$1 million donation made to Foundation by Williamson

PIA BRADY
Assistant News Editor

Local philanthropist Warren P. Williamson Jr., founder and chairman of the WKBN Broadcasting Corporation of Youngstown, has made a $1 million contribution to the YSU Foundation.

The YSU Foundation, which is an important monetary contributor to YSU, is in the process of situating a Williamson Business College Fund with part of Williamson's contribution. The Williamson Business College Fund will maintain a Williamson Center for International Business in YSU's Warren P. Williamson Jr. College of Business Administration.

C. Reid Schmutz, president of the YSU Foundation, said "The money directs us to provide both growth and income to YSU." Schmutz also said he is interested in having the money grow and keep pace with inflation.

Schmutz emphasized that the Williamson Center for International Business is the first project involving the funds. However, Schmutz said the contribution document also allows for other projects that a "committee will deem to be important" in the future.

Schmutz said that "a committee consisting [of] President [Leslie] Cochran, Dr. James S. Cicarelli, business administration, two Williamson family members [or someone they would choose to serve in their absence], [himself] and two members appointed by the foundation" will preside over The Williamson College Fund.

Schmutz said in order for YSU to get funding from the YSU Foundation they must "sell an idea to the committee." However, "the University [does] have an opportunity [to] get creative in what it wants" the funds to be directed towards.

Schmutz said, "The reason [the Williamsons] gave to YSU is because they made money in Youngstown [and they] feel the need to give back" to the community. Schmutz also said Williamson has a "great sense of community pride which carried over to his sons who were instrumental" in assisting YSU with the Williamson Center for International Business.

The funds from Williamson "give us leeway to do the best job for YSU and Youngstown," Schmutz said.

The Williamson Center for International Business will bring Williamson college undergraduates and graduates to the "standards of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business."

It also will enable foreign business professionals to learn about businesses in the United States and Northeast Ohio for a period of time, as well as enable students, faculty and business professionals to exchange knowledge concerning commercial and cultural business.

Other uses for the center include assisting local businesses in their efforts to "expand exports" throughout the world and encourage relations between the Mahoning Valley, "sister" cities and Eastern Europe.

Annual Job Fair back on campus

YSU — YSU Career Services is hosting its annual job fair, "Job Fair '93," from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 9 in the Chestnut Room of Kilcawley Center.

The event will feature national and local company recruiters highlighting their employment needs.

Graduates, undergraduates and alumni are encouraged to attend and explore potential employment opportunities as well as interview with employers.

Participants are encouraged to dress professionally and bring current resumes. A videotape entitled "WHAT TO DO AT A JOB FAIR" is available for viewing in Career Services with an appointment.

More than 30 companies will be in attendance and have indicated that full-time, part-time, professional internships and summer employment positions are available.

A variety of industries will be represented including government, banking, retailing, engineering and social services.

Career Services offers the following tips for students participating in the job fair:

— Introduce yourself in a positive and confident manner. Smile, project enthusiasm and offer a firm handshake.

— Give the representative a resume and be ready to discuss your background, qualifications and career goals.

— Ask questions about career opportunities, even if they have not listed your field of interest in the employer directory.

— Speak with as many representatives as possible. Instead of standing in line to speak with one recruiter, you can probably talk with two or three in the same time period.

In the office's latest newsletter, Career Services lists over 50 students and alumni who have found employment both in the Youngstown area and across the country.

New license plates will aid with scholarships

By SHAWN M. STARKEY
Staff Reporter

More than 150 Ohio residents may soon be driving vehicles with new license plates sporting Pete the Penguin, said Lori A. Factor, executive director of the YSU Alumni Association.

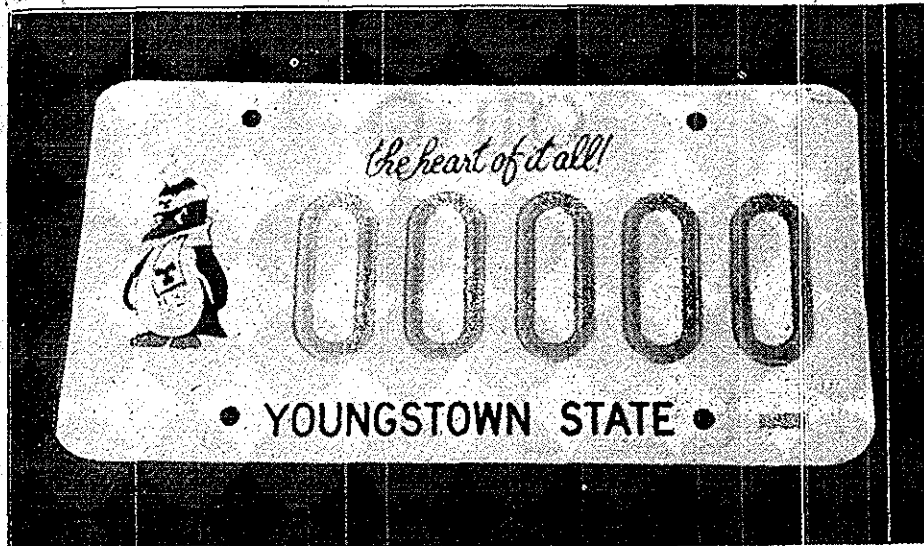

The new license plates, sponsored by the Alumni Association, recently went on sale as a unique way to show support for YSU and raise additional funds to provide scholarships.

The license plates became available about two weeks ago and Factor said the response has been "incredible."

As of Feb. 1, the Alumni Association had mailed more than 150 requested applications for the new license plates and 20 of those applications have already been returned, said Factor.

The license plate is part of an Ohio Collegiate License Plate program in which more than 70 colleges and universities are participating.

State Rep. David Hartley, D-62, Springfield, introduced the legislation required for the program in late 1991, Factor said, noting that the campaign for the program has been a "long and involved process."

After the legislation was passed, the University had to apply to implement the program at YSU. "We got the ball rolling in August," Factor said.

The plates are authorized for use on Ohio non-commercial, passenger and motor home vehicles.

Plates for all three types of vehicles include the Pete logo, which appears in red, black and yellow.

The name "Youngstown State," printed in red ink, replaces the county designation on passenger vehicles. However, non-commercial and motor home plates will continue to bear the name of the vehicle type in that space.

All plates will continue to include "Ohio" in blue ink and "the Heart of it all" in red ink.

The plates cost $50 in addition to regular plate fees, which Factor said range from $25 to $42.50 depending on the county in which the vehicle is registered.

Of the additional fee, $40 goes toward the University's general scholarship fund. The remaining $10 will cover administrative expenses by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

Unlike many other plates bearing university logos, the YSU plates are available to anyone owning a vehicle registered in Ohio.

A combination of numbers and letters, from two to five characters, will be randomly assigned to each plate. However, personalized plates are available for an additional fee.

To get an application for a YSU license plate, call the Alumni Association at 742-3497.

Hagan announces new aid source

Columbus — Ohioans can go to one source for information about student financial aid under a new program, State Representative Robert F. Hagan (D-64, Youngstown) said.

"With two daughters presently attending college, I know how difficult and confusing applying for financial aid can be. That's why I'm glad my colleagues in the Ohio General Assembly have worked to make that process easier," Hagan said.

One-step shopping for financial aid through the Student Aid Commission was made possible with legislation passed by the Ohio General Assembly last year.

Previously, the Ohio Board of Regents administered state grant programs. The Student Loan Commission currently administers more than $325 million annually in Federal Student Loans—a figure expected to jump by $90 million a year when the Commission begins administering the state grant programs.

"Financial aid is a good investment in Ohio's future because we need a skilled work force to attract high-wage jobs to our state," Hagan said.

Persons interested in applications, eligibility requirements or any information regarding student financial aid, can do the following: call the Ohio Student Aid Commission at 1-800-837-6752, write to the Ohio Student Aid Commission,

P.O. Box 16610, Columbus, Ohio 43268-0610, contact high school guidance counselors, college financial aid offices or by writing to state Representative Bob Hagan, 77 South High St., Columbus, Ohio 43266-0603.

Have your resume handy and trek up to the YSU job fair

Need a job? For most college grads and those anticipating commencement day, that is a really silly question. After all, who wouldn't want a good first job their first time out in the workforce?

But, there is a great big difference between wanting a good job and actually finding one. And even if the job of your dreams comes up and hits you upside the head, that's hardly an indication that you will be the chosen one.

The bad news: Many local college graduates, and ones who will be graduating shortly, are reporting that the job market is bleak. It's not that they aren't looking hard enough, they say nobody's hiring—at least not at this moment, anyway. One YSU grad worked as a waitress for six months before she got her first good job. Once she got the first job, the ball started rolling. Another YSU student, who will be graduating at the end of this quarter, gives grads some advice: "Just live in your parent's basement and watch 'Star Trek.'"

The good news: Employment trends for the future are looking promising. Supposedly, by the year 2000, Ohio alone is expecting to add some 500,000 new jobs. Of course, most students probably don't want to wait that long. Instead, YSU undergraduates should haul themselves up to Kilcawley Center next Tuesday to check out Career Services' "Job Fair '93."

Have your resume handy because the job fair will feature national and local company recruiters from various industries like government, banking and retailing sectors who will be interviewing for current openings that include full-time, part-time and summer employment.

This is the perfect opportunity for students to do some networking with employers and explore their opportunities.

This may just be your lucky day.

Madonna: master media manipulator

Mike Uhrin
Jambar Composer

"She wants people to love and hate her...She gets high off of power and manipulation. And we all buy into it."

I don't think that it's possible to go a week without hearing something about Madonna. She's everywhere: TV, radio, magazines, shirts, etc. Of course, let's not forget her completely shocking, yet groundbreaking, piece of erotic art (yeah, right) Sex.

I've seen the book. It's not very artistic. It's not very erotic. And frankly, I wasn't very shocked by its contents. So, why the big controversy about the whole deal?

Well, Madonna, as well as other famous hotshots, know the first rule about coming out on top in the entertainment industry: manipulating the masses.

I think it's safe to assume that Madonna is considered, first and foremost, a singer. In my opinion, she isn't incredibly talented. There are dozens of other women who far surpass the Material Girl in the music department. Artists like Kate Bush write and sing better, but they do not receive the same recognition as Madonna. Why? Image and media manipulation.

Remember when her book first came out? How many talk shows and news reports did you see about it? Madonna didn't set out to create a groundbreaking book of erotica. She set out to create a media event and watch the notoriety, controversy and cash start rolling in. She loves this stuff. Take, for example, all of the people who were bent out of shape when the book appeared. They were on the talk shows babbling about the vile contents of this evil book. And you know what? Madonna was loving every minute of it. If it weren't for these oppositionists who spread fuel to the fire, she definitely would not be as big as she is. What these oppositionists fail to understand is that they are playing right into Madonna's hands. She creates a big media-to-do and the next thing you know, she's all over the news and more cash is flowing into her pockets.

That's the way she wants it: create something controversial and kick back with a root beer while your name and wallet get bigger.

The public falls into this trap, also. Picture this situation: Sally and Joe are in a bookstore. "Hey," says Sally, "here's that Madonna book!"

"Yeah," says Joe. "Wow! It's bound in a wrapper and you can't look at the pictures. Gee, there must be some pretty nasty stuff in there!"

"Yea," says Sally. "They were talking about in on Donahue and Oprah and even the news."

"Colly," says Joe. "It must really be something if it gets all that attention!"

"You're right," says Sally. "Let's buy a copy."

"I'd like to," says Joe. "But it's $50."

"Yea," says Sally. "But if it's getting all this attention, it must be worth it."

"You're right," says Joe. "Let's get a copy. We could take some of the money out of that fund we had to buy a new set of encyclopedias."

And so, Sally and Joe become victims of Madonna's media manipulation.

Don't get me wrong, Madonna's not really to blame here. The public and the media are. She wouldn't be around if it wasn't for the public and media. Madonna simply plays off of all of this hype that everyone creates around her. We continue to follow her every step, so we must want more of her. She's simply giving everyone what they want. She wants people to love and hate her. She wants people to talk about her. She gets high off of power and manipulation. And we all buy into it.

So, if you have an extra $50 burning a hole in your pocket, buy some Kate Bush albums instead. Or better yet, buy a dictionary and look up narcissism; you'll find Madonna's picture there.

Lastly, if Madonna ever read this article, she would be kicking back with a root beer saying, "Yep, this is exactly what I wanted. SUCKERS!"

Dennis Barrie discusses much-publicized Mapplethorpe case

Attention:

The exhibit you are about to enter contains works dealing with censorship of the arts. These works may or may not be offensive to some people. Viewer discretion is advised.

Dennis Barrie, former director of The Contemporary Arts Center in Cincinnati, which hosted the controversial Robert Mapplethorpe exhibit, was at the Butler Institute of American Art Wednesday to present a lecture about his involvement in the Mapplethorpe case.

Barrie was indicted on obscenity charges the day the show opened for seven photographs containing homoerotic imagery and child nudity. The child nudity charges were later dropped because parental consent was given for the photographs.

"I like to call this my 'Steel Wheels Tour' of Art Censorship," Barrie said as he began his talk to the large and diverse audience. Barrie has been on the road in over 200 cities since the Mapplethorpe case began.

Barrie described the Mapplethorpe exhibit as a series of 175 photos, including the seven that brought the obscenity charges. Reactions to the photos spurred indictments.

Prior to the opening of the exhibit, the museum sent out letters, flyers and pamphlets about what to expect of the exhibit and why the museum was doing it. Barrie said they received a good response to this and approval from the mayor.

When the museum opened on April 7, 1989, the police came in and told Barrie he was being indicted on obscenity charges. The exhibition remained open until the trial. During that time, 81,306 people saw the show. Popular entertainers such as Julia Child, Gregory Hines and William Buckley, attended the show and all reported positive comments about it Barrie said.

One problem during the trial was the censoring of just the seven photographs that were at the Arts Center and not counting the other 168 that were a part of the collection. This didn't seem fair to censor only part of the photographs.

When the trial began in October of 1989, the jury consisted of people who had little cultural background, but art experts explained the story, in laymen's terms and the Arts Center was acquitted on all charges.

"The lowest point in the whole battle was seeing the museum closed, staff arrested and the board threatened all because of what was hanging on the walls," said Barrie.

He also referred to the political force that is behind censorship and how a battle was bound to erupt because Cincinnati was pinpointed as a location for being a national battlefield against pornography and child pornography.

"This was a great victory in censorship," Barrie said. "If you take one freedom away, then you take them all away."

Warning: This disclaimer can be seen outside the Bliss Hall Gallery letting people know that what is inside may be offensive to some people. The works on display are part of Anti-Censorship Week.

New Music Society plans Mini Festival featuring French composer

YSU — French composer, Etienne Rolin will be the guest for the premiere of a composition he wrote for the YSU Composer's Ensemble at the Winter Mini Festival to be held Feb. 9-10 on campus. The two-day event will be at 8 p.m. each day in Bliss Recital Hall.

Featured guests will include Rolin, local composer-bassist Jeff Bremer and saxophonists Massimilano Donninelli of Italy, Roes-Marie Siever of Edmonton, Canada and Derek Tuba of Winnipeg, Canada.

The guest artists will work with students and faculty of the Dana School of Music for two days and perform in concerts each evening in the recital hall.

The concert on Tuesday, Feb. 9 will highlight music by Rolin, including his composition for flute and string quintet composed especially for the YSU Composers Ensemble. The ensemble is directed by Dr. Robert Rollin, professor of music at Dana and coordinator of the New Music Society.

Russell Peterson, a limited service saxophone professor at Dana, will join the three visiting saxophonists in performances of pieces written by Rolin, Rollin, Francis Rosse, Jean River and Gabriel Perne. The concert on Wednesday, Feb. 10, will be a "Winter Pops Concert" by the Composers Ensemble. Jeff Bremer, the featured guest composer-bassist, will perform several of his pieces which combine aspects of jazz improvisation with classical string bass techniques. The concert will also include premieres of three student works, "Romance" for flute, guitar, cello and piano by Brian Driscoll, sophomore, F&PA, "String Quintet" by Jason Howard, freshman, F&PA and "Red Scarf Suite", for jazz combo by Lon Kaiser, junior, F&PA.

Members of the Composers Ensemble include graduate student Lisa McGlamery, flute; undergraduates, Ethan Howard and Vince Sarangay, violinists; Bill Amendol, violinist; Jason Howard, cellist; Micah Howard and Shawn Marko, bassists; Thomas Cody, guitarist; Lon Kaiser and Brian Driscoll, pianists.

Professor translates play; performance at Oakland

YSU — Dr. Melissa T. Smith, an associate professor of foreign languages, will present a staged reading of a one-act play at 7 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 7 at the Oakland Center for the Arts.

The play, Equations with Two Unknowns, was written by Maria Arbatova, a leading Russian playwright. Smith will translate the performance from Russian to English. It will be acted by Alexandra Vansuch and Mark Kessler.

Equations with Two Unknowns deals with compelling issues that transcend national boundaries: relationships between the two sexes, marriage and infidelity, abortion and childbirth, medical care and birth control.

The play is about an hour long and will be followed by a discussion which will address the issues of the play, as well as differences between Russian and American perceptions of these issues.

The donation of $5 at the door will benefit the Oakland Center for the Arts, Planned Parenthood and Harmonia, the international feminist club of Moscow of which Arbatova is president.

For more information, call Smith at 742-3463 or the Oakland at 746-0404.

AUDITIONS!!

Auditions will be held for several student-directed one-act plays Monday, Feb. 8 and Tuesday, Feb. 9 from 4-6 p.m. in Spotlight Arena Theater in Bliss Hall and 7-9 p.m. in the Bliss Hall Greenroom.

The one-acts are being staged as a classroom exercise for the Speech 762 Play Direction class and will be presented during finals week. All students, regardless of major, and members of the community are encouraged to audition. No acting experience is required.

CONCERT!!

Dana Chamber Orchestra will perform in concert at 4 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 7 in the Bliss Recital Hall. Under the direction of John Wilcox, assistant professor of music, the orchestra will perform Concerto in C Minor for Oboe and Violin. The work will feature Dana Faculty members Tedrow L. Perkins, assistant professor of music on oboe and John Wilcox on violin.

Other works will be performed featuring members of the Savori Quartet. The concert is free and open to the public.

POETRY READING!!

Dr. William Greenway, associate professor of English and Dr. Robert Brown, professor of English at Kent State Trumbull Branch, will be reading poetry at 4 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 7 at the Mocha House in Warren. This will be the kick-off of a series of readings at the Mocha House.

The Mocha House is located at 467 High St. in Warren. For more information, call 392-3020.

Flames snuff out Stroia-less Penguins, 89-71

By MICHAEL YONKURA
Sports Editor

Perhaps when people look back on the turbulent 1992-93 YSU men's basketball campaign, they'll just consider it a negative version of, "Can you top this?"

Monday, the Penguins began basketball without Head Coach John Stroia. Stroia was suspended for two games by the Mid-Continent Conference (MCC) for an alleged incident after a loss at Valparaiso last Saturday.

Things didn't change much for the Penguins, however, as they fell to Illinois/Chicago, 89-71, at the UIC Pavilion. YSU now drops its record to 3-14 on the season with a 1-7 slate in the MCC, while UIC improves to 10-9 on the year with a 5-7 slate in the MCC.

Assistant Coach Ray Hernan, who led YSU in Stroia's absence on Monday, kept things close in the first half, managing a 20-19 lead at one point. The Flames then made a run of their own to open up an eight point advantage.

The Penguins kept close, though, closing the gap to within four at halftime, 45-41. UIC then came out of the locker room shooting a hot hand, starting the half with a 9-0 run to put YSU away.

According to Hernan, the difference between the two halves for YSU was big. "In the first half, we were a lot fresher and made a lot of our shots," said Hernan. "We rushed our shots a little in the second half and we just got tired."

Hernan said that the Penguins might have been able to beat the Flames very easily if they had taken advantage of the rebounding margin (YSU won the battle, 50-35).

One thing that didn't go in YSU's favor were turnovers. It committed 26 miscues to UIC's 13.

But, even with the turnovers, Hernan said that the team needs to be aggressive.

"We tried to be aggressive and attack the basket against a trapping team like UIC," said Hernan. "We simply ran out of gas in the second half. We have to be able to do that for an entire game."

Senior Reggie Kemp led YSU with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Junior Antoine Woods and senior Reggie Green contributed 11 and 10, respectively, for the Penguins.

The Flames were led by Kenny Williams's 23 and Sherrell Ford, who scored 22 and grabbed 10 boards. Guard Jevon Hobbs also helped out in the win with nine assists.

YSU will play at home tomorrow night when it hosts Wright State at the Beeghly Center. Tip-off is set for 7:30 p.m. Stroia returns to the coaching box this Wednesday when the Penguins shuffle off to Buffalo to face the Buffalo Bulls.

Penguin notes: The loss to Illinois/Chicago on Monday gives YSU its 21st straight road loss. The last time the Penguins won on the road was on March 2, 1991 when they beat Liberty, 80-77.

The Penguins are improving their shooting from the free throw line. After several disastrous showings from the charity stripe, YSU hit 74 percent (17-23) of its free throws Monday.

In YSU's 17 games this season, senior Reggie Kemp has been the Penguins' leading scorer eight times, most on the team. Senior Jerome Sims has led YSU in rebounding in ten games. Senior Marc Vassar and junior Antoine Woods have led or shared most assists in a game seven times.

To the NFL?

Part II: Evans hopes to tackle more than YSU opponents

By STEPHANIE UJHELVI
Sports Staff

writer has chosen to focus on three players in particular.

Editor's note: This is the second installment of a three-part series featuring YSU seniors who have a shot at making it in the NFL. Although several other Penguins beside the ones in this series have shots in the NFL, this

Marcus Evans, a senior majoring in social work, has been an impact player since transferring to YSU from the University of Tennessee in 1988. His leadership proved to be instrumental in the success of the Penguin program, earning them four straight-playoff appearances and two straight championship bids.

Evans began playing football in his sophomore season at Forest Park High School near Cincinnati, manning the tight end slot. Although he admired many athletes from all areas of the sports world, he related to a basketball star — Julius "Doctor J" Erving — the most.

"(Erving's) attitude wasn't arrogant, even though he had achieved a great deal of success," said YSU's ex-inside linebacker.

"His leadership qualities and sportsmanship on and off the court were impressive. Dr. J had somewhat the same background I had, but he made the best of a bad situation, not making any excuses for bad decisions. Success in life is based on choices and making the right ones, and Dr. J did that."

Fellow Penguin DeMario Ridgeway attributes his attending YSU to Evans, saying, "He was my host when I came to visit the campus. He was down-to-earth and honest with me, and I appreciated that. I still admire that about him and feel close to him to this day."

Teammate Dave Roberts believes Evans's biggest contribution is as the "team's great motivator."

"He is a team leader on defense and a great player who should get a shot at professional football," said Roberts.

An Associated Press third-team All-American, Evans was glad to be a part of YSU's football program when it began to be recognized nationally as an established program.

"I feel like I possibly helped contribute to building the four-datation that will make the Penguins an NCAA powerhouse in years to come," said Evans.

Looking toward the future for YSU, the 1992 co-captain regards next season's seniors as "the leaders of this team just as their predecessors were."

"They undoubtedly have the talent and I look to players like Tamron Smith, Reginald Lee and Leon Jones to be the future leaders of the Penguins."

But, for now, one of the Penguin leaders looks toward a possible future in the NFL.

Top of the heap. Senior Marcus Evans lunges over the pile to tackle a Marshall running back in this season's championship game. Evans hopes to continue playing football as he tries to make it in the NFL.

Tressel inks 13 recruits for 1993 football season

YSU — Head Football Coach Jim Tressel yesterday announced the signing of 13 new recruits for the Penguins' 1993 football season.

The signings include eight defensive players, four offensive players and one two-way player.

"I'm very excited to see a good group of young men take the challenge of keeping the great tradition that has been established before them," said Tressel about the recruits.

Of the 13 new recruits, seven hail from the area known as the "State of Youngstown." Two recruits are Pennsylvania natives and two are from Florida. YSU also signed one player each from Indiana and Kentucky.

The following is a complete list of Tressel's signees:

- Bill Goldner, DL, 6'2", 250 lbs., Austintown Fitch.
- Matt Hogg, OT, 6'5", 255 lbs., Slippery Rock (Pa.).
- Chris Inglis, ILB, 6'0", 215 lbs., Austintown Fitch.
- Dan Inglis, ILB, 6'0", 218 lbs., Austintown Fitch.
- Andre Jethroe, FB/LB, 6'0", 230 lbs., Warren JFK.
- Vance Mayes, DB, 6'0", 170 lbs., Indianapolis Warren Central (DuPage Junior College).
- Frank Page, DL, 6'4", 250 lbs., Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) St. Thomas Aquinas.
- Tom Paolucci, TB, 6'1", 185 lbs., Warren JFK.
- Charles Perdue, RB, 5'8", 168 lbs., Youngstown East.
- Corey Scarlato, LB, 6'1", 215 lbs., Ft. Thomas (Ky.) Highlands.
- John Schmitt, LB, 6'0", 235 lbs., N. Huntington (Pa.) Penn. Trafford.

YSU Police Blotter

According to Campus Police reports, a person in the men's student locker room of the sports complex contacted Campus Police and said he "was too weak to get up." The man, who was discovered lying on his side, was transported by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Two juveniles were issued warnings for attempting to take a money box from McDonough Museum. However, McDonough Museum workers were unable to determine if any of the funds had been stolen.

A YSU athletic coach reported that his keys, which open all his offices and files, have been missing since Jan. 26. The keys were last seen in the secretary's office.

Feb. 2

A man reported to Campus Police that he had put his book bag on a bench before taking a shower in the men's locker room in Beeghly Center. When he returned, his wallet and other items were missing.

Feb. 3

According to Campus Police reports, an accident occurred on Level 2C of the M-2 parking deck. A driver struck another vehicle while backing out of a parking space. The driver who left the scene of the accident was discovered on Level 2D by officers with assistance from a witness.

The police blotter is compiled from Campus Police reports and is written by Pia Brady, Assistant News Editor.
