Group devotes week to peace, love

By CLARENCE MOORE
Jambar News Editor

In this time of cold-war tension between the superpowers, a student organization has declared this week one of peace and love.

"John Lennon Peace Week: A Concept of Love" will be a week-long celebration of the man (Lennon) and his philosophy of peace and love, as presented by Students United for Peace, a student organization.

According to Kris Russo, president of Students United for Peace, dedicating an entire week of peace to the memory of Lennon is not some eccentric gesture on the group's behalf.

"Contrary to what everyone else believes, we think that John Lennon was a contemporary philosopher," says Russo. "And if you listen to his music, you'll hear that his songs promoted peace and love."

Russo began planning "John Lennon Peace Week" about six months ago. Originally she wanted to schedule a single day of events for Lennon's birthday (Oct. 9), but then she decided that one day's worth of peace was not enough.

"The whole idea behind this week is to raise the consciousness of YSU students toward peace and love," said Russo. She contends that a week of "peace and love" is exactly what YSU students need.

"Since this is a commuter school, everyone leaves here after 3 p.m.," said Russo. "We really don't get the chance to get to know each other.

The Jambar/John Kachaylo

"The events we have planned for this week are needed, and hopefully we can get students involved and interacting with each other."

John Lennon Peace Week has also been planned as an "intellectual approach to peace." There are no demonstrations or peace rallies scheduled during the week.

Instead, peace week events will include several lectures, a few documentary films, a listening party for Lennon's Wedding Album and the proverbial peace-party and dance, featuring the group "Ice and Spice."

Some of the other "peace week" events planned for this week include: a lecture on "Philosophical Pacifism," by Brendan Minogue and Joseph Rudjak, philosophy, 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 5, Scarlet Room, Kilcawley; a lecture on "Women in Peace" by Glorienne Leck, education, and other speakers, 7 p.m., Thursday, Cardinal Room, Kilcawley, and the award-winning French film, "The Red Balloon."

Russo said she believes people have their own ideas about what the Students United for Peace group is about, but according to her, the week will not be exploited by the group to present just its own views.

"We wanted to give everyone a chance to speak," said Russo.

When asked if she thought an entire week dedicated to "peace and love" was just a bit ambitious, Russo disagreed. "We're being realistic, not idealistic," she said. "We will feel the week is a success if only just one person embraces the concept of peace and love."

For more information about "John Lennon Peace Week," contact Russo at 744-1521.

Polyglot fate rests with elusive funds

By GEORGE DENNEY
Jambar Editor

Advisers of The Polyglot, YSU's foreign language magazine, feel they are "in limbo" because no word has been received as yet, concerning funding.

The Polyglot was "defunded" by the University Budget Committee last spring quarter, upon recommendation of the General Fee Advisory Committee. As a result, Polyglot advisers were told by YSU President John J. Coffelt to apply for funding of this year's publication through Student Government.

"We were told that the budget had to be trimmed somewhere," said Domenico Aliberti, adviser. "Maybe it was because The Polyglot was last on their list, but it was like murdering The Polyglot."

Former Student Government President and General Fee Advisory Committee member

Cynthia Beckes has stated, "The Polyglot was last on the list" when explaining the Committee had developed a system of funding the 14 agencies drawing from the General Fee which had been cut by approximately $82,000.

Beckes said money to fund The Polyglot could be drawn from a contingency fund that is set aside for such emergencies.

But both Polyglot advisers, Aliberti and L. Allen Viehmeyer, not only haven't heard from Student Government, but also have reservations about being funded by the group.

"Pretty soon, Student Government will come and tell us what to write," said Aliberti.

However, The Polyglot may not even be published. Sharon Tanner, chair of financial appropriations, student council, said the contingency fund has already been allocated, and she has not received a request from See Polyglot, page 9

Computer age arrives at YSU Reading Lab

By SHARON CREATORE
Jambor Staff Writer

A computer tutor?
A pilot program which uses computers as aides has been initiated by the University this quarter in the Reading Lab.
The equipment that was installed in the lab consists of two Apple II-E personal computers and a printer.
According to Joan Sonnet, coordinator of the Reading Lab, the University wants to determine the assets of having computers in the Reading Lab before they decide to place computers in other labs.
The instruction which the computers provide includes going over exercises with the student and doing the repetition part of learning. According to Sonnet, computers will never replace the human element in the learning process but will enhance it.

The computers are also being used as management and diagnostic tools.
As a management tool, the computers enable Sonnet to determine her busiest times in the lab so that she has enough tutors available to work with the students.
The computers give Sonnet her annual reports, which indicate how many students use the lab, in a matter of three to four minutes. When done manually these reports take two to three days.
Using the computers as a diagnostic tool, Sonnet explains, she is able to spot difficult trends in the University's population and then focus on those specific areas which students are lacking.

The time that is saved enables Sonnet and the 12 tutors that the lab employs to spend more time with the students who seek help.
Currently the tutors are being instructed by Renee Eggers on the uses of the computers.
Eggers has had extensive experience with computers and she has designed the programs which the lab is currently using.
Sonnet and Eggers are both interested in the various uses of the computers. They urge any student who experiences difficulties in reading, vocabulary, comprehension, note taking, or study skills to come to the Reading Lab, Room 247, School of Education.

Women plan for resource center

Open discussion on the possibility of starting a Women's Resource Center at YSU was held last Thursday.
A committee, formed by interested persons last spring, presented a summary of goals and objectives for the possible center.
Cindy Beckes, student and member of the committee, summarized their goals for the center:

providing equal educational opportunities for all YSU women and aiding women through skill development, life planning, personal growth, cultural enrichment and peer support.
Included in their objectives for the center, Beckes said they hope to "ensure retention" and academic success for women students." Secondly, she stated the desire of the center to "provide specialized vocational and support programs for specific populations of women (e.g. re-entry, minority, low income)."

One of the obstacles for the possible center is its name. The committee has met some objections to calling it a women's resource center, thereby limiting its scope to women. This could hamper the center's efforts in ob-

Rare Book Collection contains variety of literary treasure

Maag Library's Rare-Book Collection.

The Jambar/John Saraya

By BOB KOZAR
Jambar Staff Writer

With curtains drawn, locked entry and darkness seeping out, we find something valuable within.

It is the Rare Book Collection located on the fifth floor of Maag Library.

The room's engaging décor is a gift from Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brown, Elizabeth M. Brown and Mark A. Brown in memory of their uncle, William Frederick Maag Jr. The room contains an estimated 2,000 rare books.

Carol Wall, librarian for public services, says it is hard to define what makes a book rare. A book's publication date, as well as whether or not it's a first edition, are both factors that play an important role in the classification of a rare book. Some of the books could be found in other collections, but copies of transcripts of the Oral History Program are unique to the collection at YSU.

The collection, which gains value from age, has volumes from various subject areas. The rare books were acquired either as a donation from someone or taken from the general collection at Maag. Wall says that none of the books were bought.

The two oldest books in the collection are Della historia Vinitiana di M Pietro Bembo card Volgarmente Scritta by Cardinal Pietro Bembo, 1570, and La Storie della Citta di Firenze di M Jacopo Nardi Citta Florentina by Jacopo Nardi, 1584.

The most recent addition to the collection is a gift of pre-1900 Americana. They are history books and include slavery publications. The books were donated last summer by an anonymous donor and are valued at over $20,000.

According to Wall, a collection of encyclopaedia which was a gift from student government in 1959 are the most commonly used books in the room. They are entitled L'Encyclopedie ou Dictionnaire Raisonne Des Sciences.

The books are listed in the card catalog, but their fragile condition prohibits regular circulation. Not much can be done to preserve the books, says Wall. The best they can do is keep them at a constant temperature.

Although the room does not have a heavy traffic flow, the books are used by and available to faculty and students.

Chairman combines photography, engineering

By LUREE HARLEY
Jambar Staff Writer

Frank A. D'Isa is not a YSU department chairman who has become totally absorbed in academics, with no time for the appeasement of his aesthetic tastes.

He is not a man who recently reached a threshold leading to the wide world of the arts.

Instead, he is an experienced and talented photographer who over the past 10 years has been invited to exhibit his work in many shows and who currently has a selection of New England coastal scenes on display from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 in Maag Library.

D'Isa, mechanical engineering, says he first became interested in photography about 15 years ago when he was planning a trip to Maine.

According to D'Isa, everyone advised him not to go to Maine "without a camera," and, he says, he took their advice.

He started with a "Baby Brownie," but now uses much more sophisticated photographic equipment.

D'Isa says his forte seems to be photographing scenes along the New England coast. "The subject is not so important as the effect that the light has on the subject," he noted.

The idea of exhibiting came from the pictures taken in some of his favorite spots in New England—Rockport, Gloucester,

The Jambar/Clem Marlon

D'Isa arranges his photography exhibit now on display at the Maag Library

Quincy and others in the Massachusetts and Boston Bay areas, he explains.

Although he has participated for up to 10 years, on almost an annual basis, in exhibits such as the Northside Unitarian Church's "In Praise of the Arts" spring show, the Canfield Fair, Westminster College, and the Butler Institute area show, D'Isa has never displayed his work on the YSU campus before.

Noting that this is his "first solo flight" exhibition, he explains that he and his wife, Mary Kay, whose artistic talents are concentrated in the area of water colors, often display their works in the same shows.

"I have the best of two worlds," he continues. In addition to the enjoyment of his scholastic achievements, he says, he enjoys his aesthetic achievements.

One such achievement, according to D'Isa, includes the honor of having one of his photographs in each of the permanent art collections at the Butler Art Institute and at the Trumbull Art Guild in Warren.

D'Isa says that another source of his aesthetic pleasure comes from his almost life-long enjoyment of playing the piano.

He and Mary Kay have two daughters, one who lives with her husband and daughter in Charlotte, and one who is a cheerleader at Cardinal Mooney High School. D'Isa has been at YSU for 36 years.

He earned his B.S. from YSU in 1943, his M.S. in M.E. from Carnegie-Mellon University in 1947, his Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh in 1960 and more recently, his P.E. from the State of Ohio.

Whether through the mechanics of engineering, photography or playing the piano, D'Isa says, he has interwoven his interests in these fields to heighten the enjoyment of his accomplishments, through which, he concludes, "I continue to have the best of two worlds."

Collector's item

Qué lastimá.
 The Polyglot, defunded last spring along with assurances that money would be available through Student Government funding, may become a collector's item.

The publication has been printed every quarter for the last 10 years. It is a magazine by students and for the students. Articles are printed in the foreign languages taught at this University.

Direct funding for The Polyglot was totally cut because it was considered last on the list.

With an annual budget of not more than $1500, Polyglot contributors have done admirably. Polyglot editors and writers were not paid for their work. Four hundred students read and enjoyed poetry and prose published in the magazine that has been honored as First Class seven times — the most recent, in the year budget controllers gave it a death sentence.

Publications Committee members, foreign language department faculty and anyone else who may be concerned about the first amendment should not allow The Polyglot to die completely.

There is still a chance.
 If funding for The Polyglot can be made through a Student Government allocation, the publication can survive with the meager subsistence that it has operated with in the past.

A further step should be taken by reestablishing direct funding so The Polyglot can become an independent publication again.

But first, Student Government and Polyglot advisers must get together, and soon, or the University will lose one of the best forms of communication put out on this campus — a campus of students who are always better for a little more knowledge of a second language, or a third, or a fourth...

COMMENTARY

Mondale could oust Reagan

With little more than a year to go before the 1984 presidential elections, Ronald Reagan would seem to have his fair share of problems.

Unemployment is still a major problem, U.S. Marines are still in Lebanon, and polls continue to show that women and blacks are still hostile to his policies.

Now, Reagan is faced with what could be the greatest obstacle of all to his re-election — a Democratic party solidly united behind Walter "Fritz" Mondale.

Last week, Mondale gained the endorsement of the National Education Association (NEA) and the AFL-CIO. These two groups can provide a powerful bloc of support; they have a combined total of more than 16 million members scattered throughout all 50 states.

The NEA has always supported political candidates. However, since public education and its problems have received so much attention in recent months, the NEA's support may become more valuable than ever. Reagan's position that money is not the solution to public education's problems (although it is the solution to defense's problems) may well become a liability.

The AFL-CIO, on the other hand, has had a long tradition of neutrality in presidential primaries and caucuses. Mondale received 92.8 percent of their votes, as well as the endorsement of every state labor council voting.

In a non-binding straw poll of Maine Democrats, the former vice-president received 51 percent of the votes cast. Although this show of support is much more modest, it is still meaningful.

Senator Alan Cranston of California came in second with 29 percent of the votes cast. Cranston has taken particularly strong stands on environmental issues — issues that are especially important to voters in largely undeveloped and unspoiled states like Maine. Therefore, Cranston may not run as well in more industrial states.

Even though Cranston finished second in Maine, his showing there indicates that there are a substantial number of voters who want to hear what he has to say. His views on the arms race and the environment hint that there are a significant number of voters who disagree with Reagan on these issues. Such voters may be inclined to vote against Reagan (and therefore, for almost any Democrat).

This bloc of voters disenchanted with Reagan would be a good sign for Mondale, assuming he is nominated. If his early momentum continues, his chances of capturing the Democratic nomination are very bright indeed. As well as early success and powerful political allies, his experience as a vice-president provide him with almost ideal training for the Oval office.

Reagan has put off making any announcement as to whether or not he will run again in 1984. The events of the past week suggest that he would be wise to make such an announcement quickly.

Stresses importance of voting

To the Editor of The Jambar:
 On Oct. 4, 5, and 6, Student Government will be sponsoring a voter registration drive. It will take place in Kilcawley Center on the first floor between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.
 We are not only encouraging students and employees of YSU to register to vote, but we are also encouraging residents of Mahoning and Trumbull counties to register on these days.
 We cannot expect true representation from our government when only a small percentage of people exercise one of our greatest freedoms — the right to vote. Take advantage of this essential right by taking a few moments to register to vote. In this way, your opinions will be heard.

Seeks greater sensitivity

To the Editor of The Jambar:
 The recent Jambar article on YSU's new head women's basketball coach brings a concern to my mind.
 In all fairness, Coach DiGregorio's emphasis on academics and scholastic excellence for members of the women's basketball team is commendable. The plights of athletes, who have been exploited for their physical prowess and then left to falter in their own illiteracy, are legion.
 However, one may raise a question regarding the anticipated weekly attendance reports from the team's professors that Coach DiGregorio hopes to initiate. Is this to be a general athletic policy change applicable to both male and female athletes? If not, then this procedure could be interpreted as a paternalistic gesture aimed at "the girls." In view of the harassment endured by the women's basketball team this past season, a heightened sensitivity toward the female athlete is indicated.

Says Army maintains freedom

To the Editor of The Jambar:
 Apparently S. M. Schilderout has himself forgotten what armies are really for.
 If it were not for the U.S. Army, Schilderout would either be: singing "God Save the Queen;" saluting a Nazi swastika; bowing to the Imperial Japanese Emperor; or working in a Siberian labor camp for making such a statement.
 Schilderout ought to realize that the U.S. Army exists for his benefit as much as anyone else living in the United States. Thanks to the U.S. Army Schilderout had the freedom to have such statements published.
 It appears that Schilderout has been fooled himself.

Explains purpose of Army

To the Editor of The Jambar:
 This letter is in response to S. M. Schilderout's letter concerning the purpose of the Army.
 Mr. Schilderout, as a proud member of the U.S. Air Force Reserves, I will tell you the Army's purpose: The Army was conceived in this country's infancy for protection against foreign aggressors. That is still the Army's reason for existence.
 As a United States citizen, it is your right to voice your opinions. It is the U.S. armed service's mission to insure that you will always have that right.

Pennell becomes second woman to take charge of ROTC cadet group

By KAREN McMULLIN
Jambor Staff Writer

For only the second time in its 34-year history, a woman has been selected to command the YSU ROTC Cadet Corp.

Jacqueline Pennell, senior, Business, has been selected Cadet Battalion Commander of the ROTC Cadet Leadership program with her promotion to top rank of Cadet Lieutenant Colonel.

Rank promotion is determined by the cadets' general performance throughout their career and performance at advanced camp, Richard Pletcher, military science, said.

Pennell's honors include serving as treasurer of Pershing Rifles and being designated a distinguished military student.

Selected number one in her platoon at ROTC Advanced Camp this summer at Ft. Lewis, Washington, Pennell, along with the other 23 cadets of her platoon underwent six weeks of military training which included marching, field training, physical training, and tactical training.

'We are treated as equals. There is no discrimination or favoritism.'

—Lt. Col. Jacqueline Pennell

LT. COL. JACQUELINE PENNELL

Two thousand cadets from across the United States attended the summer advanced camp. "We're a good corp and we made YSU known while we were at camp," Pennell said. After advanced camp, Pennell participated in Cadet Troop Leader

Training at the United States Army Air Defense Center, Ft. Bliss, Texas. Of the 24 YSU cadets, seven are women. "We are treated as equals," she said. "There is no discrimination or favoritism." Prior to 1972, Pletcher explained, women did not participate in the ROTC program. Statistically there have been more male personnel in the program than female, and since 1972 YSU has had two women holding the top rank of Lieutenant Colonel, Pletcher stated.

Pennell will command the YSU Cadet Corp for one year. Besides carrying 20 credit hours this fall quarter, Pennell and her staff of 23 cadets will coordinate the training program for this year.

"It's a lot of work," Pennell admitted, "but if you have a good staff like I do, it makes my job much easier."

With a military career in sight upon graduation in June, Pennell is hoping to be stationed in Germany where she will continue her military studies and pursue a graduate degree in advertising.

Pennell added that military science classes are basic management classes. "We are taught to lead people," she said.

Lead people she will, as more than 200 cadets expected to participate in the YSU ROTC program this year welcome Lieutenant Colonel Pennell.

Morale, salary problems keep teachers on lookout for new jobs

From The College Press Service

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — When West Virginia developed the worst unemployment rate in the United States and Gov. Jay Rockefeller cut the state budget in response, Donald Menzell figured it was time to make a choice.

West Virginia University told him he'd have to forget getting any significant salary increase for the second year in a row.

It was too much for the political science professor, who not only wanted more money but was dispirited by the constant cutbacks and academic compromises forced by the budget problems.

"I cannot function with that much instability," he complains. "If you are at all professionally-minded, you cannot do that."

So Menzell went job hunting, finally finding an open spot at the University of South Florida, where he'll start this December.

Menzell, of course, is just one of many college teachers and administrators who are opening classes this fall trying to escape severe morale problems while keeping one eye on the job market.

The severe budget cuts of the last three years, in short, seem to be pushing teachers over the edge this year.

'I cannot function with that much instability. If you are at all professionally minded, you cannot do that.'

No one knows exactly how many teachers are moving. Estimates range from 30,000 to 100,000. Most likely to move are the 100,000-some non-tenured teachers now working on U.S. campuses, says Irving Spitzberg, retiring head of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), the third biggest college teachers' union.

Spitzberg says he can't even estimate how many tenured professors are preparing to leave.

"I don't think anybody can give you a number," adds Victor Stone, AAUP president in Illinois

A Shakespearean authority, who recently left a 22-year celebrated career in theatre to return to medical research, will open the fall quarter Special Lecture Series.

Jonathan Miller will speak on "Are the Humanities Obsolete in the Technological Society?" 8 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 11, Chestnut Room, Kilcawley.

The Special Lecture Series is free and open to the public. Admission is on a first-come, first-served basis.

A doctor with a special interest in the history and philosophy of science, Miller spent much of his theatre career as a director. In June, he resumed his research in clinical psychology as a fellow at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., where he will study cognitive changes that follow brain damage.

Miller is best known in this country as author and host of The Body in Question, British Broadcasting Corporation's 13-episode serial on medical history. He also produced two seasons of The Shakespeare Plays, for the BBC and directed six of the productions. He recently wrote States of Mind, a public television series on psychology.

This year Queen Elizabeth awarded Miller the Commander of the Order of the British Empire for outstanding contributions to the arts.

Miller's theatre career started while he was serving a medical internship in his native England. He was asked to produce a satirical revue, "Beyond the Fringe," with medieval historian Alan Bennett, languages student Peter Cook, and organ scholar Dudley Moore. It became a hit and later moved to Broadway.

The Polyglot.

"Right now, the money isn't there," said Tanner. She explained, however, that because some organizations do not respond to the Quarterly Budget Allocation forms that stipulate amounts designated, some monies remain in the contingency fund. She said the recipients have a specific time period in which the forms have to be signed.

Ironically, The Polyglot was defunded during the same year that the publication received another "First Class" award from the Associated Collegiate Press. The foreign language magazine has received seven such awards for quality in the 10 years that it has been published.

"I'm a little bit skeptical. We don't need any more empty promises," said Aliberti said. "We receive contributions from about 20 students writing for The Polyglot," he explained, adding that persuading the students to write would be more difficult if no one was sure if the publication was going to be printed.

The Polyglot contains articles in the six foreign languages taught at the University and, according to Viehmeyer, serves about 400 students. The most it has ever cost to print the Polyglot has been $1,500 per year said Viehmeyer.

BPCC seeking volunteers for winter class

Potential volunteers are being recruited for the Battered Persons' Crisis Center's Winter Training Class.

The training classes will be held 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., Nov. 12 and Nov. 17. Attendance is required at both sessions.

The Battered Persons' Crisis Center serves domestic violence victims in Mahoning and Columbiana Counties. It provides crisis counseling, legal advocacy, support group, and shelter for families who have been victims of domestic violence. Because the program provides comprehensive services 24 hours every day, there is a constant need for dedicated volunteers.

Volunteers should be warm, caring individuals who are able to empathize with abused victims and their children. No special education or other training is necessary.

Anyone interested in volunteering should call for an application at 744-5101 (Mahoning County) or 424-7767 (Columbiana County-Help Hotline).

The Jambar/Clem Marion

Elizabeth Bernard, junior, A&S, takes notes while carrying on a phone conversation in the Arts and Sciences building.

They're glad they came

By LUREE HARLEY
Jambar Staff Writer

What do Lewis Shioh from Taiwan, R.O.C. and Siew Lim from Malaysia have in common? And where does Panagiotis (Pete) Lagos from Athens, Greece fit in?

All three are international students. Shioh and Lim recently arrived in the United States to begin studies at YSU, but Lagos began his studies at the University two years ago.

Shioh, who is employed by the China Steel Corporation, the largest steel mill in Taiwan, is pursuing a graduate degree in mechanical engineering, he says.

"I'm glad I came here," Shioh says. "I wrote a letter and told my family that coming here is well worthwhile."

Although married for three years, he made the decision to leave his wife and parents for the length of time required to complete his degree, Shioh says.

Shioh, who says he has met a lot of people here, adds that he thinks people here are very kind and friendly. "When I got lost on the bus while going shopping, people were very friendly to help," he says.

Concerning the University, Shioh notes, "I think it is very beautiful here; so are the buildings — especially the library."

Lim, who is pursuing an undergraduate degree in chemical engineering, arrived in port at San Francisco prior to continuing her flight to Dallas, Pittsburgh and ultimately Youngstown to end her 30-hour flight.

Foreign students give fresh slant on American life

Even though it took a long time to get here, Lim admits, "I'm glad I came."

She says she considers herself lucky since her sister and brother-in-law live here. In fact, she continues, "My sister has been a U.S. citizen for six years and likes it very much."

Lim says she expects to experience little loneliness while here. It's like another home here, she says.

When asked why she chose the chemical engineering field for study, Lim says she thinks it is a very challenging field to go into. "I like solving problems," she adds.

Lagos, junior, A&S, President of International Student Federation of YSU and a member of the Volunteer Peer Council, says he is glad he came here. "The past two years at YSU have been a great experience," he continues.

He says he has about a year until his degree is finished and then he plans to return to Athens to enter medical school.

According to Lagos, loneliness has not been a problem for him. Several of his father's relatives live here and both his parents have visited him while he has been here, he says.

So what do Shioh, Lim and Lagos have in common?

All three are international students who readily admit, "We are glad we came to YSU."

A reception honoring the newly-arrived YSU international students was held Thursday afternoon in the A&S building faculty lounge.

Sponsored by the International Student Services (ISS), a division of student services of YSU, the hosts were the Federated Women's Clubs of Youngstown, the United Nations Association of Youngstown and Altrusa International.

According to ISS Coordinator Susan Khawaja, who greeted the students at the event, about half of the new incoming foreign students are from Taiwan.

"This trend is primarily because most of these students are graduate students," she said, "and the consequent result is a higher degree of turnover."

Khawaja also stated that in the Asian countries where the economy has improved, higher education is almost mandatory in order to get a job in their "high tech society."

Consequently, she added, a shortage of higher educational facilities in the Asian countries causes students from those countries to arrive in the United States to satisfy that requirement.

In relating the causes for students from other countries to arrive in the United States to study, she said, the European countries have universities in "quantity," but the third world countries have shortages of higher learning facilities.

"It all goes back to supply and demand," she noted.

However many there are, no one disputes the reasons they are moving.

Faculty members, says Spitzberg, are simply "tired of hard times on campus." Those hard times often translate into salary freezes, increases workloads, and even prohibitions from cash-short schools against buying needed materials for class work.

"We are having terrible problems" holding teachers on campus, reports Margaret Schmid, president of the University Professionals of Illinois.

A salary freeze in Nevada means "we will face a significant brain drain," adds Allen Mori, chairman of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas' Faculty Senate.

At West Virginia, the faculty vacancy rate is four times higher than ever before, mourns Herman Merthins, vice president of university administration.

Consequently, the school has cut the number of course sections it is offering this fall. A number of Illinois schools have dropped overcrowded business and computer science courses for lack of people to teach them, Schmid says. Some faculty members are retaliating. West Virginia's Thomas Cady, for example, sued Rockefeller for "malevolent evisceration of higher education" this summer. The suit asks the court to restore $2.5 million in budget cuts to the school.

In August, 32 University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point teachers advertised their services en masse to schools with more "commitment" to education and, not coincidentially, no salary freezes.

Last week, Colorado State University English instructors wrote letters to students' parents complaining that CSU's treatment of liberal arts programs had caused a "severe loss of morale."

The Jambar/Clem Marlon
A Ballet Western Reserve dancer performs "Tarantella" at Celebration of the Arts at Powers Auditorium

The Jambar/Clem Marlon
Models from Strouss display the latest in fashion designs at Celebration of the Arts

Fashion, rather than area's arts, is celebrated

By JOHN GATTA
Jambar Entertainment Editor

It's amazing that in the middle of Youngstown's decaying downtown area a beautiful place such as Powers Auditorium still exists.

With its luxurious feel of prosperous years gone by, Powers seems a distinct contrast to the empty and run-down buildings nearby. The character of the auditorium lies within its doors. The brass and wood-carved stairwells, its many permanent statues and fountains, and intricately-patterned walls and ceilings make the building seem to have a classy style all its own.

What better place to host to Youngstown's first Celebration of the Arts which was presented in part by Strouss, last Saturday, Oct. 1?

Exhibited in the plushness of Powers' lobby were paintings and sculptures from the Butler Institute of American Art.

The evening's performance started with the Youngstown Symphony Orchestra's version of George Gershwin's "An American in Paris," showing the power and magnificence of what a real, live, in-the-flesh orchestra can do.

Following this were fashions that were modeled and are available at Strouss.

Ballet Western Reserve then gave a wonderful performance of the Grande Tarantelle for Piano and Orchestra with piano accompaniment by YSU's Marcellene Hawk.

Oh yes, and before I forget there were two more sections of the show containing more fashions that were modeled from Strouss.

The Youngstown Playhouse performed scenes from their upcoming production of Annie, which brought the first half of the show to a rousing finale. Particularly amusing was Sandy the dog making attempts to find the nearest exit offstage while Annie, played by Donna Vernon, was busy keeping him onstage.

After intermission Kirsti Manna sang "Celebrate the Arts" with The Bill Warner Quartet. The song was laughable, not only in its Las Vegas-like showmanship, but also in its lyrical content, which strived to find words that would rhyme with Butler Institute and Youngstown Playhouse.

The presentation by the Arms Museum contained a talk on its many exhibits and also included the modeling of antique dresses. Once again Strouss (ugh!) presented another exhibition of its fashion line. Nothing like getting your money's worth when you help sponsor the event.

The Ballet Western Reserve once again performed a superb number entitled "Super Shorts" with The Bill Warner Quartet.

Finally, the big event of the night, fashions by designer Morton Myles were shown with Myles commenting on his brand new line. The three lines were dubbed by Myles: "Resort Look," "Big City Look," and "Holiday 1983." Many of his designs were sleek and sophisticated with padded shoulders and dark, rich colors.

The evening ended with a reprise of "Celebrate the Arts" and an invitation to sing along.

The event's purpose was to showcase various cultural aspects of the Youngstown area, but noticeably missing was representation from any part of YSU's fine arts, be it art, music, or theatre. YSU students were performing but they were not singled out as being from the University. Maybe those involved with the planning of the benefit believe that YSU does not have any culture.

A Celebration of the Arts turned out to be more of a fashion show than a real celebration of the arts that exist in the area. But the event did show that the Youngstown area has more to offer than sports events.

Young's 'Rockin'' consists of tribute, fun

By JOHN GATTA
Jambar Entertainment Editor

Few musical artists have gone through as many changes in style as Neil Young. The second you think you have him pegged into one particular category, he does something in a completely opposite direction.

You'd be correct if you dubbed him a folk artist or a country rocker or a hard rocker or a creator of computerized dance music.

Now, with the release of Everybody's Rockin', add a rockabilly artist to that ever-growing list.

After Young's last album Trans, which showcased his fascination with computers and the use of a vocoder to change his usual whiny voice toward that of a machine, Young has transformed himself into the rockabilly act, Neil and the Shocking Pinks.

The act turns out to be as much a tribute to a musical era as two sides of pure fun.

The fun begins on the first song, "Betty Lou's Got a New Pair of Shoes." This song, as well as the others on the album, illustrates that Young is not merely trying to cash in on the current rockabilly craze. The Shocking Pinks' sound does not copy the modern slick-produced rockabilly that is prevalent today, but evokes a time when rock was in its infancy and record collections were made up of 78 RPMs.

The tribute runs throughout the album, not only in its sound but in its selection of material. Such non-Young tunes as "Rainin' in My Heart," "Bright Lights, Big City," and "Mystery Train" are matched perfectly with new Young tunes that have an added twist of humor.

"Jellyroll Man" shuffles along with the lines, "I'm your jellyroll man and I got to have it right now," while "Cry, Cry, Cry" moves into nothing but verses of hilarious "boo hoos."

The subject of love once again pops up in a Young tune. This time it's done through the light-hearted "Wonderin'." The pain of "knowing that I need you to save me" is contrasted with its melody and "doo wahs."

Young also throws some good comic jabs into the lyrics. On "Kinda Fonda Wanda" Young is fond of Wanda though he's been with other girls because Wanda "always wanna." On the title track he jokingly lets loose at the president with the lines, "When Ronnie and Nancy do the hop on the lawn/They're rockin' in the White House all night long/Well, everybody's rockin'."

But the showcase of the album is "Payola Blues" where Young lets out a viciously funny attack at his lack of radio airplay. It's dedicated to the 50s d.j. Alan Freed who was accused of payola. "Wherever you go/Whatever you do/Cause the things they're doing today will make a saint out of you." The song bemoans that wherever he goes he never hears his songs on the radio. It proceeds to tell of his subsequent "method" of handing out payola to radio personnel, which causes a change in their attitudes toward his music.

In his appearance at Blossom Music Center this summer, Young said he hoped the audience liked the Shocking Pinks and their music because they won't be around for long — an indication that Young's musical career may take a new direction on his next recorded outing.

What does that leave us? Only the opportunity to enjoy Neil and the Shocking Pinks while they last, and to hope for a reunion.

Gridders fall prey to Eastern Illinois

By ALFRED HAMMOND
Special to The Jambar

YSU had its two game winning streak snapped last Saturday by the Eastern Illinois Panthers, 21-20, as a two-point conversion try with 17 seconds remaining fell short.

The Penguins' offense, led by reserve quarterback Mike Sloe, started poorly but finished strong as YSU mixed running and passing plays well to move the ball down the field on the Panthers.

Sloe had a disastrous first half and was pulled in favor of Ken Kuhn on two series mid-way through the second quarter. "When Kuhn went in I said to myself, 'I am a better quarterback than he is,'" said Sloe.

Sloe passed for only 95 yards in the first half then went 8-12 for 101 yards and two touchdowns in the second half, this later was mainly due to the running of Mike Hardie and the receiving of John Goode and Frank Porkorny.

Goode caught five passes for 95 yards. Two of those catches were for touchdowns late in the fourth quarter. The first came on a 39 yard strike from Sloe, the second set up the potential game winning situation with 17 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter.

Porkorny, who contributed 134 yards, kept a late fourth quarter drive alive on a 14 yard reception after getting blasted by an Eastern Illinois defensive back Robert Williams. Porkorny had to leave the game after the hit but returned to participate in the two-point conversion attempt.

Hardie led the running attack for the Penguins with 13 carries for 84 yards and one touchdown.

Eastern Illinois quarterback John Rafferty hit on 21 of 36 aerial attempts for 307 yards and three touchdowns. He was intercepted once. The Panthers ended the day with a total of 320 yards of offense compared with 441 for the Penguins.

McFadden missed a 20-yard field goal, his only attempt of the game, after a bad snap fell several feet short in front of the holder, Sloe.

Nick Xides kicked six punts, averaging 41.2 yards for a total of 247 yards. His longest punt of the day was a 46-yarder.

The Panthers' record moves to 3-1 as the Penguins' falls to 2-2. YSU is now in fourth place in the Ohio Valley Conference. YSU will face the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers 1 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 8 at Stambaugh Stadium.

Quarterback injured

By JANICE CAFARO
Jambar Sports Editor

As this fall's football season began to unfold, it seemed YSU's passing game had finally come into its own.

Jamie DeVore returned to start at quarterback, leaving last year's knee injury behind. Now playing in his junior year, DeVore began to reap the harvest of his hard work.

"All summer I prepared for this," he said last Thursday, appearing to be at once expansive and reflective. "The coaches had confidence in my throwing so I spent the summertime practicing."

And DeVore's practicing paid off. In three games he completed 61 passes in 100 attempts for a total of 858 yards and seven touchdowns. "I think I've proved to a number of people I can throw the ball," DeVore noted. However, on Sept. 24, DeVore's knee snapped — again.

Less than two minutes into the fourth quarter of YSU's game against Western Illinois, several Leatherneck players broke through the Penguins' line and zeroed in on DeVore. He recalls the hit: "I heard a crunch and thought, 'Oh no, not again! I had heard and felt this before.'"

DeVore now has a torn knee ligament and will be out for an indefinite period. However, he noted that YSU's trainers and physician have predicted he'll return this season, depending on how quickly the knee responds to rehabilitation.

Although DeVore has once again injured his right knee, it's definite he won't require another operation. Last year he had to be operated on after sustaining a knee injury.

But this year's injury is not nearly as serious. Already the quarterback has begun a weightlifting and exercise rehabilitation program. And despite his set-

Donna Kelly (5) and Donna Slagle (12) contributed to the Penguins cause at the YSU Invitational held at Stambaugh Stadium this weekend. The Penguins prevailed over Mt. Union (2-0), Westminster (2-0), and Gannon College (2-0) while losing to Akron (2-0), and West Virginia University (2-1).

YSU finished fifth in the tournament and Sandy Treece qualified for the All-Star Team.

Pete's Beat

I was quite pleased with the Penguin gridders this past week, even though they had their wings nipped by the Panthers, 21-20. Fairer flying weather will be in store this week when the Penguins take on the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers at Stambaugh Stadium in a 1:30 game. This event marks the first of four afternoon games to be played at home this year. So grab your Saturday night date and have an afternoon delight on Oct. 8. See you there!

INTRAMURALS: Programs set

The Intramural/Recreation Department announces its fall program schedule, starting the season with men's and women's touch football beginning Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9. The men's and women's soccer will begin Oct. 17, with a mandatory captains and officials meeting Wednesday, Oct. 12. The deadline for registration for the soccer program is 3 p.m., Oct. 7. The co-ed water polo program registration is 3 p.m. Oct. 7, with league play beginning Oct. 18.

In addition to the team sports, the Intramural Department offers the following with registration deadlines: Oct. 14 — Badminton Doubles, Handball Singles; Oct. 21 — Racquetball Singles; Oct. 28 — Turkey Shoot and Co-ed Table Tennis Doubles.

The Intramural Department will attempt to coordinate students unable to put a team together, enabling them to participate as a team.

For more information and registration concerning the programs and officiating, contact the Intramural Department, Room 302, Beeghly.

ATHLETE : Frank Pokorny

After leading the Penguins with six receptions and gaining 82 yards, Frank Pokorny, junior, A&S, is this week's Athlete of the Week. Pokorny is a good all around athlete who also lettered in both football and baseball in high school.

RANKINGS: Gridders place

Penguin gridders have once again earned top spots in the NCAA Division I-AA and OVC ratings this week. In the NCAA YSU placed in total offense and sixth in passing offense while John Goode placed fourth in scoring and 10th in receiving and Jamie DeVore placed third in total offense and fourth in passing efficiency. In the OVC, YSU earned first place in passing offense and first in total offense. Top individual placers included DeVore, who earned a second place in passing efficiency and Goode and Pokorny who placed first and second, respectively.

FOOTBALL: Ticket offer

All YSU students with a valid YSU I.D. may receive a free football ticket to YSU home games.

Students may pick up their tickets at the Information Center, second floor of Kilcawley, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday or from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday.

Students may also receive their tickets at the North Tower ticket window, Stambaugh Stadium, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday or from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday. In addition, free tickets may still be obtained on game day up to three and a half hours before the contest.

CROSS COUNTRY: Team splits

The YSU cross country team, despite what was possibly its best performance in six years, split a double dual meet at Grove City Saturday afternoon.

The Penguins beat Westminster College, 23-33, but lost to host Grove City College, 25-34.

Cipriano took second overall in the meet, posting a time of 26:52, while Brauer was right behind to grab third with a time of 27:11.

The top overall time in the meet was turned in by Bob Bingham of Grove City. Bingham checked in with a clocking of 26:33.

Finishing third for the Penguins and sixth overall was Steve Luthern, junior, with a time of 27:43.

The Penguins' next dash will be at Muskingham, where they will run a triple dual meet 11 a.m., Saturday. The Penguins are now 1-1 on the year.

YSU Invitational

A field of 15 teams participated at YSU's Annual Invitational held in Stambaugh Stadium last Friday and Saturday, Sept. 30 through Oct. 1.

back, DeVore's spirits and confidence remain high. "I can't wait to come back," he says. But until I return I'll just have to be patient and take my rehabilitation program one day at a time.

In the meantime, DeVore said, YSU will continue to perform. "I know YSU will do good with or without me because we're not a team centered on one individual." He added that Mike Sloe, who is currently the starting quarterback, should "do quite a good job filling in." This summer both Sloe and DeVore practiced at quarterback with the team.

Upon returning to the squad, DeVore said, he'll put his injury behind him and not let it affect his quarterbacking. "If I'm afraid on the field, there's no way I'll be able to play," he said. "I'll just have to go out there and act like nothing has happened. I have to believe I won't get into any more problems.

Barring any more catastrophes, I will return and continue to pass like I did in our first three games."

Fall Soccer team ends two-game winning streak

By DAVE MORTON
Special to The Jambor

Hopes for an undefeated YSU soccer team were dashed last Saturday afternoon at Dike Beede field when Geneva College took a 4-1 win over the Penguin booters.

The Penguins entered the match with a 2-0 record but quickly fell behind as Geneva took a 2-0 halftime lead.

Geneva scored at 31 minutes and 40 seconds of the first half on an unassisted Tim Lee field goal.

Their second goal came with 17:17 left in the first half when John Thomas used his head to drive the ball into the left side of the net past YSU goalie Mark Hall. Allen Tweed got the assist.

It appeared YSU was going to be in for a long afternoon. Geneva spent most of the first half on the Penguins' side of the field.

Geneva took control of the match at 35:06 of the second half as Kurt Wise connected on an unassisted field goal to give Geneva a 3-0 lead.

YSU got on the scoreboard at 16:30 of the second half as Mohammad Fard, the Penguins' leading scorer so far this season, hit on a 15-yard score. The assist came from Hassan Makki.

Geneva's Robb Fogg completed the scoring with an assist from Lee, ending the Penguins' hopes for a comeback victory.

In assessing his team's performance, YSU head coach George Hunter said, "The kids worked very hard."

YSU may have been hampered by the fact that Geneva had played four more games than the Penguins and had been together for about a month and a half, as opposed to only three weeks for the Penguin squad.

Even so, Hunter said, "YSU stayed pretty much to their specific game plan."

The loss left the Penguins' ledger at two wins and one loss, while Geneva improved its mark to 5-2. The Penguins visit Washington and Jefferson College for their next match.

YSU soccer player Mohammad Fard misses a shot during Saturday's soccer game against Geneva College. YSU lost the game 4-1.
