

FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATE

Mailed July 22, 1987

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Four Youngstown State University faculty members joined more than 150 program session and keynote speakers in Indianapolis, Ind. June 29-July 2 for the 78th Annual Meeting and Exposition of the American Home Economics Association.

Dr. Mary J. Beaubien, Youngstown, chairman of Home Economics, participated in a panel on Costs/Benefits of Accreditation of Small Baccalaureate Programs; Louisa Marchionda, Youngstown, limited service faculty, addressed home economists on the subject of "Nutrition/Health Options of Fifth Graders."

Also attending the meeting, "Crossroads to the Twenty-First Century," were Ilajean Feldmiller, Youngstown, professor emeritus of Home Economics; Janice Elias, Poland, assistant professor of Home Economics, and Ohio Student Member Section President Glenda Rice, Youngstown.

The American Home Economics Association is one of the largest national professional associations in the U.S., representing approximately 30,000 home economics professionals and students employed by privately and publicly owned firms, school systems, federal and state governments, colleges, universities, community service agencies, media groups, cooperative extension service units and research agencies.

###

NEWS SERVICE - SH
87-19

FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATE

Mailed July 22, 1987

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio - Four Youngstown State University faculty members joined more than 150 program session and keynote speakers in Indianapolis, Ind. June 29-July 2 for the 78th Annual Meeting and Exposition of the American Home Economics Association.

Dr. Mary J. Beaubien, Youngstown, chairman of Home Economics, participated in a panel on Costs/Benefits of Accreditation of Small Baccalaureate Programs; Louisa Marchionda, Youngstown, limited service faculty, addressed home economists on the subject of "Nutrition/Health Options of Fifth Graders."

Also attending the meeting, "Crossroads to the Twenty-First Century," were Ilajean Feldmiller, Youngstown, professor emeritus of Home Economics; Janice Elias, Poland, assistant professor of Home Economics, and Ohio Student Member Section President Glenda Rice, Youngstown.

The American Home Economics Association is one of the largest national professional associations in the U.S., representing approximately 30,000 home economics professionals and students employed by privately and publicly owned firms, school systems, federal and state governments, colleges, universities, community service agencies, media groups, cooperative extension service units and research agencies.

###

NEWS SERVICE - SH
87-19

ADD ONE

Dr. Seibold has had many articles published and has presented papers and conducted seminars at many professional conferences.

He and his wife have three children and reside in Sharon, Pa.

###

NEWS SERVICE - SH
87-18
1a,b,d,e