Hospitals OK pacts on medical school

Two years of negotiations climaxed Friday as officials of St. Elizabeth's Hospital and Youngstown Hospital Association signed each of their Association Agreements with the Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine, at YSU.

The agreements define the roles of each institution in the proposed six-year curriculum for medical students. Expressing his pleasure at the agreement, Dr. Stanley Olson, provost of the College of Medicine, said, "Because the new medical college will not develop a university hospital of its own, it is critically important that clinical teaching programs be developed in the community hospitals. The signing of the Association Agreements enables us to go forward with curriculum planning, faculty appointments, strengthening of internship and residency programs and the necessary administrative and financial arrangements."

YSU will accept about 13 students when it begins the program next year. Dr. Lawrence Looby, special assistant to the president of YSU, said he may be ready for applications in a few weeks. He said students in the existing two-year pre-med program might be allowed to transfer over to the new six-year program, but enrollment into it would be highly selective.

The six-year curriculum consists of two years at YSU, KSU, or the University of Akron, a third year at the new basic medical sciences campus at Rootstown, and three years at the hospitals. During these last three years, an additional three quarters at the universities are required to earn a baccalaureat degree.

The hospitals will provide what Olson terms "clinical orientation" during the first two years at the universities. Doctors will visit the school, and in some cases students will be taught in the hospitals. Olson says this will help students decide early if they really want to be doctors, and will help them understand the applications of the information they must master in their third year. "We don't want them to have to take the whole thing on faith," says Olson.

He also felt that many of the classes initiated for the six-year program will be picked up by the existing two-year program as their merits become apparent. New courses, required for the six-year students, such as one dealing with the psychology of death, will be open to all, and will interest people of many fields, he predicts.

Student hit, robbed on Belmont; receives six stitches at hospital

A YSU student living on campus received six stitches in the head Saturday night at St. Elizabeth's Hospital after being hit with a gun and robbed of $60 outside the Bahur Market on Belmont Avenue, near the University.

The man, who wishes to remain unidentified, said he was driving his brother and two other friends, visitors from another city, to the campus about 8 p.m. Saturday when the group stopped at the Market. He explained that his brother went into the store, and, while waiting in the car with the two others, he was approached by a black male, of medium height and stocky build, who asked if he was "interested in any ladies of the night," according to the student.

He answered no. "He then said I could have one for as cheap as ten dollars." He repeated that he was not interested, then added, "Sorry, I only have a five dollar bill. Then my brother came out of the store. I opened the car door for him on the passenger's side. Then a tall young black man, about 21 years of age, tall and heavy... approached my brother with a 22. Saturday night special," according to a statement given by the student.

The student then threw out his wallet to the two men and raised his hands while they collected about $20 from the others. One

Stoessinger to speak on Kissinger for U.N. Day observance here

Dr. John G. Stoessinger, director of the political affairs division at the United Nations, will speak here on "The United Nations in the World of Henry Kissinger" at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 23, jointly sponsored by YSU's Artist/Skeggs Lecture Series and the United Nations Association (UNA).

Professor of political science of the City University of New York at Hunter College, Stoessinger, was appointed acting director of the U.N. Political Affairs Division in May, 1967. His appearance will be one of the highlights of the United Nations Day Observance planned by YSU, the UNA, and Youngstown Municipal Government.

At 6 p.m. that evening, a dinner sponsored by the UNA will be held in Kilcawley Center. Tickets for the dinner are $5 and $3.50 for students. Dinner reservations may be made with Doug Vimmerstedt, 744-8411, or UNA President Dr. George Beelen on the YSU campus. Tickets for the reception are $1 and may be purchased at the door.

As a child, Dr. Stoessinger fled from Nazi-occupied Austria to Czechoslovakia. Three years later,

Accums dropped from Council requisite; petition deadline, election date set

Student Council at their third meeting of the fall quarter voted to amend the by-law stipulation that a candidate for Student Council must have a minimum point average of 2.25 and decided that the new by-law would state that a student need only be in good standing and have completed 12 quarter hours.

Mark Klimek, chairperson of the elections committee and junior in T&C, stated that the tentative date for elections is Nov. 21 and 22 and that the final date for candidate petitions to run for Student Council is Nov. 8. Klimek said that the Nov. 8 deadline would give candidates the opportunity to attend the two council meetings they are required to attend before the elections.

Council also voted to allocate funds to send two student orientation leaders to a student orientation leaders conference at the University of New Mexico. Dean Bleidt, assistant dean of student affairs, represented the orientation leaders and stated that "input from last year's conference aided in improving this year's orientation program, and giving incoming students a Fame has found its way to a small spot on the German map where a few short decades ago a gentle nun with a great love for children expressed that sentiment in scores of charming paintings.

Today, those works of art by Sister Berta Hummel are treasured by admirers throughout the world and are reproduced in many varied forms. Here in the fourth limited edition Christmas Plate a typically tender subject of a Guardian Angel leading a trusting child is rendered in Sister Berta's famous palette of subtle colors. This previously unpublished painting is reproduced here with the express permission of the late artist's mother and legal heir, Mrs. Viktoria Hummel.

Current season plans announced by speech and drama department

The YSU department of speech and dramatics announces that its 1974-75 season will include four major stage productions, two evenings of student-directed one-act plays, a series of international motion picture classics, a special Theatre YSU event, and a Salute to Spain.

The first stage production will be The Diary of Anne Frank, set for Nov. 4 through 9. Dr. Bill G. Hulsopple, associate professor of speech and dramatics and director of theatre, notes, "this marks the 30th anniversary of the time when Anne Frank was taken from her Amsterdam home to a concentration camp." The drama received the Antoinette Perry Award, the Drama Critics Circle Award, and the Pulitzer Prize.

Tennessee Williams' The Rose Tattoo will be presented Jan. 13 through 18; Jacinto Benavente's Bonds of Interest, Feb. 24 through March 1, and William Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, May 5 through 10.

This year the department is continuing its tradition of presenting acclaimed international motion picture classics, including The Gold Rush, starring Charlie Chaplin, on Oct. 17; The General, Nov. 14; The Shop on Main Street, Dec. 5; Plisetskaya Dances and Galina Ulanova, Jan. 23; The Grand Olympics (Rome 1960), March 6; Seven Samurai (The Magnificent Seven), April 13, and Ballad of a Soldier and From Doric to Gothic April 17.

A mini-festival of contemporary American film classics will be shown June 3 through 5, featuring The African Queen, Bonnie and Clyde, and The Graduate. YSU Theatre will conduct a special Salute to Spain and feature three acclaimed films: Lazarillo, Feb. 6; The Moment of Truth, Feb. 10; Viridiana and Goya, Feb. 12. Hulsopple explains, "The stage production of The Bonds of Interest coincides with the Salute, since Jacinto Benavente is considered the greatest Spanish writer of this century."

Theatre YSU-1975 will feature a concert reading in reader's theatre style March 13 through 15. Designed with students in mind, this concert reading will be drawn from contemporary literature. Student-directed one-act plays selected through open competition will be presented June 11 and 12.

All performances will be held in Spotlight Theatre. Strouss Auditorium of Jones Hall Stage performances will be at 8:30 p.m. and all films at 8 p.m.

Admission to stage productions is by reserve seat tickets only. Tickets are available through the Spotlight Theatre box office located in Strouss Auditorium. Box office hours are 12:45 to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays, for 11 days prior to each opening performance, and during the week of performance until 8:30 p.m.

There has been no increase in ticket prices, with individual admission for major University productions $1.25 for students and $1.75 for non-students. Season coupon books may still be obtained. Non-student books are $3.25 and student books, $2.25.

Additional information may be obtained from the department at 746-1851, ext. 239.

YSU awarded HEW training project grant to study problems of child abuse, neglect

YSU is one of four universities awarded grants by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to conduct training projects related to the problems of neglected and abused children and child care.

The principal recipient, Case Western Reserve University, as well as YSU, Cleveland State University, and the University of Akron, is cooperating in a series of fourteen workshops beginning in November and extending to May.

Dr. James W. Kiriazis, chairman of the YSU department of sociology and anthropology and applicant of the local program, reports that YSU will accommodate up to 100 participants in workshops dealing specifically with "abused and neglected children," and the workshops will be offered through the office of continuing education and public services. The first three sessions will feature, in order, specialists in the medical, emotional, and legal areas.

The project goal is to foster acquisition of knowledge, understanding, and skills required by public and private service workers to effectively serve those children and families wherein there is either potential or evident neglect and abuse. Trainees will include line workers and supervisors providing services in such settings as child welfare, family and health agencies, juvenile courts, and schools.

YSU project members are Kiriazis, and Dr. Assad Kassees and Syretha Cooper, both assistant professors in social work.

Those interested in applying may contact Mr. Leon Richman, school of Applied Social Sciences, Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland.

turn around on Belmont Avenue and continue without stopping.

The student said he went directly to the Youngstown Police Department. "I was bleeding so much that my shirt was blood-soaked," he told The Jambar.

After taking his report, the police drove him to the hospital, where he was released a short time later. None of the others were hurt.

A minister from the Rescue Mission on Rayen Avenue called him the next day to report that his empty wallet had been found. He called the police again and one of them offered to accompany him to the Mission. He said that as his mother was driving him to the police station, he spotted one of the pair who had robbed him standing on a corner one block from the Market, wearing the same clothes he had worn the night before.

He told this to the desk sergeant at the station, who directed him to go with two policemen in a patrol car. When the car reached the area, he said, the suspect fled on a bicycle.

The student, a resident at a dormitory on campus, told The Jambar that he knows of several other instances one just last week, in which "strange men came in asked for girls who do not even live there." He said it is common for strangers to loiter in the building.

YSU campus security officials told him that the incident is out of their jurisdiction because it occurred off University grounds.

"Security officials here," the student said, "ought to make the students who live on campus aware of where the bad areas of town are."

of his friends got out of the car and, when the second man found no money on him, he told him: "I will give you five seconds to run across Belmont Avenue or I will kill you."

The student said his friend ran across the street to safety.

He continued that "The tall slim man told my brother and his friend to kiss each other because he said 'honkies love each other.'" The student said he was then pistol-whipped in the head by the first man and kicked in the head, shoulder and chest by the second.

Anachronisms

Some anachronisms exist at YSU that sometimes give it the look of a campus of the 1950's: the rock painted from time to time at the amphitheatre, the atrocious revolving clock (one side could at least give the temperature) in front of the library that was donated by the class of 19 or something or other, and the current minimum wage paid to student workers.

The minimum wage ($1.70 an hour) would probably have guaranteed a frosh a fun time at the drive-in with Betty Sue in the fifties. In the 1970's however it is a detriment to any reasonable standard of living.

While it is true that the University gave the student workers a 10 cent increase last year (amounting to about a 6.2 per cent raise), inflation roared along at a 10 per cent clip. Aside from losing about 4 per cent of their real earnings, the increase was from such a small level to begin with that the present rate offers very little remuneration for student labors. During these highly inflationary times, $1.70 an hour reduces the student worker to the student serf.

There is also another drawback to the present system of employment at YSU. Student employees can work only 800 hours during the calendar year, and if they start out at minimum, an eager beaver can net a cool $1,360 a year. If YSU gave students more than 800 hours, the university would have to pay into the statewide retirement fund. This smacks of a Catch-22; students cannot work more hours because the university does not want to foot the bill for retirement benefits that YSU students will never use, which students would also have to pay into. What is clearly needed here is a revision of the state law that puts the student worker in such an absurd position.

Quite evident in the limit is the paternalism inherent in higher education for so long and not totally done away with. In 1974, when prices are still rising at an unprecedented rate, the limit implies something else again: poverty.

The University is invested with the power to raise student wages; they should be increased to the federal minimum. The 800 hour limit should be dropped, if not out of economic necessity, then at least because of student pride.

Explains revision of constitution

To the editor of The Jambar,

In the interest of fairness it has become necessary to write this letter. The original constitution of Kilcawley Center was written in the beginning of 1973, long before the Center opened in April of this year. Consequently, some parts of the constitution have not worked as well in practice as on paper. For that reason a constitution and by-laws revision committee was appointed in May. Two weeks ago at its regular meeting the Board began voting on the committee's proposed changes.

Several of the proposed changes need to be explained more clearly and fairly. The board had discussed including in the constitution a provision for unlimited reappointment of its members. However, it was agreed that the provision was unnecessary and was not added to the constitution. Since then an agreement has been offered which includes a limit of one consecutive term from one to two years.

It still remains to be voted on at the Board's next meeting. Earlier a proposed change to provide for two year terms had already been defeated.

Still to be voted on also is an amendment which would reduce the number of representatives selected by Student Council from two to one. This would not change the total number of students on the Board, which is a majority control. The one student less from Student Council would be appointed to the Board after advertising for and taking applications from any interested students. Importantly, two provisions of the old constitution which limited the students who could be appointed to the board have been removed. They had required that all undergraduate students be enrolled full-time and must have served at least two quarters on one of the board's standing committees before appointment to the board. This action has opened up the system of student appointment to all students in good-standing, including part-time students.

Finally, I'd like to point up that all Kilcawley Center Board meetings are open to all students and interested persons. The next meeting is Wednesday, Oct. 16 at 9 p.m. in Room 220 of the Center. If you've got something to say let's hear it!

Urges YSU staff to join union

To the editor of The Jambar:

This is an open invitation to all staff employees on the YSU campus to join a new organization that is designed to protect your interests while functioning within the Civil service System.

To date the only group on campus to assist staff employees has been the O.C.S.E.A.—but that has changed now. As of Nov. 1, 1974 the staff of this university will be given the opportunity to be represented by the Ohio State Government Employees Union. This organization is chartered by the communication Workers of America and affiliated with the A.F.L.C.I.O.

This is a comparatively young organization but to say that is is the fastest growing public employee union in the state would be a gross understatement. In reality it is the only growing union in state service in Ohio.

Its competitors, on the other hand, have been suffering from an illness called "declining membership" which seems to be getting more severe with each passing month. As an example: within the past four months alone the membership of O.C.S.E.A. has gone down some 1,800 members as has the membership of AFSCME and the Teamsters. These figures are not the figment of anyone's imagination. They can be verified by the State Department of Finance.

There must be a reason why C.W.A. is growing so fast while others are shrinking. That reason is simply that state employees have learned that C.W.A. doesn't promise, they deliver. In dealing with the legislature in defending its members before the State Board of Personnel Review in aggressively pursuing grievances and negotiating contracts, they have shown that they have the talent and desire necessary to build and organization of strength and courage.

The newly formed YSU local boasts of some 138 members and hopes to double that number before the first of the year. In the coming weeks there will be a great deal more said and done by this new group. It is hoped that all staff personnel that are interested will make an effort to join. Remember before C.W.A. can help you, you must help yourself by joining. If anyone would like more information or would like to join, call 747-1255.

Minimum wage may remain same for YSU student employees

The minimum wage for YSU full-time student employees might have to remain at its present rate until January, 1976, according to John E. Wales, director of financial aids.

YSU is now paying a minimum wage of $1.70 an hour to the full-time student employees. This rate is about 89 per cent of the federal minimum wage, which is $1.90 an hour. This federal minimum wage applies to institutions which came under the provision of the 1966-1974 minimum wage law.

According to this law, non-profit institutions, which include state universities, are allowed to pay as low as 85 per cent of the minimum wage to full-time student employees. This amounts to about $1.60 for YSU students. However, as a result of 10 per cent increase last fall, the minimum wage at YSU went up to $1.70. Unless another increase approval occurs, this rate will remain until the federal minimum wage goes higher January 1976.

The University wages are approved by the Board of Trustees after recommendations made by the Budget Committee, which includes YSU's president and vice-president.

Wales said that the financial aid office is going to make a study of wages in different universities. After the study, the office is going to determine some recommendations to the University Budget Committee about student wages at YSU. The University policy now, said Wales, is to employ more students rather than pay more wages. This policy helps to aid as many students as possible.

YSU students are required to fulfill three credit hours of physical education activities in order to graduate from the University.

Many students have complained that they have become confused when trying to register for various activities and find that they are either closed or offered to physical education majors only. Lack of correct information seems to be the cause of this confusion.

Dr. Lewis Ringer, head of physical education, told the Jambar that most activities offered are open to all students, not to physical education majors only. He did say, however, that some of the activities, such as wrestling, are divided into two sections. One section is offered to physical education majors and the other to non-physical education majors.

The reason for this section split is that physical education majors are instructed by an approach that will aid them directly in their field.

J. Carroll U. takes 1st place at YSU varsity debate

John Carroll University team I took first place accolades at the Varsity Intercollegiate Debate Tournament held at YSU this past weekend.

John Carroll U. I debated with Clarion State college in the finals. The semi-finalists were Wayne State, the University of Michigan, and John Carroll University team II. Four colleges participated with a total of sixteen student debaters.

The debate was on this season's controversy, "The Reduction Powers of the President Should Be Significantly Curtailed."

This was the first time that YSU has sponsored a varsity intercollegiate tournament, and forensics director, Dr. Dan O'Neill expressed the hope that this would become an annual event. The tournament was held in cooperation with members of the YSU Speech and Debate Union, headed by Janetmarie Filips, junior, A&S.

YSU will be holding an individual events tournament on November 23. Anyone interested in helping the Speech and Debate Union with their plans for this tournament are asked to contact either Filips or Dr. David Robinson, individual events coach.

Anyone interested in joining either the debate team or the individual events squad should contact Dr. Robinson in Jones Hall, Room 112.

Slam star Rod Laver triumphs over Cox at Beeghly Sunday

Rod Laver, two time winner of the Grand Slam of tennis, matched strokes with Mark Cox in a tennis exhibition on Sunday evening at Beeghly Center.

A victorious Laver triumphed over Cox, a British star, 7-6, 2-6, and 6-3. During the match, Cox aced his opponent several times, and Laver had difficulty in returning serves. The games were close and expert placements decided, crucial points. Laver displayed a fast, offensive style. His back-hand drives with topspin, slicing returns, and awesome forehand placements impressed the gallery. During the first set, a tie-breaker game was played resulting in Laver as the victor. Cox won the second set, and Laver wrapped up the match by winning the third set. After the exhibition, "The Rocket", as Laver is tabbed by his competitors, commented, "It was a sliding good game!"

An added local feature was a doubles match, with John Boliver of Greenville and Ray Vens of Warren winning over Jerry Malkin and Jack Wagnan of Liberty Township in a pro-set 8-5.

Representing ladies' tennis was Marilyn Chuey, part-time faculty member of YSU, and Pat Fronius of Boardman who defeated Wolfe of Cleveland and Aimee Conlan of Vienna in a pro set 6-2.

Approximately 110 YSU students were represented in the total sale of 3,800 tickets. Tennis buffs from the University, area racket clubs, and surrounding localities supported the exhibitions. They were sponsored report to Council and briefly discussed such summer projects as the Student Interest Inventory, in which incoming frosh were sent information about various campus organizations, the Student Handbook, and the financial situation of Major Events, which lost $960 on the summer America concert.

Council also voted to officially name John Pete, senior in A&S, as head of Major Events, and Alan Dieter, junior in A&S, was introduced as a new Council member.

Council also decided to go to the Budget Committee on the matter of funding the Pershing Rifles group, which, due to some misinformation, was not funded last year. The money for the Pershing Rifles would come from Council's contingency fund.

good first impression of YSU was very important."

Bleidt said that the media presentation in this year's orientation program was an idea students had gotten from last year's conference, and that the students in the orientation program felt they could gain even more valuable input that would not only improve the program for the rest of the year but could be passed on to students working in next year's program.

Funds were also allocated by Council to the YSU Flying Club to cover traveling expenses to a Flight competition in Ann Arbor, Michigan. The competition will take place in two weeks.

Bill Brown, president of student government, also presented the Student Government summer progress by the YWCA which is raising money for new gymnasium equipment, and by the local Council of Jewish Women, which is aiding senior citizens through

Rivals hard -hit --- Pens trounce Tenn.

by Dave Harasym

Playing the hardest hitting game of the year so far, YSU defeated its strongest rival, Tennessee Tech, 23-0 before 4,820 fans at Rayen Stadium Saturday.

Evidence of the hard hitting were four injured Penguins and several other shaken players on both sides. Sophomore Russ Musiel suffered a hip injury, junior Dave Gardner suffered a slight concussion but should be back next week, junior Rick Carter incurred a shoulder injury, and junior AlCampman, the most seriously hurt received a back injury and is hospitalized in St. Elizabeth's.

YSU played the perfect game from the outset, capitalizing on Tech's mistakes and limiting Tech's offensive attack.

Tennessee troubles began when Paul Green fumbled the opening kick-off and Jake Whiteleather recovered on Tennessee's 12-yard line. YSU's Max Judeth kicked a 22-yard field goal with 13:37 showing on the clock.

Youngstown's second score was set up by Don Calloway, who recovered a Tennessee fumble on Tennessee's 44-yard line. With Cliff Stoudt facing a tough 3-18, Stoudt reached back and fired a 46-yard bomb to Dave Ferguson. John Kinch ran the last six yards for the touchdown. Judeth's extra-point attempt was good, and YSU led 10-0 with 7:06 left in the first quarter.

YSU's third score was set up on another Stoudt to Ferguson hoop-up which carried for 44 yards. Stoudt passed for the TD to Tom Hight. Judeth missed the extra-point attempt, but YSU led at the half, 16-0.

The second half turned into a punting-defense game with neither team scoring in the third quarter.

The Penguins were not to be denied when late in the fourth quarter frosh Eric Escola scored from 10 yards out with 2:57 left on the clock. Judeth hit on another extra-point attempt, and YSU had put on the topping for their fourth straight win.

In the end it was once again YSU's team-work that netted the Penguins their fourth victory. Coach Rey Dempsey summed it up, "I can't pick a star, they all played a heck of a game."

Dempsey changed his game plan this week. "We figured we couldn't run against them too well so we decided to pass. It worked," said Dempsey. The plan worked well, and the Stoudt to Ferguson play was the most potent of the offensive attack. Ferguson enjoyed a good game as he caught seven passes for 164 yards. Stoudt also looked impressive, as he was 9-19 for 186 yards and one TD.

Kinch led YSU's rushers with 20 carries for 72 yards while Escola followed with nine carries for 61 yards.

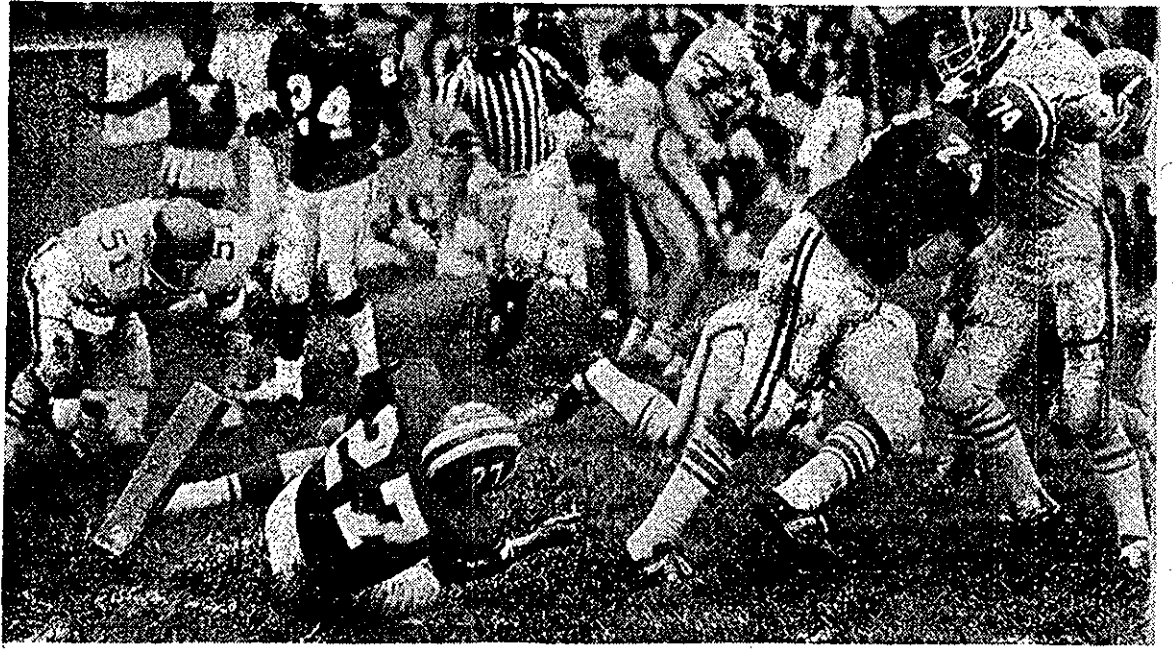

Tech's leading rusher was Terry Johnson, who had eight carries for 18 yards.

In final team statistics, YSU had 316 total offense yards to Tennessee's 119 yards.

The most impressive statistic, as far as the YSU defense is concerned, is the mere six net yards gained rushing by Tennessee Tech.

The turn-overs probably hurt Tech more than anything. Tech had a total of six turn-overs, two interceptions, and four fumbles.

YSU remains undefeated and takes to the road next week to meet Ball State (Muncie, Ind.)

Frosh Eric Escola (27) scores the final touchdown in Saturday's game with Tennessee Tech. Elliott/Dunlap (74) throws a key block as YSU defeated Tech, 23-0 to remain undefeated.

Intramurals get started as Theta Xi beats ZBT

Intramural Football got underway this past weekend with a total of eleven shut-outs, two forfeits, and several games in overtime.

In the fraternity division Zeta Beta Tau was crushed by the Theta Xi 53-0, while Tau Kappa Epsilon was shut out by Sigma Phi Epsilon 34-0. Theta Chi defeated Phi Kappa Tau 34-0, while Sigma Tau Gamma nipped Delta Chi in overtime, 14-7. Sigma Alpha Mu knocked off Phi Sigma Kappa 18-12, while Sigma Alpha Epsilon was buried by Phi Delta Theta 33-0. Sigma Pi defeated Delta Sigma Phi 24-6, and Alpha Phi Delta defeated Kappa Sigma 20-13 in overtime.

In the independent division, the bombers got by the Mean Machine, 6-0, while AIBS Canadian Club won by a slim margin over Valley Crew, 1-0, in overtime. Mad Dog wiped out the Kilcawley Dieases 33-6, while the Quantas Bears did the same to the Blue Hens, 12-0. the Hopeless Wonders remain hopeless, as they were stomped by Salug Gang 39-0. Emaoon knocked off Bears Den AC 13-0, the Deacons slipped by the IEEE 6-0 as the Mechanicals forfeited their game to Sniurb. The Carps defeated the Brewers 13-0 while the Ners defeated the Roundballers 7-6. Sons of TNUC forfeited to Tuisyn & N to round off the Independent Division.

There were two inter-division games this weekend which saw both fraternity teams knocked off. The buckeyes crushed Alpha Kappa Psi 38-0, while Alpha Phi Omega was defeated by LTD Setters 13-0
