The Votes Are In: Heasley, Merritt Win

PIA BRADY
Editor-in-Chief

Chris Heasley and Sherry Merritt were elected Student Government president and vice president in 1994 Student Government elections this week. Heasley and Merritt were elected with 464 student votes. Heasley and Merritt were contested by Jennifer Campbell and Todd Beckett and Paul Drennen and Troy Leavery for president and vice president of Student Government.

Campbell and Beckett received a total of 329 votes while Drennen and Leavery received 251 votes. Heasley said, "I'm really excited I got this position." Heasley said he and Merritt had a lot of motivation while campaigning for the election and will continue their motivation in office.

"The University is really growing and I hope that Sherry and I can be a part of this growth and help students through Student Government," he said.

Heasley said that while he and Merritt were in the process of campaigning, they heard a lot of "great ideas" from students. Heasley said he wrote down the ideas and concerns students presented to him and that he wants students to continue getting involved with Student Government and to present them with ideas and concerns.

Heasley said he and Merritt are going to get together this weekend to discuss their plans for entering office. More information on the Student Government elections will be published in the May 9 issue of The Jambar.

Ads Club Places Third In National Competition

MATTHEW DEUTSCH

The YSU ADS Club recently placed third in the American Advertising Federation's "College World Series of Advertising."

The competition, which took place April 25 in Cincinnati, was attended by 15 other schools besides YSU. Western Kentucky University won first place, and West Virginia University, last year's first place winner, placed second.

"We're very happy to come in third," said Jolene D'Agostino, senior, a member of the ADS Club and a presenter at the competition. "We proved this year that we can compete with any of these schools."

Among those schools placing behind YSU were Ohio State, Ohio University, Xavier and Marshall.

The ADS Club students were required to create an integrated marketing communications campaign. As part of that, they had to generate creative concepts, marketing and sales promotion plans, See ADS page 7

YSU Receives Minority Infant Mortality Grant

DIANE DELUCO
Staff Reporter

The YSU College of Health and Human Services has received a federal grant to provide educational services for minority populations in the Youngstown area.

According to the project coordinator Jean Hasel, human ecology, this grant supports the Minority Infant Mortality Project, a pilot project that she is hoping to continue.

Twenty-two students from both the coordinated program in dietetics and the department of nursing will be responsible for teaching community volunteers about significant prenatal and postpartal nutrition and health care issues. These volunteers will then go out into the community and teach pregnant women and new mothers about the best choices to make for themselves and their children.

"Our goal is to improve pregnancy and infant health outcomes," said Hassell. "We want to encourage a healthy lifestyle and good food choices at this very important time."

The first program was held on Thursday, April 28 at Hagstrom House on Lexington Avenue and St. Andrews A.M.E. Church on Rayen Avenue.

In this session, "A Healthy Start for Baby", the importance of prenatal care and optimal weight gain were discussed. The relationship between fetal development and eating a nutritionally adequate diet was described along with the harmful consequences of maternal cigarette smoking, alcohol and drug use.

The next session, "The Best Foods for Baby," will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, May 12, at both Hagstrom House and St. Andrews A.M.E. Church. The benefits of breast feeding, proper bottle feeding techniques and the best food choices for the baby and new mother will be discussed.

Refreshments, games, gifts and prizes are planned for the two hour programs. According to Hassell, the volunteers will be encouraged to refer their clients to community agency programs, such as the Mahoning County WIC program, which assist in assuring proper prenatal and postnatal care at no cost to the client.

In order to prepare the students for this project, a focus group was set up to plan the contest and format to be used in their presentations. A post-conference will be held with the students and faculty to evaluate their experience and plan future programs.

Additional YSU faculty involved in the program include Sharon Phillips, nursing, and Jean Aboul-Ela, human ecology.

Health care professionals who also participated in this program were Fawn Allison, director, Mahoning County WIC Program, and Lois Powell, consultant.

Stu Gov Blood Drive Set For Next Week

CYNTHIA LOVAN
News Editor

"Be an Early Bloomer! Give Blood and Watch Life Flourish"—that is the slogan of this quarter's student government/Red cross blood drive. Scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Wednesday May 11, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday May 12 in Kilcawley Center's Chestnut Room, the blood drive's goal is to help end the Northeast Ohio blood shortage by collecting 205 units of blood.

Blood donated at the drive will be used by patients in Trumbull and Mahoning counties.

Student Government is sponsoring three contests to encourage faculty and students to participate:

The Departmental Challenge- this contest offers a pizza party to the University department with the most donors.

The Student Organization Challenge- this contest offers a $100 prize to the student organization with the most donors. This contest is also offering a pizza party to the student organization that provides student government with the most volunteers to help run the blood drive.

The Residence Hall Challenge- this contest offers a pizza party to the residence hall donating the most blood.

Tarena Lockett, student government's secretary of external affairs, said next week will be her first time donating blood. Lockett said she realized the importance of donating blood "after seeing my dad in the hospital when he needed it."

"Most people don't realize how important it is until it hits them close to home," she said.

Misconceptions about donating blood and fear of needles keep many potential donors from giving blood, Lockett said.

"The process is safe," Lockett stressed. "Many people are afraid they will be exposed to some disease through the needles but a new needle is used on each donor."

"People are busy but this is more important than any party or other activity," she said.

According to the Red Cross, a recent patient in need of an organ transplant was denied that opportunity because the local blood bank lacked a sufficient supply of the matching blood type needed to perform the operation.

Anyone weighing at least 105 pounds who is at least 17 years old is eligible to donate. It is safe to donate every 56 days but the Red Cross cautions that donors avoid strenuous activity for four hours after giving blood.

Student government asks campus supervisors to support this drive by donating and releasing their staff to donate if possible.

Blood drive officials prefer donors to schedule appointments, but they are not required. For more information call the Kilcawley Information Desk at x3516.

Buechner Hall Truly Has Everything

This beautiful residence hall for women, located mid-campus at YSU, is truly first-rate. Single and double occupancy rooms are completely furnished, including linens, telephones, and free cable. The building is fully air conditioned, and staff and guards provide professional, 24-hour security. Weekly maid service, exquisitely decorated lounge areas, quiet study environment, on-premise dining room and home-cooked meals, fitness room, and laundry rooms are other features supplying their share of full-comfort living.

Sound expensive? Not at all. Thanks to the large bequest of the Buechner family, which completed the building in 1941, more than half of all residents' room rental is still absorbed by the Buechner fund. The remainder required from residents including 15 meals per week, is $763 per quarter for double occupancy and $833 per quarter for single. Payable weekly. Your inquiry is solicited.

Heasley And Merritt Are A Winning Team

After all of the commotion of Student Government elections, the air has finally cleared. The students have voted and the ballots have been tallied. Chris Heasley and Sherry Merritt have achieved their goal to become the next Student Government president and vice president.

The students of YSU had a tough decision to make, because all of the candidates for president and vice president are active participants in Student Government. The student body watched the Student Government debate, followed articles on the candidates and listened to their campaign promises. Now all newly elected Student Government officials, including Heasley and Merritt, have an opportunity to make good on their campaign promises.

The majority of the student body stood behind Heasley and Merritt and not only gave them the encouragement to run, but the opportunity to take Student Government in new directions. Hopefully Heasley and Merritt will help Student Government move towards the year 2000.

Heasley and Merritt are right when they say the decisions they make for Student Government in the 1994-1995 academic school year will affect Student Government for years to come. Each new Student Government president and vice president sets the stage for student relations between faculty and administrators each year. These relationships either progress or regress depending on the leadership ability of Student Government officials.

However Heasley and Merritt have the experience and leadership skills to work effectively with students. Surely their knowledge of the University and familiarity with Student Government on the executive and legislative level will help them to assist students and enable them to enter their new positions with ease.

Methods Of Dealing With Pressures And Preventions Of Child Abuse

Eileen Adams

There's no denying that, at times, even the most pleasant child can try the patience of the most understanding adult. A cap off the tube of toothpaste, a spilled drink, muddy foot tracks on carpeting, a bad report card, unpaid bills, an argument with a friend, spouse or child—all of these seemingly minor problems can lead to child abuse and neglect.

Many of today's children live in single-parent homes or have parents or guardians that both work. And even those who come from a family where one parent stays home often find themselves in an environment where they're abused or neglected. While child abuse is a complex issue, and preventing it may seem like an overwhelming task, there are 10 simple steps which can be taken by starting with your own family.

Here's what to do when pressures start to mount:

- Take a deep breath and remember you are the adult.
- Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
- Press your lips together and count to 10 (or, better yet, 20).
- Phone a friend.
- If someone else can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
- Take a long, hot bath or splash cold water on your face.

- Hug a pillow.
- Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
- Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list!
- Spend quality time with your family before the everyday pressures become unbearable. Have fun together—play games. While they may seem frivolous, games create an opportunity for families to spend time together without stress. Whether a card game, board game or coin-operated game, spend the time together.
- Most of all, remember that by taking the time you can promote a positive parent-child relationship and stave off the temptation that oftentimes leads to tragic results.

GIVE THE GIFT OF LIFE — DONATE BLOOD AT THE YSU BLOOD DRIVE ON MAY 11th AND 12th

Each quarter, there is an American Red Cross Blood Drive at YSU. While YSU faculty and staff continue to donate sufficient units of blood to make the two-day blood drive a productive collection for the Red Cross, the University community should do a better job of contributing to our region. Blood is an item that generally needs to be donated, rather than manufactured. Money and technology cannot replace the need for the personal donation that giving blood entails. However, this donation is painless, requires less than an hour and has virtually no physical impact on the donor (unless you plan to run a marathon later that day). In contrast, the availability of blood is vital to the health of our fellow citizens. With current techniques of separating whole blood into various blood products, one unit can significantly assist a number of patients with a wide variety of physical needs. Therefore, donation should be viewed as a high benefit/low cost activity. As a nine-gallon donor, I personally see my contributions as no big deal — it's little more than the courtesy of opening a door for someone. However, from the perspective of recipients I realize that these gallons of blood have truly been viewed as a gift of life.

Please join me in donating a little of yourself on May 11th or May 12th.

Alumni Critique Graphic Art Students' Portfolios

Spring quarter only has a few weeks left. After this quarter, many graduates will celebrate the culmination of four or more years of devotion to achievement. Many graduates will also start to look for jobs. A very special and valuable show for junior and senior art majors was held May 3 at The McDonough Museum of Art.

The Annual Graphic Design Portfolio Review was not merely an art exhibition, but rather a reality lesson exhibition. Several YSU graduates from area cities appeared with their portfolios for the ready-to-graduate. The show was sponsored by the art department.

The show started with presentations of the guests' impressive portfolios. Guests included designer Anthony I. Worrellia, who presented "Winner Advertising," and Dave Ragan from IRA Thomas Associates.

Throughout the night, impressive art work by both the guests and the students was presented. Although many pieces reflected the trend of computer created images, most pieces illustrated the artists' unique visual thoughts. After the presentations, Susan Russo, art, moderated an open question-and-answer session between guests and students. During the session, a lot of valuable, practical and helpful advice was provided by the guests. They gave practical job-hunting tips to both undergraduate and graduate students. It was more like a lesson for job searching and preparation. The advice ranged from how to get an interview and how to get hired to maintaining jobs.

All guest speakers agreed that a good graphic designer is creative, does clean work and finishes his/her work before the deadline.

Give Her Coffee And Poetry For Mom's Day

ANDREA VAGAS
Entertainment Editor

That time of the year has come again when daughters and sons all over the world struggle with the question of what they should get their mother for Mother's Day. Another bouquet of flowers? A bottle of perfume? Another kitchen appliance created to make her life easier?

This year, take some time to give your mom something more creative than a batch of oatmeal raisin cookies. Instead, take her to The Beat coffee house and indulge her in an afternoon of poetry. "Women's Voices: A Mother's Day Poetry Reading" will take place from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, May 8.

The reading, organized by Dr. Sherry Linkon, English and Lisa Shattuck, English, will feature six members of a campus writing group. The women's group includes English department instructors, Peggy Antenucci, Kelly Bancroft, Dr. Julie Brown, Kathy DeNicholas, Dr. Sherry Linkon and Lisa Shattuck, as well as local teachers Vivian Axiotis and Christine Rizkallah.

The group, organized by Shattuck a year ago, offers workshops for local women writers and is in the process of compiling its work for publication. Presently, the group is meeting with a local publisher and hopes to introduce its poetry/fiction collection this fall.

"One of the most valuable things we have learned about writing, particularly creative writing through this group, is the way a piece of work evolves, has a life of its own. So even though the workshop assignment may be to write on a particular theme, and the writer may begin with that goal in mind, that is not always what the poem becomes. Often, I am simply the vehicle," Shattuck said.

She added that "The Beat offers a perfect atmosphere for afternoon readings. It is much more welcoming and much less threatening than a bar, and much more informal than a gallery location."

This year for Mother's Day, put yourself in your mom's shoes and think about what you would want for this special day. More greeting cards she can throw away? A box of chocolates that will be devoured in less than an hour? Or a new, fresh angle to Mother's Day: an afternoon of cappuccino and poetry at The Beat.

White Defeats Red In Penguins' Spring Preview

KIMBERLEY KERR
Sports Editor

YSU football fans had an opportunity to preview the 1994-95 returning Penguins' team during the annual Red and White spring scrimmage game at Stambaugh Stadium Wednesday night. The White team came out ahead 31-25, although both teams had impressive individual and team efforts.

Freshman quarterback Demond Tidwell gained 74 yards, connecting on 10 of 14 passes. Tidwell passed for one touchdown and scored one himself on a 6-yard run for the White team. Charles Perdue was the top rusher overall netting 76 yards on 14 carries including scoring on a 1-yard run.

Senior Terica Jones gave the White team the edge when he scored from the 1-yard line with 1:56 remaining in the game.

Honorary coach of the White team was former Syracuse University and New England Patriots' coach, Dick MacPherson.

Junior quarterback Mark Brungard connected on seven of 22 passes for 79 yards for the Red team. Brungard was also the leading rusher for the Red team, gaining 33 yards on 12 carries. Scoring for the Red team was Darnell Bracy on a 35-yard Brungard pass and Corey Scarloto on a 2-yard run. Paul Masaro was another bright spot for the night, making four of six field goals of 44, 40, 23 and 19 yards.

Honorary Coach for the Red squad was Jim Dennison, former Coach at the University of Akron and current athletic director and football coach at Walsh.

Terica Jones intercepted a

Brungard pass of the 7-yard line, destroying the Red team's last opportunity for a win as time ran out.

All in all, the defending Division I-AA Champions showed that they are putting forth the effort required to defend their title.

Monday, May 2, was a record-setting day for the YSU women's softball team. After defeating St. Bonaventure 7-0 and 7-4 in a doubleheader, they became the most victorious softball team in the history of the school.

The Penguins started the first game tied with the previous school record for regular season victories with 23 wins. YSU swept a doubleheader again Saturday, to tie the school record and gain the momentum needed for Monday's victories.

Leslie Molasky had three hits in the opening game to assist the Penguins in earning their 24th win. Kim Henson and Adele Cohan each had two hits and one double.

YSU finished the opener with 10 hits and no errors while St.

Bonaventure had no runs, three hits, and six errors.

In the nightcap, YSU had six runs, 15 hits and two errors, scoring in the second, third and seventh innings. The Penguins finished the day with an overall record of 25-20.

On Wednesday, May 4, the Penguins split a doubleheader with Akron, improving their record to 26-21 overall and breaking the record set by the team on Monday.

In the opener, YSU had one run, six hits, and one error while Akron had no runs, four hits and no errors.

In the nightcap, YSU was scoreless and had two hits and three errors while Akron had five runs, 10 hits and one error.

The 1994 team has earned their place in the YSU record books.

Penguins Rebound From Two Losses; Beat Akron

The Penguins' baseball team lost two games Tuesday to the Kent State Golden Flashes by the scores of 9-4 and 14-11.

It seems when the Penguins bats are hot, the pitching and defense are not.

The defense gave up seven runs in the fourth inning of the first game en route to the 9-4 loss. John Caldwell suffered the loss on the mound for the Penguins.

In the second game of the twinbill the Golden Flashes produced an eight-run seventh inning.

Despite the losses, there were some bright spots for the Penguins. One was senior second baseman Joe Ayette who hit two homeruns in each game, to give him 10 for the season.

Another bright spot was senior outfielder Lou Vassalotti who had four hits to become the all-time hit leader with 162 total hits in his four year career. He also extended his hitting streak to 15 games.

On Wednesday, the Penguins rebounded with a comeback win over arch-rival Akron.

The Zips led 6-1 in the game but the Penguins mounted a six-run comeback. The Penguins tied the game with a four-run eighth inning, 6-6. Freshman Jason Triveri ripped a single driving in the winning run in the eleventh.

Catcher Brad Zeigler and freshman Monte Morris had two hits apiece, while Vassalotti added a single to up his hitting streak to 16 games. Jeff Santa gained the win on the mound. The Penguins improved to 18-23.

The team is on the road this weekend in a three game series at Northern Illinois University. They're back home in a doubleheader against Toledo beginning at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Pemberton Park.

Math Rankings Of College Football Presented

YSU-Yesterday Doug Knickerbocker, senior, A&S, presented information on the mathematical methods for ranking college football teams. Knickerbocker's presentation was a part of Quest 94. Quest 94 was a presentation of various academic works which ranged from works in the English department to works from the mathematics department.

Research on the various topics was collaborated on by University faculty and students. All presentations lasted 15 minutes and members of the campus and the community were encouraged to attend the event.

Knickerbocker, who has a double major in mathematics and computer science, provided details on the controversy of selecting a national champion in the Division I-A college football ratings. Often ratings are based on subjective voting in the AP and UPI polls. Knickerbocker also presented background on computer poll ratings.

Knickerbocker presented several solutions to ranking college football teams through the matrix theory. Other methods presented in accordance with information from the 1993 college football season included the discrete method, continuous method, continuous method II, nonlinear method and the winning percentage.

POLICE BLOTTER

TUESDAY, APRIL 26

An officer was sent to the south side of the bookstore basement area at 6:20 p.m. in response to an incident involving alcohol. A parking service employee said he saw a man put a bottle of beer in a trash can in the F-2 parking lot on Spring Street. The man was advised of the YSU policy on alcohol and was issued a written trespass warning. He said he was only on campus to pick up his aunt.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28

An officer was sent to the Lincoln Avenue parking deck at 11:52 a.m. to respond to a vehicle fire. The officer used a fire extinguisher to combat the fire under the vehicle's hood until the Youngstown Fire Department arrived at 12:03 p.m. The vehicle's owner, who had parked in the deck at 11:50 a.m., was contacted and arrived on the scene. The cause of the fire was classified as an electrical malfunction.

FRIDAY, APRIL 29

An officer was sent to Room 102, Beeghly Center, in reference to a theft. An employee said she discovered the following items missing from the health services office: a medical dictionary valued at $30 and a Texas Instruments calculator valued at $11.

SATURDAY, APRIL 30

At 11:30 p.m., two officers noticed four males exit their vehicle in the F-1 parking lot on West Rayen Avenue. The men drank beverages from cans and then placed the cans under an adjacent vehicle. An officer identified one of the men and a further check revealed a warrant for his arrest from the Weathersfield Police Department. He was then arrested, taken to the YSU Police Department and issued a written trespass warning. He was eventually released into the custody of two Weathersfield police officers.

public relations activities and a total budget. The club presented a complete advertising campaign, including a 40-page campaign plans book, to the Kodak Co., this year's sponsor.

"In return (for their sponsorship), Kodak got an ad campaign directed toward the college market," said Sharon Hammond, senior, public relations director for the ADS Club.

In addition to D'Agostino, other members who presented at the competition were as follows: Jim Cyphert, senior, Ray Hall, senior, Chelsea Kelley, senior, and Lynn Whetsone, sophomore. Overall, twenty members, all from the School of Business Administration, participated in the project.

Both D'Agostino and Hammond indicated that the project demanded a tremendous amount of time and effort.

"This was the major thing we've been working on this year," said Hammond. "We started in January and worked right through Spring Break."

"There were about five of us who didn't get any sleep for three straight nights," added D'Agostino. "The project was a lot of work, but it was worth it."

The ADS Club, which was started in 1967, has participated in the competition six times. Last year, the club finished ninth.

Eugene Sekeres and Dr. Jane Reid of the marketing department are the faculty co-advisors for the group, which plans to lose many members to graduation this year. Although D'Agostino and Hammond are among those graduating, they are confident that the Club's success will continue.

"I think it's run by a very motivated group of students," said Hammond.

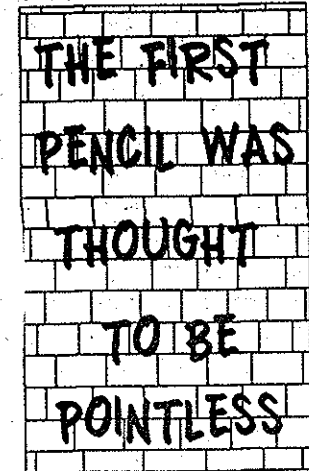

The club is composed of students from a variety of backgrounds and majors, including advertising, advertising art, graphics, professional writing, and editing and marketing management.

According to D'Agostino, this greatly contributed to the group's winning performance.

"We have all types of majors," she said, "and everyone did something different. It was a total team effort."
