

Sacchi to impersonate Bogart at KCPB show

Actor Robert Sacchi, impersonating the famed Humphrey Bogart, will perform 9 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16 in Kilcawley's Chestnut Room. The show titled, "Bogey's Back" is sponsored by KCPB.

Sacchi will play Bogart in scenes from The Maltese Falcon, Knock on Any Door, The Caine Mutiny, Casablanca and a glimpse at Bogey's reaction to the 70's.

A native of the Bronx, Sacchi started his career on Broadway as a movie usher. He actually portrays Bogey in Woody Allen's hit play, Play it Again Sam, and in numerous television commercials mainly for Ford and Busch Gardens. His first commercial as Bogey was for a raincoat in 1969.

For four years he toured in Play it Again Sam, playing the Bogart role about 1,800 times. Sacchi also has played many dramatic parts in feature films and in the Kojak and McCloud television series.

About three years ago, Sacchi who says he is in his mid-30's began working the college circuit.

Although he never met Bogart (Bogart died in 1957), Sacchi has read all of his biographies and has seen 40 of his 75 movies.

Injecting some of his own comedy and satire: "In my day," says Sacchi as Bogart, "grass was something you held a picnic on or got buried under. A picnic was a tommy gun. Things were rotten in my day. They're still rotten. But in some ways they're different. A kiss is still a kiss, but today it covers a lot more territory."

Sacchi believes that imitating Bogart is more difficult than impersonating other actors because people remember Bogey and keep watching his old movies. "...you do Bogart and you not only have to look like him, you have to talk exactly like him," says Sacchi.

As printed in an article of the Daily News dated July 31, 1976 Patricia O'Haire wrote, "It's not an imitation you watch down there on that stage. It's a recreation. Bogie back to life, dressed in spotless white tuxedo jacket ("Casablanca") in a navy captain's uniform, complete with an armful of gold stripes ("The Caine Mutiny"); in grimy white work clothes, covered with bugs ("The African Queen") or in the pin stripe gangster suit ("Dead End")."

In the Oct. 25, 1976 issue Sidney Fields wrote, "Robert Sacchi's resemblance of Bogart, right down to the lisp, sneer, stooped shoulder, the disarming and dangerous smile is both startling and eerie."

Sacchi has put together a full evening of Bogey memories which he hopes will capture the dynamic life of Bogart. The program is free and open to the public.

Sports Center to cost $13 million

Kick-off celebration held for complex

by Velina Rosine

Several state and local dignitaries were present for an all-sports complex kick-off rally held on campus last Thursday.

Gov. James Rhodes recently signed a bill giving a total of $9 million to YSU, $7 million going toward the construction of the $13 million Sports Complex and the rest toward the construction of the parking deck. The YSU Board of Trustees allocated $3 million for the project, and the community reached and surpassed its goal of $3 million this summer. The kick-off rally was, in part, to celebrate the reaching of the sports complex goal.

William J. Lyden, chairman of the YSU board of trustees, presided over the affair and introduced the speakers and guests.

President John J. Coffelt, the first speaker, was described at a "behind the scenes driving force" by Lyden.

Coffelt termed the proposed complex a dream that has at last come true.

Senator Harry Meshel proclaimed that the complex is a "striking illustration" of how leadership can set an example. Meshel added that "the effort...brings new hope" to the community in the form of jobs, hopes, and programs.

Representative George Tablack said those persons involved in the sports complex project "didn't use words; instead, they 'showed action.'"

Youngstown's Mayor-elect J. Phillip Richley described the complex as a recreational facility which will provide both cultural and intellectual advantages.

Old Jambar building exchanged

University trades property

by Greg Garramone

The old Jambar building, 629 Bryson, is part of a transaction in which the University will acquire more land needed for parking at the new Sports Complex. The desired property, a small parcel of land located just northeast of the old Jambar building, is owned by the Holy Trinity Romanian Orthodox Church, 628 Wick.

According to Edmund Salata, Dean of Administrative Affairs, the transaction is an exchange of one piece of property for another. "The old Jambar property is right behind the church, so its really convenient. They want this property, we need that property. It works out well for both parties," Salata adds that the details should be finalized within the next six weeks.

The Reverend John Marmureanu, pastor of Holy Trinity, looks forward to taking over the building. "We'll use it for a variety of things. Our youth and social groups will use it for various activities, and our pastoral council will be centered there." Father Marmureanu is anxious to get the building, as some improvements must be made, particularly on the deteriorating roof.

The sole occupant of the building is the International Student Advisor's Office. The plans call for the office to be moved to Rayen Hall upon completion of the transaction.

Guest artists to appear at Ohiocon convention

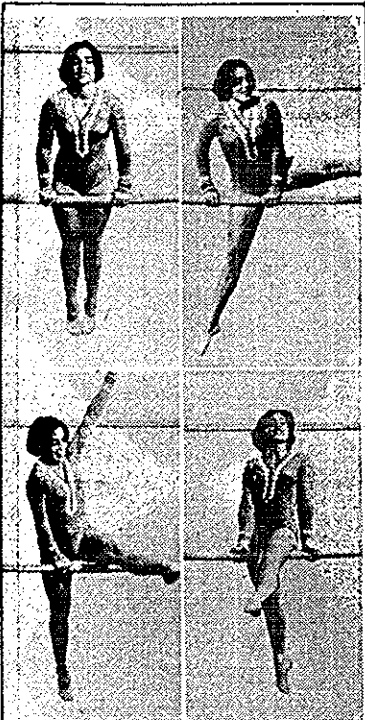

The fifth annual Ohiocon, a convention of collectors and dealers in comic books and other such memorabilia, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 18 and 19, in Kilcawley Center.

The two-day event will feature dealers in comic books, pulps, baseball cards, science fiction books, records and Beatie and movie collectibles. Guest artists representing the comic book and comic strip fields will be on hand for group discussions, in addition to sketching and autograph sessions.

Ohiocon also will present 24 hours of movies. Among films shown are Enter the Dragon, Journey to the Center of the Earth, Jack the Giant Killer, Twilight Zone and The Phantom Creeps. In addition, two hours of Beatie films will be screened along with more than 60 cartoons, including Tom and Jerry cartoons not shown on TV because of alleged excessive violence.

Auctions and art displays will add to the interest and action. Doors will be open in the Kilcawley Chestnut room from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. each day. Admission is 50 cents and this includes all events for both days.

Since they're worn internally, you don't worry about chafing or bulges. They're easy to use, too. (All the instructions you need are right in the package.) But, most important, Tampax tampons are uniquely designed to expand so they conform to individual body contours. Which means there's far less chance of an accident.

Bergen talks on womanhood

by Molly Gerchak

"Why don't we have more faith in ourselves?" Polly Bergen questioned a large gathering of women at Powers Auditorium, Friday morning.

Bergen, actress, author of books on fashion, and business executive, was guest speaker for the November Town Hall Lecture Series, sponsored by the Junior League of Youngstown. Bergen's subject was "The Psychology of Being a Woman."

She told her audience to "quit worrying about what you are wearing and what other people think about what you are wearing." She said that if women care about themselves, if they do what they can to improve their appearance, and if they feel comfortable about themselves, they can then forget the impression they make on others and they won't need others to tell them they're important.

Bergen said "I've discovered that a lot of women don't like women." She added that men don't have this problem because they compete with each other on a business level, thus they feel freer to be "buddies" on a personal level.

She said that women are conditioned from an early age on how important it is to compete on a personal level with other females "for the right guy." She said that this makes a girl grow up fearful and afraid to trust other women. Jokingly or not so jokingly, she added that women sometimes earn this distrust by the way they act when men are present.

Bergen said that women are also taught the importance of doing everything they can to conform, to be one of the group. She added that acquiescence destroys individuality, independence, and the ability to think on one's own and to like oneself. She said that even in today's society and the advent of Women's Liberation that "we teach our kids to do the same thing."

Bergen said, "1,001 people can say you're beautiful, but if you don't think you are, you're not." She said that women will go out, not liking the dress they're wearing, their hairdo or their makeup, and will think about it constantly, not realizing "how difficult it is to talk to someone when you're telling yourself you're ugly."

Bergen gave advice on how to diet and still be in "control of your cheating." She said that women, by the time they reach the age of 30, are on a diet for the rest of their lives.

She said that taking pills and shots and going on fad diets will work for a while, but cannot be maintained for a lifetime. Breakfast should be the most important meal of the day. "We feel like such martyrs when we skip breakfast that by one o'clock we'll eat any passing sofa or chair, we're so hungry," stated Bergen humorously.

She said that women should make the time to eat breakfast. They should eat a medium sized lunch, and dinner should be the lightest meal of the day. She also said that, logically, every few days some dessert should be allowed, such as a piece of pie, "but, not the whole pie."

Bergen said that women should weigh themselves every day at the same time. When they get within 15 to 20 pounds of their ideal weight they must start exercising, "unless you want skin hanging everywhere." She also said that sports are wonderful, but a woman on a diet needs specific exercises. She said, "if you don't like what you see, you'll find time to do them (specific exercises)."

She said that women should make a list of the things they like and dislike about themselves. They can cross out the things that can't be changed. "You will have to understand emotionally and learn to live with those things," she stated.

Spring elections are focus of Student Council meeting

The upcoming spring elections were a central focus of yesterday's Student Council, as they approach their last two sessions of Winter quarter.

The election Committee chairman, Mario Massaro, reported that Tuesday, February 28, and Wednesday March 1, are tentative dates set for the elections. Massaro also said, "elections will probably be held in one place instead of two as which was the procedure during the last election period. Kilcawley Center arcade is designated as the tentative site for the student government elections.

Student Council Chairman, John Carano said he and the election Committee chairman will contact the Mahoning County Board of Elections to see if their voting machines can be used for YSU elections. Carano said paper ballots will be used if the voting machines can not be used secured.

Carano also announced the names of six council members whose seats are up for re-election. They are, Marty Rozich and Lisa Yarnell, representation-at-large; Anthony Koury and Donald McCloud, Arts and Sciences; John Carano and Ralph Orsini, Education; Tom Jaros and Bill Welch, CAST; and David Stroud, Engineering.

Publicity Chariman, Ronald Pentz recommended that all council members attend a rap session involving Council and the Jambar. Council approved the recommendation and asked all members to attend the session next Monday at 3:00 p.m.

A changing reputation

With economic conditions what they are today, the importance of receiving a quality education is uppermost on the minds of many college students.

In this area, YSU has had a reputation to live down. In past years YSU has jokingly been referred to as Yo-Yo High or Wick Tech.

When old high school chums would get together over Christmas break and extoll the virtues of their colleges, OSU, OU or Kent, those who had decided to attend college in Youngstown, would, with a tinge of regret or jealousy, remain silent.

But attitudes seem to be changing, according to a survey conducted last academic year by David Bertelsen, assistant dean of student affairs.

The survey asked students to rate the quality of the education they felt they were receiving at YSU. The rating was done on a five point scale, ranging from excellent to poor.

Results showed that 13% of the students felt the education they were receiving was excellent; 54% good; 29% average; 3% below average; 1% poor.

These findings are very different from a similar survey conducted at YSU in 1972. At that time, 5% of those students questioned found the quality of the education excellent; 37% good; 44% average; 12% below average; 2% poor.

In the last 10 years YSU has grown physically as well as academically, while conditions at many other universities have deteriorated. YSU should no longer be considered a second cousin to the other state universities in Ohio.

INPUT:

Supreme Court Ruling

Since Drs. Shipka and O'Neill have summarized some aspects of the Abood case, it is appropriate to supplement their views by referring directly to this Supreme Court Decision (No. 75-1153).

In Abood/Warzak, Et. Al. v. Detroit Board of Education and the Detroit Federation of Teachers (DFT), the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously held:

"(At) the heart of the First Amendment is the notion that an individual should be free to believe as he will, and that in a free society one's beliefs should be shaped by his mind and his conscience rather than coerced by the State. ...These principles...prohibit the (DFT and the Board of Education) from requiring the (teacher-plaintiffs) to contribute to the support of an ideological cause he may oppose as a condition of holding a job as a public school teacher." (pp. 22-26)

Additionally, Mr. Justice Powell, in his opinion, wrote:

"...compelling a government employee to give financial support to a union in the public sector - regardless of the uses to which the union puts the contribution - impinges seriously upon the interests in free speech and association protected by the First Amendment. ...Certainly, if individual teachers are ideologically opposed to public sector unionism itself, ...compelling them to affiliate with the union by contributing to it infringes their First Amendment rights to the same degree as compelling them to contribute to a political party."

Mr. Justice Powell, joined by Chief Justice Burger and Justice Blackmun, concluded that the Detroit teachers were entitled to a trial at which the DFT and the Board would be required to justify the constitutionality of the entire concept of the "agency shop" in the public sector, including compulsory financial support of collective bargaining. Their separate opinion states in part:

"that the State should bear the burden of proving that any union dues or fees that it requires of non-union employees are needed to serve paramount governmental interest."

The Supreme Court then ruled that the Michigan Court of Appeals erred in holding that appellants (Abood, Et. Al.) were not entitled to relief even if they can prove their allegations (Syllabus-Supreme Court of the U.S., p. II, III, Item 3). Consequently, Michigan App. 92, 230 N.W. 2d 322, was vacated and remanded to Michigan Courts where litigation is now pending.

Letters:

Time to speak up!

To the editor of the Jambar

Generally I consider myself to be a relatively mild-mannered individual who keeps my thoughts to myself. However, the time has come when, due to the latest attack on my character by the YSU-OEA, I feel I can no longer remain silent.

In a recent article in The Advocate by Thomas Shipka, I have been pictured as a fist raising, pocketbook clutching, freeloading obstructionist. Now I ask you, Dr. Shipka, when was the last time you saw me with an angrily clenched fist? Or what do you know about my personal financial actions?

It happens that I am a dues-paying member of a number of professional organizations. I am not under any compulsion to support these organizations, no court of law has ordered me to pay dues, but I support these organizations because I believe they act in my best professional interests. The membership dues I pay to these organizations far exceed the YSU-OEA association fee. This financial support is not what I would call the actions of a "freeloader."

But why would you publish such outrageous remarks about myself and other colleagues, Dr. Shipka? Is it because you are so completely ignorant of my character and motives? Perhaps so. Or is it because you are responding from a position of weakness? I believe it is not too uncommon for a person to resort to scurrilous remarks in an attempt to cloud or emotionalize an issue which he cannot otherwise defend. Or is it because you wish to subrogate a "union conscience" for my personal conscience, Dr. Shipka? Must we all march to the beat of your drummer? Does the YSU-OEA have the last and final say as to what is best for me professionally? I think not.

As for me, I will continue to follow the dictates of my own conscience, which finds it repulsive to be forced to support in any manner attitudes evidenced by your article, Dr. Shipka. And for this I apologize to no one.

A brief view . . . of College Vocabulary

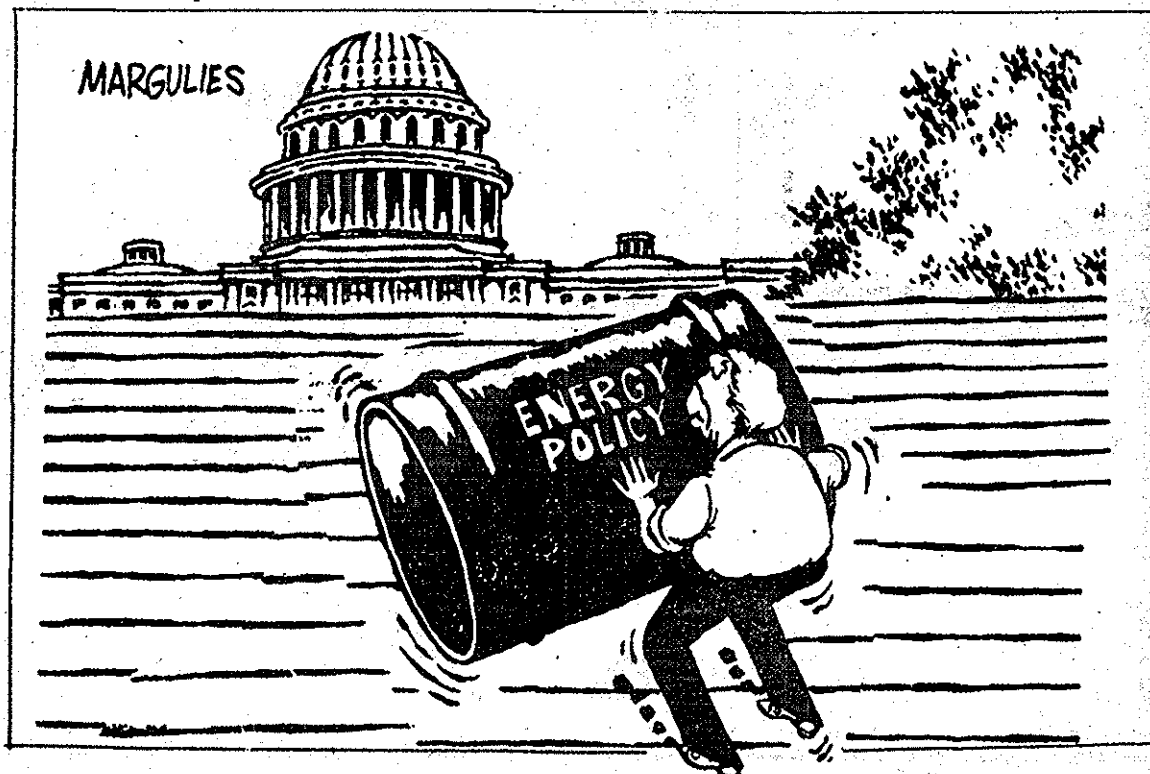

by Guz Scullin

Omniscient, now there is a nice big college word. The trend treks on, people on campus are beginning to talk, or try to talk, like college students. Recently, if one could call last week recent, I happened to be in a bar located on campus. It was of course, an innocent trip -- I never go to bars! I went there strictly to do research on an amazing phenomena. I call it "College Bar Talk." A clever title. Here are some excerpts of the conversation I heard.

"Do you dwell here often?"
"I could utilize another beer."
"That girl is aesthetically entrancing."
"The test was quite arduous."
"She certainly is callipygous."
I began to notice that after many drinks, the students began to talk absurdly. The students began to debate about who had the best dictionary. Who had the strongest fathers. Who had the best celebration. One student even claimed to know the Penguin's won-loss record in 1976!

The talk began to grow hot and heavy -- two students squared-off. One was an engineering major, the other student a business major. Each walked to opposite ends of the bar. Their hands twitched. The engineering student drew first, he pulled his calculator from his holster. The business major then went for his calculator.

"All right pilgrim," shouted the engineering major, "find the square root of 8,958,437!" The business major's fingers pressed and punched the calculator, but it was to no avail. The engineering major shouted, "The affirmative answer is 2,993.064817."

"What's Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs," said the business major. The engineering man blew the smoke from his calculator, and returned it to its holster. He then looked to the ground. The business major smiled. "Well big guy, what's the answer?"

"I have no answer. I'm afraid I do not know," replied the embarrassed engineering major. The bartender then came up to the two students.

"Let's break it up guys, you know we don't allow intellectual contests in here. Go back to your seats -- and keep it down."

The two students returned to their seats, and bought each other a drink. And there was peace, neither resorted to intellectual violence. They became freinds, and even helped each other with homework. A happy ending.

Penguins complete record season; hope for postseason playoff berth

by Bill Snier

The YSU Penguins slogged and slid their way to a 34-6 victory over the Central State Marauders in a game played under very wintery conditions at Rayen Stadium Saturday.

The victory gave the Penguins a final regular season mark of 7-3 which ties them for the record of the second most wins in a season ever achieved by a YSU team. The 34 points scored by the Penguins against Central State also set a new mark of most points scored in a season by a Penguins team, 275, beating the old mark of 259 set in 1974.

To add to these two team records, wide receiver Jim Ferranti set a new individual receiving record by catching eight passes during the course of the game to set a new season mark of 47 catches, one better than the previous record of 46 set by his brother Bob Ferranti.

The Marauders threatened first in the game, driving to the YSU 27-yard line before the march stalled. But a 43-yard field goal attempt was stopped by a delay of game penalty which forced Central State to change their thinking and punt instead.

The Penguins finally got untracked after Kevin Statzer picked off an Ed Houston pass and returned it to the YSU-43. From there, YSU drove to paydirt with James Robson carrying the ball five straight times for the last twenty yards and diving in for the score. Haynali's conversion made the score 7-0 Penguins.

The next Penguin tally came on a very well executed play which featured great timing between two freshmen, wide receiver Randy Beal and tailback James Robson. Keith Snoddy fired a short pass to Beal at the left sideline. As Beal was being tackled, he lateraled to Robson who sped the last 18 yards for the score untouched to increase the Penguin lead to 14-0.

On their next possession, the Penguins again drove into the end zone with Snoddy keeping the ball the last two yards for the score. The touchdown was the first scored by Keith Snoddy this season and came after an eleven play drive, all on the ground. The conversion was true, increasing the Penguin lead to 21-0.

A Marauder error contributed to the final Penguin score of the half. Punter Elmer Underwood had the ball snapped over his head with freshman Ron Mackie covering the ball for YSU at the Central State one. From there, Marschell Brumfield dove over for the score increasing the Penguin lead to 28-0 at halftime.

The bad field conditions seemed to take their toll on the two ball clubs in the second half as each team fumbled four times.

A Larry Grist interception of a Central State pass and a fumble recovery by Bob Lombardi halted the Marauders twice when they were threatening to get on the scoreboard. The Marauders only score came on a quarterback sneak by Ed Houston with 4:53 left in the game.

The Penguins' final tally came on a two-yard run by Marschell Brumfield. The touchdown was set up by a Central State fumble at their own ten-yard line which was recovered again by Ron Mackie. The conversion try by Haynali was missed after a high snap forced Jim Ferranti, the holder, to run for his life.

The regular season is now completed. Now its time to sit by the telephone and wait to see if the Penguins will be going out of town Thanksgiving weekend for another appearance in the national playoffs.

Intramural competition has entered the season of playoffs. Some pre-playoff action included an eleven overtime victory for the War Lords over Valley Crew 1-0 in soccer. For the first time in any sport, Sigma Chi defeated Theta Chi 2-1 in soccer. Jim Bencin had a brilliant game, playing an aggressive defense and scoring both goals for Sigma Chi.

The results of the Intramural co-ed doubles tennis tournament are finally complete. First place went to Lori Hoover and Ron Roque. Janis Stinger and Mike Payne were second. The third place team was Linda Jo Smith and Karl Mogg. Coming in fourth were Jill Lonsinger

COACHES CORNER

by Bill Narduzzi

This is always a rather sad time of the year for many football coaches. Sad because a group of seniors, men who have struggled with a dream, stuck with a team, honored a commitment for four years, are ready to leave the family.

I haven't been here through this senior group's entire career, but that doesn't make any difference. In a game which involves as much emotion and is a sport that involves as much togetherness as football, you get to know each personality. They are members of the family.

A lot can be said about the yards gained, the tackles made, the interceptions achieved, etc., but those are a matter of record not only in statistics but also on film. I believe football is more than that. I believe football is a discipline; a discipline which, when achieved, will become the sword and shield for the battle of life. Therefore, I look at these qualities and try to evaluate our program. I look at each player and try to determine has he achieved anything from our program? I look at our seniors like any daddy looks at his own son and try to envision his strong qualities and if it will help him in later life.

This is how I look at our young men:

Women's basketball

The Women's basketball conditioning program will begin at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, in the Beeghly long deck gym. All interested women are invited to report.

Lifeguards

Anyone interested in lifeguarding at the Beeghly Natatorium should go to Room 307 Beeghly and fill out an application form for guarding. You must be a full time student and hold a current Red Cross or Y lifesaving certificate.

Fred Thomas - discipline and pride

If we have progressed at all in building a total program, these six men must take some of the credit. If those qualities are achieved through our program, it is only because of what they put into it.

As is the feeling when any son, having reached that time, leaves home, so is the feeling a coach has when that time arrives.

I think that I can relate the feelings of our entire staff when we say with respect that "we would recruit every one of them again if we could."

We thank them, We'll miss them and we wish them well.

The winners of the women's badminton doubles were Wendy Stamm and Amy Brant. Second went to Richard Haws and John Georgiadis. Frank Brown and Larry Smith came in fourth. From the first round of soccer playoffs, it was a tough day for the Kilcawley teams as the Palestine Tigers defeated Kilcawley Diseases and Kilcawley II lost to the Engineers. It was Quantas Bears 2 and Hana's Bananas 1. The North Side Blues were victorious over War Lords 5-0. From the fraternity action: Sigma Chi lost to Phi Sigma Kappa 1-2. Theta Chi defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon 2-0. In the Division 6 playoffs the Zaps took the division. Y.S.A.S. took second and Mad Dog-Royal Oaks forfeited out. In the Division 8 playoff, Hana's Bananas took first and Valley Crew defeated the Outlaws for second. Football games were snowed out and will be rescheduled.

And from the Sports Desk.....

Now that the regular season has come to a resounding close, can we or can we not go on to the national playoffs? The answer is simple: possibly, but I wouldn't buy your tickets now if I were you. The coaching staff, from Bill Narduzzi on down, admitted earlier that the Penguins would need some help to get there, like an upset here or an upset there. But the Penguins received no help, as each team that the coaching staff felt they had to beat out won last weekend.

Eight teams will be selected in the playoff setup. The first four teams, one from each of the four designated regions, will be home teams with the first playoff game for each being played at their home stadium. YSU definitely will not be one of these. Who would play a national playoff game in Rayen Stadium? The other four teams will be selected at random, not according to region. This gives the Penguins their chance.

The teams that are almost sure to get bids at this point are Massachusetts and Lehigh from the east, Tennessee Tech and Troy State from the south, California Davis from the west, and North Dakota State from the midwest. At least three teams are in the running for the last two spots; Northern Michigan, Jacksonville State, YSU and possibly others. If the Penguins get in, however, they will be the only team in the playoffs with as many as three losses.

Let's hope that in losing to Dayton, the Penguins did not, it you pardon the expression, "fumble away" their shot at a national championship.

Swim team set for opener; return three All-Americans

by Melinda Ropar

The YSU swim team is currently making final preparations for their Nov. 18 season opener with Marshall University of Huntington, West Virginia.

"We are working very hard," states coach Tucker DiEdwardo, "and are well ahead of last year in terms of our conditioning."

To date, the team has swum over 90 miles in practice, which is three hours per day, six days a week.

"The demands on swimming are so unique," comments Tucker. "Swimming is totally internal; the only external motivation is that which comes from the coach."

Returning to this year's lineup are three All-Americans. Headlining these returnees is junior co-captain Paul Lonnenman. He currently reigns as conference champ in both the 100 and 200 yard backstroke events. Sophomore Doug Shilliday is conference runner-up in the 200 yard butterfly, and sophomore Tom Bosse owns the conference's top times in the 100 and 200 individual medley.

Other top swimmers include sprinters Gary Van Eerden and Greg Stokes, backstrokers Chris Prather and Mike Naples, breast-roker Larry Smith, and mid-distance freestylers Ralph Hannum, Jeff Christopher, Doug Kitsom and Ted Harding.

The Penguins lost four members from last year's team, including three-time All-American Joe Kemper who ranked fourth nationally in the one-meter diving event. This year Kemper will serve as YSU's diving coach and will be working with such fine athletes as Brian Cavanaugh, Gerald Young and Joe Sullivan.

The empty spots in the lineup will be filled with several fine freshman such as Todd Spencer of Toledo. He will be swimming the distance free-style event.

This year, the Penguins face an extremely difficult dual-meet schedule. The teams include division one powers like West Virginia University, Cleveland State, Marshall State and the University of Pittsburgh. Division two teams include Clarion State, Edinboro State and Wayne State.

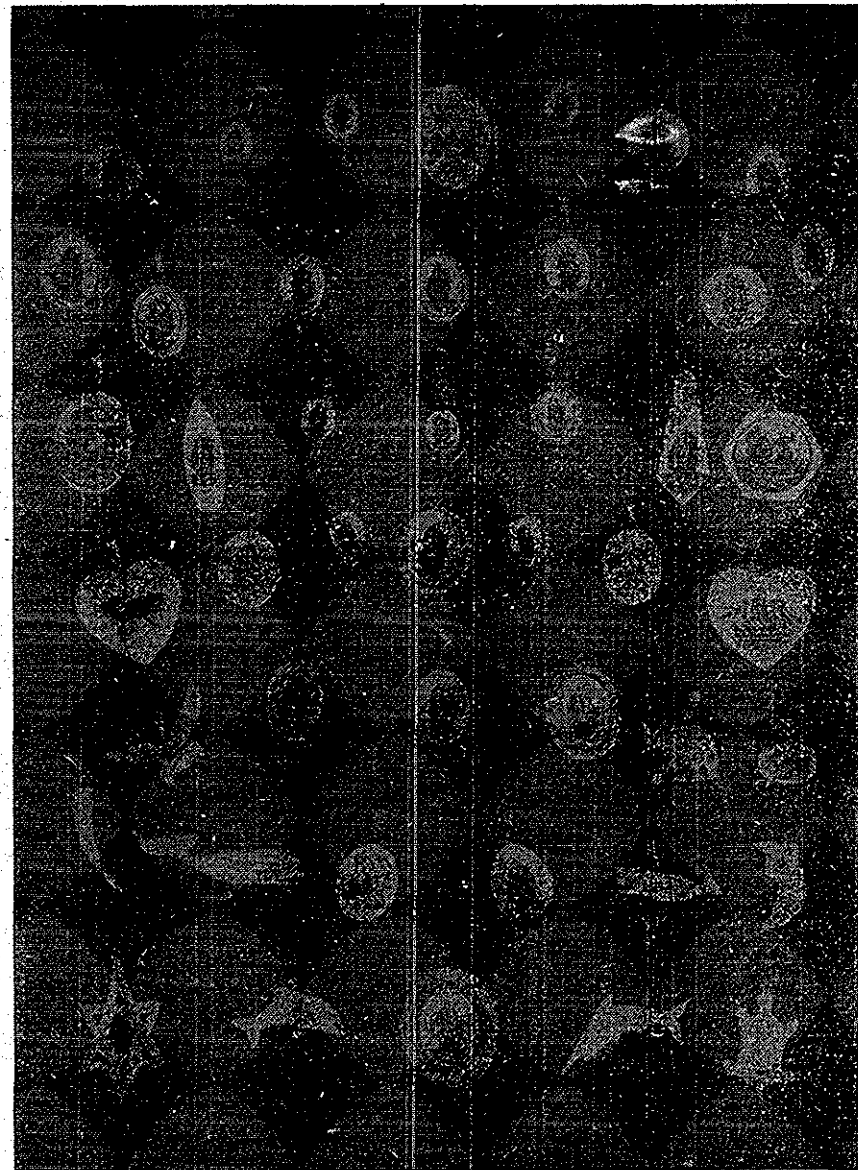

Tucker predicts that it is reasonable for the team to finish 6-7 on the year in dual-meet competition, and second or third in the Penn-Ohio conference. He also feels that the team can rank among the top ten nationally; after finishing a respectable 14th last year.

SCRIMSHAW JEWELRY

Scrimshaw is an art that was developed on whaling ships which dates back as far as 150 years ago. Whaling ships leaving old New Bedford would be out to sea for many months at a time so the seamen would spend their idle time etching scenes of ships or their voyage on discarded whales teeth. This art has almost disappeared but is now being revived. This work is done entirely by hand in its ancient tradition on genuine whale teeth and is perpetuated in this exquisite and unique hand made jewelry. We are proud to revitalize for you an authentic manifestation of that era which is a glorious and proud part of our American History.
