

FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATE

Mailed Sept. 23, 1986

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Margaret C. Horvath of the Youngstown State University Home Economics Department recently presented a paper at an Allied Health research symposium sponsored by the School of Allied Medical Professions of Ohio State University in Columbus.

Ms. Horvath's report dealt with a study on the best methods of presenting nutrition and health education concepts to medical-surgical clinic patients. One of the conclusions was to present a short video presentation to waiting clients as well as scheduling counseling with a dietitian.

Participating in the study were Dolores Bishara, head nurse, Ambulatory Care Department, and Diane Snyder, assistant director, Nutrition Service, both of St. Elizabeth Hospital Medical Center. Also assisting were eight students in YSU's Coordinated Undergraduate Program (CUP) in Dietetics.

Ms. Horvath, a Canfield resident, is a registered dietitian and associate professor of Home Economics. She has been a full-time faculty member at YSU since 1973. She is a past president of the Ohio and Mahoning Valley Dietetic Association.

###

NEWS SERVICE
86-114

FOR RELEASE:

IMMEDIATE

Mailed Sept. 23, 1986

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Margaret C. Horvath of the Youngstown State University Home Economics Department recently presented a paper at an Allied Health research symposium sponsored by the School of Allied Medical Professions of Ohio State University in Columbus.

Ms. Horvath's report dealt with a study on the best methods of presenting nutrition and health education concepts to medical-surgical clinic patients. One of the conclusions was to present a short video presentation to waiting clients as well as scheduling counseling with a dietitian.

Participating in the study were Dolores Bishara, head nurse, Ambulatory Care Department, and Diane Snyder, assistant director, Nutrition Service, both of St. Elizabeth Hospital Medical Center. Also assisting were eight students in YSU's Coordinated Undergraduate Program (CUP) in Dietetics.

Ms. Horvath, a Canfield resident, is a registered dietitian and associate professor of Home Economics. She has been a full-time faculty member at YSU since 1973. She is a past president of the Ohio and Mahoning Valley Dietetic Association.

###

NEWS SERVICE
86-114

FOR RELEASE:

IMMEDIATE

Mailed Sept. 23, 1986

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Gordon Campbell of Mexico City, Mexico, a graduate of Youngstown State University and former Niles resident, is featured soloist in a recently released EMI/Angel album of the four Mozart horn concertos, recorded in Mexico.

Campbell has appeared as conductor and soloist with many symphonies in the U.S. and in North, South and Central America. He has been first horn with the prestigious National Symphony Orchestra of Mexico for the past eight years.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Campbell of Niles, he was a member of the Warren Junior Military Band and studied French horn with its director, Donald W. Hurrelbrink. He graduated from Niles McKinley High School, where his band director was Donald W. Byo of Hubbard, now director of YSU's Dana School of Music.

Campbell received a Bachelor of Music degree in 1968 and Master of Music degree in 1973 from YSU. He studied horn with Lois Hopkins of New Wilmington, Pa., and William Slocum of Youngstown, Dana faculty members.

While in Graduate School here, Campbell conducted the Repertory Reading Band under the direction of Robert Fleming of Warren, former YSU band director and current director of bands at Hiram College, and served as assistant for the YSU Symphony Orchestra.

He was also music director for the Temple Ohev Tzedek, the First Methodist Church of Niles, and the U.S. Steel Chorus of Youngstown. He founded and performed with the Western Reserve Chamber Players, and appeared with the Kenley Players Orchestra and the Youngstown Symphony.

Add One

After receiving his bachelor's degree, Campbell served in the Peace Corps in Paraguay and was first horn of the Paraguay National Symphony, instructor at the National Conservatory, and inaugurated a series of choral-orchestral concerts in Asuncion that continue today. With the help of YSU's Phi Mu Alpha fraternity chapter, and the United Christian Missionary Society, he gathered instruments for the first school band program at the International school in Asuncion.

He returned to Paraguay twice to conduct the National Symphony and participate in the choral-orchestral series under the auspices of the U.S. State Department.

After joining the National Symphony in Mexico, Campbell founded the Camerata Panamericana, which toured Central America in 1984, and was featured in the Inter-American Festival of Music in Washington, D.C., in 1985 under sponsorship of the Organization of American States.

Currently Campbell is coordinating the publication of the first horn method book in Spanish, specifically geared to Latin American students. The book, The Horn, It's Theory and Basic Technique, is by Antonio Iersolino of Buenos Aires, who is on the faculty of Mannes School of Music in New York City.

His future plans include another recording featuring music written for the French horn.

###

NEWS SERVICE
86-115
1a,c,3

FOR RELEASE:

IMMEDIATE

Mailed Sept. 23, 1986

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Gordon Campbell of Mexico City, Mexico, a graduate of Youngstown State University and former Niles resident, is featured soloist in a recently released EMI/Angel album of the four Mozart horn concertos, recorded in Mexico.

Campbell has appeared as conductor and soloist with many symphonies in the U.S. and in North, South and Central America. He has been first horn with the prestigious National Symphony Orchestra of Mexico for the past eight years.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Campbell of Niles, he was a member of the Warren Junior Military Band and studied French horn with its director, Donald W. Hurrelbrink. He graduated from Niles McKinley High School, where his band director was Donald W. Byo of Hubbard, now director of YSU's Dana School of Music.

Campbell received a Bachelor of Music degree in 1968 and Master of Music degree in 1973 from YSU. He studied horn with Lois Hopkins of New Wilmington, Pa., and William Slocum of Youngstown, Dana faculty members.

While in Graduate School here, Campbell conducted the Repertory Reading Band under the direction of Robert Fleming of Warren, former YSU band director and current director of bands at Hiram College, and served as assistant for the YSU Symphony Orchestra.

He was also music director for the Temple Ohev Tzedek, the First Methodist Church of Niles, and the U.S. Steel Chorus of Youngstown. He founded and performed

-MORE-