Cahill Rides High In Student Activities

JOANNE SHARP
Staff Reporter

Cahill

Assistant Coordinator of Student Activities Chris Cahill's "baby" is a...CAB. Not just any cab, mind you, but one in which he hopes campus denizens "take the ride of their life." Creating this CAB — Campus Advisory Board — is a major goal of Cahill's for the next year and a half.

In his five months at YSU, Cahill has observed "great potential" in human resources — specifically, student resources. He feels the CAB will provide many opportunities for students to sharpen their leadership skills and expand their horizons. Other goals include increasing student activities, student programs and, most importantly, student participation in planning and implementing these endeavors.

Cahill has worked primarily with the Greek system on campus this year, supporting and advising student leaders in community outreach and other activities. His student-staffed office is also responsible for the recent appearance of comedian Carrot Top at YSU — their entertainment kick-off event. Their next entertainment venture, an outdoor concert series called "Lunch 'n' Lyrics," will take place in early June. A modern rock band from Kent called n. o. 509 will be featured near the Kilcawley Center fountain. Cahill plans to bring a variety of musical genres to the series "to provide a little something for everyone."

Cahill comes to YSU from Wayne State University in Michigan, where he earned his master's degree in administration. His baccalaureate from Michigan State University was in architecture; both degrees focused on recreation. He was a grad assistant at Wayne State's Student Center and Program Activities Department, advising students there "on any issues in which they felt the need for assistance." His student planners there succeeded in snaring Anita Hill and Carl Bernstein as guest lecturers, as well as planning concerts and art exhibits.

Cahill favorably compares YSU to Wayne State — both are urban commuter colleges located in downtown areas — even their physical layouts are similar. He feels YSU President Leslie Cochran is doing a great job in harnessing all of YSU's potential with the Campus 2000 program. Student groups falling under the auspices of Cahill's office, including the Greek organizations, are already participating in various activities in the surrounding community, including painting, mowing grass and working in the soup kitchen at St. John's Episcopal Church on Wick Avenue.

Cahill hopes everyone will hail his CAB. Taxi!

Summer Geography Class Looks At Cars And Culture

CYNTHIA LOVAN
News Editor

Developing an interest in cars seems natural for any boy growing up in Indianapolis. Dr. Craig Campbell, geography, was no different. This lifetime car buff and Indiana native has found a way to use his interest in autos to teach geography.

This summer, Campbell will teach Geography 840, which will study "The Automobile in American Culture" (course code 1805) and will be offered the second summer term Mondays through Thursdays from 10:10 a.m. to 12:10 p.m.

Campbell said, "Ever since I was a little kid I knew the names of all the cars and collected models and Matchbox cars. The interest has always stuck with me and I wanted to apply that interest in a geographical way."

The course is a first at YSU. It was taught by Campbell in the past at an Indiana college. It will focus on the history of the automobile and its social, geographical and ecological impact.

"This is a way of teaching geography through something everybody has experienced. No one in the U.S. hasn't been touched by the automobile," Campbell said.

Campbell explained how focusing on the automobile expresses all the themes found in the social sciences.

"It has affected our culture and attitudes," he said. "For example, the meaning of the back seat."

He said that in other cultures rite of passage into adulthood is signified by a religious ceremony, while in North America it is signified by earning a driver's license.

Cars have affected our lives in other areas such as the way we live. "It has influenced the shapes of cities making them huge," Campbell said.

"They have also changed the dominant features of our homes," Campbell explained that before the automobile a big front porch was the dominant feature of most houses. Eventually, because of noise and traffic, people began building porches smaller or on the back of their house. The garage also became an important architectural feature of a home.

Cars have also influenced the landscape. "Highway systems, and parking lots have become a major part of our landscape," Campbell said.

The class will examine these areas of impact as well as the future and detrimental ecological effects of automobiles.

A 1916 advertisement for the Westcott automobile, which was manufactured in Springfield, OH.

It will take a chronological look at the history of the automobile, focusing on the automobile in Ohio, starting with the 1800's. "We will use a text written by a historian, scholarly articles and articles from popular magazines such as Car and Driver and Auto Week," he said.

Even though it is a seminar class, students will not be expected to write a seminar paper. They will be evaluated through essay tests and journals.

Campbell said "I would prefer them to have taken human or world geography, but it isn't required if they speak to me first."

The class is worth four credit hours. Many seats are still open.

Human Ecology Department Receives Research Award

DIANE DELUCO
Staff Reporter

The YSU Department of Human Ecology has received a Student Research Award from the Ohio Dietetic Association for outstanding student research.

Students from the Coordinated Program in Dietetics presented their research on Thursday, May 5, at the Ohio Dietetic Association Annual meeting in Cleveland. Their poster session described their research project and results, which focused on the evaluation of nutrition and exercise literature made available to elderly patients in physicians' offices. The target area for this research involved communities in the Northeast Ohio Universities College of Medicine service area.

According to the project coordinator, Margaret Horvath, Human Ecology, many Mahoning County physicians' offices were included in the study.

"There is no other research nationwide which assesses the nutrition and exercise literature available in physicians' offices for the geriatric population," said Horvath.

The students developed an evaluation form which was used to evaluate the quality of literature physicians provide to elderly patients. One hundred forty-five pieces of literature were submitted and received from physicians' offices in this study.

The students found that the information was geared to the general adult population, was very disease specific and had a preventive and nutritional focus.

"More information needs to be geared to the geriatric population," said student researcher Keirsten Kunz, senior, H&HS.

With the continued "graying of America" Kunz emphasized the need to provide literature that would benefit and be of interest to elderly readers.

The recommendations obtained from their research include providing a format that is attractive, easy to read and with a clear organizational pattern. The technical level should be easy reading and designed for the general public. The content of the material should include accurate information which incorporates realistic life situations and also promotes lifestyle changes. The readers' knowledge and health care practices should be enhanced. They also recommend that the author of the literature is reviewed to assure that a qualified individual has contributed the health care information presented.

The dietetic students described their poster session experience as "wonderful."

"It makes us feel like we can make a difference," said Kunz. Another YSU student researcher, Mary Surrena, senior, H&HS, said their work shows that "we can get involved."

Students Spend Break Helping Others

ANDREA HOFFMAN
Staff Reporter

Sand and beaches are what Spring Break mean to many college students. Even just a relaxing week off is Spring Break to many of us. Well, for three volunteers from the Newman Center, YSU's on-campus Catholic service center, their spring break was spent in a much more charitable fashion.

This year, Habitat For Humanity's Collegiate Challenge took Maria Lucente, Patricia Lucente and Sister Pat Slater to Chicago to work with Habitat and Vista. Forty two work sites were available to choose from but Chicago was chosen because none of the three had been there previously.

This "alternative Spring Break" was designed by Habitat six years ago and is a "nationwide movement right now — not everyone is going to Ft. Lauderdale" for their Spring Break said Sister Slater.

YSU's "alternative Spring Breakers" paid $100 to travel to Chicago, where they slept on a floor of the Rogers Park Presbyterian Church with 20 other volunteers.

"Our typical workday began with rising at six thirty a.m.," said Sister Slater, "after donning work clothes, and downing a quick breakfast, the group walked twenty minutes to the construction site. After signing in, picking up hard hats, tool belts, levels, rasps, keyhole saws, extension cords, ladders, screw guns and handfuls of drywall screws, we were off to work." Quite different from the typical Spring Break gear; suntan lotion, a boom box, and beachwear.

The group worked steadily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., with a short break and an hour for lunch.

The group's job was to remodel a 12-unit apartment complex in Chicago's Rogers Park area. Sister Slater, Maria and Patricia Lucente, along with 13 students from Carlton College in Minnesota, a few professionals who donated their time and even future candidates for Habitat's housing realized they had quite a job ahead of them.

During this "Break" week, they hung drywall, plastered, measured and sawed. They wore hard hats, tool belts, used screw guns, ladders, keyhole saws and rasps; all essential tools in order to get the apartment units in living condition.

The apartment units were then to be sold to people who meet Habitat's definition of "working poor" which is defined as 150 percent of the poverty level. According to Sister Slater, there is quite a waiting line for such apartment units.

For instance, Rogers Park is a somewhat "working poor" neighborhood. Many of the residents are struggling to raise families, make ends meet and basically just to survive. "Working poor" means that these people are working, at some type of job, in order to support themselves and their families without any type of government assistance, Sister Slater added.

Habitat's set of conditions include that the person be working, be below the poverty line of 150 percent, and be living in sub-standard housing (housing not fit to live in).

Habitat requires the approved applicants put a 1 percent down payment of the total costs involved in remodeling. Then payments are arranged based on income. Another great thing about this program is that there is no interest charged to the applicants (we know that's unbeatable). They are buying a home or apartment unit totally interest free! This program gives people, who probably would otherwise never be homeowners, the opportunity to have something and work towards something.

There was one well-deserved "free day" for Sister Slater, Patricia and Maria Lucente — which let their muscles relax from all that hard work, and let them do some sightseeing in Chicago. They went to a Rock-and-Roll McDonalds, the Art Institute of Chicago and a Hard Rock Cafe.

Sister Slater says that the curious may ask, why did you pick Chicago, or why don't you do this here in Youngstown? And she said it best, "it's not an either/or" situation (either Chicago or Youngstown) "it's a both/and" situation (Chicago and Youngstown).

Habitat also does work here in Youngstown. Habitat finally received its campus affiliate status after much paperwork. Now, YSU will have an affiliate chapter here on campus. For more information contact Fred Blue (742-4253) or Nate Richie (742-3303).

So, if you are looking for an alternative Spring Break next year and want to be a part of "something larger" and Habitat's Collegiate Challenge, consider talking to Sister Pat Slater at the Newman Center. Next year's proposed trip is to Appalachia.

You may learn some valuable skills, meet some interesting people, get a greater sense of confidence as well as a sense of "being a part of something larger than you" and who knows, you might also enjoy it! According to Sister Slater, "we all agreed that we will never look at a wall the same way again."

The Newman Center is moving June 10 to Lyden House, 254 Madison. The phone number is 747-9202.

For further information about the campus chapter of Habitat, call Fred Blue at 742-4253 or Nate Richie at 742-3303.

Annual Fund Phonathon Concludes With Success

YSU - The YSU Annual Fund Phonathon has come to an end with great success. With the participation of many campus organizations such as the Greeks, Student Government and faculty and staff, a grand total of $13,285 has been earned.

"This is 30 percent over our goal," said Cheryl Staib, University Development.

The phonathon has been going on since April 11. Most of the funds will contribute to Financial Aid & Scholarships.

"There is a real need for the money here," said Staib.

"The phonathon also helped the organizations fulfill their service projects, raise money for their groups, and they will remember this when they receive a phone call as alumni and will contribute," said Staib.

University Development will sponsor the phonathon again next February or March.

"I think we can improve our fundraising if people expect the phonathon each year," said Staib.

POLICE BLOTTER

Tuesday, May 31

At 9 p.m. an officer was sent to M-9 parking lot on Walnut Street. A man said he parked his vehicle there at 10:30 a.m. and then moved it to the S-5 lot on Webb Street at 4:30 p.m. While moving the vehicle, the man did not notice any damage to it. When he returned to the S-5 lot at 8:30 p.m., he discovered a window broken and items missing from the vehicle. However, no broken glass was found in the S-5 lot, but in the M-9 lot instead. The man said the reason he didn't notice the damage was because he had been in a hurry.

Wednesday, June 1

An officer was approached by a student on the first floor of the Kilcawley Student Center at 4:02 p.m. The student said a man propositioned him in the men's restroom across from Arby's restaurant. The officer and the student both went to the area, and the student identified the man. After producing some identification, the man was taken to the department and photographed. He was then issued a written trespass warning, told not to return and released.

At 1:58 p.m. an officer was sent to Williamson Hall in reference to a student having a seizure. The student, who said he was taking medication for his condition, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital Medical Center by a Gold Cross ambulance.

EDITORIAL

The Academic Year In Hindsight

During the 1993-1994 academic year the campus community has shared a lot of their concerns and feelings in The Jambar's opinion pages. Today's opinion pages offer the campus community an opportunity to retrospectively consider some letters and commentaries sent to the paper this year.

The Bible according to Matthew says "the first shall be last and the last shall be first." This quote is definitely true of today's editorial, which was my first editorial of the academic year.

People should say thank you to others in an appropriate manner. There are various ways of accomplishing this feat. One may say thank you in person or send someone a thank you card. However, some people take time to give thanks to others in a self-indulgent manner.

For instance, when Grammys are awarded it is impossible to actually sit through all the thank yous someone wants to say. Some entertainers are so desperate they invade the stage in the middle of another entertainer's thank you. While this tactic is not encouraged, it allows the show to have some comic relief.

Unfortunately the same self-indulgences also occur in various student publications. You know those commentaries that read "I would like to thank my mother, my best friend from kindergarten, my mailman and my next door neighbors." Commentaries similar to this should not be printed in student publications.

However, these commentaries not only thank too many people, they also hold the readers hostage as the writer takes a stroll down memory lane, takes sniper shots at other's characters and takes pity on life's events. Surely most readers of any newspaper are not interested in those tons of people who are being thanked. Most readers probably do not catch the inside, snide comments that are made.

The point is that commentaries should serve some purpose for their readers and enable their readers to understand them. Inside information unnecessary because no one understands the information unless they are on the inside. People read the news to gain information, not to practice decoding.

Life was not a bowl of cherries, these commentaries complain. A familiar saying is "people in hell want ice water," which means people do not always get what they want. No one is ever able to have things their way all of the time.

The Jambar will not publish any self-indulgent, vanity thank you commentaries this year. A student newspaper should be as professional as other newspapers and abolish such practices. "Close the door on another one!!!" was a phrase used in one such commentary. Yes, do close the door and seal it with crazy glue.

President Cochran Goes Retro

Dear Editor:

Thanks for the opportunity to reflect on the past year. There were numerous activities that occurred during the 1993-94 academic year. I will try to highlight only a few.

Last fall the first group of University Scholars moved into Lyden Hall. Under the leadership of Nate Ritchey, these capable individuals have become involved with community service and co-curricular activities while also pursuing rigorous academic programs of study. A second group of forty has already received "full ride" academic scholarships for next year. We are looking forward to more great things from this group.

Within the past several weeks, the University concluded financial arrangements so the new Residential Honors Facility can be constructed. This facility will be located on the corner of Elm Street and Madison Avenue, adjacent to Christman Commons and Lyden House. When construction is completed in the fall of 1995, this facility will house up to 275 honors students including those involved in the University Scholars Program. It will also have an academic wing which will contain classrooms, seminar rooms, and a computer laboratory.

The Residential Honors Facility is one facet of Campus 2000 which projects an exciting future for the campus. A new College of Education Building is in the final planning stages. This "state of the art" facility will be located between Rayen and Lincoln Avenues near Fifth Avenue. Across Fifth Avenue additional parking is being planned. I know that will make all students happy. I would encourage individuals to stop by and see the Campus 2000 model which is located near the Spring Street entrance to Kilcawley Center.

I am pleased, also with the progress that has been made in our efforts to share information and enhance communications across the campus. Although we are still in a period of transition, there are positive signs that our University community is starting to develop a "sense of community". An atmosphere of mutual respect among all colleges is essential for the well being of the campus.

Another major accomplishment was the development of our new mission statement. When each campus unit completes its own goals and objectives, the University will be well positioned to move forward in a positive manner.

Certainly one of the highlights of the year was the NCAA Division I-AA Championship. Being in the championship game three years in a row is a major accomplishment. Winning two of those three championship games is an outstanding achievement, and one that can be shared with the entire Mahoning Valley.

Recently, YSU and the Youngstown Public Schools officially signed a partnership agreement. This agreement joins the two major educational systems together to improve the educational opportunities afforded Youngstown students from kindergarten through the bachelor's degree. This partnership is already being seen by The Ohio Board of Regents as a model of cooperation between local public schools and a university.

Another major step toward the future was the recent announcement that YSU intends to become the first state institution in Ohio to be identified as an Electronic Campus. The possibility of linking images, voice, video, data, multimedia, and text materials through campus fiber-optic backbone network is an exciting concept. The Electronic Campus will link faculty, students, and staff in a variety of ways that can significantly enhance the process of education.

I am proud of our faculty, staff, and students. Daily I receive success stories too numerous to recount. With the dedication of the entire campus community, I am pleased to say that YSU exceeded my expectations!

Best wishes for a most enjoyable summer.

Sincerely,

Leslie H. Cochran,
President

The Last Word: Too Busy Moving Forward To Look Back

The academic year is almost over. For most of us this means we will have a chance to finally catch some much needed sleep. After all, finals are finally over (pun intended). For me, the ending of the academic year is a new beginning.

It is ironic how the ending of something can bring on the beginning of something else. However, all things must come to an end in order to bring forth new ideas, adventures and life. It may seem odd, but endings happen to be one of the cosmic oddities of life that I enjoy most.

During the 1993-1994 academic year, I had the opportunity to be the editor-in-chief of The Jambar. Although Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) said something to the effect that he would always be good so that he would never become the editor of a newspaper, I, on the other hand, was pleased to assist in producing a student newspaper.

Pia N. Brady

productive member of the YSU student population. Being the editor of the paper allowed me to enhance my journalism skills and contribute to the student body. However, all was not roses on my path to stardom at The Jambar.

In the beginning, the road was rough and ragged. Trying to print a paper that everyone was pleased with was tough. Unfortunately, not everyone was pleased with the newspaper.

This problem proved to be most troublesome. Fortunately I learned Walter Lippmann's lesson that "responsible journalism is journalism in the last analysis to the editor's own conviction of what, whether interesting or only important, is in the public interest."

With each issue of the paper, things became less tense and producing the paper became easier. Now that my job as editor-in-chief is over I can relax and look forward to improving my education in other aspects. I definitely agree with the book of Ecclesiastes, which says "better is the ending of a thing than the beginning thereof."

It Is Not Hard To Say Good Bye

Cynthia Catheline

Yes, I am one of those 20-something slackers from Generation X and in 15 days I'm going to graduate - FINALLY! I can't wait to get out into the "real world" (as long as I don't have to get a "real job").

Although I've been preparing for this day for a long time, I never really thought it would arrive. Over the past few days I've been thinking about what I will miss about college (homework is not even in the top 100), who I'll miss and the people that have helped me out at YSU, so for my farewell commentary I want to acknowledge those people who have helped me through the paper and through my years at YSU.

First and foremost I have to mention my Dad. (Yes I am daddy's little girl and proud of it.) For all you do, dad, this bud's for you! You've always been there for me and I love you for it. Hey - aren't those new convertible Mustangs really cool?

I also have to acknowledge my mom, step-dad, little brother (FEE!) and the rest of my family for helping me through the trials and tribulations of college life. Did I mention that Mustang?

The YSU athletic department will always hold a special place in my heart. Everyone over there was like a family to me for four years. They gave me my first "real" job, put up with my many shenanigans, various excuses for being late, and for not being there at all and finally gave me the kick-in-the-butt I needed to get my education on track. I'll always be a Penguin fan and would like to encourage other students to support ALL the Penguin teams.

Everyone at The Jambar is fun to work with, whatever their names are - just kidding! I am so pleased I had the opportunity to serve on the staff this year with so many talented people: Pia, Andrea, Kim, Cynthia, Matt, the Susans, Ginny, Serwaa, Krista, Soyoung, Dave, Mike, Mary Catherine, Holly, Olga and our dedicated, helpful advisors Hope Stephan and Dr. Bill Mullen. We made it through the 2 a.m. deadlines (Matt and Andrea - how was that long drive?), the computer problems and I think the paper looked great all year.

I also have to say that I cherish all of my many wacky roommates without whom I would not have been around here for so long. Guys, I appreciate you all for keeping me out partying until all hours of the night, going on Spring Breaks with me, teaching me those creative excuses, how to blow off classes, blow off studying, blow off writing papers... or did I teach you that?

I would be remiss if I didn't mention the friends who have stood by me through it all. V, we've been through a lot and we're still together. Whoever thought we would cease to be "bestest" friends was dead wrong. I would never shun you! (Viva Las Vegas!) Trenton, I will always be your friend through thick and thin, even though you act so corny! And last but certainly not least, DZ. (Talk about being through a lot!) We're having a lot of fun, again, and you know you mean the world to me and will always be in my heart - no matter what. (I thought you said that I'm all right, spider.) Plus, you did introduce me to Jennifer and she's one of the closest friends I have. Not to mention the wildest!

To all of my friends I'm leaving behind, you've all touched my life in so many ways and I hope you make the most of these college years. In a few weeks I'll be riding off into the sunset in my new Mustang. I mean car, towards fame and fortune. Arrivederci, adios, farewell, good-bye. It's been real and it's been fun - hey, it's been real fun!

Past Graduate Is Embarrassed

Dear Editor:

I was offended by Mr. DeMay's attempt at humor in the September 28 issue of The Jambar.

The ostensibly friendly letter called "Tips for YSU Freshmen" communicated more of DeMay's frustrations and general low self-esteem than anything else.

Phrases like "nothing annoys me more than stupid freshmen trying to be cool" are inappropriate in a university publication. The phrase "we sophomores, juniors and seniors don't really care where our classrooms are or if we get there at all" betrays DeMay's view of the quality of education that he receives at YSU.

DeMay's letter revealed an arrogant, adolescent, condescending view of the world.

Instead of viewing others with less specific experience as he as "stupid" or "not cool" in the attempt to elevate self-esteem, perhaps DeMay and like-minded "upperclassmen" could attempt to be kind, helpful, and accepting of others as well as themselves.

I am embarrassed that The Jambar would allow such sophomoric "journalism" to be published.

YSU Staff Help Will Never Be Forgotten

Dear Editor:

I am writing to you so that you might be able to remind the students at YSU of the fine group of faculty members you must have at your University, especially Mr. Ken Conaster.

On July 20, 1993 my 1-year old son and I drove to the Columbus airport to pick up my sister, who is five months pregnant with twins, and her 1-year old daughter. Heading west on I-76 back to our home in Niles we ran out of gas. My sister and the babies waited in the car and I started walking to the next exit, which had to be a few miles up the road. A car pulled over, a tall handsome man got out. He could see I was a little bit nervous. Right away he put up his hands and said he just wanted to help. He handed me his card identifying himself as the Assistant Football Coach at YSU, Ken Conaster. I was still hesitant about getting into his car so he offered to go get us gas and come back. I gave him $10. He was back in a matter of minutes, with my change and a plastic jug full of gas. He then got an empty Evian-water bottle out of his car, cut it in half and used it as a funnel to get the gas in the car. We offered him money for his trouble but he absolutely refused and insisted on following us up the next exit where we could fill up the tank, to make sure that was the problem.

I don't know what we would have done if he hadn't stopped to help, or what could have happened. We will always be grateful to him. It is nice to know in this day and age that there are still honest, helpful people out there and one of them is a member of your staff at YSU.

Sincerely,
Stacy S. Neilan

Summer Isn't Just For Suntans And Swimming

ANDREA VAGAS
Entertainment Editor

So you're gonna pretend you're in high school again and take the summer off, huh? What do you think you're going to do? Oh, sure, at first it will be great. You'll kick your feet up on a lounge chair, slap on some oil and bask in the sun for, say, two hours, three days a week. You and I both know that will become real dull, real quick. (Not to mention extremely hot, irritating and sticky).

But — you say — I can go to the lake with my friends and play tennis and swim. That will be great! Yeah, until you remember that young, darling kiddies also go to the lake — and they don't take the time to walk to the rest room when nature calls like you do.

So the backyard basking and lakeside lingering took about three weeks of your time. What are you going to do for the next ten to eleven weeks? Just for your convenience, I've compiled a top ten list of the best things to do this summer. Take 'em or leave 'em — I could care less. Just keep in mind that I did this for you. Oh, yeah, and have a great summer.

TOP TEN THINGS TO DO THIS SUMMER

10. Catch up on that book you've been meaning to read for the past two years. Without any classes to deal with, you can go at your own pace.

9. Get close to nature — go to the park. Mill Creek Park is one of the most beautiful parks in the country. Play Frisbee, walk your dog, hike, or just cuddle in the grass with a close one.

8. Do as many childish things you can think of. Have a water balloon fight, play on the slip-and-slide, have a slumber party, eat ice cream (and don't feel guilty about it).

7. If the heat is too much for you, take a seat in an air conditioned movie theater. Summer is the best time for popcorn, Twizzlers and a movie.

6. Get together with some old buddies who are back on break. Many students won't be going to school this summer, so you can drink some piña colodas in the shade and catch up on old times.

5. Take a trip out of town. There's nothing more refreshing than getting away from the norm of your hometown. Plan a day touring the city of your choice, visit a friend, or get decked out and dance all night at a hip club.

4. Go to festivals. Just think of the French fries, hoagies and cotton candy. Not to mention the rides and games. (And don't forget one of the biggest fairs in Ohio — the Canfield Fair).

3. Get your butt to a theme park! Pack up the coolers and grab your shades and lots of friends. Cedar Point, Geauga Lake, Sea World, Kings Island and Six Flags are all within reasonable distances from the city.

2. Go to a concert(s). As you may have heard, this summer is one doozy of a year for concerts. Pink Floyd, Rolling Stones, Billy Joel and Elton John, Eagles, Lollapalooza, Grateful Dead — need I say more?

1. Nothing! There's no better time to relax by yourself than in the summer when the trees are green, the air is warm and it's okay to do nothing if you choose to.

Top 10 Things Not To Do This Summer

MATTHEW DEUTSCH
Assistant News Editor

I can hardly realize that it is already the month of June. You've already seen what things you should do over the glorious months of summer. Now, based on my past experiences, you will also know what things not to do.

Please, keep in mind that these are only guidelines. If you do choose to do the things on this list, I really don't care. If you think that is a bad attitude, I don't care about that, either.

You'll all be happy to know that I'll be writing at you again next year. Until then, be young, have fun, drink water.

And remember, I'm not only the president, but I'm also a client.

10. Watch a movie based on a children's cartoon.

9. Work.

8. Use a lawnmower for any reason.

7. Hold up the ice cream truck (without backup).

6. Go swimming less than an hour after you eat.

5. Say "To hell with Stan Boney and his heat index."

4. Ride the Texas Twister while holding a Sturpee.

3. Fall asleep in the sun while naked.

2. Sweat (except in certain circumstances).

1. Drink and drive.

Movies are just one avenue to look into when thinking about what to do this summer. In Beverly Hills Cop III, Detroit Police Detective Axel Foley (Eddie Murphy) discovers that Serge (Bronson Pinchot) is running a designer gun shop.

Floyd Kerr Appointed to New YSU Position As Assistant To The Athletic Director

KIMBERLEY KERR
Sports Editor

YSU Director of Athletics Joe Malmisur and head football coach, soon-to-be Penguin Director of Athletics, Jim Tressel, announced Wednesday that Floyd Kerr has been named to the newly created position of Assistant to the Director of Athletics.

"We are very excited to bring a man the caliber of Floyd Kerr to our administration," Coach Tressel said. "His experience and knowledge will allow us to become the broad-based program that we aspire to be," he added.

Coach Kerr has over 20 years of Division I and international coaching experience and earned a M.Ed. degree from Colorado State University in educational administration.

"Considered one of the finest gentlemen in collegiate athletics, he has a well rounded resume that includes playing and coaching on both the collegiate and professional levels, and most recently on the scholastic level (he was an assistant coach for the Girard High School Indians in 1992-93 during their state championship season) prior to his appointment at YSU," said Greg Gulas, Sports Information Director at YSU.

Standing in Bliss Hall with several of his paintings in the background, Coach Kerr said that his new position will be dedicated to the advancement of all of the schools' non-revenue sports and most importantly the continuous development of the women's programs.

"One of my goals is to assure that YSU's male and female student athletes are provided a total and positive collegiate experience," Kerr stated.

Coach Tressel said that this appointment was the result of advice given to him by Joe Malmisur who advised him to make sure to surround himself with good people.

"Floyd cares about student athletes and will represent a voice for the basketball program," Tressel said.

Coach Kerr said that he is excited about his new position and feels prepared to meet the challenge.

Coach Tressel and Floyd Kerr share conversation after press conference announcing Kerr's new position.

Academic Awards Banquet Honors Scholar-Athletes; Matt DeVicchio Named Leadership Award Winner

KIMBERLEY KERR
Sports Editor

Representatives of the academic and athletic departments of YSU as well as community members were on hand to honor the 1993-94 scholar athletes at the Academic Awards Banquet on Tuesday. The banquet, sponsored by the Penguins Club, recognized the accomplishments of student-athletes in the classroom, in their sport and in the community.

The Penguins Club's Offensive Lineman Leadership Award, designed to honor the player who best exemplifies excellence in the classroom and leadership outside the classroom, was presented to Matt DeVicchio.

A graduate of Ursuline High School, DeVicchio played in all 15 games for the Penguins last season, maintained a 3.44 GPA and volunteered in the community. His volunteer activities include helping with the Light Up a Life Campaign at Tod Children's Hospital, helping at Hagstrom House and serving as a community Christian service member. The 6-1, 265 pound senior is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis DeVicchio of Hubbard.

In addition to the award presentation, Joe Malmisur presented on behalf of the Penguin Club a $70,000 check to YSU Development Director Vern Synder and a $25,000 check to Reid Schmutz, director of the YSU Foundation.

The Vindicator YSU Male and Female Athlete of the Year awards were presented by The Vindicator's Sports Editor, Jim Nasella. Nasella said that what award winners Jeff Powers and Mona Jackson accomplished in the classroom is much more important than their accomplishments in athletics. Jackson accepted her award with an eloquent presentation that earned her a standing ovation. Powers shared his humorous side in his acceptance speech, earning both laughs and a standing ovation.

The event highlighted the fact that YSU athletes are not stereotypical, but rather true student-athletes.

Will The Reds Do As Well As Last Season?

CHRIS RICHCREEK
Media Tribune Services

It is already two months into the baseball season, yet the proving of the Cincinnati Reds has just begun.

For the Reds to be a contender in the NL's Central Division, several key players must have good years.

And years is the key word, for the players in question have to be consistent over a full season.

The Reds know the type of production they will get from shortstop Barry Larkin and ace pitcher Jose Rijo. They are established stars who show up at the ballpark every day.

No, the true questions for the Reds center around players like Kevin Mitchell.

Last season, the outfielder hit

.341 with 19 homers and 64 RBI in only 93 games. The Reds need him to produce in more than 150 games.

Outfielder Reggie Sanders must prove he can put up another solid offensive season like 1993, in which he batted .227 with 20 homers, 83 RBI and 27 stolen bases.

Will Tony Fernandez, who was born a shortstop, be able to make it a full season at third base? He must provide strong defense there and drive in some runs as well.

The pitching mound also is not without its questions. John Smiley must show his injury in 1993 has healed and he can put up strong numbers over a full season.

Of course, ace reliever Rob Dibble has already had problems with injuries this season. The Reds need him to return and reclaim his role.

Skipper Davey Johnson is not immune to the proof serum. It took him a long time to regain another managerial spot after his term with the New York Mets.

Yet it seemed he was under fire from day one. He will have to get exceptional effort out of this team if he wants to keep his job.

The Reds had a solid start to the season. But the key to this team is not who was the hot spark in April, but rather who will still be a glowing member in September.

This is the last issue of The Jambar. Summer issues begin June 23, 1994.
