

Dean of Graduate Studies

YSU News Service

YSU - Dr. Peter John Kasvinsky, assistant vice president for graduate studies and research at Bloomsburg University in Pennsylvania since 1989, has been named dean of Graduate Studies at YSU, effective Aug. 15.

"We are quite pleased to have someone with Dr. Kasvinsky's experience join the YSU leadership team at a time when we are re-evaluating some of our graduate and research programs and exploring the possibility of expanding others," said Dr. Cochran, president of YSU.

Kasvinsky taught in the biochemistry department of the School of Medicine at Marshall University in Huntington, WV from 1979-89. From 1986-1989 he was the director of research development and graduate studies at Marshall University Medical School. Kasvinsky also served on the graduate faculty of West Virginia University in Morgantown, WV while at Marshall

"Dr. Kasvinsky's experience in undergraduate and graduate teaching, and research and administration gives him superb qualifications for the job as dean of graduate studies at YSU," said Dr. James J. Scanlon, YSU provost.