Should You Apply For Financial Aid?

For all students who will be considering Youngstown State University, the answer is yes. Studies show that financial aid is likely to be an important consideration in the final selection of a college for many students. In fact, half of all college students nationwide are receiving some form of financial help.

Although students from families of modest means usually receive more need-based aid than those from affluent backgrounds, there are other determinants of financial aid eligibility besides income. At YSU, the annual family income of students receiving aid ranges from less than $5,000 to over $15,000.

Eligibility for financial aid is based upon a determination of your financial need, which is the difference between the total cost of your education and what you and your family can contribute toward that cost from your own financial resources.

Total Cost of Education

- Estimated Family Contribution
- Financial Need

Since gross family income is often not an accurate indication of a family’s true financial situation, you should never assume that you will not qualify for aid on the basis of your parents’ income. However, in order to determine your eligibility, YOU MUST APPLY. Only the thorough review of your family’s income, assets, expenses and other financial circumstances can reveal your true need.

Because of funding limitations and award processes, you will need to apply early (February 15) for optimal consideration. Be sure to complete both the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and Youngstown State University’s Institutional Aid Application. In order for us to process your financial aid in a timely manner, the FAFSA should be sent to the federal government between January 1, 2001 and February 15, 2001.

Our institutional code is 003145.

Financial aid at YSU takes many forms. Student musicians earn loot while they loot at special events and athletic competitions.

You don’t have to miss out on all of college education offers because of financial considerations. At YSU, we are committed to helping you get the money you need.

Federal Work-Study

Federal Work-Study is need-based employment on a part-time, non-cash service, hourly basis. The rate of pay for such jobs is regulated by the federal minimum wage law. Federal Loan Programs

Youngstown State University offers loan assistance from the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP). There are two types of loans made to students attending school at least half time. You participate in the FFELP, where loans are made by a lender such as a bank, credit union, or savings and loan association. These loans are issued by a guaranty agency and reimbursed by the federal government. You must repay this loan.

The subsidized Federal Stafford Loan is based on financial need as determined by your FAFSA, the result of applying for federal student aid. The unsubsidized Federal Stafford Loan is awarded on the basis of your dependency status and cost of your education, minus other financial aid. The interest rate is variable, but not higher than 8.25 percent. Repayment of these loans begins after you graduate, leave school, or drop below half-time for six months. Eligible students must maintain satisfactory academic progress and cannot be in default on any Title IV aid.

Federal PLUS loans enable parents with good credit histories to borrow for each child who is enrolled at least half time and is considered dependent by federal standards. These loans, like Federal Stafford loans, are made by a lender such as a bank, credit union, or savings and loan, and are awarded on the basis of the cost of your education minus other financial aid. The interest rate is variable, but not higher than 7.9%. You must indicate on the FAFSA that you are interested in this program and must file each year.

How to Apply for Scholarships and Financial Aid

If you are interested in applying for any financial aid, you must first complete one of two forms:

1) Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA)
2) Renewal Application which will be mailed to any student who completed the FAFSA in the prior school year.

Once this form is completed and mailed to the processing center, you will receive an Institutional Student Information Record (ISIR) or EISR. The ISIR determines your eligibility for a Federal Pell Grant and Ohio Instructional Grant. The Office of Financial Aid and Scholarship also uses the ISIR to determine your need for other types of need-based aid such as Federal Perkins Loan, Federal Work-Study, and FSEOG to determine your eligibility for any of the Federal Family Education Loans (subsidized and unsubsidized Federal Stafford and PLUS loans).

You must complete the YSU Institutional Aid Application (part of Admission Application for new YSU students) to be considered for some need-based aid or other miscellaneous scholarships. Applications are available in the Office of Undergraduate Recruitment and Admissions and are due February 15.

Students who would like to be considered for Federal Work-Study, Federal Perkins Loans, or Federal Stafford Loans should so indicate on the FAFSA. All available oncampus student employment positions are posted in the Office of Student Life, located in Kinnear Center.

Transfer Students
When you transfer from another college or university to YSU, your financial aid does not automatically go with you. Whether or not you received financial aid from your previous institution, you will need to send a Financial Aid Transcript to YSU if you attend another college during the same academic year, you will enroll at YSU. This means a student enrolled at another school in the spring and fall full-time begins will be required to submit a transcript from that school, as would a student enrolled at another school for fall or winter terms. Without transcript information, you will not receive aid from Federal Title IV programs. If you have a Federal Pell Grant or federal loans, YSU's six-digit code: 003143. must be listed as one of your college choices on the FAFSA in order to have your aid transferred. If YSU is not currently listed, we can add it to your FAFSA. Information by request with your Personal Identification Number (PIN). If you had a Stafford or PLUS loan, you'll have to reapply. Please note: You will need to cancel the loan you had at your previous school by contacting your lender (FEEP or Federal Direct Loan) or your previous school's financial aid office (federal direct loan). If you had a federal Perkins loan, a Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, or a federal Work-Study job, check with the YSU Office of Financial Aid and Scholarships to find out if funds from these programs are available. If you received an Ohio Instructional Grant, you must complete a Student Transfer Form and submit it to State Grants and Scholarships.

When To Apply
Be sure to apply for financial aid as soon as possible after January 1. It is important to remember that you will need your own and your family's income tax returns to complete the FAFSA. The Institutional Aid Application should also be filed early to ensure optimum consideration, but no later than February 15.

Notification of Award
If you have been accepted for admission and have completed your applications by the appropriate deadlines, you will receive notification of your financial aid award status as soon as possible. If you are eligible to receive financial aid, the award notice will include a summary of your financial aid package specifying the type and amount of each award.

If your family's financial situation has changed dramatically since you filled out your original application, you may request a review of your award. To do so, contact the YSU Office of Financial Aid and Scholarships.

NOTE: Males 18 to 26 years old must be registered with the Selective Service before any aid can be disbursed.

Estimating College Costs
How much does college cost? When you begin comparing the expenses you will incur at different public and private colleges and universities, include the indirect as well as the direct costs in your calculations.

Tuition, fees, room and board are direct costs for which you will be billed. Equally important, although often overlooked, are the indirect costs of college, such as books, supplies, personal expenses, and travel. When you apply for financial aid, it is important to find out which of these costs your aid will cover.

At YSU, the budget we use in determining the amount of your financial aid includes both direct and indirect costs.

What Will You And Your Family Be Expected To Pay?

The cost of a YSU education can be met using a variety of resources—your own, your family’s, private grants or scholarships, etc. Few students are able to pay the full cost of their education from family resources. Most receive some type of financial aid—grants, scholarships, loans and/or employment—to make up the difference.

The amount you are expected to pay will be based on what it is determined you and your family can afford to pay, i.e., Expected Family Contribution.

Because the definition of “family” will vary for different readers, some clarification may be helpful.

If you are just graduating from high school and living with your parents, “family contribution” means that amount of money you and your parents should be able to contribute to your education. If, on the other hand, you are considered an independent student (based on the criteria listed below), “family contribution” means the amount you and your spouse, if you are married, will be able to provide for your education.

Any one of the following criteria (simplified here) may qualify you to apply for financial aid as an independent student. You are:

- At least 24 years old
- A veteran of the U.S. armed forces
- A graduate/professional student enrolled beyond a bachelor’s degree
- A married student
- A ward of the court, or both parents are deceased
- A student with legal dependents other than a spouse

Expected Family Contribution—What Is It? How Is It Determined?

The expected Family Contribution is the amount of money you and your family should be able to contribute to your education. It is determined by the U.S. Department of Education based on information you supply in the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

To calculate your expected family contribution, the Department of Education looks at your family’s total financial situation. They consider such factors as family size, the number of family members attending college, as well as your and your parents’ income and assets. Such non-taxable income or benefits as Social Security, veteran’s benefits, welfare payments, unemployment compensation, and financial aid awards you may have received from other sources are also included in their calculations.

Standards of Satisfactory Academic Progress

Satisfactory academic progress is reviewed annually during the spring term. An appeals process is in place. The standards of satisfactory academic progress for the continuance of federal financial aid is as follows:

Federal regulations require that financial aid recipients maintain satisfactory academic progress to remain eligible for federal financial assistance. Federal programs subject to these requirements include Federal Pell Grants, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Federal Perkins Loans, Federal College Work Study, and all Federal Stafford Loan Programs.

Youngstown State University’s satisfactory academic progress requirements include three components: 1) minimum grade point average, 2) maximum time frame to earn the degree sought, and 3) percentage completion rates. Youngstown State University’s Office of Financial Aid & Scholarships assures compliance with these requirements annually during the spring term. Students not in compliance with these requirements are suspended from federal financial aid eligibility, effective with the start of the next term.

Grade Point Average

Graduate programs: Students must be maintaining a cumulative YSU GPA of 3.00 at the time of the annual assessment.

Undergraduate programs: At the time of the annual assessment, students must have a cumulative YSU GPA of 1.75 if 32 to 49 credit hours have been attempted, and a cumulative YSU GPA of 2.00 if 50 or more credit hours have been attempted. Attempted hours include accepted transfer hours plus all hours attempted as of the last day to add a class.

Students academically suspended cannot receive federal financial aid during the period of suspension.

Time Frame

When a student’s attempted hours, as defined above, reach 150% of the maximum hours needed to obtain an associate or bachelor’s degree, federal financial aid eligibility will be suspended as part of the next annual assessment of satisfactory academic progress.

Percentage Completion

At the time of the annual assessment, completed hours as a percent of attempted hours, as defined above, must meet the following minimum requirements:

- Freshmen: 65%
- Sophomores: 70%
- Juniors: 75%
- Seniors and above: 80%

Rank is also calculated based on attempted hours.

Credit Hours Not Accepted

For federal financial aid satisfactory academic progress purposes, attempted hours include actual hours and withdrawals made by the last date to add a class. Completed hours include the following grades: Failed, NC/no credit, AU/audited, Incomplete, Withdrawal. For Incompletes, note that the credit hours apply to the term in which the student was enrolled in the course, not the term the student was making up the Incomplete.

Reinstatement of Federal Aid

To reinstate your federal aid eligibility, you must meet the minimum GPA and percentage completion requirements or go through the appeals process. The time limit can be extended only with an appeal and an academic advisor’s evaluation. Credits transferable from other institutions will be included in any recalculations for percentage completion purposes but only YSU grades enter into the GPA calculation.

Students must attend school without federal financial assistance while clearing their satisfactory academic progress unless an appeal is granted. Appeals must be made to the Office of Financial Aid & Scholarships, and supporting documentation may be required. When reinstatement is granted, a student may only be considered for those financial aid funds available at that time. Contact the Office of Financial Aid & Scholarships for an appeal form and for additional information on deadlines and conditions.

Financial Aid Refund Policy

The refunding of financial aid funds corresponds to federal regulations and YSU’s refund policy regarding withdrawal from classes. This policy is explained in greater detail in the Undergraduate Bulletin.
Financial Aid Time Line

February 15  Priority deadline for filing Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and submitting YSU's Institutional Aid Application.

March 15  YSU starts awarding need-based aid. To be considered, your 2001-2002 FAFSA must be complete.

April 13  Your FAFSA results must be complete and accurate. If you are selected for verification, this process must be finalized before need-based aid can be awarded.

May 1  Most need-based aid funding is exhausted.

July 13  Submit YSU loan request/confirmation form to the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarships by this date to ensure all semester funds arrive on time. To be processed, your 2001-2002 results must be complete.

What happens when you do not meet deadlines?

Failure to submit your FAFSA and YSU's Institutional Aid Application on time may result in lost opportunities for need-based campus aid, as well as delays in processing. Financial need cannot be determined without complete and accurate FAFSA results. If you are selected for verification, this process must be finalized before need-based aid can be awarded. Funding for need-based campus aid is limited; by May 1, most of this aid is already committed for the upcoming academic year. To avoid delays in receiving loan money for next year, make sure your FAFSA is complete and your YSU loan request/confirmation form is submitted to YSU's financial aid office by July 13.

If you do not meet these timelines, you may need to make other arrangements to pay your bill.

You're unique. You have qualities and skills all your own—dreams, goals, and things you really care about. What you need is a place to foster who you are and who you're about to become. Youngstown State University is the place—offering you the chance to explore options, to build a rewarding career, to challenge and expand your mind, and to broaden your social life. On the next pages, meet six YSU students who have recently begun their college journeys. See what YSU has given them, and what it may hold for you. When you're finished reading, call us to begin your own journey with a campus tour. We can't wait to find out what you're all about.
You have a lot going for you. The world, as they say, is your oyster. At this point in your life, you can be almost anything, do almost anything, and dream without limits.

During the next two or four years of your college education, you're going to change in ways you never thought possible. You're going to encounter new points of view, form some new opinions, encounter different kinds of people, refine your vision of your future, find ways to improve the world, and establish yourself as an actor in the life of the next century.

Pretty tall order. At Youngstown State University, you can make it all happen. Here you will find the people, the programs, and the place. Just add you.

After all, it's your UI!
"When you get out and encounter different cultures, that's when you grow as a person. Timothy has done that."

Dr. Ivania delPozo, Associate Professor, Foreign Languages and Literatures

It's Brazilian Carnival night for those who live atYSU residence halls. Several times a year, the students are treated to something way beyond the regular evening meal in the dining commons. Tonight, they are fed a gourmet South American feast. Hot Brazilian music plays while students go from one highly decorated buffet table to another. It's like the food you would find on a cruise ship—exciting and unfamiliar dishes like shrimp with peanut sauce, mango chutney, and steamed crab legs with Brazilian spices served with drawn butter. At one table, a chef sets bananas with butter, sugar, and rum afire, and pours the mixture over a rich chocolate brownie. Timothy Mott is in his glory.

A Gentleman and a Scholar

As a University Scholar, Timothy is a recipient of a fullride academic scholarship to YSU, and he knows how lucky that makes him. "I see some of my friends who went to other schools, they're already $10,000 in debt—and they're only nineteen years old!" Timothy's scholarship covers room and board, tuition, and even textbooks. In return, he and other University Scholars are to keep a high G.P.A., take honors courses, and perform a community service.

"I've gotten involved with the Big Brothers program," says Timothy. He and twelve-year-old Alonso "take walks, or talk, or sometimes we get together and play music. Alonso plays the congas—big drums. He gets two of 'em. He keeps a really good beat. His grandfather plays guitar, and I'll take my trombone down to their house, and we'll just kind of jam. The music we play is traditional Puerto Rican. They don't have anything written down, but I try to keep up.

"The Big Brothers program is really fun. I mean, it gives me something to look forward to other than just doing homework. Hey, I'm going to be here for four years—I want to do something besides just study.

Reaching Out

students with faculty mentors.

Student About Teacher

"Well, you know, I like to keep the class interesting. But let me tell you about Timothy. He is a special person. He's a good student, but what sets him apart is something else. We brought in fifteen Hispanic students from the inner city for the Mariposa Project. They developed web pages and did other computer projects here on campus. Timothy volunteered to help with the project, but he went way beyond what all the others did. He got involved with the children—taught them to play basketball games and to dinner. He's too much! When you get out and encounter different cultures, that's when you grow as a person. Timothy has done that."

Teacher About Student

About YSU's Spanish classes, Timothy says, "I took a business Spanish class with Dr. delPozo. It was totally different than a lot of classes I've had. It was more hands-on—and Dr. delPozo, she has so much energy. Oh, she'll almost jump around the classroom—to the chalkboard, back to her seat. She's so energetic; it makes the class realy fun."

What Makes Him Tick?

desde para esta vida es muy sencillo, sólo quiero
si a otros mi tiempo y toda mi energía."

Translation: "My desire for this life is very simple. I only want to serve others with my time and all my energy."
Even in the age of computers and video, YSU faculty continue to demonstrate that technology can enhance—but not replace—person-to-person learning and teaching. Our full-time tenure faculty—many of them noted researchers and scholars—are right there in the undergraduate classrooms, one instructor for every 20 students. That means you get the opportunity to ask questions and get the time you need from professors. Large lecture sessions often found at larger universities are the exception at YSU—not the usual fate of undergraduates.

David Pollack, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Mathematics and Statistics

"Faculty here are genuinely interested in teaching. They care about the well being and success of the students. It's not uncommon here for faculty to include students in conferences, presentations, and special projects, and generally try to help them along. Students often develop long-term connections with their professors. They keep in touch and get advice and help while they're here, and often maintain the communication after they graduate."

The academic environment at YSU also features:
- over 100 undergraduate majors from traditional to high-tech
- faculty and staff mentoring programs
- the latest computer and software
- individualized curriculum options so you can build your own major if you want
- online research services and a comprehensive library
- opportunities to participate in faculty research projects
- undergraduate access to advanced equipment like the x-ray diffractometer (above) for research projects

Co-ops & Internships

You can cut the competition in the job market significantly by having a co-op or internship under your belt. YSU has plenty of them available.

Thom Mills
Senior, Accounting
Intern with the Ohio State Auditor's Office

"This internship has given me some great experience in interpersonal relationships. I've gotten to see how people operate in a number of different settings. I get to see many more aspects of the business world than I could from just being hired into one company right after graduation.

"I'm getting the same experience that I'd have as a full-time employee. The people I work for get to see what I can do for them, and that's a real advantage when it comes to hiring—for them and for me. I've also talked to a couple of accounting firms, and they get real interested when I tell them I'm in an internship program."

Tutoring

Youngstown State offers tutoring and peer assistance in all subject areas. Tutoring is regularly scheduled for the main intro courses and by special arrangement in more advanced classes.

More intensive help is offered through the University's various learning centers: the Writing Center, Mathematics Assistance Center, and Reading and Study Skills Center.
"To know that the students’ hard work allowed a history-making event to take place was simply more than we could stand." - Tamica Green, Akron, Ohio

YSU Sociology major

It’s the afternoon of May 4, and a group of students is standing by the room in the student center. They are excited and nervous, and talk animatedly among themselves. A door opens, and Coretta Scott King is escorted into the room.

Tamica Green, up to this point composed and together, begins to cry.

Tamica has been the central figure in the concept and planning of Youngstown State University’s first diversity conference, “Beyond the Comfort Zone: Exploring Diversity Initiatives.” She’s spent the past four months making phone calls, lining up speakers, booking rooms, asking for money, organizing volunteers—and still keeping up with her classes. Now, everything has come together—the conference, Mrs. King, and Tamica’s vision of making a difference in the life of the University. It’s a defining moment.

Sisterhood

Zeta Phi Beta, Tamica’s sorority, prides itself on developing what they call “finer womanhood.” These women cultivate what is called “finer” about themselves through involvement in a number of philanthropic causes like the March of Dimes, Stork’s Nest, a program that offers low-cost clothing and parenting classes for families in need.

To Tamica, her sorority is very much like family—and that is what’s best about it. “The sisterhood is really important to me. I was the only girl in my family, and growing up, I didn’t have a lot of friends. I always had my head in a book or something. Now I have the sisterhood—the common kinship. My sorority sisters and I can finish each other’s sentences—we are that close. Like with my sorority sister Shannon—I know I can depend on her for whatever. If I do something stupid, she’ll say, ‘Okay, you did something stupid, but I’ll still stand by you.’ Unconditional friendship is rare; you don’t find that in very many places.

Career benefits

Tamica says that, “being involved makes me more marketable to employers after college. Companies will see that I’m involved and know that I’m well-rounded.”

In the Thick of It

“I like to be directly involved in things,” Tamica says—and that is she is. She’s president of the National Pan-Hellenic Council (NPHC), the governing body for nine African American fraternities and sororities on campus. She’s also a member of the Student Government, vice president of her sorority, and founder of the SYP NAACP chapter. NPHC advisor Robin Bradley says, “She’s a real go-getter, and she has lots of ideas. I don’t know how she does it—raising kids and going to school. I don’t know where all her strength comes from.”

Mom’s Time

“I was a teen mom, and so I didn’t have time to do much of anything extra in high school,” says Tamica. “Now that I’m an adult, it means even more to me to participate. And I feel a responsibility to my campus as well—to make sure that my University is living up to its creed to support diversity and to give students things to do on campus.”

Scholarships reward more than classwork. Tamica was a recipient of an Alpha’s Leadership Scholarship for her involvement in extracurricular activities.

Tamica in Ten

When asked what she might be up to in ten years, Tamica says, “I will have my master’s degree by then. I’m not going to stop—I’ll probably be working on my Ph.D. Or (laughing) I’ll probably be in prison for some kind of controversial radical stuff—like having myself tied to a tree for some cause.”

Tamica’s Wise Words

“You know, you hear older people talking about ‘evolving’ and whatever, and you’re thinking, ‘Yeah, okay, whatever.’ Well, it really does happen. One of the great things about college is that there is a time for everything. I used to think about nothing else but my sorority and making Homecoming court. There was a time for all those things and more. Over the course of four years, you grow, and as you do, different things take priority in your life.”

Tamica discusses her final project with Dr. Patricia Gilmartin who teaches courses in social statistics, women’s humor, women’s health, and the family. Tamica has taken all of these courses. She really enjoys Dr. Gilmartin’s style. “She’s a real person who can talk about anything with her classes, and she works with her students so they can be the best they can possibly be,” says Tamica. • Tamica is elected to Homecoming Court—another dream realized.

Tamica picks up daughter Talia from school.
Show me the MONEY

- YSU is committed to assuring access to everyone, regardless of their financial circumstances.
- Close to 75% of all YSU students receive some form of financial aid.
- Financial aid counselors are available to help you find the money you need.

Maggie Pentz
Sophomore, Music Education

"I started getting financial aid my first quarter here. I've got a Pell Grant, a Dean's Scholarship, an Ohio Instructional Grant, and a loan, so I'm pretty much covered."

"My advice to new students is, Don't think you can't qualify for aid. You probably can. But you have to apply, and do it early—in winter of your senior year in high school. The forms aren't too bad, and the financial aid counselors will help you. They'll be able to tell you even before you enroll what kind of money you can get. The people here are always willing to work with you."

Apply yourself!

You can qualify for some really solid scholarships and awards, and you don't have to be a genius to meet the criteria. Some things you could try for:

- Trustees' Scholarships, President's Scholarships, Deans' Scholarships—reward you if you've done outstanding work in high school
- Leadership Scholarships—reward you if you've demonstrated leadership and academic achievement in high school
- Martin Luther King Inner-City Achievement Award—for graduates of area city schools, based on need
- Ohio Academic Scholarships—for outstanding graduates of Ohio high schools who go to universities in the state

Lots of other private-donor scholarships exist to help YSU students, some based on need, some on academics, some on both.

For a complete listing, see your friendly Undergraduate Bulletin, Appendix B.

College costs money. But if you work hard plan & apply for financial aid it can cost a lot less money.

YSU has some great financial aid programs, including full-ride academic scholarships, grants-in-aid, loans.

"...I have all the conveniences of a large university right here."

Noelle Hudak, Canfield, Ohio
YSU Nursing major

Dance instructor Noelle Hudak and a hundred of her young students wait backstage for their entrance cues at their annual recital. The twelve hundred-seat auditorium is nearly filled with family and friends. "Miss Noelle, what if I forget my routine?" asks an anxious performer in a polka-dot costume.

The teacher fully understands the anxiety—Noelle has danced in recitals and competitions since she was two and a half. "You've rehearsed this same piece so many times—you'll do great. And if you do make a mistake, just keep on dancing," she says.

Noelle is proud of her students' performance. She says, "When you see that they've come such a long way over the last year, that's such a good feeling."

Noelle has been teaching tap and jazz dance since she was sixteen. Her students and fellow instructors are like family to her, so when it was time to choose a college, she wasn't about to go far from them. Why should she? "YSU is close to home. I didn't have to leave the things that were important to me behind when I have all the conveniences of a large university right here," says Noelle.

Noelle's Wise Words

"Make your own decisions. Live how you want to live, and don't be afraid to make the little mistakes that everyone's going to make. Maybe you'll change your major five times—or move away then move back home. Let that happen."

A Different Way to Learn

Like many first-year college students, Noelle has noticed a difference in the way that classes are taught, and she has had to adjust her studying regime to match. "I'm more into studying now. I have to make myself sit down. In high school, I didn't have to do that too much," says Noelle. "But I have noticed that there is less busy work than there was in high school."

Dr. Karen Becker, coordinator of the Reading and Study Skills Center, has heard these comments many times. She teaches YSU courses that help students make the transition to college successfully. She explains the differences this way: "A lot of kids didn't have to study in high school. But remember, as a high school student, you spend thirty hours of structured time in the classroom. In college you spend only twelve to fifteen hours of structured time. The fact that you are given less busy work is a switching of responsibility from the teacher to the student. Students have to create their own homework. You may not have to hand it in, but you still need to do it—to create ways to practice, organize, and absorb the material on your own."

A Commitment of Time

Becker says that most college instructors expect students to spend about two to three hours reading and studying outside the classroom for every one hour spent in the classroom. "If you are taking a twelve-hour course load," says Becker, "that means you are studying twenty-four hours on your own. Going to school is a thirty-six-hour-a-week job!"

There's Help on Campus

At YSU, there's plenty of help for students moving from high school to college. For starters, there's First-Year Student Services where peer assistants (students close to your own age) can help you with time management, making the right schedule, and choosing classes that meet your needs. Also, YSU offers courses in reading and study skills to beef up your learning techniques for college success. There are also tutorial services, faculty mentors, and more. We want you to succeed here, so we've provided the tools.
You want dessert with that?

Campus Life

Your total college experience is, to a large extent, what you make of it. Some of the ingredients

The Youngstown State campus may surprise you—it doesn't quite fit the mold of a city university. It's spectacularly beautiful, for one thing, and that's no exaggeration. The park-like campus core is ringed by academic and administrative buildings, most of which are new or newly remodeled.

Who goes to YSU? Students from 34 states and 59 foreign countries. Ninety percent from Ohio. They come from all economic backgrounds and a wide variety of cultures. Multicultural students make up close to 10 percent of the student body, with African Americans comprising 7.6 percent and Hispanic students 1.2 percent. Recruiting and graduating more minority students is a major University goal.

YSU is the perfect size, too. With about 12,000 students and a unified campus area, you'll bump into people you know—or would like to know—more often than you would at a larger institution. Especially if you get involved in student activities, you'll find that making friends and feeling at home is easy.
Football is a big deal in northeastern Ohio, with loyal fans and talented players on all levels—high school, college, and professional. In fact, in a recent NCAA study, it was pointed out that this is one of the most tradition-rich areas in the entire country for producing talented football players who pursue both their athletic and academic careers beyond high school. YSU Mechanical Engineering major Mike Latessa played at Youngstown's Cardinal Mooney High School. “It was a tough program—a good program. We had a lot of winning years there,” he says. Mike was not only a player, but a fan as well. He followed Coach Jim Tressel’s successful YSU Penguins as they captured three national championships in 1991, 1993, and 1994. So it seems fitting that during his first year, Mike participated in YSU’s football program as the team gained their fourth national NCAA Division I AA title.

Mike deserves a lot of credit for his participation, considering that he received no athletic scholarship, and he didn’t even suit up for games, since he was red-shirted. His status was that of a walk-on—one who works every day with the team, plays against his teammates during practices, and takes all the hits, bumps, and bruises that any other player might. Walk-ons are just as important as scholarship players—just ask former walk-on Harry Delgianis, who became a YSU All-American in 1997 and who was later drafted by the NFL’s Jacksonville Jaguars.

Offensive coordinator John Klaicik says, “It takes a special person to be a student athlete at YSU; the demands are tough. But Mike has got things he’s trying to accomplish, and he’s going about them in the right way. He’s very self-motivated.”

Financing an Education

When Mike began planning for college, he was concerned about how it would all get paid for. He consulted friends, family members, and a YSU financial aid counselor to help him locate resources. Mike receives a Dean’s Scholarship of $2,000 and Pell Grants to cover most of his costs. For the expenses beyond what these cover, Mike works summer jobs—busing tables and selling kitchen knives. Whatever it takes. Mike’s parents help him out in a pinch as well.

‘A Pleasure to Help’

Financial Aid and Scholarships Associate Director Elaine Ruse, who assisted Mike, says, “It was a pleasure to help Mike as he was entering YSU. He took the initiative and found out what he could about the financial aid process and application time lines, and because of that, he was able to get the financial aid he needed. I advise all high school students to make an appointment and come into the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarships during January or February before high school graduation. Meeting deadlines is the most important thing you can do to be considered for the aid you are qualified for.”

When Dreams Come Full Circle

When Mike was a kid, he was really into Hotwheels and Matchbox cars and trucks. He was amazed at the big rigs and thought he might drive them one day. But the career goals of a seven-year-old are likely to evolve, as did Mike’s.

In junior high and high school, Mike discovered his aptitude for mathematics. It was never something he had to put a lot of time into, but nevertheless he excelled where numbers were concerned. “I guess if it’s just something I’m naturally good at,” he says. Mechanical engineering became his career of choice. It’s a profession that he associates with doing things people can use. “I don’t know, maybe I’ll do something in the automotive industry. It looks like I’m going back to the truck thing again.”
Satisfaction

Youngstown State University graduates keep showing up in the most interesting places.

In forensics labs, in museums and theaters, in front of classrooms all across the country, in corporate boardrooms, in high-tech engineering labs, at environmental cleanup sites, in hospitals and physical therapy labs, in doctors’ offices, in the editorial offices of newspapers and magazines, in courtrooms, in outer space.

Pat Billeit, ’93

B.S.B.A. in Public Administration Administrative Supervisor Ohio Environmental Protection Agency Cleveland, Ohio

“My extracurricular activities at YSU really helped me apply many of the things I was learning in the classroom—organizational skills, interpersonal skills. That’s what a well-rounded college experience is about. You learn to see the big picture, to see the world from a lot of angles, not just your own. Because of YSU’s relatively small size, it was a lot less intimidating to be active in campus life. It was hard at first; I had been very quiet in high school, and I was academically uninterested. But I came to YSU, got involved in my education, and things just snowballed from there. I attribute all my success to the YSU family.”

Thanks to their talent and hard work—and a YSU education—they are pursuing successful careers in every field. And you can join them.

Valerie Kial, ’98

B.E. in Industrial and Systems Engineering Incoming Packaging Engineer Delphi Packard Electric Systems

“I was an intern here [Delphi Packard] for two years before being hired full time. Interning taught me how to function in a business environment and let me see how the things I was learning in the classroom applied to the actual work situation.

“You can find engineering programs that are better known than YSU’s but I’m finding that a degree from YSU is just as good as all the others. You can’t always go by the name of the school—it’s what you can do on the job that counts.”

Kim Ritz, ’96

B.S. in Education/Physics Chemistry, Physics, and Physical Science Teacher Columbus High School

“My first day of teaching, I couldn’t believe it was happening—my own classroom! But I was prepared. At YSU, you start practicing for that first day from the time you take your intro education course. I’ve had exposure to different grade levels, all kinds of schools—urban, rural, suburban—and kids from diverse backgrounds. You just don’t get that much field work at most universities. It gives you confidence that you can be effective in the classroom—any classroom.”

There are 300 majors in several programs preparing for occupations in performance, education, jazz, and church work. The school, which is fully accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music, has graduates across the country in all of these endeavors.

Qualified students may receive scholarships up to full tuition. An Open Letter to the Parents of Prospective Music Majors

BY MARY ANNE REES

We are now approaching the time of year when many high school seniors will make decisions about their college education. With a society that is putting more and more emphasis on financially rewarding careers, students are tending to choose majors such as engineering, computer science, and business, that they believe will help them successfully enter the job market. Despite the emphasis on studies that are considered more job-relevant, many high school seniors have expressed a strong interest in the field of music on their SAT exams.

Many people believe that a degree in music gives a student an extremely narrow focus, which in turn makes employment more difficult. To say education in music has greatly expanded, allowing students to incorporate numerous elective courses from other disciplines into their music curriculums. In this way, graduates gain the skills necessary to enter a variety of occupations. Successful music students tend to possess the qualities and skills that are generally considered essential to employers in business, education, and service organizations, as well as to performing groups.

Successful musicians have undoubtedly spent long hours in the practice rooms and the music library and have benefited from the opportunities available at a professional school of music. In addition to the obvious enhancement of music talent, the courses in music history, theory, and education help students improve their writing, communication, and analytical skills. Furthermore, music demands a high sense of self-discipline. A successful performer rarely resorts to cramming the night before a recital, but has devoted many months of consistent practice before performing. It is the musician's self-discipline and dedication that make music majors especially popular among professors in other academic subjects. In fact, as entering freshmen, music majors often have the highest SAT scores in all areas.

Successful musicians usually do not limit their education to the field of music. They often couple a strong foundation in the liberal arts with their music courses, allowing them to gain a much broader perspective on the discipline of music and on life in general. These same liberal arts courses also give students additional experience in comprehending written material, writing effectively, making effective speeches and presentations, identifying problems and their solutions, analyzing and evaluating ideas and presentations, using the library and research facilities, dealing with the public, working on long-term projects, organizing time effectively, and working independently. The skills in communication, analysis, and synthesis gained from liberal arts courses can only add to the credibility and experience of a student applying for any music-related position. In addition, if a musician should decide to change careers, these same skills can help ease the entry into a new occupation.

When considering the possibilities of incorporating liberal arts courses into a music degree, prospective music majors should know that most institutions will automatically require a certain number of liberal arts courses for any music degree they offer. In addition, music students may also get a minor in an outside field or they may choose a degree program that enables them to have what is similar to a double major – one major in music and one in an outside field. Outside fields such as business, audio production, and theatre arts management are also popular. One music student who is also interested in becoming a physical therapist will soon receive her music degree with a minor in pre-med, which will help her to enter a physical therapy program in graduate school. This kind of flexibility is becoming more and more common.

The field of teaching offers increasing opportunities for musicians. After a stint in public school music teaching, statistics now indicate that baby boomers' children are entering school.

Mary Anne Rees is Assistant Dean of the School of Music at Northwestern University. She holds two music degrees from Indiana University as well as a Ph.D. in Higher Educational Administration and Music from the University of Oregon, and there is an increasing need for trained music teachers.

Musical degrees are not just for those interested in teaching or performing professionally. For example, music alumni have held the follow positions: music therapists, record company presidents, violin makers, performing artists' agents, piano store owners, church music directors, sheet music store owners, piano technicians, symphony personnel managers, radio station presidents, music publishing house presidents, music engravers and typesetters, and music arrangers for Broadway and television. The National Endowment for the Arts also has numerous positions available for performing musicians who are trained in music and are interested in working in the field.

An Open Letter to the Parents of Prospective Music Majors

The importance of the field of music is not just for those interested in teaching or performing professionally. For example, music alumni have the following positions: music therapists, record company presidents, video game producers, performing artists, agribusiness owners, piano store owners, church music directors, sheet music store owners, piano technicians, symphony personnel managers, radio station presidents, music publishing house presidents, music engravers and typesetters, and music arrangers for Broadway and television. The National Endowment for the Arts also has numerous positions available primarily for performers. In 1986 the United States had 58 orchestras, 27 opera companies, 22 professional theaters, and 27 dance companies. There were also only seven state arts agencies. Today, there are 192 orchestras, 102 opera companies, 389 theaters, and 213 dance companies in addition, there are now 50 full-time state arts agencies. Campus career planning and placement offices are filled with reference books that provide details on hundreds of occupations, including the one mentioned above. In addition, these offices often have information on various alumni who are willing to talk about their own personal and professional experiences.

When considering the possibilities of incorporating liberal arts courses into a music degree, prospective music majors should be aware that most institutions will automatically require a certain number of liberal arts courses for a music degree they offer. In addition, music students may also get a minor in an outside field or they may choose a degree program that enables them to have what is similar to a double major—one course in music and one in an outside field. Outside fields such as business, audio production, and the arts themselves are especially popular.

One music student who is also interested in writing, commercial music, and working with a physical therapist will soon receive her degree with a minor in music, which will help her to enter a physical therapy program at a graduate school. This kind of flexibility is becoming more and more common.

The field of teaching offers increasing opportunities for musicians. After a stint in school music teaching, a musician can return to the field of studio teaching, or they can open a music store in another area of the country.

Mary Anne Russ is Assistant Dean of the School of Music at Northwestern University. She holds two music degrees from Indiana University as well as a Ph.D. in Higher Educational Administration and Music from the University of Oregon.

There is an increasing need for talented music teachers.

Music

The Dana School of Music, founded in 1869, is one of the oldest music schools in the country. Having merged with Youngstown College in 1941, the Dana School is currently one of three units comprising the College of Fine and Performing Arts: Music, Art, and Communications and Theater.

Degrees granted are the Bachelor of Music in performance; the Bachelor of Arts in music history, theory, or applied; and, in conjunction with the College of Education, the Bachelor of Music with K-12 certification.

The Dana School of Music tries to maintain a student-faculty ratio of ten to one. Much of the instruction is one-to-one or in small groups allowing a constant interaction between faculty specialists and students. One exceptional feature of Dana is that music education majors are given one-hour applied music lessons.

Career Opportunities
A wide variety of careers in music and music-related fields is available to talented students. Many symphonic, choral and operatic societies engage performing musicians. Large cities with established musical organizations and smaller communities hoping to develop local musical culture are searching for talented men and women. Religious organizations in all denominations need performers and directors for their programs and services.

The field of teaching at all levels from kindergarten through higher education is an excellent area for musical expression. Training for private teaching in the field of music can also be professionally and financially rewarding.

All segments of the music industry—design, manufacture, sales and research—seek people with musical skills. Music publishers, record producers and libraries are staffed with educated musicians.

Nathan Buffington
132 Valley View Dr.
Emporia PA 15126

Dear Nathan:

This letter is to inform you that you have been accepted as a music student at the Dana School of Music on a provisional basis. The audition committee feels that, while your performance was below that of the level we normally expect of entering freshmen, you demonstrated that you have the ability to succeed in this professional field.

Provisional acceptance means that you will be required to enroll in applied music at the 500A level (a special pre-freshman category) for at least one quarter. Upon completion of one quarter's study at this level you will be re-examined to determine if you have made sufficient progress to be promoted to the regular applied music curriculum. This special category does not affect the other courses that you would normally take as a freshman in the music school.

If you seek to reapply for admission you may wish to reaudition prior to the beginning of Fall Quarter to qualify for normal admission.

This provisional acceptance is contingent, of course, upon acceptance of the Admissions Office of the University, which I hope you have received by this date.

We wish you every success and look forward to welcoming you to the student body of the Dana School of Music.

Sincerely,

Joseph Edwards, Director
Dana School of Music

Dear Nathan:

This letter is to inform you that you have been accepted as a music student at the Dana School of Music on a provisional basis. The audition committee feels that, while your performance was below that of the level we normally expect of entering freshmen, you did demonstrate that you have the ability to succeed in this professional field.

Provisional acceptance means that you will be required to enroll in applied music at the 30A level (a special pre-freshman category) for at least one quarter. Upon completion of the quarter's study at this level you will be re-examined to determine if you have made sufficient progress to be promoted to the regular applied music curriculum. This special category does not affect the other courses that you would normally take as a freshman in the music school.

If you seek tutoring during the remainder of this year and summer, you may wish to audition prior to the beginning of Fall Quarter to qualify for normal admission.

This provisional acceptance is contingent, of course, upon acceptance of the Admissions Office of the University, which I hope you have received by this date.

I wish you every success and look forward to welcoming you to the student body of the Dana School of Music.

Sincerely,

Dear Phillip,

I regret to inform you that you have not been accepted as a music major by the Dana School of Music. This decision was made by weighing your musical progress against the requirements for successful completion of our music degree program.

It is possible, however, that you may receive an acceptance letter from the Admissions Office of the University. If you receive word of acceptance by the Admissions Office and you wish to major in some field other than music, you should notify an Admissions Counselor of your decision. You may call (330) 742-3150 to speak with an Admissions Counselor.

I want you to know that we sincerely appreciate your interest in our program and we wish to thank you for auditioning here. If at some later date you wish to be reconsidered for admission to Dana, please feel free to contact this office.
