

Court says public may scrutinize
YSU salaries

YSU employee salaries for the month of February have been released to the YSU chapter of the Ohio Education Association following a court ruling from Common Pleas Judge Clyde Osborne made public March 15.

Judge Osborne in his decision said that salary records of YSU "are public records as defined and contemplated by the Statutes of the State of Ohio" and that the "records must be kept open at all reasonable times for inspection".

University Attorney Theodore R. Cubbison informed Alan Kretzer, who is associated with the law firm representing the OEA, that the university would not turn over any more of the budget unless specifically ordered by the Court. Atty. Kretzer contacted Judge Forrest Cavalier who said he thought the matter had been taken care of by a gentlemen's agreement in his chambers between YSU and the OEA last January, the first time the OEA sued for the budget.

The OEA plans to file suit again combining the two former suits and will ask for specifics in the University budget. The hearing will take place in mid-April.

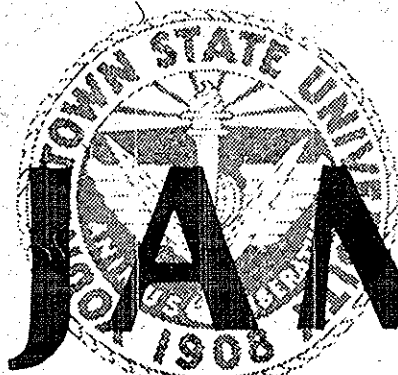

Judge Osborne's ruling states that it is: "the order of this Court that a writ of mandamus issue herein and the Defendants are ordered immediately upon receipt of this order to deliver to Plaintiff at Plaintiff's costs copies of salary records of all employees of Youngstown State University for the academic years 1970-1971 and 1971-1972 and that until such time copies are delivered in accordance with said order that representatives of Plaintiff be permitted at reasonable times to inspect the specified records herein above referred to."

Copies of the faculty salary records are now available in the University Library.

The OEA's contention in the suits has been that the citizen has the right to inspect these records while the university contended the parts of the budget were private.

Dr. Stephen Hanzely, assistant professor of physics and astronomy and chairman of the financial affairs of the OEA, said that the faculty will receive a newsletter informing them of the parts of the budget now available for inspection.

Pass/fail debate opens tomorrow

Open hearings on a proposed nontraditional grading policy for YSU will be held from 3-4 p.m. on both tomorrow and Thursday in Schwebel Auditorium, announced Dr. Matthew Siman, chairman of the AD HOC Committee on Pass/Fail Grading.

Prior to presenting this Grading Policy for action to the University Senate, the committee feels that open hearings should be conducted in order that the entire university community be apprised of the Committee's proposal, to obtain any constructive criticism, and to minimize any misunderstandings of the proposed policy. The committee has been meeting since November 1971 on this issue. As a result of these meetings, the Committee has formulated a Nontraditional Grading Policy for YSU. Although the university has nontraditional grading in some areas, the Ad Hoc Committee recommends the expansion of such grading to other areas.

YSU presently has nontraditional grading in such areas as proficiency requirements in Communications for certain types of students, proficiency requirements in foreign languages for certain majors, and an English proficiency as a degree requirement for a certain baccalaureate degree.

Nontraditional grading will allow students to have the opportunity to explore other academic areas without incurring academic penalty. This grading system can be used in those courses in which two or more instructors are involved in the evaluation of a student's performance, as well as in courses in which an acceptable level of proficiency is graded A or B. The nontraditional grading system will give grades of Credit (CR) and No Credit (NC). The grade of Credit (CR) will represent an earned grade of A, B, or C in the course. The grade of No Credit (NC) will represent an earned grade of D or F.

All courses in the University are open for CR/NC option except those courses identified as required to be taken for CR/NC grade and courses closed to CR/NC option by the departments in which the courses are offered, i.e., restricted to traditional grades only for students graduating in that department.

The instructor of a course will not be informed by the registrar as to who in his class is taking the course under the CR/NC option. The instructor will turn in traditional grades on the scan sheet for all of the students on his class roster. The computer will then identify those students taking the course under the CR/NC option and record the appropriate CR or NC in the student's record, while the remaining students will receive traditional grades.

The CR/NC grade and the quarter hours that it represents will not be included in the calculation of the student's point average. The quarter hours of applicable CR grades will, however, count in the satisfaction of degree requirements.

YSU senior in primary for county treasurer seat

John Bassetti, a senior in Speech and Drama, has added his name to the list of Democratic candidates running for Mahoning County Treasurer.

The twenty-two year old Bassetti faces a fragmented primary battle this May 2. There are presently nine candidates vying for the position left vacant when the incumbent, Joseph Gorman, decided to retire.

Bassetti believes that he has little chance of garnering the nomination because he does not have the official endorsement of the Democratic Party. He is, however, counting on students for support.

"The primary function of the treasurer's office lies in the collection of taxes," said Bassetti. He hopes that his position will mean a more counteous dispensation of his primary duty.

Bassetti is running because he "sincerely wants to be a public servant," thus by becoming treasurer he will have taken his first step in that direction. Bassetti hopes that a political career will follow.

WHY GENE McCARTHY?

Eugene McCarthy is once again challenging the "Political Machine."

Regarding the Declaration of his Candidacy, McCarthy reminds us, "I announced in Grant Park the night they nominated Humphrey. I told the crowds in the park I would never allow them to be taken in again by the politics of 1968. I said I would never lead a movement under their current system wherein people were beaten and humiliated. And when I was in Grant Park, Hubert Humphrey was at the Convention Hall, standing on the stage with George McGovern on his left and Edmund Muskie on his right. I said then we would have to change the politics of 1972."

Gene McCarthy has advocated guaranteed adequate income, amnesty, the right to conscientious objection on non-religious grounds, and the legalization of marijuana since 1967. Unpopular issues to back at that time, to be sure. But McCarthy doesn't do things because they happen to be popular just to gain votes.

After the massacres at Kent and Jackson State, McCarthy introduced legislation requiring presidential permission for the National Guard to use live ammunition against American citizens. Only Senators McCarthy and Ted Kennedy voted for the bill.

May 2nd, please vote for the delegates and alternates pledged to McCarthy.

And if you want to help, call or visit our headquarters at 1624 Elm Street, 747-1394.

A Way To Change

Voting is a responsibility, a way to change abused and abusive political leadership. If change is desired—do something. This is the last week to register to vote in the May primary.

Talking and rapping in the vacuum of city streets, on college campuses or the neighborhood bar won't force or initiate change in themselves. Words without implementation or any overt hint of pushing for change the denigrated status quo remain only words.

A vote for your candidate expresses an opinion. It takes abstract theory and turns it into power which can be the first step to change a machine-oriented body politic.

Many are of the opinion that a vote in the primary is meaningless if their chosen candidate does not receive the nomination. This is a mistaken notion, for whether your candidate is elected or not, his delegates will be able to influence the party platform.

Harping further on the issue of registration and voting becomes tiresome, boring and redundant. No one has yet found the magic formula that will encourage eligible citizens to go to the polls.

We only remind you that this is the first time that the masses of young people have had the power of the vote. And, we urge you to use it.

Letters to the Editor

Asks students to vote for change

To the editor of the Jambar:

The contents of the following letter are of great concern to me and I feel they would also be of interest to other students attending this university:

Dear Students:

My daughter Sandy was one of the four students murdered by the National Guard at Kent State on May 4, 1970.

Mitchell said, that the shootings were "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable." Yet this administration refuses persistently to bring our case to a court of justice.

President Olds of Kent State University, accompanied by two students, presented President Nixon a petition, containing over 10,800 signatures to overrule Mitchell's decision, and so far, they have not had the courtesy of an answer.

What can you do to make the government responsive: If you did not register to vote at the 1972 Presidential election please do so now. Your vote might decide the future of our country.

Can any of us murder a person and get away with it? Someday you too might be a parent, and if your child was murdered as mine was, could you ever find peace of mind without justice?

Our President has called you, the students, "Bums," which shows that he does not have any respect for your intelligence and idealism. It is up to you to show the world that our system can be made to work again. Thank you.

Editorial Policy

The Jambar wants students, faculty and staff to express their opinions on university matters and issues. Members of the university community are encouraged to submit Letters to the Editor and University Forum columns.

Letters and forums must be typed, triple-spaced and bear the author's signature, address, class rank and phone number. Letters under 250 words will be printed in full. Forum articles should not exceed 700 words.

Manuscripts which do not conform to length standards will be condensed or otherwise shortened. The editor reserves the right to edit Letters or Forums which contain character attacks or other libelous or offensive material.

Buys books cheaper elsewhere

To the editor of the Jambar:

I don't like to pay more than I have to for anything, especially textbooks. I used to, but don't anymore.

Until recently, I dutifully plunked down the full price for books. Then increasingly disgruntled by the seemingly high prices, I took the advice of an old friend.

Now, except for paperbacks, I send away to one of two discount book stores I know of. Both are listed on the Book Exchange page of the New York Times Book Review, which comes with the Sunday New York Times.

As far as I can tell, the discounted books are identical in quality to the books sold locally, and are not like the lesser quality reprints sold by the numerous "book clubs."

Texts are listed at 10% off. However, I bought one book, considered by the University as a textbook, at a discount of 25%, which is normal for books considered by the particular store as non-texts. Postage is a flat 25 cents per book.

I have found it best to include with my order a request that "if any of the following books cannot meet my arrival deadline of _____ (date the next quarter's classes begin), please so notify me and refund my purchase price and postage cost for those particular books."

It's surprising how the savings add up. And, at the end of the quarter, a discounted book can be sold locally for the same buy-back price as a locally-bought book, provided it will again be required for a University course.

Buying books in this manner is but one way of taking advantage of our society's competitive free enterprise, and "working within the system."

announcement made shortly thereafter.

At the request of Chairman Davis, Dr. C. David Bertelson, faculty advisor to council, explained that the Campus Action Committee, a representative group of the university community studying the functioning of the university, its successes and failures, is a project totally sponsored by the office of Dr. Earl Edgar, vice-president of academic affairs. All recommendations and proposals of this committee will be reviewed directly by Dr. Edgar.

In final action Jim Larene, arts

& sciences representative, asked council to consider the matter of appointing a grievance committee through which students could voice their disgruntlements with the university and specifically with their instructors. The subject will be researched and taken up at a later meeting.

YSU students involved in marketing research project

YSU students in Marketing Salesmanship course are involved in a project to improve the effectiveness of Ford dealer salesmen when showing Ford's compact car, the Pinto, to college-age consumers as an educational service created by the Ford Marketing Corporation, and administered by the College Marketing Corporation.

YSU is one of approximately 167 colleges and universities across the country to participate in the project which involves free use of a Pinto by professor of business and his students, technical specifications describing the car, statistics on college students as consumer and miscellaneous expense money of $250.

Larry Davis, instructor in marketing, whose class is participating in the project, maintains "the project is very valuable. We have divided it into three phases, so it is a comprehensive analysis which is interesting as well as worthwhile."

The project began with each of the 65 students in the class conducting two interviews with dealer salesmen from all of the area Ford dealers

The results of the research will be sent to Ford, along with material for a training film. Says Davis, "Ford had another 'better idea' by initiating this project, and we appreciate their support."

Deadline extended for Miss YSU applications

The Miss YSU Pageant filing deadline has been extended to this Thursday by the director of student activities, Mr. John Bernacki. He also announced that the final judging will take place at 8 p.m., Friday, April 28 at Austintown Middle School.

The changing of the deadline to allow further preparation and rehearsal by the contestants also necessitated holding the contest in Austintown. Strouss Auditorium, previously scheduled as the site of the pageant, is unavailable on the needed date.

Twelve students had registered for the Pageant yesterday afternoon.

Continuing education to offer 27 classes

YSU's department of continuing education will again offer a wide variety of stimulating subjects in 25 non-credit areas and two credit courses. According to Dr. Lawrence E. Looby, associate professor and chairman of the department.

Registration begins Monday, March 20, in Room 213, Engineering Science Building, from 8 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The two credit courses will be offered in "Social Policy" and "Seminar: Health (A Study of Drug Abuse)." "Social Policy" is a survey of the programs and functions of the various public and private social services in the U.S. The seminar on drug abuse combines the knowledge of professionals trained in counseling with the experience of those who have recovered from drug addiction.

Those 25 years and older may apply for admission to the University and register for credit courses through the department of continuing education on Wednesday, March 22, in Room 213 of the Engineering Science Building. The regular University schedule of fees will apply to all students enrolling for credit courses.

"Marriage Enrichment" will deal with the basic problem of how to make it in day-to-day living with another person, as well as how to bring a continuing depth to the relationship.

A course in "Black, White Awareness-Phase I" presents historical, social and literary perspectives which reveal a significant interaction of many forces in Black-White relationships.

"Reality Therapy" focuses on how people "make it" in the world and how they relate to others. "Genealogy" explores the principles and uses of genealogy and related fields and trains a student to trace a family line by guiding him in the study of his own lineage.

Suggestions may be submitted by mail or by telephone, 747-1492, Ext. 482.

For further information regarding the courses, contact the department.

Pictures talk. Some little boys don't.

Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.

Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they cannot make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.

One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate. And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating alert, educated citizens. Who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

More than a business.

Johnson, Smith to be honored in All-Star games

Penguin cagers Billy Johnson and Ron Smith have been given post-season honors by the "Pittsburgh Press" and are invited to play in two April All-Star games.

Johnson has been chosen the "Pittsburgh Press" District Player-of-the-Year and also gained a first team berth on the "Press" All-District team for the third straight year. Smith was named to the second team.

Johnson also grabbed an honorable mention UPI Little All-American duplicating the honor he received from the AP last season. He was an All-Tournament choice in the NCAA College Division Midwest Regional both his sophomore and senior years. Both Johnson and Smith have scored over 1,000 points; the only players ever to perform on the same squad to do this. A 5-10 guard from Canton Lincoln, Johnson led the Penguins in scoring for the third straight year with an 18.0 average. He finished fifth in career scoring with 1,726 points. Smith, a 6-4 forward from North Bloomfield, had a 15.1 scoring and 9.6 rebounding average this season. He ended ninth in career scoring with 1,187 tallies.

Fourth annual Sports Banquet fetes Frank Gifford, 27 seniors

Tickets for the fourth annual All-Sports Banquet to be held at 6:30 p.m., Friday, April 14 in the Kilcawley Cafeteria are on sale at two campus localities and at the four Hartzell Rose and Son stores.

The banquet is sponsored by the YSU Alumni Association to honor all Penguin athletes, cheerleaders and managers with 27 seniors receiving special recognition.

This year's guest speaker will be Frank Gifford, ABC-TV sportscaster and former University of Southern California and New York Giant all-star. He was a regular on the ABC "Monday Night Football" series this past season and is a noted public speaker.

The seniors will receive a stainless steel plaque mounted on walnut and engraved with their name and sport. They represent six of the seven varsity sports, the rifle team having no seniors. All of the intercollegiate athletes are guests and those in attendance will be introduced by their respective coaches. Penguin senior Gregg Merrill will be the first athlete to receive awards in two sports in the short history of the festive dinner. Merrill is a regular on the basketball and baseball teams.
