

Personnel sought to fill 3 administrative jobs

by Barbara Janesh

Vacancies for the positions of director of financial aids, vice-president for financial affairs, and coordinator of international students are in the process of being filled, according to Dr. Taylor Alderman, assistant vice-president for academic affairs and Dr. David Bertelsen, assistant dean of student affairs.

The three positions were vacated at the end of 1977 when John E. Wales III resigned as director of financial aids, Joseph S. Rook resigned as vice-president for financial affairs, and Edna K. McDonald resigned as advisor for international students.

The vice-president for financial affairs is responsible for "policy planning, executing and evaluating all aspects of financial and business operations, and supervising University purchasing practices," according to the position announcement released by President John Coffelt.

Candidates for the vice presidency must have 10 years experience in higher education or in related fields of public or private administration. A Master's degree in a related field is required, although a doctorate is preferred for the position.

The director of financial aids supervises the staff and operations of the Financial Aids Office. He also "establishes and administers the system of evaluation and processing of student applications for financial aids and guidelines for student on-campus employment," according to the position announcement from Vice President Earl Edgar.

Five years of administrative experience in student financial aid in higher education and a Master's degree in educational administration, business, or student affairs is required, for the position.

The coordinator of international students is responsible for managing international student services and programs. He also assists in processing admissions and immigration documents for international students, said Bertelsen in the position announcement.

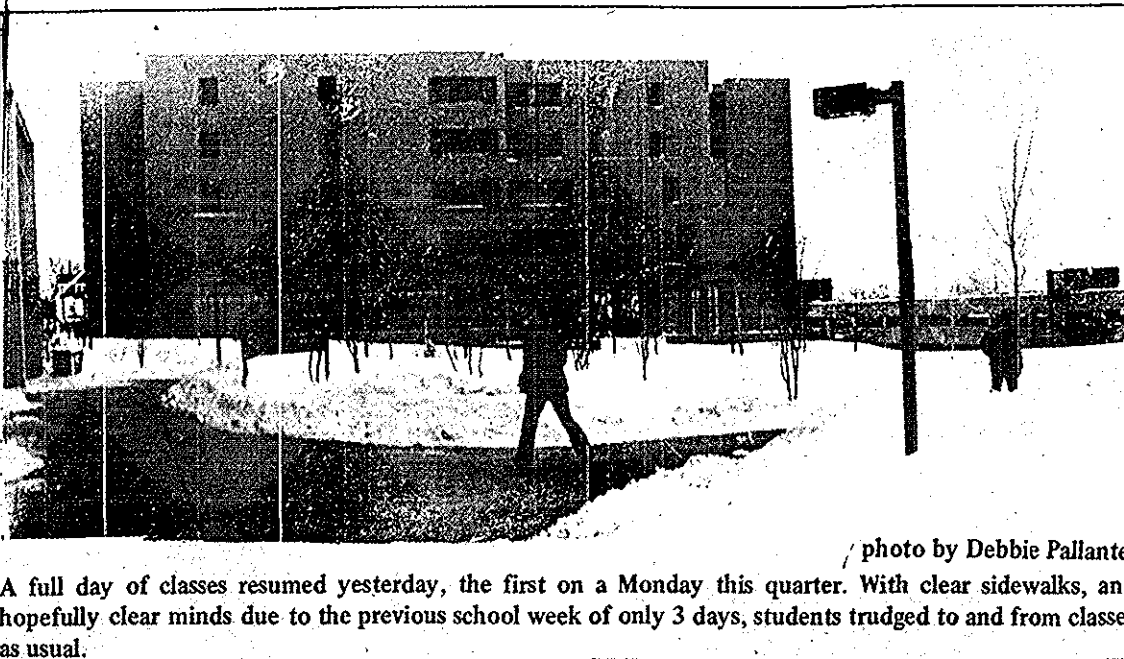

To qualify for the coordinator's position, an individual must have a Master's degree in student personnel administration, higher education, or a related field, and should have full-time experience in working with international students, immigration regulations, and international student activities programming.

President Coffelt will receive the applications for the vice presidency, and after extensive reviewing, will forward them to the Board of Trustees who will begin interviewing the candidates for possible selection, said Alderman.

Edgar and a University search committee will process the applications for the director of financial aids position, Alderman added.

Applications for the coordinator's position will be reviewed

Varied events to highlight YSU's '78 Winter Weekend

by Ann Stewart

An entertaining program of events will take place this weekend during YSU's Winter Weekend.

The agenda for the weekend was organized by the Winter Weekend Committee on the experience and success of previous Winter Weekend programs.

The events begin at 11 a.m. Thus., Jan. 26 with a snow-sculpture contest. Teams will consist of 10 members or less, and will engage in building snow monuments in the center campus area. Monuments must be at least two feet and no more than six feet in size. There are no restrictions on the width of the monuments, but no props or other means of construction are allowed. The monuments will be judged at 12:30 p.m. Entry forms for team sign up are available in the student activities office, located on the second floor of Kilcawley Center.

At 12 noon, 4 and 8 p.m., the KCPB film will be shown in the Multi-Purpose Room, Kilcawley Center. Academy Award winning One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest is the film starring Jack Nicholson, portraying R.P. Murphy, whose rebellious behavior in a mental institution brings him into conflict with Nurse Ratched, the domineering head nurse played by Louise Fletcher. Admission is $.75 with a student ID and $1.00 without an ID.

The Stroh's Superstar Competition kicks off Friday's events. The competition will be held in the Multi-Purpose Room from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. During this event, individuals and teams of four will compete against time in a set of relay-type races. The races involve frisbee throwing, bubble gum blowing, hula-hoop twirling, jump roping and paddle ball bouncing. Competition begins by throwing five frisbees through a target hoop. Participants then pick up a fresh piece of gum and blow one bubble. Participants then twirl a hula-hoop around their waist 25 times, jump rope 25 times and bounce a ball attached by an elastic string to a paddle 25 times.

Prizes will be awarded to both individual and team winners and include a Schwinn LeTour 10-speed bicycle, several kegs of Stroh's beer, Stroh's windbreakers, T-shirts, and mugs. Individuals and teams should sign up in advance in the student activities office.

The idea of the Stroh's Superstar Competition was decided upon by the Winter Weekend

Committee. According to Mark Shanley, coordinator of student activities, the committee thought the competition was "pretty neat." Shanley said, "the competition should go pretty well. People will see something going on in the Multi-Purpose Room and hopefully, come in."

Friday's agenda also includes the KCPB Happy Hour in the Pub from 1 to 4 p.m. Entertainment will be provided by the Youngstown Jazz Quintet. According to Shanley, the quintet is "one of the area's best." The members are students at Dana.

The events continue Friday night with the KCPB mini-concert, featuring the first National Rotagilla Band. The band, sometimes called the "Marx brothers of Rock," was brought back by popular demand from last year's Winter Weekend. The concert begins at 8:30 p.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room. Admission is $2.00 and tickets will be sold at the door only.

Saturday night, Jan. 28, Kilcawley Center "comes alive" with four big programs going on simultaneously from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. This will be the 3rd annual Casino night and Shanley said, "they get bigger and better everytime." Casino night will take place in the Snack Bar. There will be 20 casino games, including Black Jack, Roulette, Craps, and many others. Last year over 400 attended Casino night, with over $3 million dollars of play money in circulation.

The Kilcawley Arcade will be another area of excitement, where six filmed horse races will be shown. Participants in "Kilcawley Downs" will be able to place bets on their favorite horses. The odds will be computed and pay-offs made after the races.

Funds are frozen for thirty groups reports Glaros

by Irene Taylor
Student Council reporter

A veto by Student Council President George Glaros was the major topic of discussion at yesterday's Student Council meeting. Glaros vetoed a $1000 line item transfer for the YSU Jazz Ensemble, which Council had approved at its last meeting.

Initially, the $1000 was designated for the Ensemble's travel fund. The Ensemble won't be traveling as much this year and cannot use the $1000 allotment for that purpose. The Ensemble had petitioned Council to use the funds to buy a drum.

During its previous session, Council passed the transfer and Glaros belatedly voiced his objections to the transfer. Glaros feels council will set a dangerous precedent if it begins to buy equipment for student organizations.

Yesterday, when Council convened, it was presented with Glaros' veto of the transfer. After a great deal of discussion, Council passed a motion to table the matter until the Jazz Ensemble sends a representative to explain its side of the problem.

Glaros also announced that he is freezing the funds of 30 Student Government funded organizations. According to Glaros, last Friday was the deadline for the submission of the quarterly report of finances for Student Government funded organizations. Glaros said he only received 14 reports from the 44 organizations involved. "If an organization's funds remain frozen for more than one quarter, then their funds will go back into the general fee," Glaros said. Organizations involved will have to submit the quarterly report, along with an explanation for tardiness, in order to reopen their records.

In other action, Council elected Bob Porter, newly appointed council member from the School of Business, to the Kilcawley Center Program Board. Porter will serve as Council's representative to the board. He also serves as president of the Kilcawley Resident Hall Association.

At the end of the evening, a lottery will be held and six prizes will be auctioned off. Prizes include a pocket calculator, two instamatic cameras and three digital AM/FM clock radios.

The fourth event taking place during the evening will be the Winter Weekend dance, featuring "Church Street," a top rock dance band from Pittsburgh.

Weatherman says recent bad weather really not that bad

by Jeff Gallant

What does a weatherman say about the weather? Quite a bit. When asked about the recent weather, Dave Duisik, WYTV's meteorologist, replied, "It's not that cold."

Duisik explained that, compared to last winter, this winter has not been that cold. Another reason for the statement may be that Duisik just came from station WKOW in Madison, Wis., which has even colder winters than Youngstown.

"It (the temperature) has been slightly below normal, even though the winter is only one third over. We have not gotten as much snow as other areas because of storm tracts," said Duisik.

"Storm tracts," he explained, "are the flow of air in the upper atmosphere that guides storm systems on the earth's surface. Our current storm tract has been set up for two weeks. I see no change for the next two to three weeks."

Duisik attended St. Louis University in 1972 and obtained a B.S. in professional meteorology. He said that he got his practical experience from the Midwest Weather Service in Kansas City, where he worked four years. Duisik said the service did consultant work for business, industry, agriculture, aviation, radio and television.

Duisik makes his own weather predictions. "70% of my raw data comes from the National Meteorological Center in Suitland, Md. The other 30% comes from the Federal Aviation Agency in Kansas City. Based on the data, I use my training to come up with a forecast."

A weatherman, according to Duisik, is "merely a weather reporter, usually with no formal education. A meteorologist is a scientist using his skills to develop his own forecast."

"My prediction for this winter is that it will be below normal (in temperature) but not as bad as last winter," said Duisik. "I expect a cold, but not too cold, snowy winter." He said he also disagrees with the National Weather Service's prediction for below average amounts of precipitation.

Lack of coordination

In recent years, the number of extra-curricular programs and events presented on campus has greatly increased. In any quarter, it is possible to attend events ranging from a planetarium show to plays, concerts, lectures, movies or sports events.

But this increase in programming does produce problems when several different events are scheduled for the same time period.

The argument that conflicting programs attract different audiences is not necessarily true. It is not really so unlikely that a person would be interested in hearing Special Lecture Series Speaker Jack Anderson and the YSU Symphony concert, both of which are scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday.

One purpose of a University is to develop well-rounded individuals; offering a wide variety of extra-curricular events is a good way to accomplish this. But offering these events on the same night, so that a person must choose between one or the other, seems to defeat this purpose.

It is true that on a campus this size, scheduling events so that there is no overlapping would be impossible.

However, it might be helpful to establish some kind of center from which scheduling groups could find out what programs other departments have planned.

For example, the Kilcawley Center calendar office, which currently compiles the schedule of events to be held throughout the University, could be expanded to the extent that it could offer advice and help prevent conflicts of programming in as many cases as possible.

This is not to suggest that one office should be given control of the programming of all events. Scheduling should still remain up to the discretion of the individual organizations and departments, which know the needs and interests of their areas best. But the possibility of establishing some way to coordinate events presented on campus, so that a person can really enjoy the wide variety of programs offered, is one that should be looked into.

GUZ SAYS

by Guz Scullin

I never thought I'd see the day, when a happy-go-lucky cat like me couldn't find an easy-going rambling chick. But the day had come. I couldn't find a chick, not even one who would go with me to see Saturday Night Fever. And that was rock-bottom. So, I submitted my life to magnetic ink, in hopes of finding the girl for me. That is right, I have tried computer dating. The shame of it all.

It all started when this girl I was seeing gave me the old dump. It seems she didn't like being seen in public with a guy who wears vampire teeth and a wax moustache. She was one of those picky types. So, after weeks of calling up girls at random and striking out, I decided computer dating was the answer.

I went to "The Sunshine Computer Dating Service," located in the back of a laundromat on the Northside. I found out that computers do not work cheap, and that the cost of the service was $200. I'm not made of money, so I sold $800-worth of textbooks to a bookstore on campus. I received $186.65. The rest of the money I raised by begging. Then I went back to Sunshine Dating.

I was approached by a big, burly gent puffing on a cigar. I gave him the money and he gave me "The Sunshine Confidential In-depth Personal Questionnaire" to fill out. I can still remember some of the questions I had to answer.

"How old will you be in six

(6) years?"

"Do you have any rich relatives who can pay for our deluxe service?"

Do you have any kinky sexual habits (i.e. listening to Beatle records in the nude while thinking of a girl wearing a mini-skirt standing on a ladder)?"

"How old were you six (6) years ago?"

"Are you that big of a jerk that you can't find a girl by yourself, and you came to Sunshine Dating as a last chance?"

"How old are you right now?"

"List your hobbies and interests in alphabetical order."

"When were you born?"

Well, I answered all the questions, in ball point pen. I handed the questionnaire back to the burly gent, who was puffing on a three-inch ash. He slapped me on the back and said, "Don't worry kid, I don't think you're no loser." I then left, waiting for a call from Sunshine.

Six (6) days later the phone rang. In a brilliant move, I answered it. It was Sunshine Dating.

"Kid, you like French girls?"

"Sure, I guess."

"Well, we've got you matched up with this girl who had two quarters of French in high school."

"Wow, a cultured woman!"

I said,

"Yeah, her name is Jane."

"Jane, how lovely."

"She likes to swim, paint florescent portraits, play lacrosse, thread needles, read graffiti and darn socks while they are on the feet."

"Sounds interesting."

"Yeah, this one's something else. Oh, wait, I'm sorry, she got married twenty years ago. I forgot that. Besides, she is living in Peru."

"Oh rats."

"Sorry kid, I'll call you when something else comes up."

"O.K. thanks."

Yes, Jane was in and out of my life before I had the chance to know her.

About one week later, I got a second phone call from Sunshine Dating. The burly man told me that computer dating had succeeded in finding the perfect match. I was excited and anxious to find out what I had been fixed up with. He told me to be in the Maag Library at 8 p.m., and he would introduce me to my date. I hurried to the library. When I saw the burly gent, he was standing next to a copying machine.

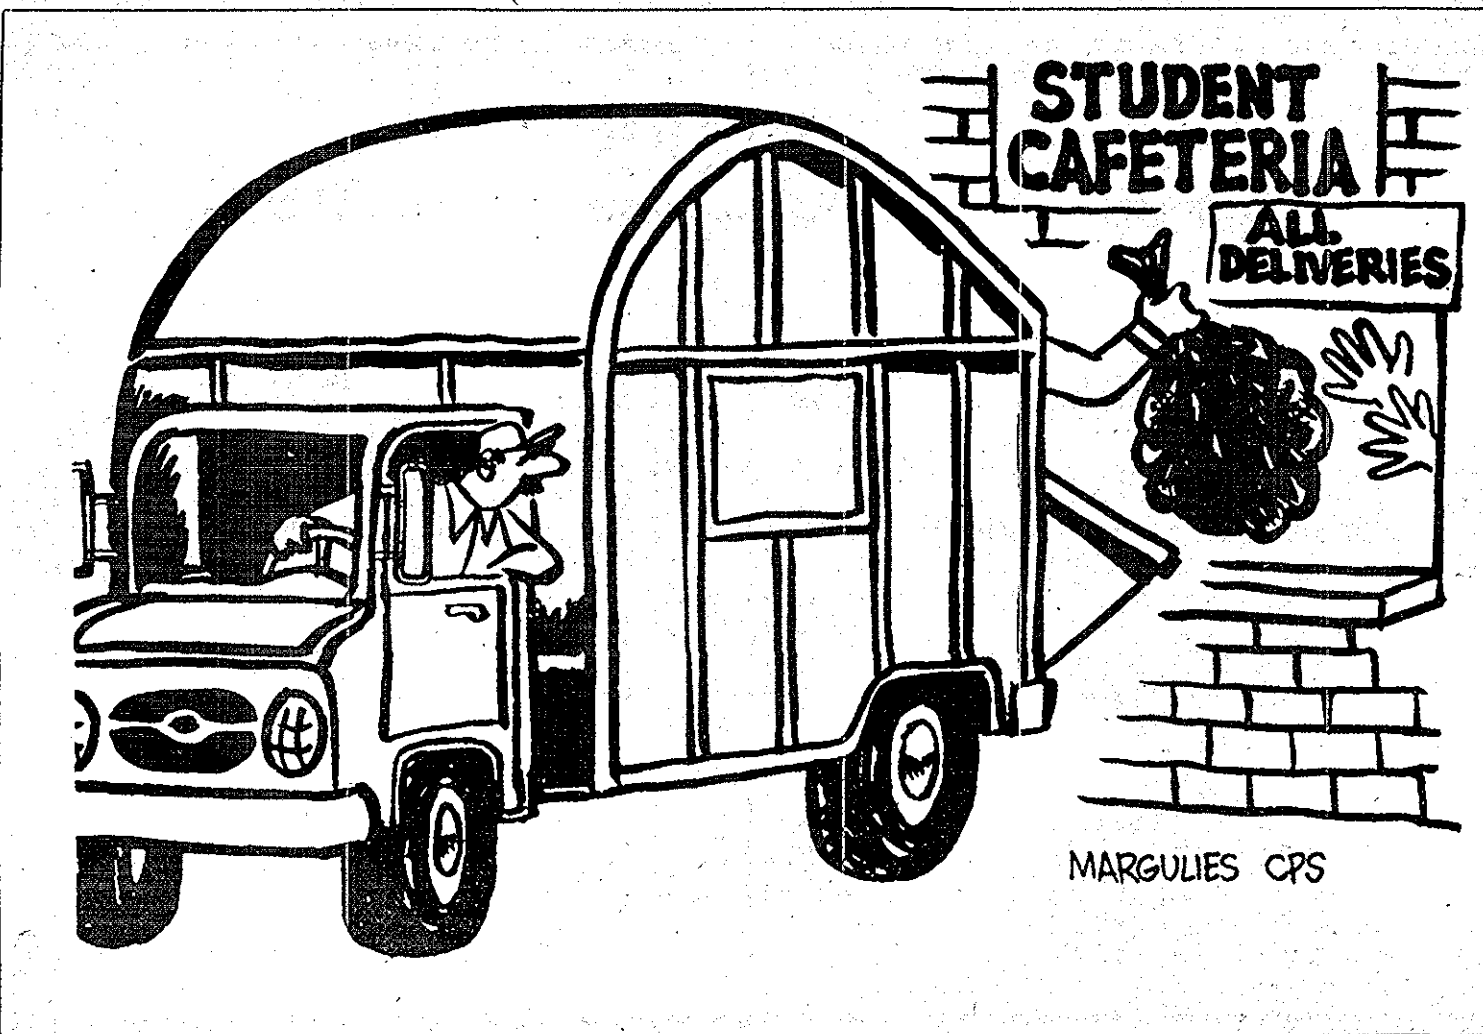

"Here she is kid."

"What is, where's my girl?"

"There are no girls in computer dating, kid, so you get to date computers. I couldn't get you a Xerox, so I guess you'll have to settle for this number," he said as he pointed to the copying machine.

Well, I now have my date, Gigi, I call her. She can copy anything, and I'm very proud of her. I think I'm falling in love-- with a copying machine!

Give till it helps.

Penguins end road jinx at Gannon, Covington hits game-winning tally

by Bill Snier

BULLETIN
YSU beats Steubenville 90-55 last night

The road jinx which has been plaguing the YSU Penguins throughout this season, finally came to an end Saturday night with a 62-61 victory over the Gannon Knights at Erie, Pennsylvania.

The win increased the Penguin's overall mark to 10-5 on the season but, more importantly, it was the team's first victory outside of the friendly confines of Beeghly Center.

The Penguin's margin of victory was a short jump shot off glass by All-American center Jeff Covington, who after his 25-point performance against the Knights, needs only 87 more points to become the all-time scoring leader in Penguin history, surpassing Tony Knott. The game, for the most part, was a seesaw battle with the Penguins biggest lead being only seven points which they held late in the first half. But two key Penguin starters got into foul trouble with Frank Andrews and Gerald Parks each picking up their third with time remaining in the half, enabling Gannon to reduce the deficit to 40-35 at the half.

The Knights managed to build up a 57-52 lead late in the game and held on to a three-point lead with only three minutes remaining. Gannon then went into a four-corner offense to force the Penguins to foul. But the Knights suffered two key turnovers which enabled first, for Frank Andrews to hit a short jumper to pull the Penguins within one and then, to allow Jeff Covington to pop in his game winning bank shot.

Gannon twice had chances in the last eighteen seconds to pull the game out, but, a shot by Tony Jones rolled off the rim and his follow-up was also short of the mark, with sophomore guard Chris Wisneski coming up with the key rebound.

The Penguins cashed in on 26 of 56 shots from the field for 46 percent while the Knights were able to hit only 23 of 55 for 41 percent. The accuracy of YSU from the foul line was a definite advantage as the Penguins hit 10 of 11 free throws to Gannon's 15 of 23.

YSU had three scorers hit double figures, with Jeff Covington topping all scorers with 25 points. Gerald Parks and Frank Andrews contributed ten points apiece.

After last night's contest with Steubenville, the Penguins will return home on Wednesday night to face the tough Northern Kentucky Norsemen, who are currently ranked fourth in the nation in Division II. Tip-off time is 8 p.m.

Votino enjoys the challenge of playing a big man's game

by John Creer

It may be more than mere coincidence that the current rise in fortunes of YSU's basketball squad has coincided with the return and subsequent development of diminutive Joe Votino.

Votino, whose 5'5" frame carries 140 pounds, has bounced back in fine fashion from a broken right index finger which had sidelined him for the initial six games this season. During Votino's absence, head coach Dom Rosselli's club played on even terms at 3-3. However, since Joe's return, YSU has reigned victorious in eight of their last ten outings, including last night's win over Steubenville. The game-by-game development of Votino, who is still nagged by the injury, has been one of the biggest reasons for YSU's recent success.

The prototype of a player which cliques such as "Little Hustler," "Pete Rose-type," et al were created, Votino's style which, at times, resembles the closest thing to perpetual motion this side of a NASA research center, has not gone unnoticed and has earned the well-built and quick sophomore guard, respect from most observers, including Rosselli. The 5'5" Dom, who in Votino has a rare player, he can talk eye-to-eye to, says, that "I'm well-pleased with Joe's play...it he certainly has been a big help with our successful season so far." Rosselli continues by remarking, "Votino has been a sparkplug to our club. He's a leader who's not afraid to criticize his teammates when he feels it's necessary." In regards to his size, I think that it means nothing...there's a very redundant but applicable phrase which says that 'what counts' comes from within a player...his determination and heart. After all, Monty Towe is 5-5 and he led North Carolina State into the NCAA Division I finals several seasons ago."

Joe bluntly states that "my so-called small size has never bothered me at all. I feel I can compete with anyone and certainly enjoy the challenge of participating in a 'big man's game'."

Votino has played like a "Big Man" throughout high school and college. At Sharon Kennedy High School, Joe held seven school records, including a 17 points-per-game scoring average and led his teammates to a heady number eight ranking in the state polls, which earned him All-League and All-County honors, before graduating in 1975. Ironically, most of Votino's schoolboy marks were later erased by Joe Lombardi, who is now Votino's understudy at YSU.

In fact, Lombardi did a commendable job during Votino's absence because of the broken finger but since his return Joe has performed like he'll never relinquish his spot at point guard. At this position Joe, who inherited it from the graduated Terry Moore, has the responsibility of, as he puts it, "setting our game up and maintaining a smooth flow of things. I am not especially supposed to be a shooter but given the opportunity, I will go to the hoop."

At the onset of training camp this fall, the job of point guard was there for the taking and the gutsy Votino, who gave up summer work to practice 4 hours daily, to the surprise of many including this writer, stepped forward and unquestionably earned the starting berth. Replacing Moore, who holds every assist mark at YSU and was the catalyst for last year's very successful tourney team, is a big chore to fill and Joe admits that "at first I felt that I had certain expectations to live up to. However, I now realize that Terry's style and mine are not alike, after all he did have more experience than me and he was a better penetrator." Joe stresses that "I learned a lot from practicing with Terry last season and also just from watching him perform."

McGlasson, Statzer named second-team All-Americans

Junior center Ed McGlasson and sophomore safety Kevin Statzer capped an outstanding football season for YSU by being named to the Churchmen's All-America Squad. Both were second-team selections.

The Churchmen's All-America team is selected by a committee headed by Charles E. Jackson of Tullahoma, Tenn., the founder of the Churchmen's International Sports Hall of Fame.

Players are selected on the basis of their productivity in church and social areas, as much as for their football ability.

"Ed McGlasson and Kevin Statzer really exemplify the type of character that every football coach would love to have on his team," said YSU football coach Bill Narduzzi.

"Both are fine football players and fine gentlemen. They are both to be congratulated for this honor."

McGlasson, from Potomac, Md., is a 6-3, 235-pound center who has been a steady and consistent performer for the Penguins. A two-year starter and letterman, McGlasson anchored an offensive line which was instrumental in YSU setting a new school mark for most points in a season.

"I feel great," said McGlasson. "Praise the Lord. Without Him it wouldn't have been possible."

"It's a big honor for YSU to have two players selected. I owe a great deal to the coaches who kept telling me how to improve myself. Max Maley (senior guard) was a great inspiration to me with his constant encouragement and prodding."

A native of Hamilton, O., the 6-2, 195-pound Statzer is third on YSU's all-time interception list despite being just a sophomore. He now has six career interceptions. He led the Penguins in 1977 in that category with four.

Speaking of his selection to this All-America team, Statzer said: "It's a big honor because of the nature of this particular All-America squad. You can't receive any recognition unless you're on a good team, and I was fortunate enough to have been on a great one. And I thank God for that."

McGlasson and Statzer are among 18 starters who will return for YSU from last year's squad.

INTRAMURALS

Again this year, the Intramural Office is offering men's wrestling. The due date for entries is Monday, February 6, 1978 at 12:00 noon. The tournament will be held in the Gymnastics Room of Beeghly.

In order to be eligible for wrestling, you must attend at least one of the clinics and weigh-in sessions offered by the Intramural Office. The clinics will be held in the wrestling room on Monday, February 13 from 7-9 p.m. and Thursday, February 16 from 7-9 p.m. The purpose of the clinics is to certify wrestling competence and to determine competition weight, which must be made during all tournament matches.

Competition will be held in the following weight classes, 118 pounds and under, 126 and under, 134 and under, 142 and under, 150 and under, 167 and under, 177 and under, 190 and under, and heavyweight.

Individuals can wrestle on weight class above their actual weight. Each organization is limited to two men in each weight class and a maximum of ten men per team.

ing him in action would agree that Joe has learned well and is doing a pretty good job of performing himself. Votino's scoring a shade over four points a game but more importantly, heads the squad in assists with 51 including a career high of 14 last week against Ashland, and has become a true team "quarterback," despite enduring the "growing pains" of mental mistakes such as indecision and poor ballhandling which are gradually becoming few and far in between.

Like the rest of his teammates, Votino's goal right now is "to help earn a post-season play off berth. We are all confident that we can achieve it but the tourney will be hard to achieve considering that we've already lost five games (against 11 wins) with 16 games to go."

Women's team cops opener; Vicki Lawrence paces win

The YSU women's basketball team opened up the season here last week with an impressive victory over Hiram College.

Coach Joyce Ramsey called it "A total team effort, the bench came in and contributed alot to the victory."

Wearing a collegiate uniform for the first time was freshman guard Vicki Lawrence who led all scorers with 30 points. Also contributing to the scoring was freshman Wanda Grant with 17 points.

Junior center Linda Fredericks, who was the leading scorer off of last year's 9-9 squad, led the team in rebounds with seven.

The Penguins led from the outset of the game and rolled up a 51-27 lead by half-time. Due to the lopsided score, the five starters-junior guard Cindy Diatko, freshman guard Vicki Lawrence, junior forward Janey Petrek, freshman forward Wanda Grant, and junior center Linda Fredericks, only saw seven minutes of action as a unit.

The women's team will play their next game Wednesday, January 25, when they host Kent State University at 6 p.m. It will be the first half of a double-header with the men, who will battle Northern Kentucky.

Rotagilla Band returns to YSU with 'off-the-wall' entertainment

The 1st National Rotagilla Band returns to YSU on Fri., Jan. 27 in the first KCPB mini-concert of winter quarter.

They're an "off-the-wall, very rowdy band," said Jackie Caventer, chairman of KCPB. She added, "They are a highly energetic group. Their performance is very entertaining. It's interspersed with comical songs and jokes."

Instrumentally, Rotagilla (alligator spelled backwards) is quite diversified. They play traditional guitars, banjo and drums, as well as washtub bass, washboard and kazoo.

The six-member band performed at YSU last year and Caventer said there have been numerous requests for their return.

Among the credits of this Florida-based rock group is an appearance on the Midnight Special and performances at colleges, clubs, festivals and fairs around the country.

The members of Rotagilla describe themselves as "funny, rowdy, goofy, entertaining, a giggle, wacko, crazy, fun, looney shakey and last, your friend.

Definitely not a dance band for your senior prom."

That gives you an idea of exactly what type of band they are. What they like to do are spoofs-of ragtime blues, of disco, of country, of everything.

Rotagilla will be appearing at 8:30 p.m., Fri., Jan. 27 in the Kilcawley Chestnut Room. Tickets are $2.00.

The next KCPB mini-concert will feature Alex Bevan on Feb. 11 after the YSU Basketball game.

Duisik

Is the world getting colder? Duisik said that in the past "15 to 25 years, the earth has cooled one-half degree centigrade."

It will probably continue for the next 15 to 25 years. If temperatures are too cool, glaciers would start to advance south. However, he added, the U.S. is not necessarily getting colder winters, because temperatures vary through out the world.

On the other hand, he said that if the earth's temperature warms up, the glaciers would start to melt and sea levels would rise. Cities like Boston, New Orleans, Los Angeles and any coastal city near sea level would be threatened. He also added not to worry. "Something like that will not be happening for a long time."
