Name Partiality, Uncleanliness as Faults

Accusing Mary Wrench, Jambar editor, for showing favoritism in the selection of columnists, and generally "panning" the Jambar, Student Council met in a two hour session Friday at noon. The accusations brought forward at the meeting include the following: the work on the Jambar is done by a certain political faction of which the Editor is a member; the Jambar office is not kept clean; students smoke in the Jambar office; sorority and fraternity meetings are held in the office, and assignments are not evenly divided.

The Council passed a resolution which is now in effect, that the office will be locked at all times, making it necessary for every member of the Jambar staff to report to the library for a key

It's Darkest Before Dawn or How They Love Us Now

Paul Smith and Harry Deskin. As freshmen of this college we have spent the last two weeks being rushed by fraternities. After the trying ordeals of Hell Week, it was hard for us to realize that the upperclassmen really loved us. Just at the point where we found it safe to hide in empty rooms or duck into corners when we saw an upperclassman approaching us, a complete change occurred. Instead of the sober-faced upperclassmen chasing us with a paddle in his other hand, we were greeted with extended arms and invitations to attend Rush Parties. At last we were recognized—at these parties we were treated as Gods. Entertainment was a matter of one's choice. Pool, cards and pingpong games were provided, and last, but not least, we saw the finest array of talent (or something) in one big floor show. At Pioneer Pavillion, where the floor show was held, we were treated to "One Night in a Bar-Room". Drinks (the soft variety) were being ordered by the dozen, was all very nice except that our wait-

Similar organizations have likewise put in their bids for occasional talks.

Looking Around

With Norma Malin

Silent Week is now in full swing—or should be anyhow. If you look you can always find a few unscrupulous Greeks who forget to do all their rushing in season and who drag rushees off in out of the way corners for a little extra back slapping. However the type of rushee who condones such a thing and allows himself to be influenced by someone he knows to be dishonorable is not the type most of the frats want anyhow so relax, Greeks, you did your darndest—its the Frosh's worry now.

And may I proffer a few well chosen words of advice to you freshmen? Don't accept a bid without first carefully consider why. There are plenty of things a frat has to offer. It gives you a chance to meet and associate with nice kids; to really mix in college social life. But more than these obvious advantages should be considered before taking the fatal step. There are just plain fraternities and there are really good ones. By "good" is meant the ones who really contribute something substantial to college life. Be a good member or none at all. If you don't give a good deal of time to the group of your choosing it is better to stay out. And if you can't contribute to the more vital parts of college life, chances are your contributions to the fraternity won't be much. After all, fraternities are supposed to be an asset to the school.

And a word of consolation to those not getting bids—there are plenty of things open to you. You can get ahead in any number of non-fraternity organizations. If you've got what it takes, you can reach the top as fast as any fraternity member.

Well, yours truly is evidently in one of her more serious moods. Oh, you didn't know she had them? Well, there's where you're wrong, mon petit chou (courtesy Fr. 204), when the occasion warrants he can be serious as all get-out. So there. It is rumored that the college aggregate reads this column only to see if their name is in print, sorry to disappoint you! ALL this time but be patient, someday, who knows?

OPEN LETTER TO YOCO STUDENTS

whose playful pranks have given him a bad name

I have told a lot of people in person about this little matter but perhaps I haven't told YOU. And I wanted you, especially, to know this so that you could be perfectly self-satisfied.

If it was your intention in changing the Gamma Sig-Sig Delt notice about their joint rush part, to confuse the persons concerned, and to mislead Rushees, then I want you to know that your intention was fulfilled beautifully. For you did just that.

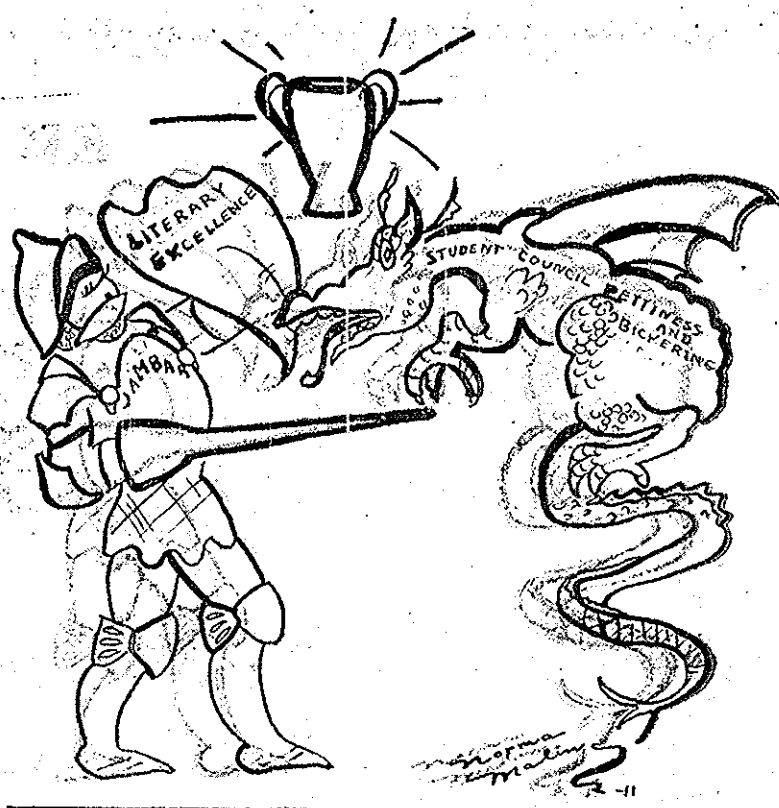

I can see where a joke was intended—we're not such bad sports—and I was a little amused at first. That is, until I found out the trouble and time and worry it had caused some people. Might I suggest that your estimable self use discretion in playing jokes in the future?

It occurs to me that during this time of national emergency, when time, tires, and gasoline are at a premium, that we, as college students (they call us the pick of the nation—it is questionable), could help rather than hinder this effort. I personally wasted one full hour of time, tires, and gasoline one day last week, and all because of a misleading sign which was put on the bulletin board in the Lounge by "playful pranksters". And I am not the only one who was unnecessarily inconvenienced by this childish act.

Did you overlook the fact that when a person signs, without permission, the initials, L. D. and C. J. to a Gamma-Sig-Sig Delt notice, it obviously refers to Lou Dolan and Carrol Jones, the presidents of these organizations? They permit me to remind you, that to sign another's name to a note or paper has been referred to as forgery.

Someone very aptly put it, when he said, "The milk has been spilt", and there is certainly no point in rehashing things that are over and done with. That is not my object in writing this letter. The point that I would like to leave in your mind can be summed up in this question: Do you, personally, think that it is too much to ask that students of college age and intellect act as such? And that they stop trying to make of Youngstown College, a GEORIFIED HIGH SCHOOL?

Your apology will be accepted.
Sincerely yours,
Betty Jane Shtrump

Campus Comments

By HERMAN WALKER

Code to the Rushing Season?
When the frost is on the pumpkin,
And the fodder's in the shock!
You can hear a sound at Yo-Co,
It's the snapping of a lock.
For the lock is on a metal box,
The bids have all arrived;
So let's examine the contents, boys
And get a big surprise.

The freshmen look all tucked out,
The strain begins to show,
The high-powered stuff these outfits sling,
Is new to them, you know.
They've heard more different stories,
From every gal and guy;
That they are almost ready,
To kiss the Greeks goodbye.

Then, silent period comes,
To save our freshmen friends;
No honeyed tongues, the pressure's off
And they can think again.
They go onto meekie meinie mo,
And out goes Y-O-U;
Then pray they didn't make mistakes,
For many will its true.

It sure is swell to hang around,
And see their exaltation,
They're swelled with pride, and in their eyes,
Shines innocent elation.
But soon they'll know the dog's life
That pledges always lead,
But it sure is worth the beating boys,
You'll find that out, indeed.

It certainly will be different around the old Alma Mater now that rushing season is behind us. Many of us won't recognize the Lounge for instead of a fraternal group in this corner and a group of sorority sisters in that, the members of different outfits will be mingling with each other like nothing had ever happened. The bewildered freshman will wonder how a member of one group can even stand to associate with the members of the other groups after all the things that first person has told him about the other fraternities or sororities.

But the mud-slinging is all over now and everyone can get settled down to their studies. For it isn't long until mid-terms roll around, and a whole lot of us are going to get caught napping.

A word to the wise is sufficient—So freshmen, lets not abuse our Lounge. Don't follow the example of many of the upper classmen, by making the lounge your headquarters. These old timers know all the tricks of the trade and can get away with philandering three or four a day in the country club atmosphere of said drawing room! But you greenhorns are certainly going to stub your toes if you try to major in Loungitis instead of the solid stuff that is taught in the classrooms.

I can't help insert a note on the black-hearted characters that abused the plaque that hung in the lounge. That was one of the lousiest tricks we have had the privilege of seeing. The person or persons responsible for the deed can at least have the satisfaction of knowing that they have succeeded in their attempts to become the lowest type of humanity that exists.

Class elections are coming up and I can't see the material for another column being organized. The fraternal groups and the independents are lining up their candidates and the outcome ought to be pleasant to record.
So with an open ear and an open eye I am going to scout around and collect the intimate and untalked of angle of this election and serve it to you on toast, next edition.

Election Day

Friday is election day. The students of Youngstown College will turn out and elect their class officers. Every student should make it his responsibility to vote for his class officers. We all should take advantage of this American privilege by voting for the students most capable of doing the job.

Don't kick if your candidate doesn't make it. Remember the other fellow was fairly elected and give him all your help during the remaining school year.

Jambar Policy

We begin this editorial with the hope of clarifying to the student body the past, present and future policy of the Jambar.

First, The Jambar's policy has always been to represent a clear, accurate and unbiased account of the news.

Second, Factions or cliques cannot have any part in the selection of Jambar workers, but they shall be chosen for ability and qualifications regardless of fraternal or non-fraternal affiliations. Should one group be favored, it shall not be because of friendships, but it shall be because that group has the most interested and qualified members.

In past history, strife, disagreement and competition have been the major causes of progress and advancement. Immediately when a state of agreement has been reached, progress and advancement come to a standstill. So it has been with the Jambar. In the past history, the Jambar and Student Council have fought bitterly over policies through the school year, at the end stand together and view with pride their joint contributions toward the school's advancement. The experiences, and mistakes of others should be used to improve whatever is undertaken. Each year, in anything that might be attempted, improvements over previous years should come out.

The Jambar is a publication of and for the entire student body of Youngstown College. Its policy is one of being run as such.

A Co-ed's Work is Never Done—in Wartime!

Let no man think that women aren't playing a vital role in this job of winning the war—especially college girls, who, in past wars, confined their work to rolling bandages and raising money for the Red Cross. It's different this time—very different—as the pictures on this page, taken mostly at women's colleges, attest.

During the last few months a marked change came over the co-eds. They began to spend less time in beauty shops. They appeared on the campus in dungarees. Scratched arms and legs, black and blue marks appeared. Why?

Place yourself on the campus of Mt. Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., some morning at six o'clock. You'll see girls pedaling their bicycles down Main Street. And if you followed them, you'd be led to nearby farms where the co-eds dismount, roll up their sleeves. Some push stools and pails into position and milk cows; others carry wood from the shed to the farmhouse, help with a dozen other chores. Two hours later they wash their hands, gulp down a cup of coffee and rush off to classes.

This is the phenomenon created by college girls' eager to help on the home front. But aiding farmers is not their only activity. Many are drilling for such civilian defense jobs as aircraft spotting, fire-fighting, air raid warden work and nursing.

Harriet Hunt shows the photographer that girls can really work in the fields. She spent the summer working at the Wyoming work camp for college youths.

To keep themselves fit college girls are devoting more time to healthful exercises, demonstrated here by Lois Mathieson of Butler University.

Mt. Holyoke farm volunteers find that there is all sorts of work for them to do. Cutting and stacking of firewood formerly might have been done by a man who now sits behind a gun or a machine. Now it's in the hands of girls like Jeanne Long.

Dairy maids Anne Hemenway and Margaret McClellan, sophomores at Wells College, feed some of the college's 60 head of Guernsey cattle. Familiarity with farming tasks is a valuable asset, especially in wartime. Two million American farmers have already joined the service or taken war-plant jobs.

Aircraft spotting is a service easily performed by co-eds who can work in shifts according to class schedules. This Wells College spotter stands at her post atop the college's main building.

Knitting is the universal hobby these days for it's the one thing that most women can do. Above Isabel Ford, Wells College, trows as she drops a stitch on an exacting knitting job.

Thousands of co-eds have received certificates for completing the home nursing course of the Red Cross. Uncle Sam is calling for 50,000 nurses this year, a good percentage of which will be college trained girls.

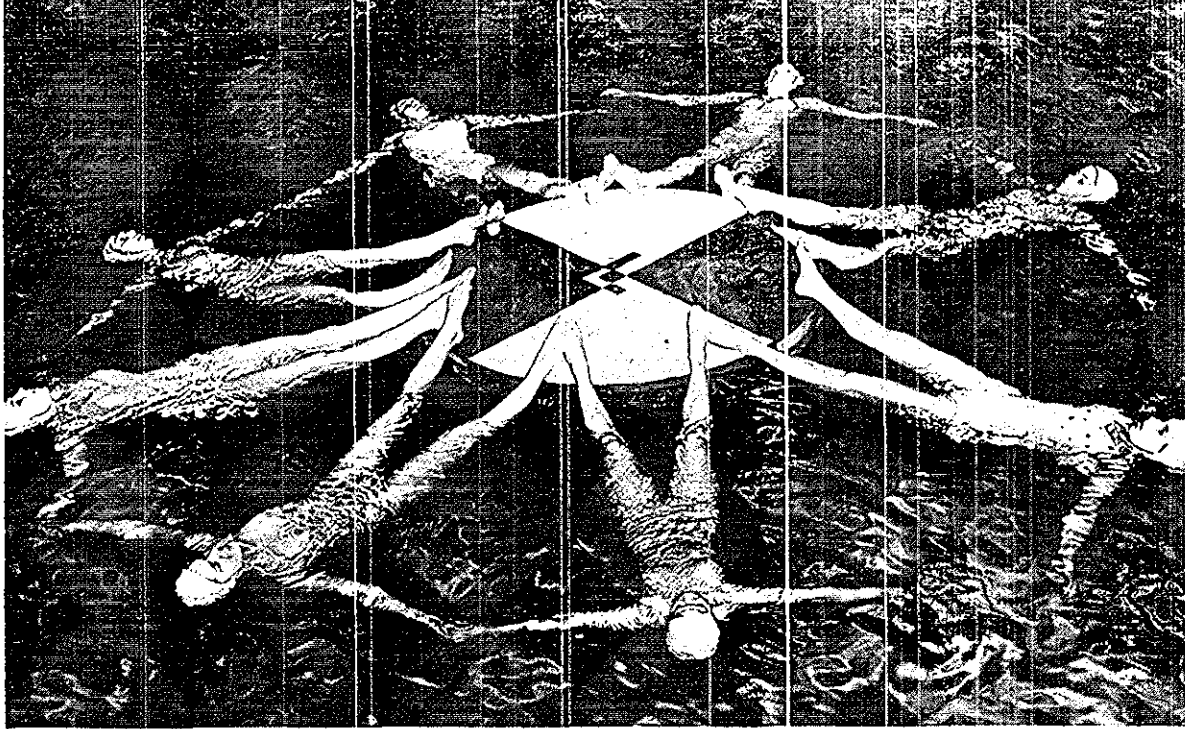

These Barnard College girls, enrolled in one of the classes in war defense work, are learning about the mechanics of an automobile motor. Doing their part to further the victory effort of their country, they also learn such skills as aerial photographic interpretation, first aid and communal cooking.

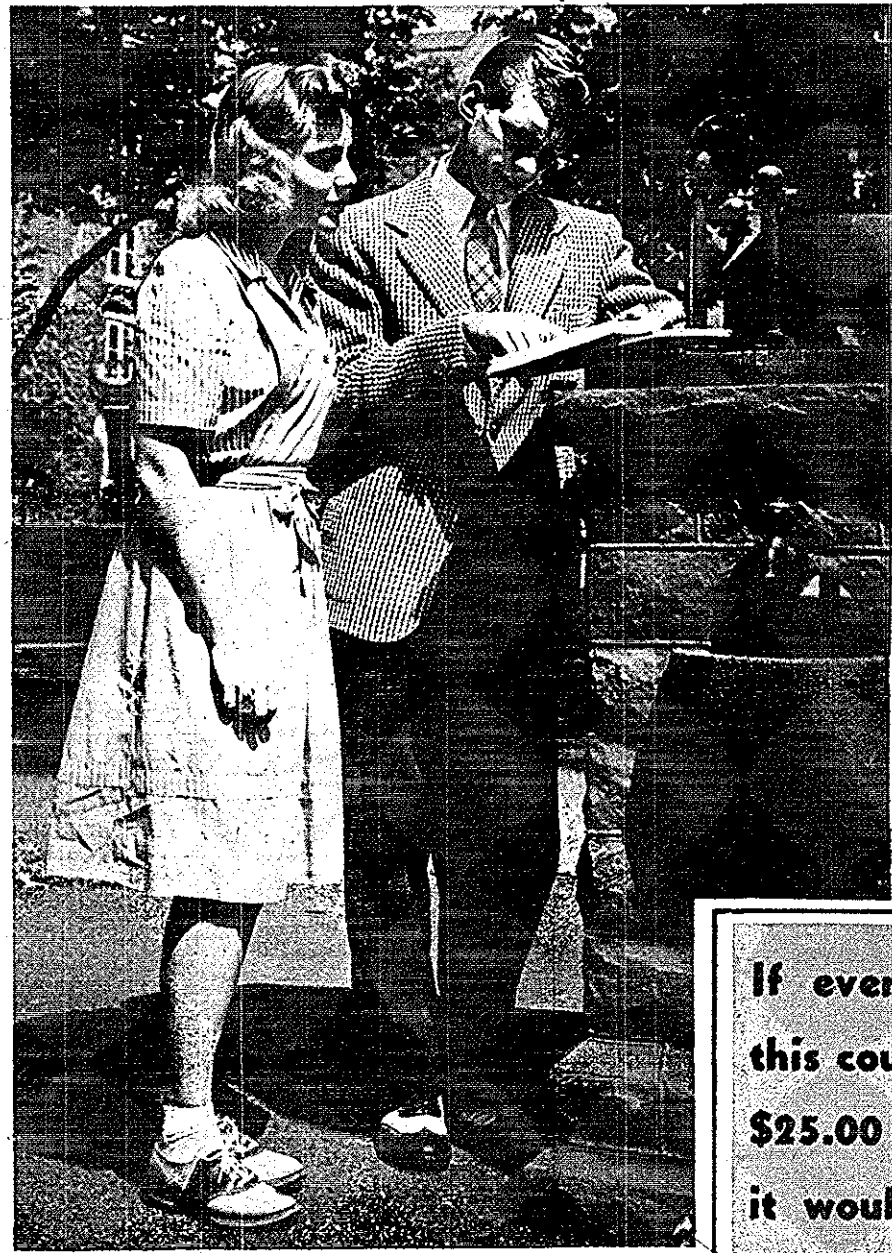

Gopher Star

Big Bill Daley stepped into the shoes of an All-American halfback when he scored four touchdowns to lead the Minnesota Gophers in a 50-7 rout of the demoralized Pittsburgh team. He proved to be an able successor to Bruce Smith, Minnesota's hero of last year.

Forming Patterns in the Water is one of the stunts of the Lawrence College aquabelles. Here they arrange themselves in an octagonal formation.

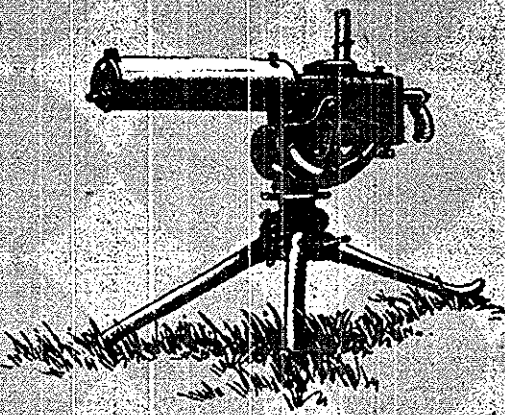

Even the Sun-Dial on the Bucknell University campus is playing a part in the college's war-emergency program. The old timepiece is now used by naval reserve trainees as a convenient laboratory in studying the time of day. William Benner, a V-7 naval candidate, explains the intricacies of the instrument to pretty Phyllis Goding, Bucknell co-ed. Hehn Looks Easy! — The jump from basic air training to bombing Tokyo and points east is being made easier for Ellington Field cadets by a man who really knows how to leap. Arthur F. Byrnes, physical director at the training base, shows two cadets how easy it is to clear the bar at six feet. He formerly starred for Manhattan and Springfield Colleges where he earned a Phi Beta Kappa key. His best college jump was 6 feet 8½ inches.

University of Florida Gets in the Scrap

Believed to be the first institution in the country to embark on such a program, University of Florida students, through their student government, have gotten under way a campus-wide program for reclamation, conservation, and economy. Drive for scrap metal in early weeks netted 20,000 pounds, much of which was smelted into ingots with facilities in the University's engineering laboratories, and placed on the market, and an average of better than 1,500 pounds of paper per week are reclaimed from dormitories, campus buildings, and fraternity houses, and sold. As important as reclamation are conservation and economy, aiming at effecting savings in electric power, gas, water, paper, and other vital materials. All proceeds of the drive are converted into defense bonds, and turned over to the Talbert Memorial Loan Fund, the campus' largest student aid organization. Important fact about the program is that, once organized, work is so broken down that each man's task is small, but the combined result great.

On dormitory bulletin board, student reads notices seeking cooperation in the reclamation program, showing how economy and conservation may be brought about. To put the program across to the student body, advertisements and news stories in the Florida Alligator, student weekly newspaper, were also used.

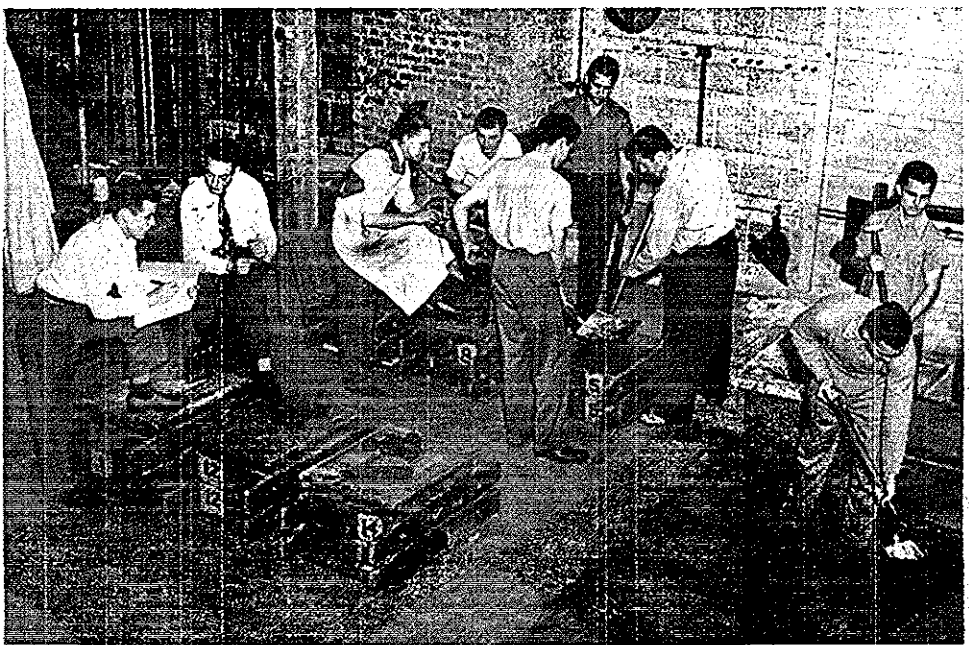

At the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house, members place scrap materials into waste paper and metal depositories for campus-wide collection. You'd be amazed at the amount of metal turned up in the average house! Working here are, left to right, Billy Watson, Powell Schell, John Voges and Clay Codrington.

At the ATO house, Wilbert Canning studies in front of a reminder to conserve electricity. The campus' 21 fraternities reported savings in electric bills ranging from $5 to $12 in the first month of the program.

Executive Committee Chairman Kurt Teutsch, seated in center, a German refugee who learned much of similar programs in Nazi Germany, confers with sub-committee chairman. New ideas crop out here for discussion.

Everyone is happy to do his share in this necessary defense work. At left engineering students ready materials for smelting, adding practical experience to their knowledge as well as material for war uses.

Teutsch hands first $25 war bond purchased through the efforts of the committee to Dean of Students R. C. Beaty, custodian for the Talbert Fund. In the first five weeks of the campaign more than $200 was raised, a record for any school to shoot at.

'Snakes Alive!'
Student Milks Rattler

During the last few decades, research doctors have been attempting to cure many diseases by the injection of snake venoms in minute doses. The task of extracting the venom is one of the most important and most treacherous parts of the job. But for Thomas Goreau of Goddard College it's all in a day's work. Left he grips the snake ready for the "milking." This is the most critical stage of the whole manipulation because unless the grip is in the proper place and with proper strength, the entire process is undermined. Below you can see a drop of venom in the bottom of the vessel. Statistics show that one out of every fifteen bites is inflicted on persons intentionally handling poisonous snakes. That makes the odds pretty high against Thomas.

WITH THE GREEKS

With the coming of silent week, sorority and fraternity members on campus can now breathe a sigh of relief. Rush parties, stags, and dinners are over until next semester, and bids will go out today.

To the rushees, as well as Greek Letter members, it might be well to say again just what this period means. No sorority or fraternity affiliate shall speak to any rushee, except in the way of greeting, from Monday until the box is opened Friday afternoon. So no more concerning a prospect for a "Sales Palk", or a trip to town for a "coke."

Each rushee who receives a bid to a fraternity or sorority must answer the bid, regardless of his intention. The bid must be acknowledged and either accepted or rejected. A locked box for this purpose will be placed in the front office today, and will remain there until Friday at 3 p. m.

PHI LAMBS GIVE ORCHIDS

Orchid corsages were presented to rushees at the Phi Lambda Delta formal rush banquet, Wednesday, October 21, at the Pick-O-Hio hotel. Favors for the guests were copper novelties. The Phi Gams presented the sorority with a bouquet of flowers. Jo Breger, toastmistress, introduced Mrs. Howard Jones, who talked on the values of the sorority. ## Dot on the Spot

By Dorothy Otterman

If you want to listen to the address, the fathered by peering about the beloved campus.

To fool the school, camouflage your sweaters to make people think you have reads of clothes. The traditional way of doing this is to wear a fresh dicker or a string of pearls. College without pearls is unthinkable. What would a pullover do without its bosom pal? With it, and die, probably. But why not be different and wear a bit of flimflamery such as the "little man" pin sported on her sweater by Dottie Rowe. (Ahem—notice the spelling, please). By the way, Dottie is still searching for a name for it, so she would welcome your suggestion. BETTY HAMADY also wears a cagey pin with her sweaters.

To pass the class, lass, major in a good suit. Nothing can beat it for versatility. You can dress it up or down depending on the company it's to keep. Simply add a frilly blouse or a sweater in pearls and presto—it's a different outfit. Another advantage of the blessed suit is that there are sleeves of styles to choose from. Helen Parsons has a smooth-plaid job that gives her that casual look. Mary Haid mixes a bright red jacket with a plaid skirt and gets a super-campus outfit. Jean Civin' augh that gal with never-a-moment out of place looks neat as usual in her strap aqua suit. Just to be different, Giny Morgan prefers the famous "zoot suit" with its long jacket and short skirt. Her smooth brown tweed simply shouts of being tailor-made.

To bate a date, brighten up your coif by slipping bows to match your sweater behind your pompadour. Or get some bright flowers to plant atop your crowning glory. If you want to be really individual there's another hair ornament you can buy doveptow. It's a tiny comb with two little birds perched on top ready to make their nest in your curls. If you wear this you'll really have birds in your velvety.

To be a bright light, try to look as neat as a pin no matter what you wear. Remember, sloppiness abels you last year.

Editor's Mail Box

DEAR EDITOR,

Just how much longer are your self-termed ace columnists going to continue belching forth smoke and fire at the ex-Jambar writer. And just how much longer is the administration going to keep its eyes closed to such incidents.

Of course a number of students may not have agreed with Miss Neag's views in regard to the "Greeks", but to do away with her as a Jambar writer and then comment on the events of last semester hardly seems fair. Aren't you taking unfair advantage of a personality which doesn't have the Jambar as a medium of expression.

Martha Neag was brave enough to venture forth an opinion and as none of us are in a position to judge whether she was right or wrong, to dispute her right to say so, is the same as to question the right of freedom of speech. And that is an offense against the principles of democracy.

"R. J."

Dear Editor,

Probably the most ridiculous question to be brought up in many years in student council was discussed furiously last Friday at the regular council meeting, when the Jambar was thoroughly raked over the coals by a group of people who have little or no knowledge of the work and worry which falls to an editor with the publication of each edition of the Jambar.

Though the council meeting lasted for nearly two hours, and many accusations were brought forward, NO ONE mentioned the literary value of the paper, perhaps because the majority of members in council understand that they could say very little against the actual material in the Jambar, which ranks among the finest Bi-Weeklies in Northern Ohio.

"The Jambar office is not kept clean". Must the editor, in addition to putting out a paper, trying to please everyone in the school, and maintaining a fairly heavy schedule also act as general handy man and janitor?

"Favoritism is shown in the selection of columnists". Norma Mallin, who writes "Looking Around", was chosen last year through tryouts. Norma did very well last year, and is coming up to the same standards this year. Why change? Hiram Walker, "Campus Comments" was chosen through tryouts this year. He was chosen by the editor as the would-be columnist most likely to turn in readable copy. Mary Wrench was chosen editor by student council last spring, and it is the duty of the editor to select what is to appear in the paper. Why choose an inept columnist simply to please some mis-guided individuals?

"The Jambar office is used for fraternity and sorority meetings." Horrible, isn't it. So what, Room 112 is used for fraternity and sorority meetings. Meetings are held in Room 110, and the Jambar office is just another room in the college, so what is the objection meeting in there?

"The work on the Jambar is done by a certain political faction". It so happens that the same "Certain Political Faction" is interested in what is happening in the school, and is also interested in the Jambar. Other students are welcome to work on the Jambar. Turn in good copy, and I feel confident that the editor will be glad to use it.

"Assignments are not evenly divided". Through experience, no doubt, the editor has discovered the people on whom she is able to depend. Have you ever tried to put out a paper when assignments come in several days late if they come in at all?

"A former columnist's name is mentioned too often in the columns of the Jambar, and she has no means of defending herself". All columnists which mentioned the girl in questions signed their writing. And in defending herself, there is always a letter to the Editor.

"And lastly, 'The Jambar Office Will Be Kept Locked'. Now, added to all the worries of the editor, she must report to the library for the key, and then go to the office.

The Editor in nearly all colleges is paid, either in tuition, actual cash or both, for the work they do for the school in publishing a paper. But in Youngstown College the Editor is locked out of her office. It would be funny if it weren't so utterly stupid.

Sincerely

JEAN LONEY

Sport SLANTS

By Ben Williams

Well, the Penguins proved last Friday that they have learned something from defeat and we hope that Geneva learned something from their defeat by our Penguins. Geneva is a great school and a good opponent for Youngstown.

Did you notice Coach "Dike" Beede during the Geneva game? He cheered the team on as much as any of the students did. All of the students can learn a lesson from him. His loyalty is unwavering, not only because he is the coach but because he believes in his boys and backs that belief with something more than mere words. Our hats are off to you, Coach, for being the kind of person that you are.

Norman Currie, Geneva tackle, is resting comfortably at the North Side unit of Youngstown hospital, where he was taken after suffering a head injury in the Youngstown-Geneva game. Our best wishes go to Norman and we hope that he will soon be back in the game.

Mogus and Organ showed Geneva that they were not useless. These two boys got into Geneva's hair plenty.

Rumor has it that Cy Warden, George Hardie, and Dick Sontag, former Youngstown lettermen, have become members of the Iowa Pre-Flight Squad. If it is true we wish all of them luck with the Seahawks.

We would not be surprised to find our own Al Perl among the nation's top scorers at the end of this season. Good luck, Al, keep it up.

We find it rather difficult to single out any one of our Penguins for our Penguin Personality of this week. Instead of an individual we wish instead of saluting an individual we wish to salute the entire Red and Gold squad. We not only salute them for what they have done for our school, but also for what they are. Every boy on the Penguin squad is a gentleman and a scholar. They are good, clean and fine persons. They are giving their all for their college and asking but little in return. They fight every minute of every game and all that they ask is a few cheers to help boost their morale, so let's not let them down. They are TOPS in my estimation and always will be.

YoCo Topples Geneva 20-0

Last Friday night the Youngstown Penguins proved themselves superior mudders as they toppled Geneva from its perch among the nation's undefeated teams. After defeating Carnegie Tech, Westminster, and Waynesburg by a 26 point margin, the "Golden Tornado" fell before a determined Youngstown team to the tune of 20-0.

The first quarter was scoreless but full of action as both teams saw-sawed back and forth along the field. One of the most thrilling plays of the first quarter was Luzzi's blocking of Medroostis' kick—which the booter recovered. At the end of the first quarter Bob Coughlin attempted his first field goal of the season from the 20 yard line, but the angle was too wide and the attempt failed.

As the second quarter opened, Luzzi picked up 29 yards on a spinner which put the ball on the Geneva 16. Three plays later Geneva took over the ball on their own five as Petrollini's last down pass missed.

The next drive started after Medroostis' kick to the YoCo 45. Luzzi and Petrollini combined to carry the ball to the Geneva 18, from where Aiello carried it to the 16. Petrollini—faking the ball to Aiello—took off around right end to score 7-0, where it stood at half time.

Second Penguin Score.

Aiello returned the third period kick 17 yards to place the ball on the midfield stripe. Aiello, Thompson, and Lucci drove from there to the Geneva 20. Aiello took the ball to the 12 in three plays and on the last down took it off tackle to score Youngstown's second marker. Coughlin's kick was blocked, leaving the score 13-0.

Youngstown's last score came after Perz kicked to the YoCo 45. In 4 plays Youngstown took the ball to the Geneva 26. Perl then picked up 18 yards to place the ball on the 8 yard line. Three attempts gained only two yards but on the last down Perl circled around left end to score. Coughlin's kick made the score 20-0.

ITS DARKNESS BEFORE DAWN

ress (boy! was she nice) couldn't get our orders straight.

We couldn't help thinking of a funny incident that happened back in 1887 at "Stegy Prep." The boys bet a young man that he couldn't eat a box of liver pills. He did eat the box and pills and liked them so well that he lived on them for years. When he died they had to take out his liver and beat it to death.

The fratertitles went to a lot of trouble to see that we were well-fed. Perhaps they were thinking of the old adage, "The quickest way to a man's heart . . . You know the rest . . ."

If he'd have eyes like Joey Pearl, And Al Wolansky's grin, If he could dance like Joe Markell, Shout it girls, "He's in."

If he could sing like Hamilton, Have Eddie Lindsay's line, And be as likeable as Sontich, That's right girls, he'd shine.

Could he but have Lou Dotan's brains, Play football just like Luzzi, I'd love him twice as much if he Could "boog it" just like Mangie.

If he could dress as sharp as Rags, Have Tommy Johnson's smile, And as gay as Cavanaugh, Who's happy all the while.

If he could have Maruskin's wit And Hank Richetto's hair, If he would have all this—no less, With him my life I'd share.

I'd give up all my worldly goods, I'd give up all my knowledge, If I could find a boy like this Right here at Youngstown College!
