Bargaining sessions begun by administration and OEA

Negotiations began yesterday between YSU and the Ohio Education Association. Representatives of YSU and the OEA will negotiate contract terms for a new agreement. The current two-year agreement expires June 30, 1975.

In the sessions, the OEA will push for an annual across-the-board salary increase, a monthly cost of living allowance, salary increases for receipt of promotion in rank and terminal degrees, and an honoraria for faculty members designated as "distinguished professors," according to an OEA publication, The Advocate. The latter proposal, according to The Advocate, was made at a previous session.

When asked if the OEA would seek additional safeguards regarding non-renewal of non-tenured faculty, Dr. Howard Mettee, chemistry, member of the OEA bargaining team, replied "Yes."

Mettee expressed eagerness to begin the sessions, saying that he could hardly wait to begin bargaining.

The proposal of the faculty evaluation committee, which would employ student and faculty opinion in evaluating faculty members for promotion, will be discussed at the bargaining sessions.

During negotiations, Student Government President Bill Brown and Student Council Chairperson Ed Sturgeon will be briefed bi-weekly on the positions of both teams on matters under discussion by the chief negotiators. The student leaders will be free to ask questions and express viewpoints. The briefing sessions are the result of an agreement Brown and Sturgeon made with YSU and the OEA Jan. 14.

Sturgeon and Brown said they are presently consulting with other students in private sessions and through Student Council, in order to be prepared to speak authoritatively about the wishes of students when at briefing sessions.

Jonas, director of planning; Dr. Lawrence Looby, special assistant to the president; Dr. Nicholas Paraska, dean of T&CC; Dr. Leon Rand, dean of graduate studies and research; Dr. Luke Zaccaro, chairperson of the mathematics department, and Dr. Bill Swan, faculty personnel administrator and chief negotiator for YSU.

The OEA is the exclusive bargaining agent of nine-month full-service YSU faculty.

There will be a news blackout during the negotiating sessions unless any of the parties decide to cancel their agreement with the other parties and take a negotiating issue to the public. However, according to The Advocate, "hotlines" will be issued periodically to the faculty bargaining unit.

Rep from Cypress will give talk on justice in today

Dinos Moushoutas, Minister Consul General of Cyprus in New York, will lecture at 1 p.m. today in Schwebel Auditorium, highlighting "Justice for Cyprus Week" activities sponsored by YSU's Hellenic Orthodox Association.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

Two events Friday evening will climax the week-long observation. A formal dinner honoring the consul general will be held at 7 p.m. at the Hotel Ohio, arranged by the Hellenic University of Youngstown, in cooperation with the Hellenic communities of Campbell and Warren. Dr. Costas Sarantopoulos will be master of ceremonies.

Following dinner, the delegate will visit a Cyprus refugee benefit dance from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. at St. Nicholas Social Hall, 220 N. Walnut St. General admission is $3, students $2.

Noted journalist to speak here; Halberstam to discuss TV, politics

Pulitzer prize-winning journalist David Halberstam will speak on "Television and Politics" at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Feb.

4 in Kilcawley Center cafeteria as part of YSU's 1974-75 Artist/Skeggs Lecture Series.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

Halberstam has been called a "legend in American journalism" by Harper's magazine. A 1955 Harvard graduate, he joined the New York Times in 1960 as a foreign correspondent. While reporting for the Times, he won the Pulitzer Prize in 1964 for his dispatches from Vietnam.

After Southeast Asia, Halberstam was sent to Poland by the Times. After one year of hard-hitting stories on the economic malaise in that country, he was expelled by the Communists.

In June of 1972, he published his long-awaited study of political power in America, The Best and the Brightest. Part social criticism, part political analysis, the book indicts senior officials of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations as variously vain, foolish, arrogant, ignorant and deceptive.

A controversial book, it tells how the "best and brightest" men

Hanni proposes one-day boycott in fight over CWA recognition

In a membership meeting of local Communication Workers of America (CWA) members held last night at the American Village restaurant, Don Hanni, acting (CWA) staff representative told members "We will ask you to boycott the University for one day."

Hanni is organizing a CWA branch for staff employees on campus and is fighting for university recognition of CWA as the YSU staff employee's bargaining agent.

Hanni said he has also been approached by some students about the possibility of forming a CWA sub-chapter for student employees, and he commented that if enough students show interest "We can do it."

Hanni said the boycott would be for the purpose of pressuring the University to recognize CWA as a bargaining agent for staff employees, but he emphasized that it would not be a strike. "If we strike," he said, "they can get us with the Ferguson Act, but not with a one-day boycott. He added he is trying to gain the support of the YSU-OEA and Student Council for the boycott.

Hanni said at the meeting that the CWA is capable of becoming a strong union, and that the most critical task at this point is to attract new members. Its present membership on campus is 115.

He said the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association (OSCEA), a group also competing for recognition as a bargaining agent for staff employees, "has been on

Senary explains student procedure for University traffic appeal

The regulations of the YSU parking system were recently explained by James Senary, a member of the Traffic Violation Appeals Panel.

Senary emphasized that if a student has reason to appeal his traffic violation, he must do so within seven days. When a student fulfills this requirement, he or she will be notified by mail when the Appeals Panel has its next session.

A student has the option of appearing in court or writing in a statement of why he or she feels the violation is unjust. Senary added "Many students take the first step, but fail to take the time to appear in court or send in a written statement."

If a written appeal is mailed, the secretary of the committee reads the statement, and the committee deliberates the issue. The student is then sent a card stating the verdict.

The committee hears about 30 to 40 cases a month.

Senary said "The students have it easier this year, having to pay only $2 if they appeal within seven days. Before this year, the fees were higher." According to the committee's new policy, excuses such as "stickers falling on the floor" will not be accepted, Senary said.

Senary stated that ticketing is largely due to student misunderstanding of the regulations. He said "Many students feel that once they drive past the attendant at the booth, they are no longer subject to a ticket, but, in fact, the attendants are not the ones responsible for ticket distribution." He noted that the police force checks for stickers on parked vehicles throughout the day.

Another problem is the placement of the sticker on the windshield, Senary said. The security force usually checks for the sticker on the bottom right corner of the windshield, while students sometimes place the sticker on the visor, he explained. Students may have a sticker, he said, but because it is "not visible from the outside," the students are usually ticketed.

Senary said the committee has encountered a few ticketing mistakes on the part of the police force. These ticket violations are voided, he reported.

Nurses training shifted due to nurses' strike

Because of the Youngstown Hospitals' nurses strike, YSU's sixth-quarter student nurses will finish their clinical training at St. Joseph's Hospital in Warren.

Gilda M. DeCapita, chairperson, nursing, stated Monday that the nurses will spend their required clinical lab hours in Warren instead of waiting for the end of the nursing strike. She said that this is the only way the nurses will graduate at the end of this quarter.

DeCapita said that even if the Youngstown nurses return to work before the end of the quarter, YSU student nurses will finish at Warren. "The mass admissions that would result at that time" DeCapita said, "would not be an atmosphere conducive to learning."

The nursing chairperson said that although there are two other hospitals in Youngstown, neither of them are open to use by the YSU student nurses. She stated that St. Elizabeth's has its one nursing program and could not accommodate all of YSU's nurses, and that Cafaro's is not state-approved for student nurses.

She added, however, that steps are being taken now to secure such approval.

DeCapita said that a total of 55 YSU student nurses started at St. Joseph's Monday and that no special transportation arrangements had been made, because Warren is "within normal driving distance."

Grievance procedure explained ; Krieger asks more participation

by Joe Zabel

"I wish people would employ grievances more often," said Fritz Krieger, sophomore, A & S, Student Government's secretary of student grievances.

Krieger has processed seven grievances since he took the post.

One of these grievances was filed by Ed Sturgeon, senior, education, against Dr. Mervin Kohn, business, Sturgeon charged that Kohn's policy, which denied students in his classes the right to tape record class sessions, violated students' right to an education. The grievance was settled by transferring Sturgeon to another business class, free of charge.

Another grievance, charging that a letter the student had written had become part of a faculty member's file, was filed by a student against an administrator. As a result of the efforts of Krieger, the letter was deleted from the faculty member's file.

Krieger said other grievances dealt with the parking situation at YSU and had not yet been satisfactorily resolved.

Though he hasn't processed any grievances dealing with grades yet, Krieger said "After a grade is issued, there is very little we can do. Instructors and department chairpersons are very reluctant to change grades, even if prejudice is apparent."

Krieger first takes grievances to the teacher or administrator against whom charges are lodged. If no satisfactory resolution is reached, he takes it to the department head. The department head may choose to hold a hearing, inviting both parties.

If no resolution is reached at the department level, Krieger takes the grievance to the dean of the school. If a resolution is not reached at this point, Krieger takes it to YSU President Dr. John Coffelt.

Advertising charges

According to Sturgeon, chairperson of Student Council, if no satisfactory resolution is made at any of these levels, and Council agrees that the charges are valid and important, Council will buy an advertisement in The Jambar to inform students of the charges of the grievance and the results. "It would be hard to do this without being libelous, however" Sturgeon said.

Sturgeon said it was against state law for Student Government to use any of its budget to hire a lawyer to act against the University.

Legal action

Dean of Student Affairs Charles McBriarty said students could probably take a grievance to court, although this has never been done at YSU.

McBriarty added that the present code of student rights and responsibilities, which appears in the student handbook, is based on court decisions.

McBriarty said that if an administrator didn't give adequate consideration to a student grievance, that administrator was neglecting his job.

"Breach of ethics"

Dr. Everette Abram, president of the YSU chapter of the Ohio Education Association (YSU-OEA), said a teacher's non-cooperating with the secretary of grievances would probably violate the university service section of the YSU-OEA agreement. He said that if a teacher lied to or misled the secretary, he or she would be guilty of a "breach of ethics."

When Krieger pursued the grievance concerning the students' letter in the faculty member's file, Krieger talked to an administrator who said he'd been contacted by the faculty member involved. The faculty member had asked the administrator if it was "appropriate" that he cooperate. In regard to the faculty member's action, Abram said he felt the action was unethical.

Justify grades

When asked about academic grievances, Dr. Taylor Alderman, assistant to the academic vice-president, said that not only can a valid grievance be pressed when grades are assigned capriciously, but that a teacher is obligated to justify all grades.

Alderman noted that proving a grade to be capricious, malicious, or biased, is very difficult. He said he would like to see a university policy requiring all teachers to distribute syllabi during the first week of classes which specifically explain how the final grades are to be determined.

CWA

campus for five years and done nothing." The CWA, according to Hanni, in the three months since its inception, has already filed 19 grievances.

At present, no union is recognized by the University to represent staff employees.

At the meeting, a number of grievances were discussed, many of them dealing with alleged violations of civil service laws. Hanni said that many of the grievances are under investigation. Among issues the CWA is fighting for, said Hanni, are health insurance, paid sick leaves, and annual cost of living increases.

The CWA is affiliated with the AFL-CIO and has been recognized as the official bargaining agent for staff employees at Ohio State University. Out of 15 Ohio public employee unions, CWA ranks third in size. Members are also trying to become recognized as the bargaining agent for Youngstown city employees.

Deadline extended for submission to Penguin Review

Penguin Review

The Penguin Review, YSU's literary and arts magazine, has announced it will extend its deadline for the acceptance of submissions until Wednesday, Feb. 19. The previous date for acceptance was yesterday.

According to the PR's editor, George Pepper, the reason for the extension is to allow "the PR Staff to stagger their editing, and thus avoid those last-minute marathon editing sessions." Also cited as a reason for the extension was the fact that the Penguin Review has not yet received enough diverse material to put together a "quality" magazine.

All students interested in having a chance to get their writing, artwork, or photography published should submit their work to the Penguin Review Office, Rayen Hall, Room 104.

Modest proposal II

As the Ohio Education Association's representatives and YSU administrators enter the bargaining sessions, we strongly urge them to consider the following ideas:

Students need safeguards of their rights as stated in the student handbook. Being that most of these rights concern relationships with faculty, an article should be included in the agreement binding teachers to respect student rights. A grievance system for students should be a part of this article, and in it the rights involved should be stated in more specific terms than they presently are in the student handbook.

The proposal of the faculty evaluations committee is apparently very good, although since the full proposal has so far been concealed from the student body, few students can intelligently support it. However, we know that the present proposal lacks appropriate mechanisms for voluntary publication of evaluation results. The evaluation will improve teaching quality much less if the results can't be published.

Students are indirectly hurt by the present lack of safeguards protecting the non-tenured faculty member from dismissal. While students derive great benefit from the exercise of academic freedom, department heads and colleagues often resent a faculty member's participation in controversial activities. For the sake of his students as well as himself, the non-tenured faculty member should be protected from attacks resulting from this resentment, and the burden of proof should not be on him to show prejudice in the case of non-renewal.

The administration has an obligation to pursue the best interests of the students. The OEA also owes the students consideration, since if it weren't for student support in 1973, it might never have gained the bargaining power it presently holds. We hope they will give the above ideas thorough and fair consideration.

As for the student representatives to the briefing sessions held in conjunction with the bargaining sessions, we wish them the best. We hope that, faced with the magnitude of their responsibility, they will not become Uncle Toms, but rather will pursue student interests with the courage and zeal they have displayed in the past.

Feedback

Seeks apology for FLR "insult"

To the editor of The Jambar:

Although I have not written many letters to your column, I have always appreciated the opportunity you offer for expressing personal viewpoints on campus matters. I fully subscribe to the principle of freedom of speech, but I also feel that unwarranted attacks upon individuals should be refuted.

I was distressed by the views expressed in the Input column of Jan. 21, authored by Mr. Michael J. Briceland, in which he argued against the foreign language requirement at YSU. I was especially perturbed by his statement that "the FLR (Foreign Language Requirement) is maintained to retain positions for the foreign language department." This statement is a direct insult to the professors in the foreign language department and an implicit insult to the entire faculty.

I refute Mr. Briceland's statement on the basis of the well-known, valid principle of economics called "opportunity cost." Since Mr. Briceland could not read a French menu after 20 quarter hours of studying French, I assume that he did not master the concept of "opportunity cost" after only nine quarter hours of Principles of Economics (if, indeed, he condescended to take any economics at all).

"Opportunity cost" arises from the undeniable facts that we have scarce or limited resources which are coupled with insatiable or unlimited wants. This combination requires that we make choices on how to allocate the scarce resources. Once the choice is made, the "cost" in economic terms is the alternative production sacrificed. For example, if we choose to use steel to make passenger automobiles, the cost of using the steel for automobiles is the sacrifice of machinery or other myriad products which we could have produced with this metal. In terms of labor, the opportunity cost of employment is the alternative jobs that were rejected.

The professors in the foreign language department are very intelligent, talented, highly-trained individuals with readily marketable skills. They represent high opportunity costs in terms of the alternative employment they have foregone in order to teach. We at YSU need their expertise far more than they need the teaching positions.

The entire faculty at YSU represents sizeable opportunity costs. All the professors have had numerous opportunities for alternative employment. Their teaching careers are the results of personal choices, not dictated by lack of opportunities to do otherwise.

If Mr. Briceland has a shred of decency, and if he has any ability to recognize professional skill and training, then I call upon him to apologize to the professors in the foreign language department and to the entire faculty.

Associate Professor
Economics

Blasts Polyglot staff letter

To the editor of The Jambar:

Unlike the staff of The Polyglot, I live in a realistic world. I can see where maintaining the language requirement would be beneficial for retaining teaching positions for the foreign language department. I can also recognize Hermann Hesse as a literary genius. But what I can also see is the possibility of Hesse's quote about "true education" being created during one of his periods of insanity and subsequent confinement.

Hesse's books are perpetuated by his talent. Unfortunately, his insanity is continued by those who advocate the retention of the language requirement. The feasibility of a "true education" is nothing more than a pipe dream. Eloquent intentions create the illusion of academic freedom, but in the transition to reality, requirements rear their ugly heads.

A liberal education may be food for the soul, but it doesn't help the stomach. Try eating your liberal arts degree! Yes, I'm one of those educational deviates who is not using my education to "broaden my experiences" but as a stepping stone for a job. I see nothing wrong with tarnishing those "experiences" by using my degree as a reference on job applications. The self-appointed intellegencia of The Polyglot should find it difficult to place this same reference on paper due to their emphasis on "true education."

The Polyglot staff's letter shows its true colors when it refers to the asinine argument of "why not do away with all required subjects instead of picking on just the language requirement?" Amazing! In the course of four paragraphs, the defense of the language requirement degenerates from the quote of Hermann Hesse about "true education" into hiding in the safety of being a required subject. What is not brought out is the fact that non-science majors are not required to die academically in a chemistry class but can find alternatives like Biology and Modern Man to meet this requirement. Not so in the FLR.

I am not one of the "take a German, French, or whatever, teacher to lunch bunch," and I am not one of those who advocate someone doing something because I did it. I don't recommend anyone else going to Viet Nam because I went, nor would I recommend it as a means to becoming culturally aware.

The sales of The Polyglot offer an example of student interest in maintaining the language requirement. The "monumental" sales should indicate that aside from the staff itself, the language department staff, and a few language majors, not many people are interested in the current definition of "true education."

Turkey

refugees in Cyprus due to the ruthless aggression of Turkey's armed forces, armed with American jets, tanks, arms, and uniforms.

The HOA supports a decision by the majority of the members of the US Congress to cease military aid to Turkey. According to Senator Kennedy and US Representatives Rosenthal and Biaggi, Kissinger has supported and succeeded in getting increased aid to Turkey since Turkey's invasion of Cyprus. Each attempt by Congress to cease military aid to Turkey has been frustrated by President Ford's veto. As a matter of local interest, Rep. Carney of Youngstown also supports stopping aid to Turkey.

United States relations with Cyprus and Greece were excellent for many years, but this was reversed after the Turks invaded Cyprus, a country with no army and only a few outmoded weapons. The Cypriots now deplore the actions of the US because:

1.) The US could have prevented the invasion, as Turkey is a NATO ally and the US Sixth Fleet is deployed in the area.

2.) The islanders were invaded by Turks using US ships; they were bombed and strafed by US jets; they were shot at by US tanks and guns; they saw their women raped by men wearing US uniforms (with Turkish insignias).

3.) Our military aid provisions call for complete cessation of aid if recipients (in this case, Turkey) use the arms for aggressive purposes, let alone against allies. Rather than cut off aid as a result of Turkey breaking this treaty, the US increased that aid.

Is it any wonder the US has become so unpopular in Cyprus? We have a moral obligation to rectify our wrongs; we must demand a change in our arms policy to aggressor states.

Corrects facts on handicapped

To the editor of The Jambar:

The implication in the recent Jambar article covering parking for handicapped students was somewhat misleading.

We do make arrangements with the handicapped to assist them in parking as near to their classes as possible. The Auxiliary Services Offices in Kilcawley, Room 100 works closely with the Office of Student Development to make it possible for handicapped students to use a faculty or staff parking lot, if it is more convenient. In certain instances, special permits can be issued to allow parking in either a student or faculty lot.

Suggestions and recommendations are regularly studied to find ways to provide better parking accommodations in our available facilities for handicapped students.

Favors 'no cost' day care center

To the editor of The Jambar:

Though there be laws governing prejudice and discrimination on the basis of sex, and though the Twenty-fifth Amendment is on the verge of reality, it is still possible to find De facto discrimination. It is simply impossible (or at least highly impractical) for mothers (who, as nature would have it, are usually women) to attend classes with the same facility as males. Pre-school children are fairly effective obstacles to mobility. Women are being encouraged, on one hand, to broaden themselves through education, while being denied the means to do it.

Day care centers do exist. But day care centers cost money, and money isn't something that there is a lot of nowadays. As a result, mothers who might desire to return to school simply cannot do so because the extra dollars per week that it costs to keep a child (or two, or three!) at a day care center are better used to buy the necessities of life. What we need is a cooperative day care center where children can be left at no cost. (Now that's anti-inflationary.) Payment is made in service to the center. The users pay with a very small proportion of their time. And, as we all know, most of us have more time than money. Such a cooperative was formed at the University of Oregon and works unbelievably well.

All those in favor of trying such a thing at YSU signify by calling 783-2484 and asking for Joanne.

Seeks 'school spirit' at YSU

To the editor of The Jambar:

I believe it's time that the students of YSU wake up, get out of their high school-oriented ways, and come to the realization that they are now in college. For so long, YSU has been trying to rid itself of its "reputation," which is not very good. I realize that YSU is a commuter school and that this adds to the problem of getting into the university program and way of life.

In the past, many students have knocked our sports program in one way or another. My only guess is that these people must be shut up in their little holes and have never tried any sport. YSU has great sports teams, but they fail to get the support of the student body. Our football team was ranked eighth nationally, and our basketball team is ranked fourteenth. We have a fine swim team, rifle team, girls' basketball team, and girls' gymnastics team. Our programs in soccer, wrestling, and tennis recently begun, are on the upswing but need time to fully develop.

I urge all students to be aware of what goes on on campus, and

Spotlight to hold salute to Spain ; will feature restaurant, films, play

YSU's Spotlight Theatre will hold opening ceremonies in its "Salute to Spain" at 2 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3, in Strouss Auditorium, Jones Hall.

In the past, Spotlight Theatre has recognized France, Great Britain, and Italy for their cultural and artistic contributions to the world community.

Opening ceremonies will include speeches by guest dignitaries and a program of Spanish songs and dances. At the same time, co-ordinated radio programs with a Spanish theme will become regular features on WYSU-FM.

This year's salute will also feature a small restaurant in Strouss Auditorium—Restaurante dell Cubierto—which will serve a Spanish menu daily. Proceeds from the sale of food will go to Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity, which is largely responsible for the organization and management of each year's salute.

Highlights of this year's "Salute to Spain" will include three outstanding motion pictures, all of which will be shown at 8 p.m. in Strouss Auditorium.

On Monday, Feb. 6, Lazarillo, winner of the Best Picture Award at the Berlin Film Festival in 1960 will be shown. Critics have said it is "excellently photographed and fluently staged against a striking background of Old World castles, villages, and landscapes, the picture is a kind of Rabelaisian Oliver Twist."

On Monday, Feb. 10, the feature will be The Moment of Truth, which is said to possess "all the raw excitement of the bullring that anyone can normally require, plus a wealth of color and drama in the life of a young 'torero.'"

A short film, Goya which is a selection of details from the works of Goya, and Viridiana, which won the grand prize at the Cannes Film Festival in 1961, will be shown on Wednesday, Feb. 12. Viridiana deals with the "impossibility of living a pure Christian life" and is considered by many to be director Luis Bunuel's masterpiece.

The month-long activities of "Salute to Spain" will be climaxed by live stage performances of Jacinto Benavente's The Bonds of Interest. While remaining unknown in many circles, Benavente is recognized as Spain's most prolific and outstanding playwright of the twentieth century.

While Benavente is known by many for his play La Malquerida, which is based upon the concepts of Freudian psychology, The Bonds of Interest is regarded by most of his critics to be his best work, a masquerade in which modern society is seen as a puppet show in which men are moved by the strings of passion, selfishness, and ambition. Men are alleged to be a compound of vileness and idealism capable of redemption only through love."

The Bonds of Interest is scheduled to run from Feb. 24 through March 1. All performances will take place in Strouss Auditorium, Jones Hall. Season coupons can be exchanged after Feb. 15, and open sales begin on Feb. 19. For additional information, students can call 746-1851, extension 239.

Dana presents Orr in faculty recital Monday evening

The Dana Concert Series of YSU will present bass Wendell Orr, music, in faculty recital at 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3, at Dana Recital Hall.

The program is free and open to the public.

Conductor and founder of the YSU Men's Chorus, Orr will present a program that includes Handel's "Tears, Such As Tender Fathers Shed" (Deborah) and "Del Minacciar del Vento" (Ottone), excerpts from Schubert's Die Winterreise and "O tu Palermo" from Verdi's I Vespri Siciliani.

Following intermission, Orr will present Hahn's "D'une Prison" and "Fetes Galantes," Poulenc's "La Belle Jeunesse," Tosti's "Non t'amo piu," "La Serenata," "L'ultima canzone," Rachmaninoff's "The Isle" and "God Took From Me Mine All," and Mussorgsky's "Silently Floated the Spirit" and "The Siege of Kazan" from Boris Godounoff.

A YSU faculty member since 1969, Orr received a bachelor of science degree in English and a bachelor of music degree in voice from Lawrence College and a master of music degree from the University of Michigan. He has also studied extensively in Europe.

After examining some of the Preview columns of the past few weeks it is becoming increasingly apparent that Youngstown really doesn't have all that much to offer in the way of diverse cultural stimulation. Unless, of course, you're the kind of person who might go to the Park Burlesque on Friday night, attend a symphony on Saturday, and spend Sunday afternoon at Idora Park—during the "off" season.

But if you were that kind of person, you would have understood Fellini's Satyricon immediately, would long ago have decided that existentialism was a marvelous practical joke and that Camus was, in actuality, the American answer to Jerry Lewis.

Also, you might have recognized that the only other living writer with a more inept concept of transition than myself is Esther Hamilton, and she had the good sense to retire to Florida. Whatever...

This week the Kilcawley Film Series will present Neil Simon's hit comedy What's Up Doc? Showings will take place at noon today and at 3 p.m. Sunday in Kilcawley Center, Room 236. Of course, tonight's showing will be at 8 p.m. in the Kilcawley Center Cafeteria.

The Youngstown Symphony Center will feature world-acclaimed cellist Samuel Mayes at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in Powers Auditorium. Among the pieces to be performed are Haydn's "Don Quixote" and Reznicek's "Overture to Donna Diana."

On Monday night, the Dana Recital Series will offer local music lovers Shubert's "Die Winterreise." Singing bass will be Wendall Orr, accompanied by Delores Fitzer on piano. Both are faculty members here. The performance is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Also, at 8 p.m. Monday night, the Kilcawley Pub will present Hono, a local folk singer who writes his own songs and who is presently under contract with absolutely nobody. Good luck...

YSU defeats Steubenville; prepares for Akron meet

The YSU roundballers, off of a 95-88 victory over Steubenville last night, prepare for Saturday's game with arch-rival Akron University at Beeghly.

The Penguins were paced by frosh Jeff Covington, with 25 points, and sophomore Tony Mitchell, with 19 points.

Steubenville's record dropped to 10-8, while YSU upped its record to 14-2.

Akron (9-6) has lost the last three home games, and the Zips took to the road this week hoping to bounce back. The Zips played Wright State Wednesday night before coming into Youngstown to play the Penguins.

The Zips are led by guard Nate Barnett (6-3), who heads the scorers with a 16.7 average. The Zips have three others who are in double figures besides Barnett-Guard Casimer Moss, with a 14.3 average, Center Greg Parham (6-9), with a 10.2 average, and Forward James Abrams (6-4), with an 10.8 average.

Game time this Saturday is at 8 p.m. in Beeghly. Students are admitted free with their YSU IDs.

Wrestlers beaten
by Malone College for twelfth loss

The YSU wrestlers lost their twelfth match of the season last night to Malone College, Canton, 30-19 before an estimated 200 fans at Beeghly.

At one point YSU led 16-9, but Malone quickly recovered, winning five straight individual matches.

Frank Brown, Dale Breen, and Lenny Batcha all won their matches easily. Don Hernan remained undefeated by pinning Malone's Paul Anderson for his eleventh straight win.

YSU's record now stands 0-12, while Malone gained its fifth victory in seven losses.

YSU's next match is on the road, as the Penguins travel to California State (Pa.).

Swimmers meet Clarion; hope to extend streak

The YSU swimmers (5-2) hope to extend last year's victory over Clarion State when the two teams meet this Saturday afternoon at Clarion State.

YSU upset Clarion State, 57-56 last year, the Eagles' first loss to a college division team in two years.

YSU puts its four-meet winning streak on the line this Saturday. The season may lie in the balance, too. As Coach Tucker DiEdwardo explained "A winning or losing season could hang in the balance. A loss to Clarion, coupled with the difficulty of the remainder of our schedule, could be troublesome."

The Penguins will be back to full strength this week, following the loss of five swimmers who had the flu last week.

Despite the loss of Gary Van Eerden, Rob Yepsen, Jeff Susin, Chris Andonian, and Tom Schoberg, the YSU swimmers won their fifth meet last week at Fairmont State 61-52.

Joe Grimm won most valuable swimmer award for his efforts in last week's victory.

Evans heads surgery board

at new college of medicine

Dr. Douglas M. Evans, chief of surgery at Akron General Medical Center, has been named chairperson of the Surgery Council of the Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine (NOUCOM). His appointment was recommended by the Council on Jan. 15, and was approved by Dr. Stanley W. Olson, provost.

The proposed aim in the Surgical Council of Chiefs associated with the College is to organize, develop, and implement undergraduate clinical teaching programs for the College. Other, previously-organized clinical councils include family practice, pediatrics, radiology, and internal medicine.

Evans was associate surgeon at Henry Ford Hospital in 1958 and 56. He has served on the teaching staffs at Akron City Hospital and Akron General Hospital, and since 1971 has been professor of anatomy, biology department, at the University of Akron. He has been full-time chairperson of the department of surgery at Akron

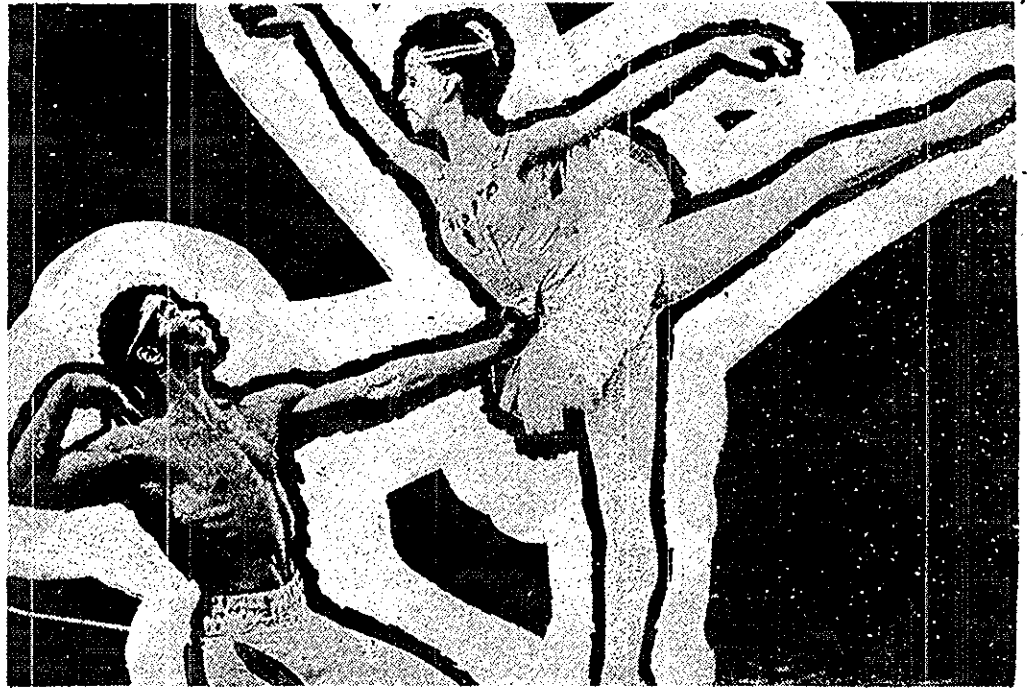

General Medical Center since 1971.

NOUCOM has engaged Dr. John D. Morley, retiring director of Akron's Department of Public Health, as a consultant in preventive medicine and public health. Morley came to Akron as health commissioner in 1956.

Morley will also study methods employed in the field of public health and preventive medicine by other community-based medical schools. He will report his findings and recommendations with respect to the College's curriculum of community medicine.

Morley has a BS from the College of Wooster, and MD from Western Reserve University School of Medicine, and a Master's degree in Public Health from the University of Michigan School of Public Health. He served his internship with the Youngstown Hospital Association and did post-graduate work in the Yale School of Alcohol studies, Yale University.
