Semester votes become personal issue by some

by Stacey Savka

"The early semester system is not a personal issue, but I think that some voted on that aspect," said Phyllis Schirek, student representative of the Academic Senate, of the recent 35-31 vote that defeated the recommendation of the Ad Hoc Committee to change to the early semester system.

Previously, surveys showed the faculty to be in favor of a change to the early semester system, however, senate representatives voted down the issue. Of the 100 senators of the Academic Senate, only 66 were present to vote.

"Senators voted their convictions," said Dr. Jean Kelly, president of the Academic Senate.

Dean Paraska, chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee of the Senate that recommended that YSU change to the early semester system said, "Apparently, the senators weren't accurately representing the views of the faculty."

Student representatives of the Academic Senate voted 4-1 against the adoption of the early semester system.

"The most disturbing thing about the early semester system is the lack of flexibility of the system," said Tony Koury, student representative of the Academic Senate.

Koury explained that if a student is unhappy in a class or displeased with a grade received, "a greater amount of time" is needed to make up the class in the early semester system.

Koury added, "Grades carry more weight."

However, Schirek commented, "The early semester system would really affect the student teacher. They wouldn't be so rushed and they would get more out of student teaching."

"Students would be able to know their instructors and fellow students better," continued Schirek.

Nevertheless, Dr. Sally Hotchkiss, psychology, stated, "For our campus, I see a lot of cons. So many of our students have to drop in and out of school because of their financial responsibilities and with the quarter system, they have five entry points a year. The poll that was taken of the students was very poor opinion research. We need to have a better

Rape Task Force gets few calls; provides confidential line for victims

by Bob McKinmy

The Rape Task Force, since its inception on Feb. 27 of this year, has had a minimal number of reports made to them.

Instituted by YSU President Coffelt, the Task Force is to serve as a separate confidential line of information for any victim of sexual assault who does not wish to make a formal report to the police department or campus security.

Task Force members are Patricia Bleidt, assistant dean of student affairs; Sally Hotchkiss, psychology; Gratia Murphy, English; and Sarah Brown Clark, English.

"We collect data and give whatever assistance is possible," said Hotchkiss, "from making a referral, to going with the student to see Jean Vaughn at the Rape Crisis Center."

Hotchkiss stated that she has had only three contacts since the creation of the Task Force: one from a salesman for a hand held security system; another from a concerned mother that had two daughters coming to YSU, asking if campus was safe; and a personal contact by an off-campus rape victim from the north side.

Two of the calls that Bleidt received did concern incidents on campus. These incidents were in the area of verbal intimidation. She did say that on campus, as anywhere, you have to take certain precautions.

Bleidt was disappointed that there has been so little response to the Task Force. The committee was established to make it easier for the victim to obtain help.

The campus seems to be unfairly assessed as a high risk (Cont. on page 15)

Bright holds one-man exhibition at Maag

by Susan K. Gilmartin
YSU News Bureau

Al Bright, a nationally-recognized artist and an abstractionist for the most part, has brought the opportunity to witness the essence of the integral spirit of man, the land where spirits dwell. Bright's new painting series is a mastery of mankind's escape from his physical existence and entry into the metamorphosis of infinity.

The new and exciting Bright series is presently exhibited in Youngstown State University's Maag Library. The show officially opened Oct. 13 at 7:00 p.m. with a live painting demonstration to the accompaniment of jazz music.

Bright begins the transition a soul searching process expressed in cool blue colors signifying inner peace. The painting never flickers for lack of concentration, but is steady in its "spirit making." The spirit glides from its physical being without so much as even brushing the sides of its escape.

"Blue Haze Waterfall" and "Flight of the Love Tern" make freedom a spiritual reality. The energies of Bright are alive and dancing with the extreme delight of a new-found freedom. An on-looker experiences Bright's drastic flight upward into the heavens and beyond.

"Sea Scape With Blue Moon," a painting expressing the strains of transformation occurring in changing matter, is the moon to its planets, a reflection controlling the tides. In this work, Bright paints a spiritual separation—a turbulence created in the darkness of another dimension and triggered by earthly human endeavors.

"Transformation of Matter and Energy Acting From the Atom to Interstellar Space" and "Sea Scape Blue" are perhaps the painful portion of the painting series. In these works Bright breaks through into another dimension.

"Landscape With Apparition" is a final destination, a land of ultimate dimensional beauty, a place of the innermost peace, still water and soft winds.

In his new series of paintings, the "Blue Series," Al Bright allows us to touch, as if in a dream, our final destination.

Foreign students to vote for nine council members

The International Students Organization is holding a meeting Friday, for purposes of constitutional revision, says Susan Khawaja, advisor for the organization. The meeting, which will be held at 5 p.m. in Kilcawley Center, is open to all interested students.

"What we want to do is open the organization to any student interested in internationalism. There are students who are interested in working overseas, for oil companies, as geologists, engineers, many different things, and they would profit from an international academic group like this."

At the same time, it would help the foreign students attending YSU in that it would give them a greater opportunity to meet with Americans socially, and feel more comfortable around them," said Ms. Khawaja.

Under the new constitution, the organization will be renamed the Federation of International Students at YSU. It will be run by a council of nine students, to be elected next week. The student who receives the most votes will chair the council as secretary general.

"This will give the organization a kind of independence of spirit," said Ms. Khawaja. "It will be student oriented, of course, and deal primarily with interest in international social affairs." We hope to provide a boost for internationalism in the YSU community by filling in any gaps those students interested in international social and cultural development have."

Mildred Dyke, textbook purchasing agent, enjoys 19 years at YSU bookstore

by Toni DiSalvo

Viewing her dealings with book publishers as a type of "battle" in which she usually wins, Mildred G. Dyke, textbook purchasing agent for the YSU Bookstore, wouldn't have it any other way.

"It's a continuous race against time," says the 19 year veteran, although it is very interesting because you don't know what is going to happen next."

Dyke started working for Youngstown College as an assistant manager for the bookstore when it was located in Jones Hall. She had just completed her second semester in Secretarial Studies and was looking for a bank job. When she couldn't find one, she went to the Placement Office and on the same day she was hired at the bookstore.

When Youngstown College became a state university, Dyke's title was changed to textbook purchasing agent. She explained that, "It's the same job but in a different way. It's more work but a more concentrated job than an assistant manager." She deals with the various departments on campus and publishers. "I think everyone tries to do their part. Ninety per cent of the book orders are in on time" from the departments and the "publishers do their best" to fill them. This fall quarter she had 293 orders sent in varying from one to fifteen and more books. "It takes extra effort to weed out these back orders and get them in, but I enjoy it."

"I have to do a job which I like and which is very interesting but I do enjoy home, after a hectic day." Dyke lives at 12280 Beard Rd., New Springfield, on a 10-acre farm. When her husband was still living, he worked the farm. They also had two riding horses and other livestock. She worked the farm for two or three years after he died but she doesn't anymore. Instead, she has a good-sized garden which she and her sister enjoy working in. They grew up on the farm and it's almost like a part of them.

Dyke was a Sunday School teacher and hopes to return to it. She strictly believes that we will be "judged by a much greater judge than any judge down here. Obey the laws the Bible tells you." She is presently taking care of her 90-year-old father on weekends because she knows that he comes before her own interest in Sunday School.

Another interest of Dyke's is reading. She likes detective stories, real mysteries (such as Agatha Christie), and westerns. She has a complete set of the Zane Grey series and visits the western states when she can.

Dyke has travelled across the United States five times, twice by herself. She likes to drive because she "explores out of the way places." One of her most exciting adventures was to drive to the top of Pike's Peak by herself. Another time she saw a mule ride in the Grand Canyon in 1958 that really impressed her. Ever since then, she had wanted to experience the ride. It wasn't until 1976 that her wish became reality. Says Dyke, "It took me 18 years to make (the mule ride), but I made it." She would like to spend the winter in Colorado because she has always wanted to see what it would be like to live on the snow-covered mountains, but she would never want to leave Ohio permanently.

Dyke feels she has achieved her goal in life. She always wanted to make a living at something that was interesting and enjoyable and she feels the YSU Bookstore has fulfilled that goal. She loves working with the departments and publishers because she likes people. She lives by the Golden Rule: "I like to treat people the way I like to be treated" and this makes her a very pleasant person to be idea of how students feel before we contemplate a change. We haven't asked the right question," added Hotchkiss.

However, Dr. Gratia Murphy, English, commented, "It's a shame that a committee recommendation that was arrived at through two years of study was just shelved."

According to Kelly, the only way that the outcome of the issue of the early semester system could be changed is if one of the majority would voice a reconsideration of the issue.

How would Einstein theorize about Cinci?

Although the Cinci formula is secret, certain factors in the equation are well known:

1. Cinci has a hearty, full-bodied flavor.
 2. It is smooth and easy going down.
 3. Its head commands respect.
- Our theory is that Einstein would have concluded: It's too good to gulp. Relatively speaking, of course.

You are never too old

YSU senior citizen is enlightened

Since Edward Manning, 65, has started taking classes in a senior citizens' program, he finds that he "gets about four to five times more out of newspapers" than he did before, particularly the New York Times. He finds it much easier to keep up to date since he is able to extract more information from the papers he reads.

Manning first became interested in the program when he attended a senior citizens' meeting at General Business Equipment in 1975. At the meeting he heard a speech given by John Loch, director of continuing education, about the senior citizens' program.

Loch explained that any Ohio resident over 60 years of age could attend YSU free of charge for the purposes of auditing classes. However, individuals are responsible for purchasing books for the classes. Senior citizens in this program do not declare a major but choose their own subjects for the benefit of learning, Loch said.

Because he was so impressed by Loch's description of the program, Manning enrolled at YSU in September of 1976.

Since then, Manning has taken three courses each quarter during the school year and one in the summer.

Among Manning's favorite subjects are history and political science. English composition is his favorite class, however, because "you can express yourself orally as well as on paper."

Because senior citizens are not required to take tests, Manning works especially hard researching information when assigned to do a written paper. While doing research on two of his papers, Manning consulted dictionaries, encyclopedias and history books, using 25 sources to complete his works. The works are entitled, "Why Carter Carried Ohio," a polymetrics class paper and "The History of the Western Reserve," an English composition.

Manning comments, "When you get into something like that, you learn a lot. I appreciate it when my professors recommend books and journals by experts in that particular field. I wouldn't even know they existed if I didn't go to college," he adds.

His courses provide him with an opportunity for "personal enrichment and enlightenment." He adds, "A senior citizen is taking classes because he like to. There is no compulsion; therefore, he can take subjects that he likes for his own enlightenment."

Commenting about his fellow students, Manning says, "I think they're exceptionally good. Over 80 percent of them work and they're coming here to get an education. I give them a lot of credit because it's not easy doing two jobs. They have to commute back and forth and their time is budgeted. The kids are very mannerly and congenial."

"I have nothing but praise for this university," Manning further adds. "I watched this university grow from one building (Jones Hall) to the large insitute that it is now. If it wasn't for YSU, certain people wouldn't be able to get an education."

Good news, bad news

There was some bad news and some good news coming from last night's Student Council meeting.

The bad news is that John Carano is resigning as Chairman of Student Council, effective immediately. Citing his educational workload, Carano stated that he felt he could not effectively meet what he felt were the students' needs. He has served diligently, and it is fortunate that he is remaining a member of Student Council, a body not known for its diligence.

We do feel relieved, however, to note that, over three weeks into the new school year, Council has finally decided to approve the year's budget. They might well have decided to fight over it until spring quarter, when the next year's budget comes up for consideration, but cooler heads prevailed, and the budget was approved.

We thank Council for its action, and hope that the spirit of agreement will continue for some time to come. We also thank John Carano for a job well done under difficult conditions.

Letters to the editor may not exceed 250 words and should concern campus issues. Input columns may not exceed 600 words and may concern issues beyond the campus. Where goes Guz?

To the Editor of The Jambar

Alright, let's quit playing games here. What have you done with "Guz Says"? You haven't fired him from his high-paying job, have you?

I can't tell you how much I miss seeing that sleazy "Guz says" log that represents Guz Scullin so well. I really do miss reading those depraved columns written in that "smarmy" tone that only Guz can write.

So what gives? Last year "Guz Says" was in every issue of the Jambar, but so far this year I've seen his column all of two or three times. No offense guys, but The Jambar just ain't what it used to be. Aside from a few letters to the editor there's not no humor to speak of in The Jambar these days.

I'm sure everyone will agree that Guz's thoughtful writing rivals that of the great masters of the literary world, including Melville, Thoreau and Louisa May Alcott. Why, some people have even been known to find the meaning of life through his columns!

So please, let's get Guz Scullin off the streets and into The Jambar again!

PS. Here it is Guz. Now pay up.

"Review" reviewed

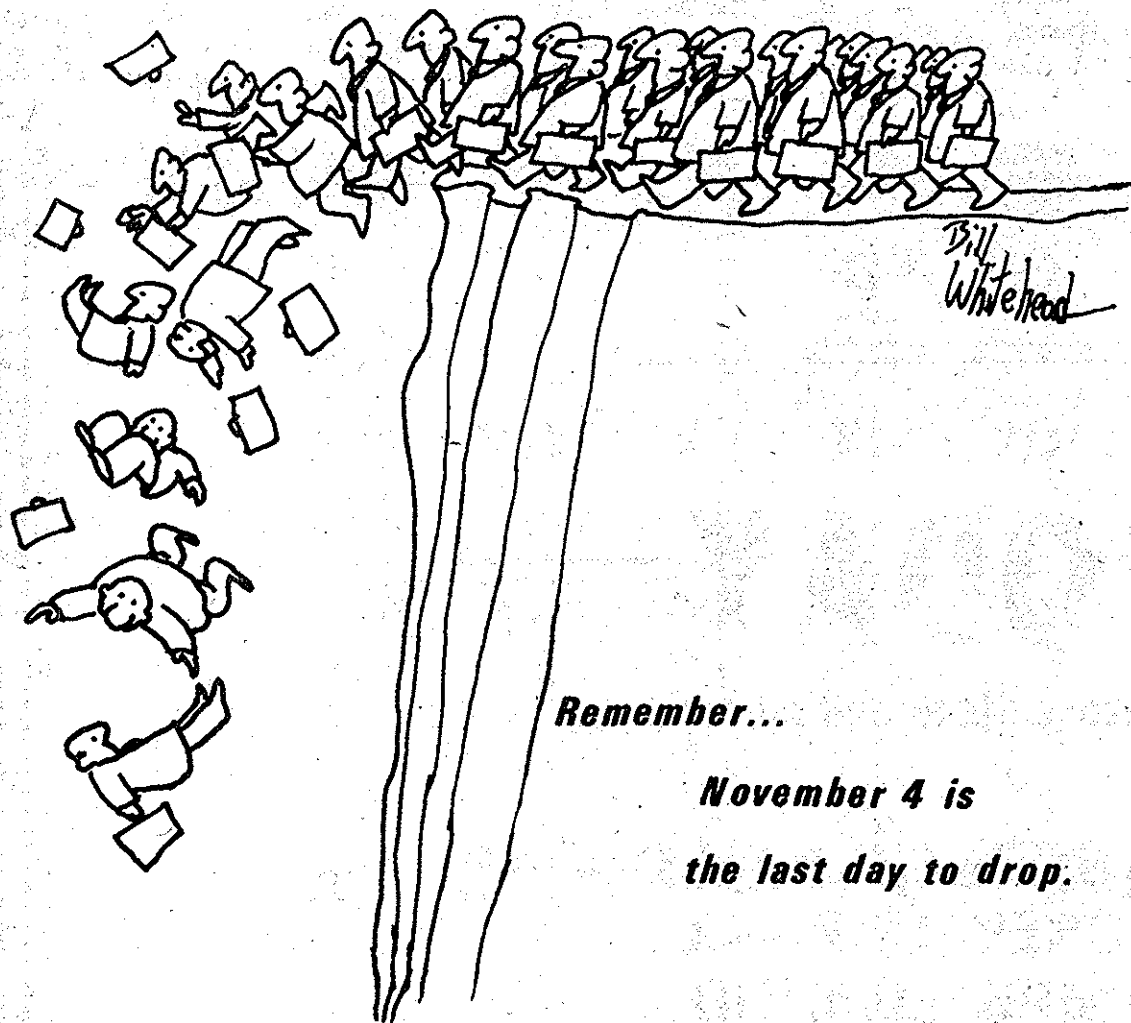

To the Editor of the Jambar:

The quality of a university's literary publication is, by and large, a reflection of the excellence of the university itself. To many people, the literary magazine represents the university and a direct exposure of its intellectual content (presumably the "best" an institution has to offer), and characteristic of the school as a whole.

The Penguin Review is the annual literary magazine of, by and for the students of YSU and therefore, is only as good as the student community wished to make it.

The Penguin Review is alive and well, soliciting material from Room 104, Rayen Hall. To all those with an affinity towards photography, painting, poetry and prose looking for a chance to display your talent-look no further. The Penguin Review is ready and waiting. It's your magazine; make it what you choose.

Need replacement after resignation

by Mary Jane Klempay

Last June Kevin Fahey, Assistant Director for Programming of Kilcawley Center, resigned and to date no replacement for the position has been hired.

Fahey, whose job was to oversee the nine Kilcawley Center Program Board Committees, accepted a similar job as director at the University of Connecticut. Fahey's decision to relocate to Connecticut stemmed from the fact that his family is from that area.

Phil Hirsch, Director of Kilcawley Center, said that Fahey's resignation was announced too late in the year for the Center to hire the kind of director they wanted for the coming year, as most positions of this type are filled in the Spring and Fahey did not resign until late June.

Currently, K.J. Satrum, assistant director of Kilcawley Center for operations, is taking over all of Fahey's responsibilities. She will be assuming responsibility for both her job and Fahey's until next year when new assistant director is hired.

According to Hirsch, the Center will begin taking applications next February for the position. Prescreening for applicants will take place in Cincinnati at the International Conference for the Association of College Unions.

Apparently, the competition for a job of this type is tight as the last time applications were taken by Kilcawley, when 212 people applied. Of these applicants Hirsch reported that about 50-75 people were qualified for this position.

by Guz Scullin

"I don't wanna kiss you, I don't wanna touch, I don't wanna see you, cause I don't miss you that much."

Those lyrics aren't from a new Frank Sinatra album. They're Elvis', not The Elvis, but Elvis Costello. On the rock scene today, Costello ranks as one of the leaders of "Punk/New Wave." His first album My Aim is True, was the only new wave album released last year to sell a million copies. But don't buy the album for that reason, it is a great record. Linda Rondstadt has done her rendition of Elvis' "Allison" on her new album. But don't assume Elvis is becoming domesticated.

Earlier this year, Elvis Costello's second album was released. Titled This Year's Model, the record is a must for people who refuse to see rock, go to the likes of the Bee Gees and other commercial rock (?) bands. Costello's music has the heart, and the drive of early Stones and Who songs. It is rock reborn.

Two years ago, Elvis Costello was part of the English working class. He had been writing songs for some time, he claims to have hundreds of hours of original songs on tape. He had a dream of getting a record contract. He found out one day that a executive from CBS records was staying at a hotel in London. Elvis picked up his guitar, strapped an amp to his back, and performed on the street outside the hotel. He refused to leave until the exec heard him. After a while, a good-sized crowd formed, and the exec finally heard him. Elvis was signed to Columbia, and the rest is history. His first album was received well by the critics and the public. Elvis was fast becoming the new direction of rock and roll.

This Year's Model contains the same quality of music as Elvis' first record. The songs on this disc are basically about the same subject that the songs on the first album - girls. Ahh, but Elvis' songs are not love songs. His lyrics are direct opposites of the Beatle's love songs. The songs are about the girl who did Elvis wrong. They have the same emotion as the Stone's "I can't Get No Satisfaction." Some examples of Costello's lyrics:

From You Belong to Me,
"The things you see are getting hard to swallow, you're easily led, but you're much too scared to follow."

"Don't wanna be a goody-goody,
I don't want just anybody,
no I don't want anybody,
saying you belong to me, you belong to me."

From No Action,
"Everytime I phone you I just wanna put you down."

From Hand-in-Hand,

"Don't ask me to apologize, I won't ask you to forgive me, if I'm going to go down, you're going to come with me."

From Living in Paradise,
"I don't like those other guys looking at your curves,
I don't like you walking around with physical jerks, everything they're saying to you is getting on my nerves, soon they'll be lucky to be picking up the perks."

One of the most outstanding songs on the album is "Radio, Radio." It sums up best Costello's view of the music industry today:

"Radio is the sound salvation radio is cleaning up the nation, They say you better listen to voice of reason, but they don't give you any choice cause they think that its treason, so you had better do as you are told,
you'd better listen to the radio,"
"You either shut up or get cut out they don't wanna hear about it, its only inches on the reel-to-reel, and the radio is in the hands of such a lot of fools, tryin' to release that that the way you feel."

Give Elvis a listen, don't assume you have to have a safety pin through your head to enjoy it. Too many people run to the security of a disco without ever giving New Wave a fair hearing. Elvis Costello is the tidal wave of New Wave.

'Now it's my turn,' says Grace Walker after helping others through college

by Becky Turocy

"I've spent time helping someone through school all my life. I've helped my friends' children, my daughter, my niece and my nephew. Now it's my turn to attend college," comments Grace Walker. A participant in the senior citizens' program, Walker first heard about the program from Mrs. Josephine Beckket, who advised her to talk to Dr. Loch, continuing education director, about a program allowing senior citizens over 65 years of age to take courses for credit free of charge. Participants in the program declare a major and purchase books and materials needed for their classes.

Walker has already completed 38 hours in the program including classes in philosophy, aesthetics, black history and American history. Besides taking classes at night, Walker owns a hairdressing business, which she has operated for the last 30 years. She also keeps active in the community through the Youngstown Symphony, the Youngstown Playhouse, the Western Reserve

Ballet and the Hospital Guild. Although her favorite classes are philosophy and aesthetics, Walker especially enjoyed her research in Afro-American history. "I was most fortunate to have a friend working in Maag library who was a real help in bringing me books."

She adds, "It (the library) is a fantastic, beautiful place. I wish I had more time to enjoy it as a student would."

Totally fascinated by the students, who she describes as "refreshing and delightful," Walker commented, "You get lost with them. All my life I have liked youth. I've found that my interests seek youth rather than my contemporaries." She adds, "Being with youth gives me a greater desire to keep up."

Commenting on her professors, Walker says, "I've thoroughly enjoyed my professors. I've chosen some of my subjects because of the professors--the very interesting ones," she adds. Walker cites Dr. Greenman of the Philosophy department as one of her favorite instructors.

When asked what benefits she has gained from the program, Walker replies, "I've surely learned much. I'm more aware of all things around me. Attending college was a thing I've wanted to do but never had the time." She adds, "I'm accomplishing one of the things I've wanted to do all my life. I don't discount the fact that someday I'll get an associate degree," she further adds. After graduation, Walker would like to tutor children.

Walker's advice to the youth of today is, "Just never stop learning. Get all you can possibly. It's a busy world. Everyone needs an education. It's rewarding to be able to listen to people."

She is somewhat apprehensive about today's youth, however. Walker says, "This particular generation bothers me a little bit. It's so important that the black generation gets everything that's possible for them to get. If they could just realize how important it is for them to get it today to meet it tomorrow."

Fawn tells all: a love story, or Life with the Secret family

by Guz Scullin

As promised, a tad more about the soap opera "My Kids, Their Friends, Lovers, Meager Acquaintances, and What not". If you'll remember, the main characters are the Secret family. The following is an excerpt from one of the more dramatic shows. Fred Secret (father?) is waiting up for his daughter(?), Fawn to return from her first date. It is past four in the morning, and Fred is concerned that his daughter might not know what time it is. The front door opens, and in strides Fawn wearing nothing but a bur-lap sack.

Fred: "Fawn, is that you?"
Fawn: "Dad, is that you?"
Fred: "Do you know what time it is?"

Fawn: "No dad, what time is it?"

Fred: "It is past four."
Fawn: "Oh."

Fred: "I just wanted to make sure you knew what time it was, so I guess I'll be going to bed now. Goodnight."

Fawn: "Dad wait, I have something to tell you."

Fred: "Hmm, this sounds dramatic, should I pour a stiff one for this?"

Fawn: "Yes, I think I'll have one too."

Fred: "But you're only thirteen."

Fawn: "You're right, I'll just have a beer and a shot of Mad Dog."

Fred pours sixteen ounces of whisky into a mug, as Fawn produces a can of Bud from underneath her bur-lap garb. She also pulls out a bottle of MD 20-20, and a beanbag chair which she places on the ground. Both sit. Fawn: "Dad, I'm pregnant."

Fred: "What, no wait a second, I can say that in a more dramatic voice...What!"

Fawn: "I'm pregnant; I'm carrying a child."

Fred: "Is he heavy?"
Fawn: "Dad I'm serious, I am pregnant."

Fred: "Who was the promiscuous punk who impregnated you?"

Fawn: "I, I'm not sure."

Fred: "What, what do you mean by that?"

Fawn: "I, I mean that I just don't know. It might have been the Cleveland Orchestra, or Sal Sinister, or Gary Fairmud, or it could have been Joe, Kevin, Dan Nick, Jim, Tom, or it could have been....."

Fred: "Gee this is shocking news. How pregnant are you?"

Fawn: "I'm in my eighth month, the doc said I should have the baby in three weeks."

Fred: "Eight months? Jiggers, I thought you were just getting a belly on you, or worst yet, I feared you might be stealing watermelons from the supermarket."

Fawn: "No dad, I am pregnant."

Fred: "Yipes!"

Another dramatic scene which took place was when Hal Secret

(the drunken architect) was contemplating suicide. Just as he is ready to swallow a roll of paper towels, his girlfriend Carla LaLaLaBa enters.

Carla: "Hal don't do it!"

Hal: "Go away, I must do it, it is the only answer. I am a failure. For years I have been trying to develop the first horizontal skyscraper. I can't do it, so I must kill myself."

Carla: "Hal, we all make mistakes. Why, the first time I kissed a man, I forgot to use my lips. Hal, please don't swallow those paper towels, I love you, it's just me and you against the world, sometimes it seems like me and you against the world. I am woman, in numbers too big to ignore. Take me now. Take me. Hal I'm ready."

Hal: "Don't you mean Helen Reddy?"

Comedy Store brings laughs to Homecoming festivities

"America's Ethnic Symphony," a television documentary which has Dr. Jim Dale of the Political Science Department as the Executive Producer, will be aired at 8 p.m. today on Channel 45.

The film will portray the rich diversity of ethnic activity in America using the city of Youngstown as an example. It reflects aspects of the city's growth through downtown renewal, the YSU campus, Mill Creek Park and city landmarks.

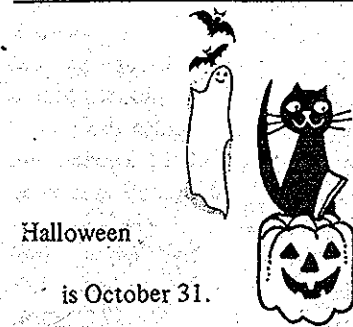

Much of the color documentary was filmed at the Institute's 1977 Youngstown Folk Festival and at various locations.

Wednesday night, folks, we are going to go to Kilcawley Center and laugh. We meet, oh...about 8 p.m. in the Chestnut Room, and for an hour and a half, we laugh.

Wednesday night the Comedy Store is coming to campus as part of YSU's Homecoming Week, bringing with it three stand-up comedians and ninety minutes of laughs. Admission is free.

The original Comedy Store was established in Los Angeles in 1972 by Mitzi Shore. It is the country's premiere all-comedy nightclub, providing a place for established comedians to work out their routines as well as a showcase for new, young talent.

Some of the alumni include Jimmie Walker, Richard Pryor, Gabe Kaplan and Steve Landesberg. Recent established guest stars include Mort Sahl, Gabe Kaplan, Dick Gregory, and Shelley Berman. Four Comedy Store regulars were recently signed for TV series: Robin Williams for Mork and Mindy; Mike Binder for Apple Pie; and Michael Keaton and David Letterman for the Mary Tyler Moore Show.

Penguins continue on victory road; set for clash with arch-rival Akron

by Bill Snier

The "YSU Penguin Success Story," written by Bill Narduzzi and the 1978 football team, is now six chapters long with only four more to go before the novel becomes a national best-seller. At least, the Penguins hope it will be read all over the nation.

YSU moved closer to their goal of becoming a contender for the national championship with a resounding 56-33 victory over the Central State Marauders at Wilberforce, Ohio Saturday.

In order to get that shot at the national title, the Penguins must first clinch the championship in their own conference. One of their greatest stumbling blocks along the way will visit Falcon Stadium this Saturday when the arch-rival Akron Zips come to town for their annual clash with the Penguins.

The Penguins tuned up for the match with Akron by demonstrating a very balanced offensive attack against Central State. YSU rolled up 526 yards in total offense with 257 yards coming via the passing route. Keith Snoddy may have had his finest passing day as a Penguin by completing 14 of 23 passes for 248 yards and four touchdowns, all to his favorite receiver Jim Ferranti. With those four touchdown grabs, Ferranti set a new single-game mark, breaking the old record of three TD grabs set by Paul Cermuga (1957) and Dave DelSignore (1969).

The victory also snapped a Penguin school record for most consecutive wins by a team. The win was the ninth in a row for the Penguins and their sixth in a row this season.

Central State gave the Penguins plenty of trouble in the early going. For the first time this season, YSU found themselves behind in a game. The Marauders tallied first on a 34-yard pass from Jeff Postel to Larry Pruitt. After a fumble which led to a Penguin TD on a run by Robby Robson, Postel connected with Hill on a 92-yard touchdown aerial to give the Marauders command at the end of the first quarter, 14-7.

But it was not to be as the Snoddy to Ferranti aerial show began to demonstrate itself to the Marauders defensive secondary. First, Snoddy connected with Ferranti on a 13-yard touchdown and then used a 39-yard pass to "the Flea" to set up a four yard touchdown run by Marschell Brumfield.

An interception by Kevin Statzer, his second of the quarter, set up another Snoddy to Ferranti touchdown, this one for five yards, with YSU going to the locker room at halftime on the long end of a 34-14 score.

In the second half, Snoddy again came out throwing. But his first pass was intercepted by Ivan Seahorn, who carried it 33 yards for a TD decreasing the YSU lead to 34-21.

The interception evidently bothered the Penguins as they went back to their potent ground game on their next scoring drive. YSU went 75 yards in thirteen plays, all but one on the ground, with Robson scoring his second tally on a five yard run. But Snoddy went right back to the aerial attack on YSU's next possession, again hitting Ferranti for a 39-yard TD on a first down play. Central State got the tally right back on the ensuing kickoff as Marcus Johnson raced 96 yards to paydirt making the score 49-27.

The Penguins then began emptying their bench and the two teams traded touchdowns in the last four minutes for the final count. YSU scored on a five yard run by senior reserve tailback David Townsend after Ferranti did it again on a 22-yard punt return to the Marauders' ten yard line.

Individually for the Penguins, after Snoddy's and Ferranti's fine performances, Robbie Robson had his most productive day of the season picking up 115 yards in 24 carries and two touchdowns. Dwight Dumas also picked up 68 yards in 15 carries and "Broomer" added 59 yards in 11 carries.

Defensively, the Penguins limited the Marauders to 290 yards total offense, with 271 yards coming through the air. Quentin Lowey, Terry Dittmer, and Kevin Statzer with his two interceptions all turned in fine performances.

Statzer, by the way, is only one theft shy of the school record of seven interceptions in a season set by Al Campman who also own the career mark with twelve tied by Statzer on Saturday.

Next, its AKRON! More on the Zip's in Friday's Jambar.

Basketeers begin practice; season begins December 2

Youngstown State has begun its 35th season of intercollegiate basketball under Head Coach Dom Rosselli. With a 540-330 won-loss record, Rosselli ranks as the third-winningest active coach in college basketball today.

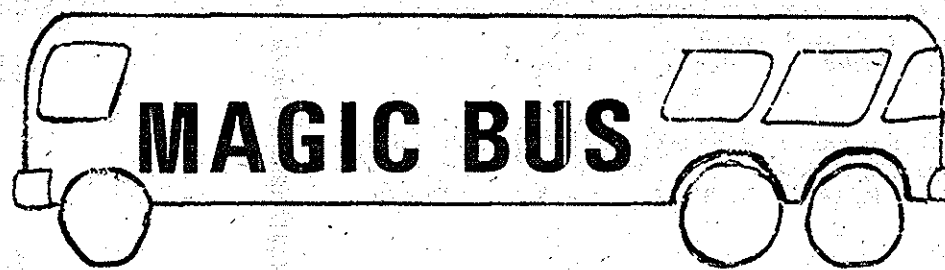

The Penguins will return two starters and six lettermen from last year's 16-9 squad. YSU will be hard pressed, however, to replace three talented senior cagers who played an instrumental role in helping the Penguins compile a 74-34 record over the past four seasons.

The trio—Frank Andrews, Jeff Covington, Gerald Parks—also helped YSU gain two NCAA tournament appearances. Covington, named the Player of the Year, by Basketball Weekly, finished his senior year ranked fourth nationally in scoring and rebounding.

"We will be a very young team with new faces who will have to make strong contributions very early," explained Rosselli. "As we head into this season, rebounding will be our biggest question

Wednesday's events also include four outdoor games: The Wheelbarrel Race, Pyramid Building, VW Squish and the Traditional Tug-of-War.

The Wheelbarrel Race and the Tug-of-War have been moved, and will take place in the area between Maag Library and the Butler Art Institute. In the event of rain on Wednesday, these events will take place at the same time and place on Thursday.

The outdoor cafe on Wednesday has been moved indoors to the Chestnut Room in Kilcawley. On Thursday, the Hamburger and Doughnut Eating Contests start at 11:30 along with the Bubblegum Blowing Contest. The events will all be held on stage in Hardees'.

Friday's events start with a Mini-Marathon 2 1/2 miles around campus and the park area beginning at 11 a.m. In the event of drizzling rain the race will still be run.

Error in Bulletin

This is to call your attention to an error on page 49 of the 1978-79 University Bulletin, in the second paragraph of the section entitled "Grade Requirements and Probation."

On May 6, 1977, the Academic Senate approved an alteration in the grade point average required for good standing during the first two years of college work. Unfortunately the new table of graduated grade point averages by credit hours did not get into the new Bulletin. The following should be substituted for table shown on page 49:

Credit Hours:	GPA
1-14	1.5
15-29	1.6
30-44	1.7
45-59	1.8
60-74	1.9
75plus	2.0

The foregoing is effective this fall quarter, 1978.

An announcement of the change will be supplied each student with his/her permit to register for the winter quarter, 1979.

HERE COMES THE BIG BIG BALLOON!

Cobett comments on new curriculum

Sixteen seniors in education chosen for program

by Toni DiSalvo

On Sept. 1, 1978, a new experimental course for senior-year teacher practicum has been established at YSU for secondary education certification.

Dr. Edgar Cobett, professor of Secondary Education, is one of the directors for this program, which is being held at Rayen High School and Canfield High School.

Cobett says that the program is "an extension of the Canfield Project. All the good elements are retained and the bad elements are overcome." This is a three quarter project that is in the experimental stage. "It is a pilot to see if it is a viable alternative to meet the new standards of teacher education," as mandated by the State of Ohio.

The program, "A Strategy for Curriculum Design - Phase One," has been developed by Cobett, other staff members and the Institute for Curriculum and Instruction. The ICI Basics Teaching/Learning Strategies Program consists of pre-instructional, instructional and post-instructional strategies. Some of these strategies are:

1. Analysis of learning objectives
2. Assessment of current achievement of learning objectives
3. Diagnosis of identified, verified deficiencies
4. Planning and conducting of learning activities
5. Evaluation of instructional effectiveness

Sixteen seniors majoring in secondary education have been recruited to participate in this special one-year professional training program that emphasizes teaching strategies for developing thinking/learning skills of secondary school students - strategies that can be applied to any area of the curriculum.

Walker

"Black youths need to be prepared," Walker further adds. I'm concerned when I see black youths who are lazy, ill-kempt, slovenly and not aspiring for higher and bigger things; letting so much go by."

At the end of the interview, Walker advised other senior citizens to find an interest in college. She stated, "With the varied programs available, seniors should find some kind of interest that would take up much of their time that would otherwise be wasted.

Dr. Arnold J. Moore, Dean of Education, said this program, "gives students early exposure to actual classroom settings. It's a planned experience. It also familiarizes the student with different classes and different teachings in a cultural background."

Moore said because this is a new experimental program, "very few, if any (universities)" are practicing this program. As far as the northeast area goes, "none" have tried the program in its entirety.

Students are receiving credit for this program and will be certified upon successful completion.

One teaching skill incorporated in this program is the knowledge of theory and use of audio/visual aids. In 1980, teachers will be expected to know the use of these aids as part of their teaching instruction.

Cobett says, "The audio/visual lab at YSU is a fine facility and their equipment is first class. The disadvantage is coming out here (Rayen) where the facilities aren't as adequate." The reason that the audio/visual labs are held at Rayen instead of YSU is because the students are exposed to the high school setting rather than being isolated from that setting at YSU.

Dr. Winston Eshleman, educational media, says, "I can do much better in a fully equipped lab. It is inadequate here." When the students arrived at Rayen, they took inventory of the audio/visual equipment and found:

Some overhead projectors

- 2 opaque projectors
- a 16 millimeter movie projector
- a 35 millimeter slide projector
- an 8 millimeter projector
- filmstrips and record players
- film strip and cassette player
- record player
- tape recorders (reel-to-reel)
- 1 TV set (broken cords)
- and 3 workable screens

Cobett says, "What they don't have here, we requisition from the School Board office and if they don't have it, we get it from YSU."

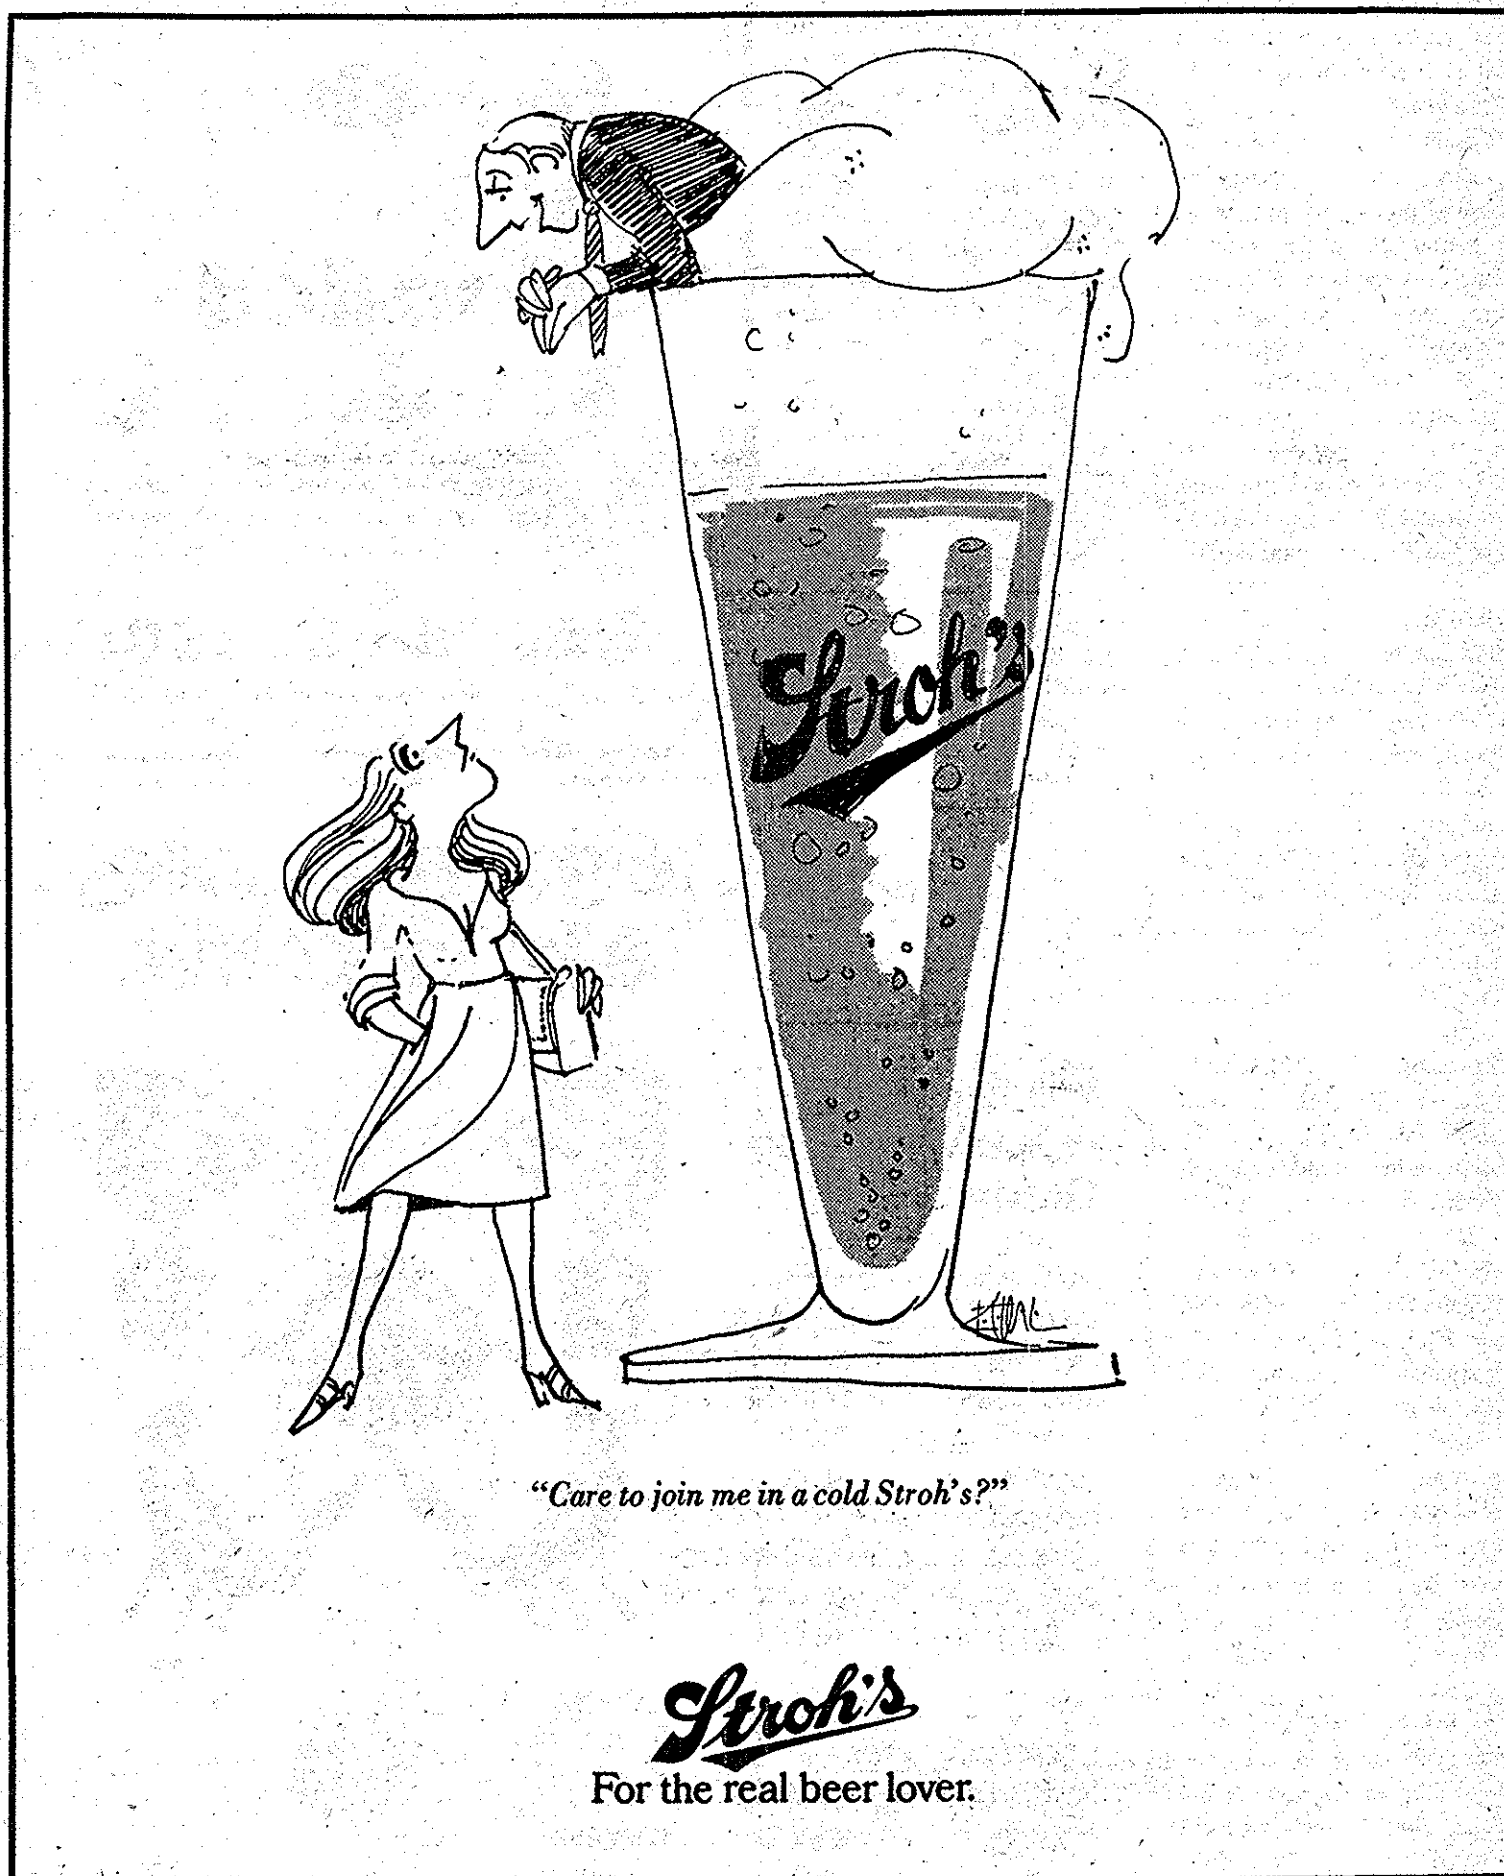

Cobett has received cooperation from the administration and the Secondary Education Department at YSU with this new program. He cites a few drawbacks to this program:

1. It is more demanding on professors' time because it is at the site of Rayen High School.

2. It is based on identified competencies and many educators do not agree with competency-based instruction. Some educators believe that you cannot identify competencies that teachers need; therefore, you can't develop them.

3. This is a new era - new concept, and all of us are a little fearful of change. It is more costly to the university. Professors aren't going to come out here (Rayen) and work for 12 hours and receive credit for six.

Another controversy with this program is that it has never been totally done. "Rethinking (Cont. on Page 15)

Folk Festival will be held at Stambaugh on weekend

YSU's faculty and students are again deeply involved in the International Institute's annual Folk Festival to be held next weekend at Stambaugh Auditorium.

Elaine Juhasz of the art department designed the cover motif for the 36-page program book which will be available for $1 during Festival hours, Saturday, October 21, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday, October 22, 1:30 to 11 p.m. The motif is also being silk-screened on t-shirts which will be available in all colors and sizes at a special booth.

Admission to the Folk Festival is a $2 donation for adults, $1 for senior citizens and children under 12.

around. She has no real exposure with the students but feels that the students "haven't changed" since her first year here, because "human nature doesn't change that much." "Students are interested in their own lives and buying textbooks are their main purpose in the bookstore."

The key to Dyke's success can be summed up in one word - cooperation. She says, "The main thing in getting any job done is cooperation." That's what she has, cooperation with the departments, publishers, and the bookstore personnel and that makes for a very enjoyable working relationship.

mark."

Steve Miodrag, a 6-5 junior, returns at forward. He was the Penguins fourthleading scorer last winter with a 6.4 average.

Joe Votino, a 5-9 junior, brings experience to the point guard soph where he totaled 111 assists a year ago.

Rosselli hopes that five recruits will add both scoring and rebounding punch to the lineup this season. The five include: Mitchell Atwood, a 6-8 sophomore center from Brooklyn, N.Y.; Dave Zeigler, a 6-5 freshman forward from Coshocton, O.; Bruce Alexander, a 5-10 freshman guard from Akron, O.; Robert Carter, a 6-2 freshman guard from Erie, Pa.; and Ricardo Ragland, a 6-5 freshman forward from Cleveland.

The Penguins will open the coming season at home, Dec. 2, against Maryland-Eastern Shore and will play eight consecutive games within the friendly confines of spacious Beeghly Center, before hitting the road for the first time on Monday, Jan. 8, for a critical battle with Northern Kentucky. The Norsmen are expected to be one of the top Division II teams in the nation this winter.

The sixth annual YSU Classic will be held on Fri. and Sat. evenings, Dec. 29-30. For the first time in the tourney's history, the three visiting schools will all be Division I squads. Providing the opposition for the Classic will be neighboring Kent State, St. Francis (Pa.), and Delaware State.

Tournament pairings have KSU and St. Francis playing at 7 p.m. on December 29 in the first game, while the host Penguins and Delaware State tangle at 9 p.m. in the nightcap. The two winners will clash in the title showdown at 9 p.m. the next day, preceded by the consolation tilt at 7 p.m.

For the first time ever, YSU will be competing in a league. And as fate would have it, the Penguins initial Mid-Continent cage contest will be against longtime nemesis Akron on Sat., Jan. 6, at Beeghly Center. Overall, YSU will play each league foe twice, home and away.

Volleyball
The YSU women's volleyball team swept to their first two victories of the season as the Penguins won two matches in a quadrangular meet held Saturday in Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania.

The Penguin women took five straight games before losing their last two in scoring wins over Geneva (15-12, 16-14) and Messiah (15-9, 15-6) before dropping a three-set match to Grove City College after winning the first game (15-7, 7-15, 5-15).

The women's team now posts a record of 2-3 for the season, after dropping their two opening matches. The team returns home on Wednesday night for a triangular meet with John Carroll University and Duquesne University. The initial match gets underway in Beeghly Center at 7 p.m. The Penguins are coached by John Tokash.

 s the controversy," says Cobett, "No one, at this point has put impediment in our way to prevent us from doing what we want. We have very good cooperation." Also, some faculty members do not like to leave the University facilities to work in less adequate facilities.

Raymond Brown, principal of Rayen High School says, "This is an excellent program for inner-city schools. So many student teachers teach in the suburbs where teaching methods are different. Dr. Cobett's program will produce better teachers because they will be better equipped to be in inner-city schools. They will find a job right away."

Brown said the best thing about the program was the exposure the student teachers will get by being around and working with the high school students for a whole year. "You must form a good rapport with the students (high school) and you must discipline them."

Barney Bennett, graduate student, education, is one of the students enrolled in the course. Bennett stated that it's a "program in which I may be certified in a year and I gain exposure in the secondary school system. I like the program very much. I love the people in charge of it."

Michael Copanic, graduate student, education, says, "I like the program," but instead of using one method, "I'm curious about other methods we should learn, too." Copanic "hopes it is not too strictly regulated. I haven't gone far enough to make a judgment yet." He also stated that when you're taught at college you're "thrown into a class and don't know a thing," this program, "gives you direction."

Doug Miller, graduate student, education, is in the process of becoming certified and says he "likes the program. I'm learning a lot about secondary schools, where I had limited background before."

Cindy Yumbar, junior, education summed up her feelings by a quote from John H. Sandberg, Educator, "It is experience in real schools with real children that provides the raw materials for what we do back in the peace and quiet of the campus classroom."

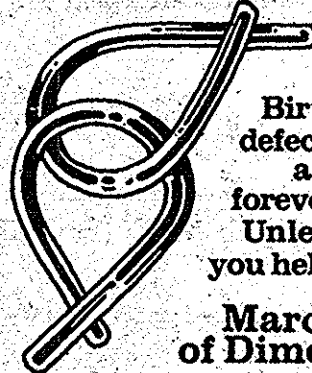

A built-in evaluation is an integral part of this program and depending upon the results, it will be known whether or not to incorporate it as a regular student teaching course.

The Secondary Education Department will begin recruiting students for next year. If you are a junior or senior in Secondary Education and are interested in this program, please contact Dr. Edgar Cobett or Dr. Louis Hill, Department Chairman for Secondary Education. The program is limited to sixteen students.

 Girls clubs will be involved in a Derby Race on Friday from 8:30 until noon chasing football players around the campus.

Along with these events, a Football Obstacle Course will be held starting at 11. Again, in the event of rain, this event will be cancelled.

To wind up the week's activities, the Second Annual Presidential Duel will be held in the Chestnut Room at 11 a.m. Friday. Tony Koury, Student Government President and John J. Cofelt, YSU President will be vying for the ping-pong championship and for the new winner's rotating trophy.

Despite the weather, the Homecoming Week will still happen. Some of the events may be moved around and changed but hopefully the rain will not dampen the spirit.
