Now in infant stage--

ICP approved for trial period

The YSU Individualized Curriculum Program, which was approved by the University Senate, the Board of Trustees, and the Ohio State Board of Regents in August, is now in its infant stage under the direction of Dr. Robert Smith, Assistant Dean of the college of Arts and Sciences.

The program in its present form was approved on a trial basis, with no more than 20 students per year being accepted during the three-year trial period. Dr. Smith, however, believes the program is a sound one, and will be successful enough to merit reap-approval after the trial period.

The ICP provides for the student the opportunity to map out his own long range curriculum, provided it receives the approval of Dr. Smith and student's chosen faculty advisor. Dr. Smith commented that the ICP "is not simply an easy way for students to get around requirements, but will serve simply as another option for the student."

In presenting a case for approval of his proposed ICP curriculum, the student must present reasons why the program will fit his needs better than conventional ones. Dr. Smith said that "preparing a good case is a lot of work for the student, but provided the case is sound, any student can have it approved."

Concerning faculty advisement, Dr. Smith noted that it is important that a student's advisor believe in the program, so that the student can receive help in planning. Therefore, before a student presents his proposed curriculum, he should find a faculty advisor whose ICP ideas are in accord with his own.

"If a student proposes such a program," Dr. Smith said, "it may have some normal requirements omitted. However, each variation from the requirements must be justified by the student in writing. Also, when a program comes in, it is discussed with the dean of the school in which the major part of the courses in-

WNEO begins new schedule over eight county vicinity

WNEO initiated its instructional television schedule yesterday, broadcasting instructional programs to over 40,000 students in area schools, Stephen J. Grcevich, director of broadcasting at YSU announced.

See WNEO schedule on page six

WNEO is an educational television station operated by a consortium composed of Kent State, Akron State and YSU. It began limited broadcasting in July.

Grcevich said that broadcasts are being received during class time in the Youngstown, Boardman, Lordstown, and Springfield school districts, and by other schools in WNEO's eight county broadcasting area. The programs, he noted, are intended for students on every grade level from kindergarten through twelfth grade.

The evening hours will also take on a new look, Grcevich said. Starting on Saturday, October 6, WNEO will air the public Broadcast Systems' new fall line-up of shows that will include programs such as Julia Child's The French Chef, The Advocates, Masterpiece Theatre and William Buckley's Firing Line. The entire evening schedule is on page 6 of The Jambar.

Council reconvenes, hopes for promoter

Student Council was back together yesterday after a spring quarter elections fiasco which threatened to cripple Council with some 20 empty seats this fall.

The University Appeals Board last May validated April elections, overturning an invalidation decision by Student Council Discipline Committee which would have left Council without a quorum when meetings resumed in September.

Senior business major Skip Davis, re-elected for a second term as Council chairman, led members yesterday in their first meeting of the new quarter.

Mark Squicquero, first-term A&S representative, formulated a motion to hire a professional promoter to work with Major Events Committee in bringing top-name groups to YSU. Mary Ann Pollock, sophomore T&CC representative, introduced the motion to the floor.

Squicquero said a promoter would be subject to Major Events' approval before hiring, and could work with an unlimited budget. Salary for the promoter would come from profits made by big-name performers on campus.

Students would pay larger sums to see performers brought to campus by a promoter, but when Major Events becomes an autonomous body next year, Squicquero noted, students will be paying higher prices anyway.

The University is giving up subsidizing the Committee in 1974, and profits raked in by a promoter could be shared by Major Events, and incorporated into a larger budget for the organization.

The motion passed unanimously, and plans to appoint a Council member to discuss the details with University president Dr. John Coffelt before taking the matter before the student body.

Squicquero and Pollock also successfully sponsored a proposal to investigate the Youngstown Police Department's prohibiting of parking on both sides of most streets surrounding the campus.

YPD in the past has considered parking on the streets in front of buildings a fire hazard, and has felt that most parking lots on campus are "within easy walking distance of most classes, anyway," according to Squicquero.

His investigation includes a walking tour of campus to determine just how many lots are indeed within "easy walking distance."

The second step, Squicquero noted, is to observe traffic and pedestrian patterns on all streets on which "no-parking" signs are posted.

He added that "students are

'Birth of Nation' set for showing tomorrow

D. W. Griffith's The Birth of a Nation considered one of the most important films of all time, will be shown by YSU's department of speech and dramatics at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 3.

The film, which is free and open to the public, will be shown in Strouss Auditorium of Jones Hall.

The 1932 abridged version with music sound track stars Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, Henry B. Walthall and Miriam Cooper.

Griffith, the son of a Confederate colonel, was impressed by Thomas Dixon's The Clansmen because of its romantic view of the Old South, its bitter depiction of the devastation caused by the Civil War and Reconstruction, and its sympathetic portrayal of the Ku Klux Klan.

He poured all of his money and enormous energy into the film project; the budget ($110,000), shooting schedule (nine weeks) and running time were all unprecedented. The film became a huge critical success, grossed $18,000,000 in a few years, and changed the course of film art forever.

Griffith carefully recreated the historical milieu and staged with painstaking accuracy and grand spectacle the major events of the period. But the film derives its emotional power from its moving constantly from the large drama to intimate human stories.

The series of International Motion Picture Classics has been made possible through matching funds from the Artist Lecture Series Committee.

Due to the large response to free physical examinations last week, the Free Clinic is once again offering the physicals from 1 to 5 p.m. Thursday, October 4 in the Clinic at Spring and Wick Avenues. YSU's Cooperative Campus Ministry sponsors both the Clinic and the free exams.

'Casablanca' opens series...

Playhouse bill is filled

An adult Film Series, a theater trip to London, a presentation of the play Our Town, and a University Press Day are a few of the services the Youngstown Playhouse will offer to YSU students this year.

Plans were released yesterday at a meeting of playhouse officials and university representatives, including Dr. John Coffelt, YSU president, Dr. Bernard Yozwiak, dean of A&S, Dr. Taylor Alderman, English department chairman, and Gratia Murphy, coordinator of communications.

The Playhouse 1973-74 film series begins at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6 with the showing of Casablanca. The rest of the movies, with their scheduled showings, are: Taking Off, Nov. 17; King Kong, Jan. 26; Zorba the Greek, Feb. 23; Heaven's Above, March 23; The Pink Panther, March 30; I'll Never Forget What's 'is Name; and May 11, One, Two, Three.

Students desiring tickets to any of these films can contact their English instructor, or can pay $1.50 single admission at the Playhouse. Film subscriptions of $10 for ten shows are also available.

From April 13 to 21 the Playhouse will also sponsor a theater trip to London, open to students, teachers and other adults in the community. The cost of $4.40 includes five theater tickets and a chance to visit backstage with the performers after the show. More information will be available

Debaters start season with loss, record 3-5 mark

YSU debaters Chuck Wigley, junior, and John Ostrowski, a senior, both in Arts and Sciences, fell victim to their spotty negative attacks while compiling a 3-5 record this past weekend at the "Kick-off-Tournament" sponsored by Notre Dame University, South Bend, Indiana.

The ruminators accrued a strong 3-1 affirmative mark, defeating Bradley University, Anderson College, and McNeese State, while being upended by the University of Michigan.

However, the YSU duo was out-argued by all comers while debating negatively.

Purdue, Southwest Missouri State, Central Michigan and Bradley conquered the Penguins. The Pens finished 18th in the 36-team field as a result.

The topic being debated this season is Resolved: That the Federal Government should control the supply and utilization of energy.

YSU will sojourn to the University of Pittsburgh's Invitational Tournament this Sunday.

later. In cooperation with the English and communication departments, the Playhouse is again presenting a classic play, Our Town, for YSU students. During the last two years, student response of viewing Dark of the Moon and The Visit has been very good, according to Mrs. Murphy, and the project is being repeated this year. Several thousand tickets will be distributed to students in communications classes later this year.

A fourth service, which is still in the planning stages, is a University Press Day. These students attending Press Day will see a play and then write a review for possible awards.

More information on these services can be obtained by calling the Playhouse at 788-8739.

cluded come from. Before the case is approved, Dr. Smith and the dean involved must agree that the student's proposal is valid.

Thus far, only one student has been approved. Russell Zins, a junior in the school of business administration, has decided that rather than get a major in business, he would use the ICP program and concentrate his studies on management and accounting, with a "minor" in economics and finance.

Though Dr. Smith encourages anyone interested in the program to see him at his office in the Arts & Sciences building, he discourages those who only have eyes for beating requirements, stating that "there is enough flexibility in the existing system so that students can get what they want."

Job openings listed at placement center

Mary B. Smith, director of student career planning and placement urged students and graduates to register at her office to learn about current job openings.

"Student funds pay for our services," Smith said. "We get continuous requests for full-time and part-time employment," but ways are needed to inform students of these job openings, Smith explained.

Students can register at the placement office, Room 203 in the Administrative Annex, noting their qualifications and job interests. Applicants will be notified of any employment openings in their chosen field.

Job descriptions and requirements are also posted and catalogued at the Annex for student use. "We hope student will periodically check these listings on their own," Smith said. The catalogues are located in the placement office on the second floor.

We are presently "trying to expand the number of companies coming in (to YSU) to recruit," Smith said. Other agencies and schools interested in liberal arts, technical and nursing graduates will be incorporated into the office's recruitment schedule. "We have more to offer than just business, engineering and education graduates," said Smith.

Industries and companies are very interested in employment members of minority groups, she noted, but unfortunately, she added, "we have few woman or black graduates outside education."

Students must plan ahead for their careers, Smith emphasized. She encouraged students to acquire a skill, and be familiar with more than one field of study.

Departments and faculty are now being approached by Smith for help in aiding students in planning their careers. Students too often get degrees without planning for a practical career, she noted.

The planning and placement office hopes to "supplement what the faculty are doing, filling in the void where things are not getting done," Smith explained.

Smith also urged students to "think of relocating in getting a job." She said, "jobs are available, but graduates must relocate to get them."

Interested companies and schools from all over the nation and state, as well as local firms, inform YSU's placement office of job openings. "We've also had a great response from our alumni, looking to hire YSU graduates," Smith noted.

During this first month with the placement office Smith has set some firm objectives. The office needs more personnel to bring more corporation and industry representatives to campus, she noted. Bunny Neff, also with the placement office is responsible for all teacher placement at YSU.

Smith also plans to work with the counseling and testing office, helping students choose a career by finding their strengths and interests.

"Basically we want better communications with students, so freshmen and sophomores can know where the jobs are and where the job market is going," Smith said.

"Graduates are the product of YSU. We are the sellers of that product. We are interested in having a good saleable product," Smith added.

Support for transport urged

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio AP — Increased responsibility by the state of Ohio for all forms of transportation was urged by witnesses today at a hearing on public transportation conducted by the Ohio Transportation Department at Youngstown State University.

The hearing covers Mahoning, Columbiana, Trumbull and Ashtabula counties in northeast Ohio.

Edmund J. Salata, Youngstown city engineer, emphasized that assurance of state and federal support for a mass transit program over a number of years is essential for orderly development.

He said water transportation should be included in the overall plan and consideration should be given to bicycle paths and pedestrian trails.

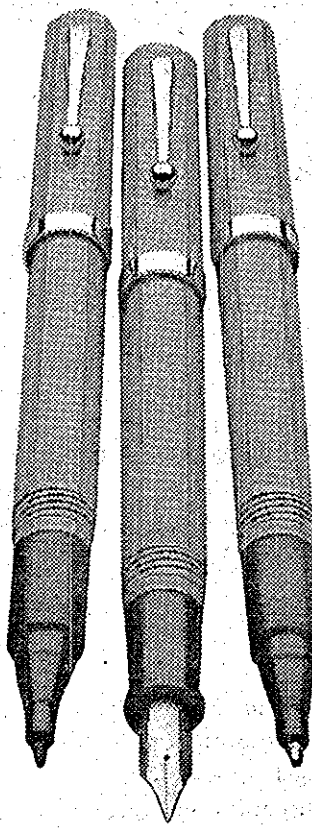

William B. Fergus of the Eastgate Development and Transportation Agency noted that trucks make up 43 per cent of the traffic on interstate '76. He suggested a study of further utilization of rail facilities and consideration of abandoned railroad rights of way for possible construction of truck ways.

NEWMAN STUDENT ORGANIZATION

A Proposal

The Individualized Curriculum Program was officially approved this past summer and YSU joins with most other universities in offering students the opportunity to design their own curriculum.

Requirements for entering the program are stringent; the only significant flaw in an otherwise noble experiment.

Aside from fulfilling the heinous general university requisites, the student is required to demonstrate that the particular line of study chosen is not already offered through an existing department. He then must have the approval of three people: A & S Assistant Dean Robert K. Smith, coordinator of the program; the chairman of the department in which the majority of his proposed curriculum emerges; and, his faculty advisor.

This will force the student to prove that he is sincerely interested in pursuing an academic course and is not merely trying to buck requirements, which is not necessarily bad considering the University's overloaded and complicated care of mandatory courses in most schools.

More importantly though, ICP provides students with the opportunity to be innovative and creative. Designing one's course of study may be most rewarding and exhilarating when coupled with the potential learning experience.

Although the trial program is presently limited to a certain number of students, we hope that enough will show interest to have ICP instituted as a bona fide YSU program in the future.

When ICP can be regarded and accepted here as a normal alternative to other major study areas, rather than a "specialized" program for "special" students with "special" interests, then ICP will serve its true purpose.

Letters Policy

The Jambor offers two avenues of expression regarding salient issues and criticism, the first of which is our Feedback column, the second is the Input column.

All manuscripts must be typed, triple-spaced, and must bear the author's signature, school, class rank, address, and phone number.

Feedback letters under 250 words in length will be printed in full, providing they contain no libelous or otherwise offensive material.

The Input column is intended to permit comment on matters that are broader than immediate campus issues. Input manuscripts must not exceed 700 words and must conform to the same literary standards as Feedback letters.

INPUT Questions 'Energy Crisis'

Is there an "energy crisis" here or anywhere else in the so-called free world? Definitely not. The "energy crisis" and the so-called shortage of oil supplies is nothing but a game being played and orchestrated by the oil monopolies with the help of their chief protector Dick Nixon, and of course the entire news media.

Scientific research shows without any doubt that there is no oil shortage at all; in fact, the present proven reserves, assuming no new technology is developed and no secondary reserves are tapped, and no new discoveries of oil reserves are found, are enough to last until 1990. And if money and research time are invested in developing the production of secondary reserves, it will be enough to last for another century.

Looking at the problem locally we wonder why the American people are being told daily that there is an oil shortage and an energy crisis. Why are the small independent gas stations closing up and the big companies rationing their gas? Why are prices going up? Could all this be the big oil companies' racket to make more profits, put the small independent gas stations out of business, and raise the price of oil? Indeed, that is precisely what is happening.

Internationally, and particularly in the Middle East, where most world oil reserves are located, we see an extremely ugly situation, a conspiracy by the monopolies and their respective governments, developing.

To protect its interests and insure the continued exploitation of the people of the Middle East by the oil monopolies, the U.S. government has employed a number of means to "stabilize" the region for U.S. profits, ranging from establishing puppet governments, to military intervention to stop any progressive change that may benefit the people, to the CIA-sponsored coup in 1953 bringing back the Shah to the throne in Iran, to full support for Zionism, as an advanced detachment of racketeering in the area. In view of the above, let us consider the 1960's struggle of the Vietnamese people which exposed the U.S. exploitive role very clearly, and gave inspiration to national liberation movements throughout the world. The rise and intensification of the liberation movements in the Middle East — Palestinian, Iranian, and the Gulf region (Dhofar) — clearly proves the failure of U.S. policy in the region. Anti-U.S. feeling was growing and the U.S. could not afford another Viet Nam.

The Nixon doctrine, therefore, was developed specifically to deal with rising national liberation movements. No longer willing to intervene militarily, the U.S. builds up the armies of local puppet regimes to act as its policemen of regional stability, thus allowing the U.S. to keep a low profile while having its local agents do its dirty tricks. The recent $5 billion arms deals pouring arms into Iran, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait (not to mention the continuous flow of American hardware to Israel), plus hundreds of U.S. military advisors to train the armies of the puppet regimes, plainly shows that the U.S. and the puppet regimes have already embarked on the road to implementing the Nixon doctrine.

We, the Arab students at YSU would like to caution the American people about what the U.S. and the puppet governments in the Middle East are up to. If this monopolistic and exploitive trend continues without being checked now, we may all be faced not with just a "crisis" but another bloody Viet Nam in the Middle East. The oil in the Middle East should help the people of that region, and not be used by Western monopolistic companies and a handful of corrupt local rulers to perpetuate and increase their profits.

"The university will rely heavily on student personnel in the operation of the production facilities," Grcevich commented.

Students, mostly broadcast majors, will be used as cameramen, directors, switchers and producers, Grcevich added.

Aaron trails 'Babe' by one; evokes tribute from fans

ATLANTA AP — Henry Aaron remains No. 2 on the alltime home run list, but even in a one-game failure to equal baseball's most revered record, the 39-year-old slugger stirred the hearts of more than 40,000 fans.

"It was the most touching thing I've ever seen in baseball," said Ernie Johnson, a member of the Atlanta broadcast team who pitched for the Braves when the club was based in Milwaukee.

Aaron, the son of a retired Alabama dock worker, jogged to left field for the last inning of the 1973 season moments after popping out to second base, then it happened.

Starting in the left field bleachers, a crowd of 40,517 began rising in tribute to the 20-year veteran who had fallen one short of tying the legendary Babe Ruth's home run mark of 714.

They stood in the rain for three minutes applauding and undoubtedly would have continued had the umpires not ordered a resumption of play.

"It may have been the most moving experience of my time in sports, which didn't begin yesterday," Furman Bisher, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, wrote in Monday's edition. "They stood and they cheered him, not for hitting a home run, not for popping out behind second base, but for being Henry Aaron."

Aaron acknowledged the ovation in the same manner he has handled the intense pressure that rested on his shoulders during the closing weeks of the season-with plenty of class. He waved to the crowd twice during that time, evoking even louder applause.

being victimized by the city, and nothing is being done about it." He says he will invite a 1st Ward City Councilman to one of Council's meetings for a hearing on student parking problems. The session will be open to all students for a discussion with the councilman.

Squicquero and Pollock say they will enlist the aid of City Council to have the YPD remove "no-parking" restrictions, "if only on one side of the street,"

Intramural captains, reps will discuss current rules

A meeting of intramural football team captains or representatives will take place tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Room 278, Engineering and Science Building.

Robert Chuey, Director of Student Activities, announced that an official will familiarize the captains with current rules, and rule changes for this season. Team schedules will also be available at this time.

Chuey also said that persons interested in working for the intramural program as linemen for football games should contact him before Friday, October 5, in Room 100, Kilcawley.

There will also be a meeting of soccer team captains or representatives at 2 p.m., Thursday, October 4, in Room 278 ESB. An official will go over the rules of the game at this time, and team schedules will also be available. Representatives of both teams are urged to attend these meetings so that they can learn the rules in use this season.

Squicquero noted.

Appointments made during the meeting included the assignment of Judy Barrett, senior business representative, to replace Roger Gossick, who resigned last week as Council secretary.

Squicquero was elected as Council's representative on the Major Events committee. It will be his second membership on that committee.
