the Foreign Languages and Literature Department in 1973, a post she held until her retirement in 1978. She was a member of the University Senate from the time it was formed and was advisor to the Student Council and Government for 25 years. She was named a Distinguished Professor in 1965.

Faculty and administrative/professional staff who have retired since July, 1983 have 177 years of service among them. With their years of service at YSU in parenthesis, they are: Dr. Paul E. Beckman, Jr. (1958-83) Youngstown, psychology professor; Dr. Marvin Chrisp (1962-83) Lake Milton, professor of elementary education; Dr. John J. Coffelt (1968-84) Liberty, university president; Dr. Philip J. Hahn (1950-84) Bordman, professor of economics; Dr. John L. Kearns (1971-83) Lisbon, professor of industrial engineering; Marilyn A. Kocinski (1960-83) Struthers, associate professor of health and physical education; Gale W. Mills (1968-83) Youngstown, assistant director of Campus Security; Dr. Raymond J. Shuster (1971-84) Boardman, professor of management; and Dr. Agnes Smith (1966-84) West Farmington, professor of history.

Recognized for 30 years of service was Jon M. Naberezny of Youngstown, professor of art, who became a member of the university faculty in 1954.

Faculty and professional/administrative staff who have completed 20 years of service were also honored. They were all appointed in 1964 except where otherwise noted: Dr. Frederick J. Blue, Austintown, professor of history; Anthony F. Dastoli, Lowellville, assistant professor of management; Dr. E. Terry Deiderick, Boardman, professor of marketing; Dr. Leslie Domonkos, Canfield, professor

Drive succeeds despite timing

By GEORGE NELSON
Jambar News Editor

Response to a Red Cross Blood Drive unusually scheduled on June 14, during the break between spring and summer quarters, pleased Sandra Durant, Red Cross field representative.

According to Durant, a YSU sophomore studying marketing technology, the Red Cross collected 85 units of blood from members of the YSU community.

Durant said that the Red Cross scheduled the collection specifically to attract high school juniors and seniors who had donated blood during the past year at their high schools. She further explained that the Red Cross chose Kilcawley Center's Chestnut Room as the collection center because, "We wanted... to expose them to YSU."

Durant noted that the collection was especially important, due to a "critical shortage" of blood. She explained that in a critical shortage, the Red Cross blood bank in Cleveland, which supplies blood to 71 hospitals in northeastern Ohio, has a day's supply of blood.

"In the case of last week, there was less than one day's supply of blood," Durant explained. She added that one day, the bank's supply of B-negative blood was depleted.

Durant cited a reduction in donors as one reason for the blood shortage. "Our regular donors haven't been giving," she said. She also noted that an increase in automobile accidents generated a greater demand for blood, on top of the supply needed for hospital patients who ordinarily need transfusions.

"We always get good participation (at YSU)," Durant said. She noted during the usual quarterly collections on campus that the Red Cross collects approximately 350-400 units of blood from YSU students, faculty and visitors over a two-day period.

The Red Cross also hoped to promote their annual Swim-A-Cross at the blood collection. The Swim-A-Cross, which is being held June 25-30, will begin at 10 a.m., June 25 at the Beeghly Natatorium.

Graduates addressed by bishop

James A. Malone, bishop of the Diocese of Youngstown, told 1984 YSU graduates they are "special" because they have actual work experience while attending college.

Malone delivered the main address to 1,072 graduates at YSU's Spring Commencement Saturday, June 16, in Beeghly Center.

Bishop Malone, current president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, holds an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters Degree from YSU.

Referring to two major challenges facing graduates today — world hunger and the nuclear arms race — Malone gave the students their first post-grad assignment. "Apathy leads to disaster," he said. Therefore, it is your responsibility to discourage apathy by becoming involved in political decisions. Political action presupposes preparation, the latter involving familiarity of social issues."

He also stressed the importance of the injection of moral consideration into those decisions.

Malone stressed the importance of patience in this computer age and urged graduates to demonstrate fidelity to job, family, and religious commitments.

"Your chosen profession is not solely dependent upon interest, talent, and qualification," he said. "You must be faithful to your commitments, pay your dues, and exercise humility."

As for marriage, he concluded, "You must learn the art of compromise and choose divorce only as a last resort."

After commencement, graduates reacted favorably to Malone's speech. In

The 1984 class included the 50,000 person to graduate from the University since it was founded in 1908.

President Neil Humphrey gave the degrees to students. Of the 1,072 students receiving degrees, 312 received associate's degrees, 669 bachelor's degrees, and 92 master's degrees. Michelle Ann Bernadich and David DeFrance graduated with 4.0 grade point averages.

MARGARET GERAS

YSU student dies in auto wreck

An automobile accident claimed the life of YSU student Margaret "Peggy" Geras early June 14.

Geras, an honor roll junior majoring in psychology, died from injuries received when her car ran off Market Street, struck a fire hydrant and finally stopped after hitting a pole on Southern Boulevard.

Geras was pronounced dead at 4:40 a.m. at South Side Hospital. County coroner Nathan Belinky called the death a traffic fatality.

Geras was born to John F. Sr. and Margaret O'Day Geras on Feb. 9, 1963. She graduated from Cardinal Mooney High School in 1981 before attending YSU. She was a part-time employee at Susie's Casuals in the Southern Park Mall.

She is survived by her parents, her brother, John F. Jr., and Lilian O'Day, a grandmother.

Services were held Saturday at St. Luke's Church, where she was a parishioner. A benefit in her memory was held last night at the Cedar's Lounge. Proceeds from the benefit, which featured the 8-Balls, the Factors, Metropolis, the Unattached and members of other local bands, will go to charity.

YSU gets money to study unemployment rates

The Commission and OBES are concerned about published local unemployment rates.

Households to be interviewed have already been scientifically selected.

Officials hope the results of the survey will clearly identify the number of unemployed and establish the types of training needs. The survey could be used to help channel more state and federal aid into the area.

Summertime fun

What are you doing in school?
 It's summertime — you know, summer vacation and all that stuff. Or are those days over?
 What are you doing inside buildings?
 Outside it is sunny and warm, hot and humid, hotter and muggy. Usually it rains.
 Summer.
 The very word connotes hailstorms, wet picnics, mosquito bites, 60 mph winds, more mosquito bites and lots of free time.
 So what are you doing in school, when you could be basking in Youngstown's colorful thunderstorms or leisurely sipping iced tea in a ditch, waiting for a tornado to pass over?
 What are you doing in air-conditioned classrooms when the rest of the city is enjoying sweltering heat, taking three and sometimes four baths a day to keep cool?
 It doesn't make sense.
 Why give up such pleasures for something as meaningless as an education?
 And the cheery weather isn't all you are missing.
 Chances are your entertainment time is suffering too. Afternoon soaps are being edged out by classes, and laugh-a-minute sit-com reruns are taking second seat to studying in the evenings.
 If you find school delightfully boring, you should see what you're missing on television.
 And if you find school rocky, you should see what its like finding a decent job for the summer?
 Now think: Is it worth it? Is this any kind of way to be spending your summer? Shouldn't you be taking it easy in front of the TV or enjoying Youngstown's peculiar climate out in the back yard?
 What are you doing in school? Huh?

COMMENTARY

No protection

For almost a decade, police have been able to feel relatively secure.
 This is because they have been wearing vests made of Kelvar, a synthetic fiber whose discovery was the result of research funded by the Justice Department.
 Aside from being lightweight and flexible, a Kelvar vest has great resistance to bullets. In fact, Justice Department estimates indicate that approximately 400 policemen are still breathing because they were wearing Kelvar vests when they got shot. Now, over half the nation's police wear the vests.
 While various factors determine the degree of protection offered by the vests (including thickness and weight of the vests, velocity and distance of a bullet from its target and length of a gun barrel) it is clear that wearing the vest when shot has been the difference between life and death for many law enforcement officials.
 However, as good as the vests are, they offer no protection against "apple greens," special Teflon-coated bullets that can penetrate Kelvar like a pencil through paper. This is, of course, what makes the bullets useful. And deadly.
 Their only real use seems to be to kill people who use the Kelvar vests — including police officers, who are campaigning to have the bullets banned.
 New York Representative Mario Biaggi, a former policeman who himself was shot 10 times in his 23 years on the police force, said he was "outraged that Federal law allows this type of ammunition to be made and sold, without restriction."
 Accordingly, Biaggi and Senator Daniel Moynihan have introduced bills banning the "cop-killer" bullets. The bills are co-sponsored by 170 representatives and 15 senators.
 According to the president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the bullets have "no legitimate use . . . either in or out of law enforcement." So there really shouldn't be any reasonable objection to a ban.

 Not as far as the National Rifle Association (NRA) is concerned.
 According to the NRA, passage of a bill might also lead to the banning of some hunting rifle ammunition which, if fired from certain handguns, might penetrate a Kelvar vest. Even if this were true, using other types of ammunition for hunting seems a small price to pay for the lives of those who protect and serve.
 But it's not true. The Treasury Secretary is given the authority to specify the specific ammunition to be banned, which is well known. Still, the effective NRA lobby, terrified of any gun regulation, has managed to stall the bill until a less effective definition of "armor-piercing bullets" (tailor-made to suit them) has been written into the legislation.
 The bill's sponsors can forget looking to the supposedly "law and order" Reagan Administration for assistance. Reagan, a longtime member of the NRA, favors increased jail sentences for gun murderers, certainly a cold comfort at best to the family of a slain policeman. That the same administration which favors taking alcohol from 18-20 year olds in order to prevent traffic accidents would rather punish a murderer than prevent him from committing his crime by taking away his tools is simply astonishing. And astonishingly simple.
 It should not have to be the responsibility of society's defenders to continually upgrade their devices for self-protection unnecessarily just so the teeming legions of weekend hunters can have the privilege of bagging a trophy. A pair of antlers for a man's life.
 It can't possibly balance out.

Eastern Kentucky's women's basketball team, shown above in action against YSU, captured the OVC championship last season.

EKU captures both OVC All-Sports titles

Eastern Kentucky completed its most successful year ever in the Ohio Valley Conference by sweeping both All-Sports Trophy awards, the men's and women's, making it the first OVC school to take both titles in the same year.

The EKU men outdistanced defending champion Murray State by 10 1/2 points, 103 1/2 to

93. The Colonels won league championships in football, indoor track, baseball and gymnastics. Eastern Kentucky's women won league crowns in cross country, volleyball and outdoor track. Their total of 63 1/2 points ran away from second place Middle Tennessee, whose total of 46 points narrowly edged third place Morehead State (45) and fourth-place Murray State (42 1/2). Eastern Kentucky's men's All-Sports Trophy crown is its second ever in the OVC and its first since 1965-66. The women's trophy was begun in the 1980-81 year with Murray State winning the first trophy, Middle Tennessee the second and, including 1983-84, Eastern Kentucky the last two.

OVC meeting results in change

By DARREN CONSTANTINO
Jambar Sports Editor

Representatives of eight schools determined the fate of the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC) basketball tournament at the annual OVC spring/summer meeting held Tuesday, June 12 and Wednesday, June 13 in College Corner, Ohio.

The tournament, which had been a playoff between the top four teams during the regular season, has been expanded to include all eight OVC colleges. Instead of holding the games at the home court of the OVC regular season champion, the site of the tourney will be chosen by a committee who will select bids from those schools interested in hosting the affair.

The change is expected to upgrade the playoffs and lend more of a tournament atmosphere to the event. With only four teams participating, the old format did not give the host team a good chance to publicize the tournament or to sell tickets.

Representatives also discussed raising the maximum number of football scholarships from 65 to 70 in order to match the Division I-AA limit. No final decision was made, but the proposal will be considered again at the winter meeting.

The OVC policy on student transfers was also revised. It now allows athletes to move from one OVC school to another, and participate in the same sport as long as he or she sits out for one season. The player will lose one year of eligibility, but the new rule is more lenient than the old one which did not allow a transfer student from another OVC school to participate in the same sport.

The meeting was chaired by outgoing OVC President Dr. D.J. Guzzetta of Akron University. Dr. Robert Riggs of Austin Peay was named Guzzetta's replacement.

After awards were given to the top OVC athletes, Eastern Kentucky University was presented with the All-Sports Trophy and Malcolm P. Quillen of Tennessee Tech was inducted into the OVC Hall of Fame.

'GUIN TALK

What's a 'guin'? Anyone who has braved the elements at a YSU football game with the student cheering section or joined the Section 9 rowdies at Beeghly to watch the YSU roundballers is certainly aware of what a 'guin' is. 'Guin' is short for Penguin, and any spirited fan of the Scarlet and White should remember it. No longer will 'Pete's Beat' appear in this spot, instead, it has been replaced with the title 'guin talk'.

Take the plunge

The Annual Red Cross 'Swim-A-Cross' will be held the week of June 25-30. The kickoff will take place on Monday, June 25 from 10 am to 12 noon at the YSU Beeghly Natatorium. Participating swimmers may swim laps at any lake or pool throughout the week.

Pledge sheets can be picked up at any area Valu King store or at the Red Cross offices. For more information call the Mahoning County Chapter/The American Red Cross at 744-0161.

Basketball camp set

The final two sessions of the Second Annual Mike Rice Basketball Camp is open to all boys and girls nine years old through high school. Sessions will run from June 25-29 and from July 30-August 3.

Cost of the day camp is $80 which includes five meals, tuition, a Youngstown State t-shirt, awards and insurance. A $30 non-refundable deposit is required with application. For more information, contact the Penguin basketball office at (216)-742-3736.

Labor Day Festival

On September 1, 1984, the YSU Athletic Department, in conjunction with area labor unions and Schwebel's Bakery, is sponsoring the First Annual "Labor Day Festival" at YSU.
