TEACHERS ON STRIKE!

By MIRIAM KLEIN and KRISTINE HARRINGTON
Jambar Editors

Early Wednesday morning, pickets in the University's first-ever faculty strike could be seen around the campus brandishing their signs: "No Contract, No Work."

Their contract expired in June and a state-appointed fact finder at that time reviewed the issues of the contract negotiations which had been underway since October of last year. His recommendations were rejected by the Administration and endorsed by the YSU-OEA.

The most important issues were insurance and benefits, salary, workload and early retirement.

According to a statement released Wednesday by the Administration, the maximum salary increases and benefits were proposed to the YSU-OEA. "The final proposal was for a 6.5 percent increase in salary each year for two years or, if the Union preferred, a 2 percent increase, each year plus across-the-board increases of $1,800 for 1989-90 and $1,960 for 1990-91."

The Administration in their release also stated, "The health insurance issue has already been resolved by the administration with drawing its proposal for employee participation if the premium in 1990-91 increases more than 12 percent over the present premium." Because of this action the YSU-OEA took the Early Retirement Incentive Program (ERIP) off the table. Salary and workload are still unresolved issues.

The negotiations have been marked by allegations that the Administration has not been bargaining in good faith. Mark T. Shutes, sociology, anthropology and social work, chair of the strike committee, said the faculty had been upset by insufficiently supported

No contract, no work: University teachers take to the picket lines in an attempt to settle their contract dispute. At press time, no agreement had been reached with the Administration.

Phase one of new dorm set to go

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

YSU is another step closer to building the long-awaited and much talked about dormitory.

On Friday, the Board of Regents passed a seven million dollar bond for the housing project.

Ed Salata, executive director of facilities, said the money would be for the first phase of the project.

"We plan to begin building in 1989 and are optimistic that it should be completed by Sept. 1990," said Salata.

Salata said the parking and dining area would not be completed during the timespan. Richard Glunt, executive director of finance, said YSU is in a unique situation with the dormitory because it does not have any debts with other dorms.

"Other universities are in debt because they

The money the University received will be used to sell bonds said Glunt. A person will be able to purchase a bond through an agency. Glunt said the bonds are tax exempt.

"It's like a mortgage on a house," said Glunt. Glunt said the University need only sell six million dollars worth of bonds to fully fund the project.

"We have other money coming in from accounts, along with pledges," said Glunt. Glunt said he does not expect a raise in student tuition.

The construction of the dorms was approved last March after the Board of Trustees passed the bill by a 6-1 vote.

The area where the dorms will be built is bounded by the Madison Avenue Expressway to the south, Elm Street to the east, Madison Avenue to the north and the intersection of Michigan Avenue to the west.

The dorms will house 300 students and include a dining hall and a parking area.

Campus police keep busy

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

A motorist arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and a stolen stereo were just two of the incidents that kept officers busy during the break between summer and fall quarters.

At 12:38 a.m. on Saturday, September 16, Officer Kosec notified the police that he had seen a green Lincoln Continental, four-door sedan, strike a pedestrian on Rayen Avenue in front of the M-7 parking lot and head north on Fifth Avenue towards the stadium, the report stated. An ambulance was dispatched to the scene.

At 12:41 a.m., Officer Cretella observed an auto of the same make and color with Ohio Registration "336HPE," which had collided into a parking booth at the entrance of the F-7 lot, the report said.

Sergeant Clementi was quoted as saying, "as officers approached the subject, he was unsteady on his feet, his speech was slurred, his eyes were dilated, his clothes in disarray and he had a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage on his breath."

According to the report, the man was placed under arrest for driving under the influence and, upon being transported to the city jail, was issued a breathalyzer test which measured a reading of

No food service to fill vacancy left by Dairy Queen restaurant

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

For the last four months, no business has filled the vacancy left by Dairy Queen in Kilcawley Center.

Phil Hirsch, director of student activities at Kilcawley Center, said a permanent decision will be made soon.

"Right now we do not see any food service moving into the spot," said Hirsch. "We are looking to possibly move a current university service there."

Hirsch said an example of a service would be the copy center. A service would be something that benefits the students.

"We have a list of possibilities and we have to decide what service would be best suited for the move," said Hirsch. "It's possible that a new university service could fill the spot."

Hirsch said another option is to put in some kind of service and keep the seating area for people to sit and eat their lunch.

He said when high school students visit the University, there is overcrowding in Arby's. By keeping the seating, the space for 56 people can be used.

Another option is to put more than one service in that space.

Hirsch said a decision on what will occupy the area will be made within the next couple of weeks.

"We have Greek Week coming up and we can put some organizations in there," said Hirsch. "The space will be utilized for events right now."

He said that students will still be able to purchase ice cream at other campus food services this upcoming year.

Managers of the Dairy Queen opted to move from Kilcawley before the summer quarter because it was not making a profit. Last year, the business made less than $110,000. To make a profit, it needed to average between $120,000 and $125,000.

Before its closing, the Dairy Queen was part of Kilcawley for seven years.

Hemminger finds enjoyment in field of Health and Physical Education

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

Caring about people, said Dr. Lynn Hemminger, physical education, is something that makes her happy in her life.

As a YSU physical education instructor, Hemminger hopes to impress upon her students the importance of physical education.

Hemminger said her favorite class to instruct is aquatics I.

"I have a lot of admiration for students who take the beginning aquatics class," said Hemminger. "They have that fear of water, so I try and get them comfortable first."

Besides being a physical education instructor, Hemminger is the president of the local American Diabetes Association (ADA) and presides on the education committee of the Ohio ADA.

Hemminger said she is involved with the association because her husband suffers from diabetes.

Her duties on the education committee include educating not only diabetics, but also the public about the illness.

She also affiliated with the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA). Though Hemminger has the qualifications to become an athletic trainer, she has chosen not to do so.

"I am very happy teaching," she said.

Hemminger became interested in physical education with the support of a high school teacher at Andover High School in Andover, Mass.

TIM LEONARD/THE JAMBAR

Taking time to care: Not only does Dr. Lynn Hemminger, physical education, help in getting people physically fit, she also donates time serving as president of the local American Diabetes Association.

"I guess she was my first mentor," Hemminger said.

After graduating with a B.S. from Springfield College in 1972, she became a graduate assistant athletic trainer at Indiana State University. There she earned her M.S. in health and physical education in 1975. In 1987, Hemminger received her doctorate degree.

"It was tough getting my doctorate's because I was going part-time," she said.

Hemminger began instructing physical education classes at YSU in 1980 teaching all different kinds of physical education classes. Now she primarily instructs aquatics and athletic injuries classes.

In her spare time, Hemminger enjoys researching the value of physical education.

Resource center provides services for University women

By KATHY WILMS
Staff Reporter

Women who currently enrolled in college and are looking for a system of support to help them in their studies should investigate the Women's Resource Center located in Dana Hall.

Danna Bozick, coordinator, Women's Resource Center, cited Ohio Bureau of Employment Services' (OBES) Women In Ohio 1985 statistics that showed that women made up 49 percent of undergraduates and 51 percent of master degree student. The center is there to provide referrals, guidance and support to women as students and as members of the community.

Current enrollment of women at YSU is 50-51 percent, said Bozick. A college degree is becoming a prerequisite to enter the workforce. "Considering that 45 percent of the women in poverty have a high school diploma, it shows a need to work for equality issues," said Bozick.

The Women's Resource Center (WRC) has also worked with a number of local organizations and agencies," said Bozick. Some of the WRC programs, such as support groups, are for students only, said Bozick.

Women from within the community and student body have called the center when they didn't know where else to turn, said Bozick. "If we don't have offices on campus to handle their concerns, then I try to steer them to other agencies as referrals," added Bozick.

The center offers support groups for women on campus as well as workshops working with the Counseling Center at YSU. Women have to compete in the Youngstown job market and it is not easy, said Bozick.

"The Center offers meeting area as well as a small library containing book focusing and biographies," said Bozick. "Campus wide programs are organized by the WRC for Women's History Month in March. Yoga classes and student art shows are also held at the WRC, Bozick said.

At one time the National Organization of Women's (NOW) Youngstown chapter and the center worked on a program that dealt with equal rights, said Bozick. "A big misconception is that if you want to work for women's issues you hate men. That just isn't the case," said Bozick. "When you are working for freedom, you are working for everyone's freedom," said Bozick.

The worst misconception is that all the battles for women are won and that there is no more discrimination toward women. "Sometimes it takes a while to wake-up and realize that rights we thought were a given, maybe lost. There are a lot of unchallenged myths yet to be resolved we need to continue to work of them," said Bozick.

Bozick cited a program just recently that the WRC joined forces with the Displaced Homemakers and OBES to conduct an Educational Resource Fair as well as a program on Nontraditional Work Roles for women.

YSU's center is still in early development and it is guided by an advisory committee. "We do not yet have a computer or a copying machine," said Bozick.

Levi jeans named essential product for studying in style

By The College Press Service

Sixties music may still be in concert halls, but the sixties fashion craze that afflicted many campuses last year is supposed to be over.

Levi Strauss & Co., the giant San Francisco-based jeans manufacturer, said the trend's epitaph is found in the results of its survey of 1,400 collegians on 10 U.S. and four foreign campuses.

Asked what looks were "not in," 83 percent of those polled listed sixties-style looks such as bell bottoms, peace signs and smiley faces as stuff not to be seen in.

Even tie-dyed t-shirts are losing favor, asserts Levi's spokeswoman Debbie Gasparini. "Clearly, college kids aren't making or buying them."

But it seems lots of them haven't gotten the message from Levi's yet.

"In Chapel Hill, (the sixties look has) never gone. You see a lot of it around," said Billy Dillon, manager of Beach Connection, a surfing shop popular among students from the University of North Carolina (UNC).

"Plenty of people wear tie-dyed clothes," added Nicole Breck, a Connecticut College senior.

And at the University of Maryland in College Park,

"There're still tie-dyes running around," reported senior Keith Paul.

"Patches, the Deadhead look, peace symbols...there's a lot of that on this campus," added senior Dana Rudnick, who works at University Boutique, a popular Maryland haunt.

"There's a certain fascination among students with the sixties," observed James Combs, a professor of politics and pop culture at Valparaiso University in Indiana. "A lot of them wished they kind of lived through it, although very few people look good in it."

The Levi's 501 Report, conducted by the Roper Organization, indicates that collegians regard backpacks, stereo and, of course, blue jeans, as their most essential possessions.

T-shirts, black-colored clothing, leather jackets and miniskirts also rate high.

Money matters main objective at Financial Aid office

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

The word "college" conjures a variety of images, such as the friendships, the fun, the studying and, of course, the expenses.

While the first three items are left entirely to the prospective college student, there may be help available for those suffering from too much of the latter.

YSU's Scholarships and Financial Aid Office, located in Room 2013 in Jones Hall, is the place to go if you are in need of assistance.

Financial Aid is awarded to the students in four basic forms: 1) scholarships and 2) grants, both of which do not have to be repaid; 3) loans, which must be repaid; and 4) employment in work study programs.

To begin with, YSU offers various cash scholarships which are dependent upon academic performance.

One such award is the "YSU Foundation Scholarship." The requirement for receiving one are:

- Scholarships for first-year students, awarded on the basis of high school class rank and ACT scores or equivalent SAT scores, are disbursed as follows:

- Valedictorians - $1,650; top ten percent of graduating class and an ACT of 27 or higher - $1,350; top ten percent of graduating class, ACT score of 26 or less and a member of the National Honor Society - $825; top 25 percent of graduating class and ACT of 25 or higher - $750; and top 25 percent of graduating class and an ACT of 23 or 24 - $660.

- Scholarships for full-time undergraduates with class standing of sophomore, junior or senior are dependent upon the following criteria:

- Cumulative GPA of 4.0 - $1,650; GPA of 3.8-3.99 - $975; GPA of 3.6-3.79 - $675; and a GPA of 3.3-3.59 - $450.

- Part-time students are eligible to receive one-half the dollar amount if enrolled for six to eight credits, and three-fourths for nine to 11 credits.

- To apply for any of the scholarships, all interested students must fill out a Scholarship Request Form, available in the Financial Aid office return the form by April 1 in order to be considered for the following academic year.

Students interested in applying for grants, loans and work-study programs may also find the appropriate information in the Financial Aid office. William Collins, director, scholarships and financial aid, said, "We (YSU) offer just about every federal program that almost any school offers."

Among the grants eligible are:
•Pell Grants. This type of grant is for undergraduates only. The maximum award depends upon available funding. The applicant must apply no later than May 1, 1990. Students receive payment by submitting a Student Aid Report (SAR) by the deadline.

•The Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant (SEOG) is also limited to undergraduate students. This grant is for students with exceptional financial need and priority is given to Pell Grant recipients.

For full-time undergraduates and graduates alike, the "College Work-Study Program" provides on-campus jobs for which the student is paid either by the hour or by salary. However, the amount received cannot exceed the student's financial need.

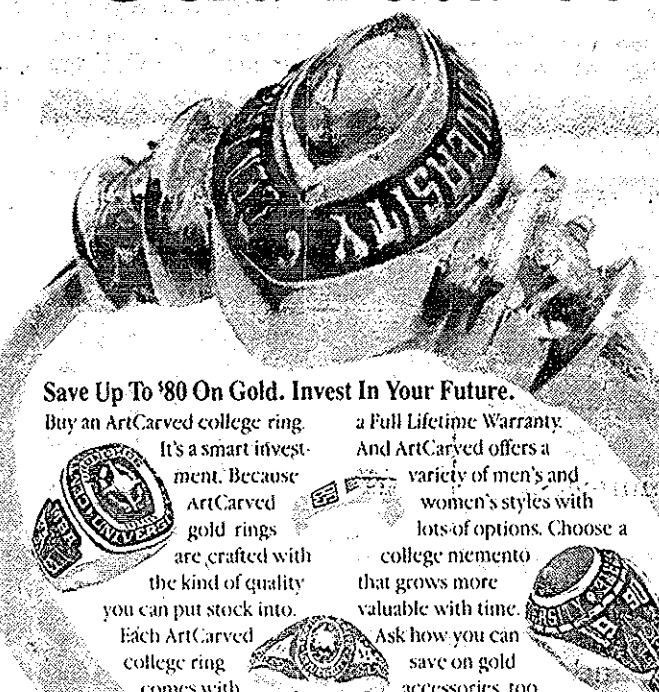

Loans available with the help of YSU are:

- Perkins Loans (formerly called the National Direct Student Loan). This loan carries a five percent interest rate upon repayment. It is offered to all students who have completed a minimum of six credit hours and remain in good academic standing.

- PLUS/Supplemental Loans for Students (SLS). The PLUS loan is specifically for parents who are borrowing money for their child, and the SLS is only for the student. Both loans allow up to $4,000 per year stopping at a maximum of $20,000. The interest rates may vary and there is no deadline, but all applicants are encouraged to apply as soon as possible.

- Stafford Loans (formerly the See Aid, page 24

are just now recognizing the need for services like YSU's. "As for non-traditional student program we have had other centers looking at it to model their programs in a similar way," said Bozick.

Bozick also stated that "The women's center was a three year pilot program from 1985 to 1988 and with the academic year 1988-1989 completed its first year as a regular division of the Student Services, called Student Support Services."

arguments being presented by the Administration.

Dr. John B. Russo, business, president of the YSU-OEA, said the faculty wanted the facts necessary to evaluate the proposals and added that they "want to be treated with something other than contempt by this Administration."

The issues which remain on the bargaining table are salary and workload.

Dr. Sidney Roberts, history, chief negotiator for YSU-OEA, said "The Administration seems to be able to come up with funds for athletics, with funds for athlete's dorms, and with funds for a steel museum, but they can't fund their own faculty."

Russo said "According to statistics, we have the highest work load of any faculty in the state of Ohio and we are the most productive." YSU, unlike other state universities does not have ERIP and if YSU did in fact have such a program, Russo said that the faculty would not rank eighth out of the eleven institutions in salary but "the lowest."

Student Services and the Tutorial Services share space in Dana Hall. These services are free and open to all students on campus.

YSU's Women's Resource Mentor program is also open to women students to encourage them while pursuing their degrees, and then to use their degrees for gainful employment. The program will involve a one-on-one between the mentor and the student for one or two years, said Bozick. After the student is out using her degree she then will become a mentor for those following in her footsteps, added Bozick.

In the middle of all the confusion are the students, some of whom are supportive, but most are angry. Student Government held an emergency meeting Wednesday afternoon to determine if legal action should be taken against both the Administration and faculty on behalf of the student population.

Student Government President Brian Fry said that a number of students are concerned that their rights are not being taken into consideration. Fry said, "The students of this University are victims... and the students of this University are outraged."

Fry said that he has not been given any information on what actions will be taken against students who do not attend classes. "We're completely in the dark."

Administration, faculty make YSU history with strike

On Wednesday, I made my usual turn onto Fifth Avenue. Visibility was near zero because of the fog, but I could see the outlines of YSU's buildings. As these buildings came into focus, I noticed the landscape was different — there were picket signs. The inevitable had occurred — a strike at YSU.

After months of bargaining, the faculty set a precedent, the first ever strike at YSU.

The faculty should not be blamed for the strike.

They asked for a reasonable increase of 7.87 percent over two years, but the administration would not budge. The administration's final offer was 6.5 percent over two years.

According to data available in the fact-finder report, the faculty at YSU are one of the most underpaid staffs in the state of Ohio.

In the state of Ohio, the average salary for a university instructor is $44,634. The average salary at YSU is $41,389.

This is the same administration that two months ago helped fund a steel museum project — a project now facing financial problems.

Another problem with the negotiations has been that the faculty has claimed the administration has not bargained in good faith.

The administration has an idea

the University will operate with limited service faculty.

They will have a rude awakening.

The faculty should be treated fairly. For the University to function as a cohesive unit then concessions must be made on both sides. Progress will not be made unless both sides realize this.

Another issue holding up an agreement is the workload. The administration has instructors in certain departments such as nursing and home economics supervise students in off-campus studies. If an instructor is working on and off campus, then he or she should be paid for their time.

On the other side, the faculty has asked for students not to cross the pickets lines today. How could the faculty ask of this from the student body?

Many students are sympathetic to the faculty's situation, but they have an obligation to attend classes just like the faculty has an obligation to picket. Students have already paid for their classes, so why should they get cheated.

If the students do not attend classes they will not be refunded any money because the administration will say there were instructors present.

Even if the strike is shortlived, this will always be remembered in YSU history.

COMMENTARIES

Editor encourages freshmen support

This year, let's not rank on the new freshmen. I know managing editors of the past have made a mockery out of freshmen in their first-issue commentaries, but as this year's managing editor, I say let's not make them feel like outcasts. Let's encourage them, give them a little guidance, show them that YSU isn't as spiritless as they may think.

So what if the freshmen carry their Students Serving Students folders around? So what if they dress up for the first day of school and carry brand new funky colored knapsacks? So what if they show up for class 15 minutes early with their schedules scotch-taped to their new Trapper keeper notebook? So what if they forgot which level they parked their car on in the parking deck, and put their parking sticker on the windshield instead of a butter lid? So what if they congregate in groups according to high school in Arby's? BIG DEAL! Weren't we all guilty of doing one or two of these things when we were freshmen too?

There is a need to encourage our freshmen to take a more active and prominent role in our University. It is today's freshmen who can set the standards for those to follow. It is today's freshmen who can help make the University more active and less apathetic.

Anyone who was around during the Student Government elections last spring quarter saw what appeared to be the first sign of a unified body of students standing up for what they believed. The spirit of a small number of students grew as they turned their beliefs into actions. It was these actions that produced results.

YSU can be rewarding experience

Today is the beginning for new students at YSU. Gone are the days of high school.

Welcome to the "Big Time." Freshmen should not fear the new challenges that face them now and in the next four years.

The college experience at YSU will be exciting and rewarding for those students who participate in campus activities.

There are numerous organizations anyone can join — it's an excellent way to meet the different people who come from all over the area.

There are theater productions at Bliss Hall and free concerts performed by students and faculty of the Dana School of Music. And there is always sporting events.

There is always something happening on campus!

Enjoying yourself and participating in activities should not eclipse the primary goal of all YSU students: to get an education. The most important part of college is the work that goes into earning a degree.

Though YSU is a commuter college, it offers a quality education and a family type campus atmosphere.

Anyone can succeed in life no matter which university one may choose.

Good luck and enjoy

A few tips for students

Freshmen — Welcome to your first session, and hopefully your last, of First Day on Campus 101.

Today's lesson is: Finding your classroom in five minutes or less.

The best advice I can offer, which many of you won't take, is practice. As some of you may already realize, practice makes perfect, and, if I may go a step further, perfect practice truly makes perfect.

I'm serious. You should practice for a few hours walking to your classes. If you have a class today then you can forget about practice, just pray. However, if you don't have your class until tomorrow, or, better yet, Monday, be sure to not only know where your classroom is, but also get to know the whole floor. But don't stop there. Be sure to take note of the other floors in that particular building.

Trust me, teachers dig this stuff. They admire freshmen who take the time to know everything about these buildings. You may even want to pay a visit to Maag Library to research the person who the building was named after.

Once you think you've learned the building completely, have a near and dear friend blindfold you, take you to an isolated part of the building, and spin you around ten or twenty times. (I prefer the international standard of 17 spins). But please realize, anything more than 20 spins is totally uncalled for and highly unethical.

(One special note: Just in case your friend isn't as near and dear as you thought, you may want to pack a gun. But please check your YSU handbook before doing so).

I highly recommend that each freshman spend four to six hours studying just where their classroom is located.

Italy rises to new heights

Italy, until recently the sick man of Western Europe, is so robust that social scientists should be dizzy. A mere decade after last rites were being pronounced, it is flourishing in a manner that may make it a model for Europe's fast-unfolding future. It may be especially suited to absorb the political and cultural shocks of 1992 — the unified market of the 12 nations of European Community.

Italy had Europe's first formidable Fascist Party. As recently as a dozen years ago, when "Eurocommunism" was a cresting wave (Italian communists got 34.5 percent of the votes in 1976), Italy had the last formidable Communist Party.

Ten years ago Italy was the only European state under serious siege by terrorists. There were 2,500 terrorist incidents in 1978, including the kidnapping and murder of Italy's leading politician, Aldo Moro. The fever did not break until the rescue of the kidnapped American general, James Dozier.

Until the 1950's, Italy had a pre-industrial economy. A decade ago, a serious commentator, Luigi Barzini, concluded that Italy was "going down the drain like Bangladesh," and would be the first developed nation to "turn itself back into an underdeveloped nation."

But this nation is receptive to realism, including the distinctive realism of the 1980s, the rediscovery of the virtues and rigors of markets. In 1980, there was the "March of the 40,000." Fiat workers went into the streets of Turin demanding, against their union leaders, the right to end a strike on terms favorable to Fiat's drive to modernize at the cost of jobs.

Today, Italy is the world's fifth largest industrial market economy (behind the United States, Japan, Germany and France) and it is a conundrum of social science. Catholic Italy has a higher standard of living than Protestant Britain. What, now, of the connection between the Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism? What of the adage that Catholics sleep well but Protestants eat well?

Actually, Italy may be the fourth largest market economy, ahead of France. It is hard to measure and easy to underestimate Italy's GNP because of the size of the unmeasurable "black economy." It hums along largely in the interstices of state supervision, and may account for at least 20 percent of GNP. One study showed that 54 percent of civil servants had second jobs, 33 percent sold goods within their ministries, 27 percent ran other businesses during office hours. By tax-avoidance and regulation-evasion, the "black economy" amounts to an unofficial but effective supply-side program.

Italians show less interest in and more cynicism about politics than other European peoples. Italians as a people are ancient; the Italian state is young. Having been governed over the centuries by Spaniards, French and Austrians, and having been unified only since the 1860s, they tend to regard the state as a semi-foreign presence. But the Italian attitude toward the state expresses an entire stance toward life and may be something Europe will soon need more of.

In his new collection of essays "Europe, Europe: Forays into a Continent," Hans Magnus Enzensberger notes that for 2000 years Northern Europeans (he is a German) have fallen under Italy's spell. Disregarding public inefficiencies and corruptions they would not tolerate at home, they have condescended to Italians as charming, creative, stylish but, at bottom, unserious.

However, Enzensberger writes, Italy is not the West's drive-in theater, a place for brief entertainment. Rather, it may have the mildly anarchic brio required for life in Europe's emerging mega-state.

A specter is, or should be, haunting Europe: the specter of Brussels. Not the cute bourgeois Brussels of fine chocolate and linen, but the gray Brussels of bureaucracy, the home of the administrative machinery of the "new Europe." In 1992, the 12 nations are supposed to begin playing by the same rules. The rules will proliferate exponentially.

Social scientists, writes Enzensberger, have assured us that the price of progress is life within "the armor of institutions." We must reconcile ourselves to life inside a labyrinth of walls, visible and invisible, as bureaucracy grows along with social complexity. The bureaucracy is the good shepherd and "the good shepherd's benevolence stops where his own corporate existence is called into question."

Italians are Europe's least state-broken people, a fact directly related to the fact they are perhaps Europe's most entrepreneurial people. They are the least likely to be inert clay in the hands of Euro-planners and other dreamers of statist dreams from which Europe in the 1980s has been tardily awakening.

In the four years that I have been a student at YSU, this mishap in the Student Government election led to the largest unity among students and display of school spirit that I have ever seen.

Maybe if more freshmen in the past had been encouraged to get involved at the University other than merely attending classes, more students would have taken part in choosing a representative for Student Government president and vice-president.

After all, Student Government is the voice of all 14,000 students, not just the 1,400 who voted in last year's election.

It's not too late to start caring. It's not too late to start getting involved. It is definitely not too late to stop picking on the freshmen. I'm not suggesting that this will solve the problem of apathy on campus, but I am suggesting that it's a great place to start.

So if you happen to see a freshman who is lost, give them directions to the right place and save the joke for your friends.

I know freshmen do freshmen things, it's things. It's all part of the college experience.

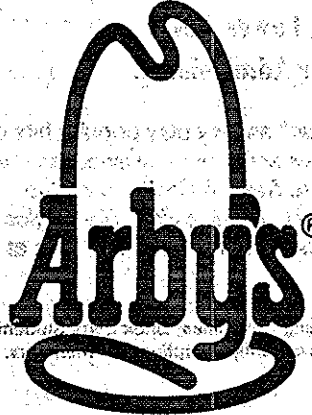

All I'm suggesting is that we help them, instead of humiliating them.

Suggestions help students get more out of reading time

YSU — For students returning to school after a long summer vacation, good study techniques and habits are necessary to get the most from their reading time.

According to Joan Sonnett, coordinator of remedial and developmental instruction at YSU, "Students shouldn't study the way some students do—open a book, leaf halfway through, close the book, and never understand what any chapter was about."

Sonnett offered several suggestions to help students organize their time and study patterns: "First, survey the chapters. Look at the headings and picture to get a good idea about what the chapter is about." She stressed that this preliminary scanning gives the reader a skeletal outline of the material.

After scanning to get an idea about the contents of the chapter, students should ask questions. Sonnett suggested that they make a study guide as they read, using the left side of their guide for questions and the right side for answers.

"Students must learn to be active readers," Sonnett said. "They can't expect a miracle."

One mistake many students make is not returning to the chapters again until midterm, said Sonnett.

"Repetition is necessary for transferring short-term into long-term memory," the coordinator noted. She emphasized the importance of re-reading the least understood parts of a chapter.

The best environment for studying is a quiet, well-lit room with a decent temperature but no pictures to distract, according to Sonnett.

"The kitchen is not a good place," she said. "Everyone is in the kitchen. There is the food, the phone and constant interruptions." Some students can study under those conditions, Sonnett admitted, "but they're not operating at peak efficiency."

One of the best study areas, suggested Sonnett, is the bedroom. "Get a table or desk and use a bedroom because a bedroom suggests relaxation."

Students often make the mistake of putting off difficult material until the end of the study period, but according to Sonnett, "The mind and body are more prepared at the beginning of a study session." She maintained that students should study for a period of 50 minutes, then take a short break to reward themselves.

She said that non-traditional students have often acquired different habits and have to learn a whole new operation.

Also, household chores can cause a problem for many non-traditional students. She said these students might consider finding a quiet place, such as a library, for studying.

Time management can be a "thorny issue," said Sonnett, and she recommended that students maintain a regular schedule, organizing study time to fall at "the time when they operate best," keeping up with assignments and seeing all free time as "flexible" time which can be used as study time if necessary.

"Time management can actually open up time for you," Sonnett said. "Chart for a week everything you do and you'll

Kilcawley Center offers gourmet tastes on a student budget

By CAROLYN KORENIC
Staff Reporter

Picture this. It's 11:45 a.m. and your last class of the day is almost over. Stomach growling, you count down the minutes until you can go to Kilcawley Center for lunch. But once you enter Kilcawley, your choices of eateries are as varied as the menus.

Carolyn Albert of Food Services said that three of Kilcawley's dining facilities are owned and operated by campus dining services (CDS). These include the Terrace Room, the Brass Rail Cafe and the Wicker Basket Restaurant. CDS not only prepares daily meals but also caters all University functions.

Of the three University operated dining facilities, Albert said that the Terrace Room is the most popular with the student population. If you are on campus early in the morning, the Terrace Room has a wide variety of breakfast foods. From hash browns to French toast, the Terrace Room offers well-balanced meals.

When lunchtime rolls around the Terrace Room menu grows even more diverse. The Grille Works will satisfy your hunger for a burger and if you are dreaming about life south of the border, the Terrace Room cooks can also prepare a wide variety of Mexican food.

In addition, the Terrace Room has a complete dinner menu, salad bar and recently opened a deli section which proved to be extremely popular. Pies and doughnuts are also baked fresh daily to satisfy your sweet tooth.

While the Brass Rail Cafe is frequented most often by the Kilcawley Dorm residents, it carries a menu similar to the Terrace Room. The Brass Rail Cafe is open to all students and faculty, as is the Wicker Basket Restaurant which, for the most part, serves University faculty and staff. Albert stressed that all students and faculty are welcome in any one of the Kilcawley eateries.

Where do you eat if you are a health conscious individual, watching your intake of fibers, grains, fruits and vegetables? Campus dining services also meets those needs. Albert said that in addition to having full salad bars, vegetarian platters and using cholesterol-free oil, the chefs do their best to fulfill specific meal preparation requests.

Albert said that although 6500-7500 persons are fed each week, the CDS staff of sixty people do their best to ensure speedy service and hot meals. This is also made possible by the fact that CDS offers coupon programs and quarterly meal plans.

Whether you are a fifth year senior or an incoming freshman, the famous Pub wheat dough pizza is a must try. Perhaps one of the most popular toppings is spinach. With its collegiate banners hanging from the ceiling and dark, intimate atmosphere, the Pub is an ever-popular hang-out for students.

If you are a fast-food junky, don't despair. Arby's is also located in Kilcawley and serves both breakfasts and luncheon meals. Specials are frequently advertised and coupons are available for those of you who are penny pinching individuals.

Kilcawley Center truly has a wide variety of meal choices, dining facilities and with reasonable prices. So, enjoy fall quarter and bon appetite!

Greek system gives students a chance for personal advancement

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

The Greek System: for those of you who think it's just another chapter in foreign politics, think again.

The Greek System at YSU is an integral part of student life. At least that the view held by every member of the system's 11 fraternities and nine sororities.

There are three governing bodies, which include: the Interfraternity Council (IFC), fraternities; the Panhellenic Council (Panhel), governing sororities; and the National Panhellenic Council, governing the African-American fraternities and sororities.

The organizations are open to anyone wishing to join. According to Keith Rubenstein, president of IFC, if a person wants to join and can complete the obligations, the person is welcome to join.

Rubenstein said students need a GPA of at least 2.0 to be candidates for membership.

Rubenstein said IFC fraternities hold rush every second and third week of each quarter. "Each fraternity will have a rush party or two," he said. "There you get a chance to meet the brothers, take a look at the house, and see what that fraternity has to offer."

The IFC fraternities include Alpha Phi Delta, Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Theta Chi.

According to Linda Pasky, rush chairperson for Panhel, joining one of the sororities, Delta Zeta, Alpha Sigma Tau, Phi Mu or Zeta Tau Alpha, is a little different.

"There's a formal rush once every fall to introduce (the pledge) to sorority life," she said.

This year, the rush period will take place Oct. 5, 6 and 8. According to Pasky, the pledges visit each sorority house to see the members performing skits and discussing that particular sorority.

Pasky said Panhel will hold a pre-rush picnic Saturday, Sept. 23 behind Beeghley Center. Afterward, participants will attend the YSU football game at 4:30 p.m. All interested women should contact Kim Orr, Panhel advisor, at 742-3161.

Another sorority at YSU is Xi Delta Gamma, but it is not participating in the local rush, Pasky said.

Students interested in a fraternity or sorority are also welcome to join one of the eight organizations affiliated with the NPHC. These include four fraternities: Alpha Phi Alpha, Kappa Alpha Psi, Phi Beta Sigma and Omega Psi Phi; two on-campus sororities: Alpha Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Theta; and two off-campus sororities: Zeta Phi Beta and Sigma Gamma Rho.

According to Leslie Bright, student activities assistant, the rush time for joining one of these groups is determined by each particular group. Bright added that there is, however, an open house for all of the NPHC organizations where each group gives a five-minute speech about its functions. Afterward, the groups offer a sign-up period to all interested students.

This year, the open house will be held from 2-4 p.m. Oct. 11 in the Ohio Room in Kilcawley Center.

Members of Panhel and IFC will participate in raising funds for United Way.

Alpha Phi Alpha and Omega Psi Phi will sponsor a dance open to all YSU students Friday, Sept. 22 in the Chestnut Room, Kilcawley Center.

looking like Joe Cool, or in some cases, Mary Jo Cool, sit there for the two hour class period, and then find out he or she was in the wrong class.

It happens every fall quarter. I can see it in your eyes! You don't believe me, do you?

Okay, here's what you do. Once you are a 100 percent sure you're in the correct classroom, watch your classmates enter the room. Keep your eyes on the coolest looking person in the class, again it's usually a freshman, because that's usually the person who's in the wrong room.

Look at him now. I'll bet you that shortly after he sits down he'll start looking at those around him, all the while looking cool. You want to know what he's doing? He's trying to figure out if he's in the right classroom. But he doesn't want to ask anyone, because that wouldn't be cool.

So what does he do? If he's a gambler, and most of those cool looking people are, he will decide to sit and wait for the instructor.

Five minutes later, after the instructor has failed to call his name, he begins to sweat.

If he's lucky he has an admit card, but if he doesn't...well, then he's a sap.

I'm going to be honest with you. There really isn't a way for a freshman to find his or her way to his or her classroom in five minutes or less.

Well, wait, there is one way. Of course I've never tried this particular method, but here it is: Start crying. Because there is always some sap, usually a sophomore, junior, or senior who couldn't find his way to class his freshman year neither, to help you in your search for your classroom.

Fry and Haude get jump start on new year

KEVIN O'CONNOR/THE JAMBAR

Out of the frying pan: This summer, new Student Government President Brian Fry got a taste of the responsibilities associated with his position.

Fry addresses student body

My Fellow Students:

Let's talk about the upcoming year. As many of you remember, Dan and I generated some excitement on this campus last spring. We are now in the process of bringing more excitement to YSU. When I talk with the students of YSU about campus life, the word "boring" is inevitably spoken. That will change this year and you, the students, along with my administration, will implement the changes.

It is my opinion that the past student government administrations have created a wall between themselves and their fellow students. This past spring you tore that wall down! We finally have an administration that is a true Student Government. We are not representing the administration, the faculty, or the YSU staff. We are here for you and we are hopeful that you will participate.

As many of you know, we want to bring major events back to our campus. The process of putting these events together is extremely complicated and will require hard work. Student Government can not do it alone. We need your help by expressing interest in attending these events and by involving yourself in the production of our programs.

I also hope to improve relations between Student Government and students. We plan to involve ourselves with the Greek system on a higher level than any of our predecessors. We are operating with an open door policy toward all campus organizations. Come to us; if it is possible to help you, we will.

This is the year that YSU will undergo some serious changes. We are out to kill apathy. I believe that this is not an impossible goal. My administration is fired up and ready to go — we are counting on you being ready too.

Neither the Student Government nor the student body can do it alone. However, all of us together can accomplish things for the future that in the past were never imagined. I know many of you are counting on us, but we are counting on you too. Together we can make things happen. Let's get it done!

My dream is to be swamped with ideas, questions and volunteers from the student body. Don't let me down because we are the people who can change this University. It began with the election, it continued through summer and now it is time to move ahead with full force. Student Government and the student body should be one in the same. Let's make it so.

Brian M. Fry

Student Government President

By KRISTINE HARRINGTON
Assistant News Editor

Fry and Haude, president and vice president of student government, have been working this summer to make student government a more vital part of campus life.

Haude feels that the early start was necessary to familiarize the new administration with the responsibilities and workings of student government.

Both Fry and Haude feel that this work has made up for the lack of experience of the administration. This year's student government already has the most successful summer blood drive to their credit.

In addition, the constitution and bylaws have been revised, especially in the area of election procedures. Fry said, "The reason everything went nuts is because of the ambiguity of the constitution." The administration is working to get rid of this ambiguity.

They have also taken steps to insure that the members of the government are people who want to be there and do the work. Fry said, "We want to run a student government with people who want to be involved."

This is a part of what Fry and Haude are stressing, more involvement on behalf of student government as well as the student population. Fry said that in the past student government has been regarded as a "hands-off" administration. This year Fry and Haude plan to change this. They want the government to become more active with the students because, as Fry noted, "We are students ourselves."

Part of this plan is a Welcome Back party for the students in the Kilcawley Center Pub with 95 K-Rock.

Also, Fry and Haude want to promote activities and events that will make YSU more enjoyable for students. Some of these events will include comedy and musical acts on campus. Haude noted that because YSU is a commuter campus, there is a great apathy among students. He believes that more activities will make campus life more enjoyable for current students and attractive for future students.

Fry and Haude want to have a more involved administration and good communication with students. Fry said, "We want to have a much wider scope and involve the entire student population."

They want to show students what student government can do for them. For example, Fry and Haude have reinstated the afternoon campus escort service. However, this is with the stipulation that it is used and needed by students.

Fry and Haude feel that they are off to a good start. They are not bothered by their lack of experience. Haude said, "Enthusiasm, creativity, and good communication will get you a lot more than experience." Fry agrees and said, "You can't go into a job like this afraid of the responsibility and doing things that are unique."

Student assistants help make transition a little easier

By TIM LEONARD
Jambar Staff Reporter

The first person a new YSU student encounters while on campus isn't a teacher, isn't the registrar, and probably isn't even an old friend from high school, but rather a Students Serving Students (SSS) worker.

SSS, created in June 1980, serves more than 6,000 YSU students every year.

The services SSS provides is more than just a guided tour of the University. Among other things, the SSS workers help students with registration, add/drop procedure and finding a tutor. Basically, SSS attempts to help new students with any problems that a person may encounter here at YSU.

Their job is not easy, because a new student usually has a thousand and one questions.

They want to know about registration, where their classes are, what major to choose, how to get financial aid," said Christina Bais, a senior, who begins her second year on staff at the SSS offices.

"And they all want a tutor before they get here," said Bais, who is one of the 17 SSS student assistants.

According to Patricia Bleidt, Director of Student Developmental Services, each of the student assistants aid over 200 students a year. Each student assistant works 15 hours a week, though they have been working “With Students Serving Students, incoming students are supplied with a lot of information. And a lot of this information they wouldn't get without our program.”

PATRICIA BLEIDT

30 hours a week during the summer.

"The job is a lot different from what I expected," said Micheal Patrick. "I wasn't use to going to work, class, work, class. I was use to having two hour breaks between my classes."

But the long hours are worth it, according to Angela Mico, who begins her second year as a student assistant. She said the program helped her immensely during her first year on campus.

"My student assistant made me feel more comfortable on campus," said Mico. "It felt like I had a friend on campus."

Bleidt said she started the SSS program as a support program for incoming students.

"[With SSS] these students are supplied with a lot of information. And much of this information they wouldn't get without our program," said Bleidt.

Bais, Patrick and Mico feel that 60-70 percent of the students who come through the SSS offices benefit from their services.

According to Bleidt, YSU is the only university in Ohio to have such a program as SSS to help incoming students.

Bleidt said Dayton's Wright State University started a similar program a few years ago, which was patterned after YSU's SSS program, but Wright State recently elected not to continue it.

Some incoming students do shy away from the SSS student assistants figuring they can adjust to the university life on their own.

"Usually we don't have many students refusing our help," said Mico, "but they are usually the ones who come back asking us to help them."

Mico said that most of the SSS student assistants aid students who are in the same area of study.

The SSS program requires all 17 of its student assistants to be full time students, maintain a 2.5 Grade Point Average, and are asked not to have other part-time jobs.

Any incoming student who needs help from SSS should contact their office, which is located in Jones Hall, third floor, between 8 a.m.-7 p.m. on Mon. & Tues., or 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Wed. thru Fri.

Two smart ways to pay for college.

1 The Army Reserve has two smart ways to pay for college expenses.

First, you may be eligible for the Montgomery GI Bill which could provide you with up to $5,040 for college or approved Voc/Tech training.

2 Second, if you have—or obtain—a qualified student loan not in default, you could get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $500, whichever is greater—up to a maximum of $10,000.

This money could be yours for serving in a nearby Army Reserve unit. Following Basic Training and an Army skill training school, you'll usually serve one weekend a month plus two weeks a year. And you'll earn over $80 per weekend to start. Think smart. Give us a call:

Health services come prepared with first-aid techniques

By MIRIAM KLEIN
Jambar Copy Editor

Good health is a primary concern to all of us and the nurses at the Health Services Center in Beegley want the students, faculty and staff to know that they are there to help take care of their needs.

Dolores Hall, a R.N., is the only full time nurse on a staff of six nurses. There is no physician on their staff at this time and Hall said they would like to have at least a part-time physician sometime in the future.

"We do simple first aid here. We treat simple ailments, such as colds and upset stomachs. We take care of what we can here and, when necessary, we refer them to the Free Clinic which operates on Tuesday evenings," said Hall.

The Free Clinic, located in the basement of the First Christian Church, is operated by the Youngstown Osteopathic Hospital and is staffed by doctors who volunteer their time. Though the clinic, supported by donations and other churches, is not affiliated with YSU, "they take care of not only university people but people from the community also. They do a lot of gym physicals for us," said Hall.

"For a gym physical they'll charge a two dollar fee. They'll do work like pap smears and blood work for a five dollar donation; that just pays for the costs that are involved in the procedures," said Hall.

All calls made to the campus' emergency 3333 number connect to both the campus police and the health center's office, allowing the nurse on duty to screen calls for a possible campus medical emergency. Hall said the campus police, trained in first aid, are to determine whether or not a person involved in an accident on campus should go to the health center or to call an ambulance.

"We have a lot of gym accidents. We have had lab accidents. But most of the time what we see are the 'run of the mill' illnesses like colds, headaches, upset stomach and cuts," said Hall.

Center hours are 8 a.m.- 10 p.m., Mon.- Fri. and Saturdays 8 a.m.- 1 p.m.

Humphrey offers support for coming academic year

YSU Students:

Welcome to all of you! And to those of you new to the University, a special welcome. I sincerely hope the 1989-90 academic year is a happy and productive one for you.

This issue of The Jambar is geared toward helping new students with their orientation to YSU. But is also serves to remind returning students, faculty and staff of some important aspects of life at Youngstown State. Although I haven't seen advance copy of the orientation issue of The Jambar for 1989, I'm confident that it will be as helpful as in previous years.

DR. NEIL D. HUMPHREY

I hope you'll read it and get to know your University better.

YSU offers a wide range of services to smooth your transition to college life, or to improve what you already have going. If you think you might need some help — now, or anytime during the year — don't hesitate to get in touch with the people and services described here.

I encourage you to get involved in your education. Hard work and perseverance will reap many benefits for you, both the short-term rewards of good grades and the longer-term rewards of an excellent education. I urge you, too, to get involved in campus activities.

Again, my best wishes for a wonderful year.

Trustees head committees to better the University

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

They make all the decisions concerning the University. They are the Board of Trustees. The board at YSU is comprised of nine trustees and two students appointed by the governor of the state.

The student trustees are selected to a two-year term and have no voting power nor are they permitted to attend executive sessions of the board. Currently, Amy McFarland, senior, Engineering, is a student trustee, while Ralph Crum, senior, A&S, is waiting for reappointment.

McFarland and Crum were appointed at the same time, but Crum's term lasted for only one year.

Crum said serving as a trustee gave him a chance to understand the problems the administration encounters.

"It's not that simple to say, 'let's do this or that,'" said Crum. "It has to go through different channels."

Each Ohio university's policy varies for a student to become a trustee.

At YSU a student has to complete an application. Student Government then interviews the applicants and select the five best to consider further.

The five students then have to write an essay on why they want to become a trustee. They are then interviewed by members from the Ohio governor's office, and the governor makes the appointments.

The other nine board members are selected for nine-year terms. After serving their term, no trustees shall be reappointed to serve another term.

The only exception to this rule is if a trustee is appointed to fill a vacancy. Dr. John Geletka, a current trustee, replaced Edward DeBartolo Jr. in 1977.

Seven members of the board are selected to head committees that pertain to the University. This year Atty. Richard McLaughlin heads up the public service committee; Michael Monus, personnel relations; Atty. Edward Flask, building and property; Martin O'Connell, athletics; Elizabeth DeLuca, academic affairs; Dr. Earnest Perry, student services; and Dr. John Geletka, budget and finance.

Each trustee chairperson must present reports about his or her committee at each trustee meeting.

The Dean's List

YSU Deans juggle busy schedules

By TIM LEONARD
Jambar Staff Reporter

"If you ever ask a little kid what he wanted to be when he grew up. I bet you that not many would say, 'I want to be a dean,'" said YSU's Dean of the College of Fine and Performing Arts, Dr. David Sweetkind.

Many children grow up to be firemen, just as they had dreamed, but a few, become college deans.

YSU has seven deans. One of those deans, Dr. Bernard Yozwiak, got his start as a mathematics instructor in 1947, which makes him the dean with the longest service at YSU.

Yozwiak started out as a high school teacher, but, according to Yozwiak, the University's president at the time, Howard Jones, was "desperate" for teachers in Yozwiak's expertise.

And so Yozwiak began his rise to his position of dean of Arts and Sciences, which he has held since 1971.

According to Yozwiak, the job of a dean is multi-faceted. He said deans oversee all new faculty hires, handle tenure and promotions, department budgeting and must attend important University events and functions.

Sweetkind said he attends more than 95 percent of the productions put on by his college, be it musical, artistic or theatrical. Sweetkind said the music department alone put on more than 170 events last year.

Dr. David Ruggles, dean of the School of Education, has held his position for the past nine years, and has dealt with many of the area high schools, keeping close contacts with the area's superintendents, principals and teachers.

"I'm on the PR campaign all the time," said Ruggles, who's done such a good job promoting his own school that his daughter has enrolled as a student.

Yozwiak is the longest serving dean at the University with 18 years of experience, while Sweetkind and Dr. James Cicarelli, dean of the Williamson School of Business, are the newest deans, each having served less than a year and a half on the job.

Graduate School

SALLY M. HOTCHKISS

Associate Provost & Dean of Graduate Studies, Hotchkiss has been at YSU since 1982. She came to the University in 1973 as an associate professor of psychology. She began her teaching career in 1949 at the University of Minnesota as a teaching assistant.

Hotchkiss received an A.B. in psychology from Randolph-Macon Woman's College in 1949, and she received a M.A. (1950) and a Ph.D. (1959) both from the University of Minnesota.

College of Applied Science & Tech.

VICTOR A. RICHLEY

After several years of employment in the area steel mills and military service in Korea, Richley attended Youngstown College on the G.I. Bill and later received a B.E. from the College in electrical engineering in 1956, a M.S. from University of Akron in 1961 and a Ph.D. from University of Pittsburgh in 1967. In 1969 he became chair of the Engineering Technology department.

In July, 1982 he became the dean of CAST.

College of Fine and Performing Arts

DAVID SWEETKIND

Prior to becoming the college's dean in 1988, Sweetkind was the Acting Dean of the same college at Western State College of Colorado.

TO: The University Community

FROM: Neil D. Humphrey, President NH

On behalf of the Board of Trustees and the University administration, I express my sincere regret that the YSU-OEA, which represents the full-time faculty, has voted to strike. The University's negotiating team remains available to meet at any time to seek a solution, and write a contract which will be mutually acceptable. We urge that a meeting be held this morning in order that the Union's position can be fully understood.

The administration has offered the maximum salary increases and benefits it is authorized. The final proposal was for a 6.5% increase in salary each year for two years or, if the Union preferred, a 2% increase each year, plus across-the-board increases of $1,800 for 1989-90 and $1,960 for 1990-91. This would result in increases as high as 12% per year for some instructors in 1989-90.

The administration proposed salary ranges as follows:

|---------------------|----------------------|
| Professor | $40,000 to $70,000 |
| Associate Professor | $33,000 to $58,000 |
| Assistant Professor | $27,000 to $47,000 |
| Instructor | $20,000 to $35,000 |

The proposed salary ranges are for the nine-month academic year. Faculty have the opportunity to make additional money teaching summer school on a rotational basis. The administration also offered additional increments of $2,000 for those promoted, $1,600 for those completing a master's and $2,300 for completion of a doctoral degree, as well as overload payments of $750 per work load hour in excess of 37 per academic year, and ten Distinguished Professor Awards of $1,500 each.

The health insurance issue has already been resolved by the administration withdrawing its proposal for employee participation if the premium in 1990-91 increased more than 12% over the present premium. The University presently pays $4,257.60 per year for health insurance for each married employee; an increase of 16.88% over last year. The Union also withdrew the ERIP (early retirement) issue from consideration.

The American Association of University Professors places YSU in Category IIA, defined as compressive universities without major doctorate programs. YSU's 1988-89 average salaries were in the 81st percentile for this group for professors and associate professors, 78th percentile for assistant professors, and 69th percentile for instructors.

Creativity skills explored by Programs and Activities Council

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

Students who have creative talent can put it to use by participating in the Program and Activities Council (PAC).

Lynn Haug, program coordinator, Kilcawley Center, heads eight committees that program activities for the students of YSU.

The committees handle everything from providing entertainment in the Pub to planning shopping trips and aerobic workouts.

"Students who are creative and enthusiastic and who like to work with people should consider joining PAC," said Haug.

Haug said because of a $20,000 cut in their budget, there will be less programs this year.

She said the cost for a person to perform for one hour on campus ranges between $1,800 and $2,200.

"When selecting a celebrity, you have to make sure the act is compatible to our area," she said.

Despite the tight funding, Haug said new programs, like the Trashy Tabloid Week, will appear. Haug said she got the idea from the University of Purdue which claimed to have had a big success with it.

Ideas for new programs come from hours of brainstorming and looking at newspapers. Haug also said that yearly conferences help create new ideas.

"Everyone looks for fresh ideas," she said.

Already PAC is planning programs for this winter and spring since it takes time to get programs started.

"We need to plan five to six months in advance," said Haug.

This year, a scholarship will be awarded to eight students who show leadership and hard work.

The scholarship is sponsored by Arby's.

"It is rare to find students who have leadership qualities," said Haug.

Because Haug advises eight committees, she tries to accommodate each one.

Guaranteed Student Loans. This loan is available to graduates as well as undergraduates with an eight percent interest rate for the first four years of repayment, and a ten percent interest rate thereafter. As with the PLUS/SLS, there is no deadline for applying.

With approval for any of the loans, the borrower must sign a promissory note stating that payment will indeed be made.

However, as of this past August 24, in order to receive a Stafford Loan, students must also adhere to new rules which are designed to minimize the student

"It's called 'Entrance Counseling,'" said Collins, "and basically what that means is every student who gets a Stafford Loan, or a supplemental loan for students, must go through Entrance Counseling in order to inform them about the liability in the loan program before they can get their check."

To eliminate a lot of the burdens imposed by the new rule, YSU has turned to group sessions where several borrowers at a time are shown an approximately 12-minute movie detailing repayment obligations and the consequences of defaulting, said Collins.

According to Collins, one major problem encountered so far,

The Butler celebrates 70 years of American Art

The Butler Art Institute's 70 year anniversary celebration will be featuring major exhibitions, special events and celebrity guests.

The Butler Institute Of American Art was founded in 1919 by Joseph G. Butler Jr. The Institute currently contains 16 different galleries displaying the works of both famous and local artists.

The museum is also the home to the Sweeney Children's Gallery, which features hands-on and interactive exhibits for young people, and the Hopper Resource Library, specializing in American art reference material.

There is also the Lester F. Donnell gallery of American Sports Art, and the Butler's permanent collection of American Art, which includes sculptures, drawings and paintings that have been shown throughout the years.

Beginning this fall, special events will include: • "Life Casts," an exhibit of sculptures of famous individuals by Willa Shalit that can be enjoyed by sighted and non-sighted people. This show will be on display through Oct. 8.

• "Jasper Johns: Prints and Drawings," from the collection of Leo Castelli, will be on exhibit through Oct. 22.

• An exhibition of over 50 works by Chuck Close, including prints and multiples that document his unique approach to printmaking. The exhibit will run through Nov. 26.

• Michael Hardesty, who combines the elements of sight and sound to produce works with wood, water vapor, plastic neon, and video, will also be shown through Nov. 26.

The Butler will offer a Brown Bag Lecture Series, which will focus on the current exhibitions.

The Butler also offers a lecture and discussion on artist dialogue. Both lectures are free to the public and are offered twice a month.

The Butler Art Institute is located at 524 Wick Ave., next to the YSU campus. The Butler is open Tuesday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., Sunday 12 noon to 4 p.m., and closed on Monday.

Canterbury Tales to be told on the YSU stage

University theater still creates excitement for new and old students

By MOHAN SUBRAMANIAN
Staff Reporter

For all you closet thespians who have wanted to try your hand at acting or production, but never having the courage, or the knowledge to fulfill your secret desire, the theater department in Bliss Hall has the ticket for you this season.

Michelle Lepore-Hagan, manager, University Theater, is very excited about the upcoming year and would like the students of YSU to be an integral part. "I don't think the majority of the students realize that auditions are held for almost all parts and are not restricted to theater majors," said Lepore-Hagan, "and there are many talented students at YSU that participated in high school productions who are certainly welcome."

As a student who has attended YSU productions, I have been shocked to find high school students playing parts allocated for YSU students. There is a wealth of talent at YSU that Lepore-Hagan wants to tap. All it takes is a little time and plenty of enthusiasm.

Kicking off the season will be a musical translation of Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. The adaptation of this classic tale by Nevill Coghill, will feature a style of music that he calls "Baroque Rock." The performances will be held on Nov. 9-11 and 16-18 at 8 p.m. in Ford Theater Bliss Hall.

"I don't think the majority of the students realize that auditions are held for almost all parts and are not restricted to theater majors."
MICHELLE LEPORE-HAGAN
Manager of University Theater

The production will be directed by Dr. Bill Hulsopple of the theater department. The audition dates for the show are Monday, Sept. 25, and Tuesday, Sept. 26. They will be held from 3:30-5 p.m. and 7:30-10 p.m. at Bliss Hall's Ford Auditorium.

This is a large cast show and the auditions are for principal and choral parts. Auditioners should be prepared to read, sing from a prepared piece of music and dance. Auditions are open to all interested persons. Casting priority will be given to current YSU students, however other interested persons, as well as alumni and high school students, are urged to try out.

And, as Lepore-Hagan assured, "no previous experience is necessary." YSU has a fine theater department, and who knows, there may be a Laurenc Olivier or Elizabeth Taylor in our midst, she added.

YSU theater also needs the support of the students as patrons. All the theater productions are free to YSU students — in this day of $20 concert tickets and $5 movies, it is a relief to have some quality entertainment for a price that all college students can handle. The theater has something to offer everyone.

If any questions should arise, contact the University Theatre at ext. 3105.

New scholarship for piano students beginning next fall

Applications are being accepted for a recently established scholarship fund to be offered to the piano students of YSU.

John R. Turk, music, said that a grant from the estate of George Gabler left $40,000 of interest bearing funds to the YSU music department.

Gabler specified in his will that the money be left exclusively to those students studying piano.

There will be $3,000 set aside each year for the purpose of the George Gabler scholarship.

For those piano students who are interested, applications are being accepted for next year.

Applications may be obtained in Bliss Hall.

Local bands try to make names for themselves

By DAWN MARZANO
Entertainment Editor

Local bands have come and gone here in Youngstown, but there are a few that have remained. Among them being The Infidels, Sacred Hate and The Sharkbites.

The Penguin Pub and Cedar's Lounge are the bars in Youngstown that have been playing host to these alternative-sounding bands for all these years. And recently there have been some new bands that are also making names for themselves.

Each band has their own unique style of interpreting alternative music.

The February's

Since last February, the four man band, who call themselves The February's, have been making tremendous progress.

Band members include, Brent Young, Joe Berquisk, Scott Hevener, and Chris Mentt.

According to Young, the lead guitarist, The February's have gained most of their experience through playing at places like Cedar's and The Pub. They have also played at high school dances, and bars in Warren and

Scott Hevener, lead vocals, said that their "music's main ingredient is pure, unadulterated energy."

The February's are a young band but that hasn't stopped them from working to their fullest potential.

They have recorded at Key Note Studios in Austintown, and are in the process of recording a new demo that will be available in November.

Berquisk, the bass guitarist, said that the band consists of a very basic set-up, drums, guitar and bass. "We don't like to sound fake, so we don't use synthesizers or drum machines."

The band combines their efforts on writing the music, but the lyrics are written entirely by Hevener. REM and U2 were mentioned as influences that can be felt in their music.

The February's will be playing at Cedar's Oct. 1st and Oct. 29.

Lex Luther and The Beat

Lex Luther and The Beat is another band that has been getting a lot of attention from people who like a psychedelic twist to their music.

Band members include, Jim

The February's: Members of The February's include (clockwise) Scott Hevener, vocals, Joe Berquisk, bass guitar, Chris Mentt, drums, and Brent Young, lead guitar. The four man band will be playing at the Cedars on Oct. 1st and Oct. 29.

Allgren, bass guitar, Tim Lee, lead guitar and vocals, Wendy Maltonic, rhythm guitar and vocals, and Kris Habuda, drums.

Lex Luther and The Beat have been performing together for nine months and have also appeared at The Pub and Cedar's. They have also participated in the YSU's Amnesty International benefit for the past two years.

The band plays all originals and Lee said that they get their ideas "from everything that is going on around us. Our ideas are very impressionistic."

When it comes to music, the band is very flexible. They are influenced by anything that appeals to them, from Led Zepelin to The Clash.

The style of the band during a performance is different from other bands because they show films and use special lighting to make the atmosphere look different. Allgren said they want to give the audience "food for their eyes as well as the ears."

Lex Luther and The Beat should be playing sometime in late October at the Cedar's.

Firesign to appear in Kilcawley Pub

By DAWN MARZANO
Entertainment Editor

Are you tired of the same old bar and music on the weekends? Well, if you are, here's your chance to do something different.

The University's Program and Activities Council (PAC) is sponsoring "Cabaret Nite" Friday, Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in Kilcawley Center Pub featuring the popular duo Firesign.

The duo is composed of Doug Smith on lead guitar and vocals and Ed Istnick on rhythm guitar and vocals.

Firesign is no stranger to Kilcawley, having performed on campus numerous occasions in the past. They have also appeared in night clubs, bars, restaurants and lounges in the tri-state area.

Smith said they play a variety of music which includes, James Taylor, Crosby, Stills and Nash, Neil Young, Grand Funk, The Grateful Dead and the Eagles.

Smith also said that he has a harder rock and roll edge, while Istnick is more on the mellow side of the acoustic sound.

The two have been performing together since January of 1987 and hope to continue to entertain audiences with their unique sound.

"We always look forward to playing at YSU. The audience is always very responsive and it's always a good time," Smith said.

You-Turn

You-Turn, is the band that has had the most experience. The five man band has been together for three and one half years and they play jazz influenced instrumental dance music.

Jim Richley, who is a student at YSU and is majoring in music education, said that the band has performed in the Warren and Youngstown areas, and that they really enjoy playing music.

Richley is no stranger to making music. He has worked with the Youngstown Symphony and Walt Disney Productions in California as a performer inside the park as well as the studio.

Richley said that to play the drums or percussion one has to be extremely versatile, and that "it's good when people understand how much the music means to the band."

Forming more than one band is always beneficial to one's career, said Richley, who has also played in the jazz band Straight No Chaser, and is currently involved with the Terry Barrett Orchestra.

The Terry Barrett Orchestra is a seven member band that consists of percussions, guitars, and horn line. "It is different from anything that has been done in the past," says Richley. They will be playing at the Cedars on Friday, Oct. 13.

You-Turn can be seen at Marbles, in Warren on the last weekends of October and November.

Wilbur and the Giant comes to Bliss

The Family Entertainment Series of YSU's College of Fine and Performing Arts is opening its 1989-90 season with a delightful puppet show, Wilbur and the Giant.

Internationally-known master puppeteer George Latshaw will work his magic for area youngsters and the young-at-heart through the red-haired character of "Wilbur."

"He has an impish quality that children understand," said Latshaw.

Playhouse celebrates 65th anniversary

The Youngstown Playhouse launched its 65th anniversary season Friday, Sept. 8, with a gala evening that included a limited-reservation Black-and-White dinner party, a performance of the light-hearted musical, Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?, and an after performance champagne-and-birthday cake party for the entire opening night audience.

Directed and choreographed by Artistic Coordinator, David Jendre, the season's opening musical looks at, in amusement and nostalgically, the experience of Catholic school education and the eternal conflict between authority's "Thou shalt not" and students' "But I really want to!"

John R. Powers wrote the book based on his own novel, and James Quinn and Alaric Jans wrote the lyrics and music. The Playhouse production features Robert J. Kozar as Father O'Reilly, and Jane Hill, Kathy Prosser, and Diane Callo as the nuns who run the school. They try to keep a firm hand from second grade through graduation.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. Sept. 21, 22, 23, 29, and 30; and 2 p.m. Sept. 24. The Sept. 21 performance will be interpreted for the hearing-impaired who can make reservations through the Playhouse TDD (Telecommunications Device for the Deaf).

Reservations for the performances are being taken by the Playhouse Box Office, Mon.-Fri., 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Arms Museum hosts buildings of yesterday

ANNETTE CANAC/THE JAMBAR

What will it be? Whether this photo was planned or the photographer talked the town into posing is not known. But the attention given to the structure, which is of good size, is significant. Could this be the beginning of a long-awaited general store - or could it be a local saloon? The front of the building is to the far right (notice the parapet of the roofline being framed in). It's a rather artfully arranged photo. One can note that one of the ladies has removed her jacket and it lies in the buggy - perhaps it was a warm day.

On display at the Arms Museum until October 31, the Mahoning Valley Historical Society presents "Time and Again," an exhibit of photographs of architectural features in Ohio from the late 19th century. The traveling exhibition is on loan from the Local History Office of the Ohio Historical Society.

Zizzo, Knox look to see YSU baseball team crack .500 during the '89 season

By DAVID LEE MORGAN JR.
Sports Reporter

For the third year Co-Head Coaches Scott Knox and John Zizzo, the 1989-90 baseball season will be critical, as they try to improve their 19-20 record of a season ago.

With a 15 game fall slate, they hope to pick up where they left off last season when they posted an 8-1 overall record.

"It's always exciting in the fall, but especially so this fall because it is our third year of our program and the team members are anxiously looking toward [the season] with cautious optimism," Knox stated.

"We fell short of the .500 mark the last two seasons, barely missing it in the last day of the season each year," Zizzo added.

A home field advantage is a bright spot for the Penguins as 13 of their 15 games will be played in Pemberton Park.

Another advantage for the Penguins is the return of their top two sluggers. Sophomore Chris Durkin of nearby Youngstown Chaney High School and Senior Bob Janeda, a Juco transfer from McKees/Rock, Pa, led the team in hitting with a .341 and .283 batting clip, respectively.

Leading the mound crew will be junior Joe Herubin from Youngstown Ursuline High School. Herubin proved to be a steady workhorse throughout the season pitching 75 2/3 innings, fanning 44 batters and posting a sparkling 9-1 record.

Senior Jim Timko will also be counted on to take on some of the pitching duties. Timko, who prepped at Poland High School, finished with a 3-5 mark, whiffing 43.

One of last year's highlights was when the YSU diamond men took 1 game of a doubleheader from the consistently powerful Penn State Nittany Lions. In the first game, Joe Herubin went the distance to blank the Nittany Lions, 3-0. The Penguins couldn't hold off Penn State as they lost, 6-5, in the nite-cap.

Throughout the season, the Penguins split more doubleheaders than the Jolly Green Giant split peas. In the latter part of the season, all of the parts fell into place — the hitting, the fielding and the pitching. The result was an impressive and spectacular 11-game winning streak from April 24, with a 3-2 winover IUP, to May 20, with a 2-1 season ending loss to the Cleveland State Vikings.

During the Penguins' streak, they showed that they are a formidable team. Nine of the 11 games they won during the stretch were won by 2 runs or less, and the team is eager for the challenges of this new season.

"Down the stretch during the latter part of our season, we seemed to play more like a unit. Hopefully that unity will carry over into this season," said Knox.

The Penguin nine will be in action Monday, September 25 when they host Steubenville College at Pemberton Park. Game time is 5 p.m.

Tennis

The team will also participate in the Bowling Green tournament as well as several dual matches.

The squad carries an extremely optimistic attitude into the fall season after finishing last year at 7-12.

The Penguin men field a relatively experienced and talented team, including third year ace Dan Haude, who completed the 1988-89 campaign 15-0.

Also returning are Brian Fry, Scott Orlando, Rob Stell and Ray Tomasavich. The acquisition of Brent Emmet and Tom Hughes, transfers from Penn State, only adds to the team's depth.

On the women's side, Getz sees the team as more balanced than in previous years.

Heading up the squad, is last season's MVP Janet Polish. Also returning are Debbie Meyer and Evanna Neopolitan.

The women are scheduled to open their season Oct. 7 and will participate in four dual matches, including Cleveland State and Gannon universities.

Hoping to improve on last season's 2-10 record, Getz predicts that "the team will be much better than last year's."

New to the team are five freshmen: Jill Babinec, Austintown Fitch; Lana Canzonetta, J.F.K.; Shelly Cutrone, Ursuline; Cindy Lane, Ashtabula; and Julie LeMay, Geneva.

Team positions will be finalized this week through a series of challenge matches for the men and a seeded tournament for the women in the coming weeks.

Cross Country teams show off young talent

RICHARD M. JENKINS
Jambar Sports Editor

YSU men's and women's Cross Country teams put forth a strong display of their depth and ability by defeating Robert Morris College of Pennsylvania on Sept. 15.

By posting a clean sweep of Robert Morris' men's team and missing out on only the second place finish in the women's division, the team and head coach Patty Metzler earned a victory in one of the teams' three dual meets this season.

In the men's 5-mile race, freshman Rich Hill took first place with a time of 26:39. He was followed by freshman Keith Gorby at 26:51, sophomore Eric Huth at 27:10, freshman Steve Boyd at 27:22 and junior Phil Orlando rounded out the top five finishers at 27:27.

In the women's 3-mile race it was freshman Becky Rudzik finishing first with a time of 19:10, followed by Carrie Burke from Robert Morris at 20:57. YSU sophomore Carol Falibota finished at 21:16, sophomore Elaine O'Brian-Rupe at 21:52 and freshman Suesane Lisko finished fifth with a time of 22:19.

Under the guidance of Metzler, YSU's cross country teams are beginning to prove themselves in Division I competition.

With the first five runners finishing within a minute of each other in the men's division and the women taking all but one of the top five places, Metzler stated that the team has a lot of depth with talent throughout the ranks.

"The men's team is very young and has a lot of speed," said Metzler. "The team has come a long way and is looking to finish in the top ten of the All Ohio Championships" on Friday, October 13 at Ohio Wesleyan University.

"Not too long ago other teams failed to take us serious. Now we are beginning to get the recognition we deserve," said Metzler.

"The women's team seemed a bit timid in their summer training but they appear to be coming along," said Metzler. "Right now we're working on confidence. I think they're a little bit faster than they realize."

Coming off these victories of 15 to 45 points in the men's division and 19 to 40 in the women's, YSU's cross country teams are off to an excellent start this season.

Metzler takes her squad to the Malone College Invitational this Saturday.

YSU volleyball team is optimistic 12 enshrined in Hall of Fame

By DAVID LEE MORGAN JR.
Sports Reporter

Head Coach John McKenna and Assistant Coach Joe Conroy are very optimistic about the upcoming season for last year's successful YSU Women's volleyball team.

Last year, the spikers finished their campaign with an 18-17 ledger and tied the school record for the most wins in a season.

One might think that being one game over the .500 mark is no cause for celebration. Try telling that to the members of this team. With four seniors returning to anchor the talented squad, the 1989 season is sure to be exciting.

McKenna and company enjoyed big victories enroute to their 18 win season. One of last season's highlights was a win over the top Division-I team from the nationally ranked University of Pittsburgh. And because of this type of victory, McKenna is looking for nothing but good things from his team, especially the seniors.

"We are looking for a lot of leadership from our four seniors and I'm sure they will display it on the court," said McKenna.

The seniors are Lori Longo, Julie Meese, Sylvia Wallace, and Jeanny Kathe. Longo and Meese are co-captains this year.

McKenna also has nothing but praise for the good line-up of sophomores and juniors. McKenna said that with a schedule this year that includes numerous Division-I teams and Mid-American Conference (MAC) schools, team work will be an essential.

"I don't want to make any excuses, but most of the teams we play start 3 or 4 weeks early than we do. So when our girls report to practice, we stress basic fundamentals," added McKenna.

In the Penguins last outing, Tuesday night, teamwork and fundamentals gave them the 11-15, 15-7, 15-10, 15-13 win over Clarion University.

Although the Penguins dropped the first game, they regrouped to dominate the rest of the contest and upped their record to 5-4.

The Penguins will travel to Cannon University Sept. 23-24 for the Cannon University Invitational Tournament.

YSU — When the YSU Penguins meet their football arch-rival, the University of Akron Zips on Saturday, Sept. 23, it will not only mark the first home game of the season, but will also mark the Fifth Annual "Hall of Fame" game when 12 inductees will be enshrined in the Penguin Athletics Hall of Fame.

This will also mark the 29th meeting between the two universities with the Penguins holding a 14-13-1 edge. Last season YSU was defeated by the Zips on Hall of Fame Day by the score of 33-7. This year the Penguins will be facing the Zips in the third game of the year and will be bringing a 2-2-0 Hall of Fame Day record into the contest.

The 12 inductees brings to 55 the number of former athletes/contributors who have now been honored, and represents four decades of athletic accomplishments, two contributors as well as six football players, two basketball players, a golfer and a baseball player.

"We're very excited about this year's class, and especially pleased to welcome them to the YSU Athletics Hall of Fame," Penguin Director of Athletics Joseph F. Malmisur noted.

The twelve 1989 inductees are as follows: Gary Balakoff (Baseball), Frank Beck (Football), Dave Culliver (Basketball), Bob Dove (Contributor), Jim Ferranti (Football), Denny Klembara (Football), Pete Lanzi (Football), Rusty MacDonald (Golf), Joyce Ramsey (Contributor), Keith Snoddy (Football), August Yahn (Football), and Mickey Yugovich (Basketball).

The ceremonies will take place at noon at the Kilcawley Center Chestnut Room on Saturday, September 23.

Experience and balance are the keys to the success of YSU's '89 tennis season

By SHARON BUENO
Staff Reporter

After two tough seasons of rebuilding, the YSU tennis program is on solid ground.

Both the men's and women's tennis teams are gearing up for the fall season through intense two-a-day practices, and the results have thus far pleased their head coach.

"The teams have been working awfully hard," said Don Getz, who has been at the helm of Penguin tennis for three years. "This is the best [men's] team we've had in a long time."

He explained that the practices have stressed conditioning, and in particular, speed.

"We're trying to create a real fit team," Getz explained. "This is so they won't be tired and will be able to think clearly during long matches."

He added that having a fall season helps the team prepare for a longer spring season.

"It gives the players the chance to play some college matches and see where they stand against players from other schools," Getz said.

The men's team opens their season this weekend at the Ohio Intercollegiate Tennis Championships, a tournament which only allows the schools' top two singles and doubles teams to compete.

Penguins face the Akron Zips in home opener

RICHARD M. JENKINS
Jambar Sports Editor

Head Coach Jim Tressel and the rest of the Penguin squad will meet the Akron Zips this Saturday. It's a rivalry that dates back to 1940.

This game, the 29th confrontation between these two universities, will have the Penguins facing a 2-1-0 Akron team led by Head Coach Gerry Faust.

Going into this Saturday's game, Tressel has stressed the importance of playing heads-up football and holding onto the pigskin. "We have to play flawless football against Akron if we expect to win," said Tressel.

The Zips, riding on a two game winning streak, are bringing a lot of talent to Youngstown. With an offensive line averaging 6'1" 260 lb., and an excellent kicking game, led by punter Bill Rudison, a 6'1" 190 lb. senior, and Bob Dombroski, a 5'11" 180 lb. senior, the Zips have a slight advantage on paper.

In a press conference held on Tuesday, Sept. 19 at Stambaugh Stadium, some members of the coaching staff talked about Saturday's confrontation.

Defensive Coordinator Ken Conatser named quarterback Mike Johnson, a 6'3", 190 lb. senior southpaw as one of Akron's strengths. According to Conatser, Johnson is Akron's triggerman and must be contained if YSU expects to emerge victorious.

Conatser stressed the importance for the defensive unit to shut Johnson down in the same way Virginia Tech did in Akron's opening game.

Jim Bollman, offensive coordinator, pointed out the strength and experience of Akron's entire defensive unit, singling out their free safety Shawn Vincent, a 5'11", 170 junior, as a major threat.

Tressel acknowledged the strength of Akron by calling them "the finest team we've had to face on our home turf since I've been here."

Despite this apparent superiority, the Penguins are confident that they can retain the Steel-Tire rotating trophy and record their first victory of their '89 campaign.

YSU leads in the possession of this trophy by a slim 14-13-1 margin and looks to broaden that margin on Saturday.

The possession of the rotating trophy and a victory here would be comparable to being the reigning power in Northeastern Ohio for the next 365 days.

Kickoff time at Stambaugh Stadium is set for 4:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 23. Preceding the game there will be Hall of Fame ceremonies at noon in the Chestnut Room in Kilcawley Center for the 12 new inductees.

ON THE SEASON

YSU football team gets off to slow '89 start; 0-2-0

RICHARD M. JENKINS
Jambar Sports Editor

Head Football Coach Jim Tressel and his staff are off to a slow start in this, their fourth season. With a record of 0-2, the Penguins are looking for their first win of the season against their arch-rival, the Zips from the University of Akron.

In the first outing of the season, Sept. 2, the Penguins lost 28-14 to the University of Maine. Despite the outcome of the game the Penguins played a strong first half; after two quarters the game was tied at 14-14.

YSU's first two touchdowns of the season came on the ground.

The first was made by junior Ray Isaac on a five-yard run in the second quarter, followed by a Robert Fozkos field goal.

The second touchdown also took place in the second quarter when senior Steve Jones took the plunge from one yard out. Jones' score was followed by Fozkos' second extra point of the game and season.

In the first quarter of the game the Black Bears put only six points on the boards due to a failed extra point attempt. In the second quarter Maine raised their score to 14 on a two-point conversion that followed a 51-yard run by senior tailback Carl Smith (5-10, 185).

In the second half YSU's op-

Making the break: Archie Herring, a 5'7", 165 pound junior from Massillon, Ohio, turns up field as David Quick, a 6'2", 234 pound freshman from Mentor, Ohio, dives to make the tackle in practice on Tuesday afternoon. After breaking away Herring turned it up field for a short stretch of the legs. Practice was held on "Dike" Beede field in preparation for Saturday's home opener against the Akron Zips. This confrontation marks the third consecutive year head coach Gerry Faust has brought his team to Stambaugh Stadium to face the Penguins. The Zips will be arriving on campus on the morning of the game.

ponent outscored the Penguins, putting seven points on the board in the third quarter and another seven in the fourth and dealing YSU its first loss of the '89 campaign.

According to Tressel, the game was just a matter of being outplayed. This is supported by game statistics, which show the Black Bears managed to roll up 431 all-purpose yards to the Penguins 210 yards on the day.

"Maine simply outplayed us on September 2. They're a good team and they played a better game than we did," said Tressel.

In the second game of the season on September 9, the Penguins lost another close contest to Eastern Michigan. The final score was 14-3, with Fozkos kicking a 33 yard field goal for YSU's only score.

Fozkos' field goal came in the second quarter, bringing the Penguins within four before going into the locker room at the half.

This four-point margin was the closest YSU would come because Eastern Michigan's defense held the Penguins scoreless for the rest of the afternoon.

Eastern Michigan's initial score came in the first quarter on a one yard run. The second touchdown came in the fourth quarter to put the game out of the Penguins' reach.

The element of the turnover played a large role in the downfall of the Penguins, according to Tressel. YSU players hurt themselves by giving up two interceptions and two fumbles.

You cannot win games if you lose the battle of the turnovers, Tressel stated.

"When you turn the ball over to a team as good as Eastern Michigan the odds are against you," said Tressel.

This is obvious in the overall game statistics, which show YSU leading in first downs (15-13) and falling just short in total net yards, with Eastern Michigan rolling up 304 to YSU's 260.

YSU had last week off and are in the midst of preparing for their home opener.
