Voting

Only few vie in elections

By CLARENCE MOORE
Jambar News Editor

Once again, YSU students are being called upon to exercise their voting rights by taking part in the Student Council/Government election that will be held today and Wednesday, Nov. 29.

Voting will take place in the Kilcawley Arcade and in the lobby of Maag Library. All full-time, part-time and graduate students may take part in the elections. A valid YSU ID must be presented before voting.

This year, students will be asked to vote for the Student Council representative from their school, and choose two candidates to fill Council's open representative-at-large seats. They will also vote to fill an Arts & Sciences seat on Academic Senate and vote "yes or no" on two election issues.

Since few Council seats are up for election, the list of candidates is somewhat small this quarter. Races between candidates will only take place between two students, Rebecca Whaley and Amy Van Kirk, running for a seat representing the School of Business and among six students vying for two rep-at-large seats.

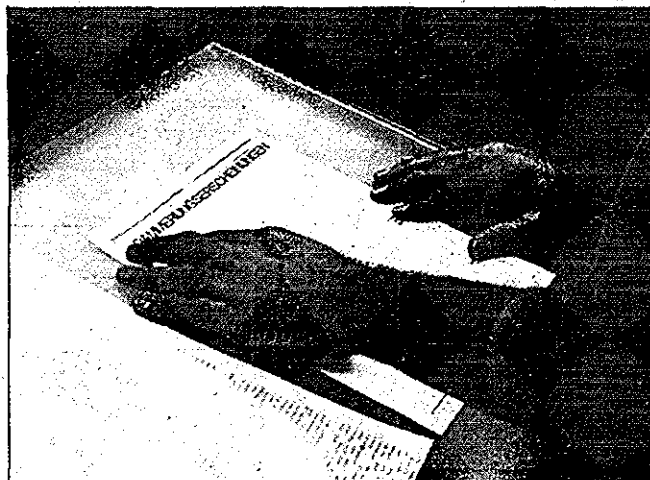

This election, students will also be asked to vote on two issues. The first issue will require Student Government to adopt

Event to examine Mid-East

A special "Middle East Symposium" will take place Nov. 29 and 30, as this fall's Schermer Scholar-in-Residence Program opens with Howard M. Sachar, author, Middle East authority and distinguished professor as Schermer Scholar.

The symposium will feature two lectures, two forums and a concluding union service at Rodef Sholom Temple.

All the events are free and open to the public, as well as the University community.

Sachar will lecture on "Israel and the Diaspora: Puncturing Old Myths," 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 29, Ohio Room Kilcawley Center.

On Nov. 30 at 10 a.m. in the Ohio Room, Sachar will be moderator of a forum on "The United States and the Middle East in the 1980s." Panelists will be Maury Gart, editor of the Washington Star and former Middle East editor of Time Magazine; Robert Pranger, former Assistant Secretary of Defense in the Carter administration

Chemist will use computer in drug research

A YSU chemistry professor has received a $225,000 grant to investigate chemical interactions that play important roles in the genetic code, the molecular basis of cancer, and the action of drugs in the body.

Dr. Janet Del Bene was awarded the three-year grant by the National Institute of General Medical Sciences of the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md. The title of the grant is "Molecular Orbital Studies of Hydrogen Bonding H⁺ and Li⁺ Association."

In her research, Del Bene will carry out sophisticated calculations on a computer to obtain detailed information regarding the structures and energies of hydrogen-bonded and ion-molecule complexes.

Descriptions at this level of detail generally are not available from other sources. The studies proposed are balanced between state-of-the-art calculations on smaller systems which serve as models for larger biochemical systems, and calculations directly on the biophysical systems.

"The research will create a systematic data base on biomolecular fragments and their hydrogen bonding with water molecules, interaction with hydrogen ions, and interaction with lithium ions," Del Bene explained.

"These data may be used to explain experimental observations; to provide new insights into well known phenomena, such as site selectivity; or to suggest new experiments and predict their outcome. They will lead to a better understanding of the important role of hydrogen bonding and ion-molecule associations in biological functions and processes, and are necessary for the orderly development of theoretical biology."

The chemistry professor said her research "is a step" which may eventually lead to solutions to problems in the genetic code, the molecular basis of cancer, and the action of drugs in the body because her studies investigate interactions which are at work in these areas.

"It's a help to find solutions to problems in these areas once one understands the mechanisms of the basic biochemical and biological processes involved," Del Bene explained.

Del Bene submitted a 40-page proposal for the grant in January. Her proposal was assigned to a review committee, consisting of about 20 scientists from throughout the nation, who critiqued it for scientific merit.

The grant funds will be used for Del Bene's computer work over the next three years as well as personnel costs, which in-

Classical artist goes electronic

Sheri Matascik, a senior majoring in classical guitar, will give an electronic music recital 8 p.m., Friday, Nov. 30, Spotlight Theatre Arena, Bliss Hall.

Although there have been other electronic music recitals, Matascik's will be the first solo recital on synthesizer performed at YSU.

Four compositions will be performed on a studio synthesizer with quadrophonic sound. Matascik said there are traditional sounds, although she's performing them on a synthesizer, and non-traditional sounds she prefers to call "events."

"I like to call them events, not noises or sounds, because they are musical happenings but not in a musical sense," she said.

Matascik explained there are two types of synthesizers, performance and studio.

The one familiar to most people is the performance synthesizer. It is widely used by rock bands and is pre-wired with desired sound effects.

The studio synthesizer is different because each sound produced is created by the performer. Matascik will be performing on a Surge-Modular system. "The sounds I make are only limited to my imagination and the capacity of the synthesizer," she said.

"One Monster After Another" will be Matascik's first selection. It is based on the popular children's story by Mercer Mayer. Illustrated slides taken from the actual story will accompany the music. "It's kind of like an electronic 'Peter and the Wolf,'" she said.

The second composition is "Aguilles De Son," which is French for "Needles of Sound." The first section contains a fast, fragmented melody that jumps from speaker to speaker. The second section, she explained, has a mysterious melody that builds to a dramatic, full-sounding close.

"Life's Cycle" has seven sections — birth, childhood, adolescence, young adulthood, middle age, old age, and death — and represents Matascik's musical interpretation of the stages of life.

Birth sets the theme and each section after is a variation of the theme in different styles. She said to help create the feeling of a cycle the section depicting death is the same as birth except it is played in reverse and in another key.

An electronic fantasy called "Electrasy" will be the final composition performed. Abstract slides photographed by Dr. Rick Shale, English, will dissolve from one into the next in rhythm with the music.

Matascik said she was excited and confident her upcoming performance will be enjoyed by all who attend the recital, unless there is a power failure, she said jokingly.

Admission is free for anyone wishing to attend the recital.

clude graduate assistants who will work with her on the project.

A YSU faculty member since 1970, Del Bene also is a research professor of molecular pathology and biology at the Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine, Rootstown, and is a member of the graduate faculty of Kent State University.

She has published 75 scientific works, among which is one that has been designated as a scientific "classic" because her methodology has been extended to many other important problems and used by other researchers.

In 1981, the Institute for Scientific Information reported her paper on the "CNDO/S Method in Spectroscopy" had been "cited" or used by others in their work, more than 530 times since it was published in the "Journal of Chemical Physics" in 1968. On the average, according to ISI, a paper is cited about four times a year.

Del Bene has been the recipient of other National Institutes of Health research grants, as well as others from the American Chemical Society and YSU's University Research Council.

She was a Camille & Henry Dreyfus Foundation Teacher-Scholar from 1974-79 and has received the Agnes Fay Morgan Research Award from Iota Sigma Pi, a national women's honorary society in chemistry.

Fraternity offers award for best essays

By DENNIS WISE
Jambar Staff Writer

How would you like to receive a note to spend however you see fit? Sigma Pi Alpha (SPA), a professional fraternity for students interested in the field of human resources management, is offering the Raymond J. Shuster Award for Studies in Human Resources Management.

The SPA will present both an undergraduate student with a 3.0 average or higher and a graduate student with an accumulative of 3.3 or higher with the first annual award of $100 next spring.

Students enrolled with a major in the School of Business Administration are eligible to apply for the award and submit a 500- to 750-word essay describing the student's interests in the field of human resources management.

Included in the essay should be particular courses taken by the student or relevant, practical experience in the field.

Dr. Stanley Guzell, management, and faculty advisor for SPA, said the SPA decided to offer the award in honor of Raymond J. Shuster, who retired from the management department earlier this year.

"The idea of the award," Guzell said, "is a tribute to Shuster and his personality."

Shuster began teaching at YSU in the early 1970s after 20 years experience in industry and as a personnel manager.

"Shuster endeared himself to students and his concern was genuine. He espoused high ethical standards for business and life," said Pam Laurie, president of SPA.

SPA, founded in 1978 by Shuster, is the local chapter of the national American Society for Personnel Administration (ASPA).

The local chapter has won several awards of merit from ASPA since its inception.

The funds for the award come solely from contributions made in support of Shuster's efforts. Guzell said he expects the amount of the award to grow within the next few years.

SPA offers the opportunity for the Shuster Award as encouragement and assistance for students interested in careers in human resources management, once known as personnel management.

All applications must be entered by Jan. 10.

SPA will hold a dinner followed by a presentation given by a guest speaker Friday, Nov. 30 in Kilcawley Center.

For more information regarding applications for the Shuster Award or the Nov. 30 event, contact Guzell at 742-3219 or visit the management department office on the sixth floor of the Williamson School of Business Administration.

Big Brothers, Big Sisters want volunteers

By JEFF GOOD
Jambar Staff Writer

The Big Brothers and Big Sisters program of Mahoning and Trumbull counties wants to reach out.

And with YSU Student Government's sponsorship, the group recently acted as role models for children involved with the program.

Karen Saunders, case worker for Mahoning County, is hoping for volunteers to help with the over 90 children in the county. "My dilemma is that there is just not enough volunteers," Saunders said. There are currently 99 boys and girls in need of a volunteer but only 34 volunteers, according to Saunders.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters was formed in Cincinnati by Irvin Westheimer in 1903, when he befriended a boy digging thru rubbish near Westheimer's office. Westheimer's concern for the boy provided the inspiration for the nationwide program. The goal for the program is to provide companionship for parentless and single-parent children.

Volunteers for the program must meet certain criteria before being considered. The volunteers must be 19 years of age and should be employed, although unemployed volunteers will be considered. They must have an insured auto mobile or access to one and must have a valid Ohio driver's license. Volunteers must also be in good physical and mental health and must give BB/BS access to all information about them.

Three references must also be furnished. "This is a problem," Saunders said. "People get only two references sent back and they can't be a volunteer until I get the third one."

The volunteers must be willing to serve in the program for one year and they must see the child three to six hours per week.

The volunteers must first call the office, at 782-2228, and an application form will be sent out. After the application is returned, reference forms will be sent to the three references.

After the reference forms are returned, the case worker visits the volunteer's home to make sure that the volunteer is suitable to work. The volunteer is then matched by compatibility with a young boy or girl. "A lot of times if a volunteer is outgoing we will match him up with someone who isn't quite as outgoing," Saunders said.

Phi Beta Sigma has volunteered its services to BB/BS for the coming year. "What we really need is more publicity and I think we'd get more volunteers," Saunders said.

PRESENTING: THE ISSUES

Issue Number 1

Shall Student Government adopt a new election system utilizing a single election in the Spring Quarter for Student Council representatives, President/Vice President, and Academic Senate? In addition, the Student Council Executive Committee will be elected in the Spring Quarter.

A brief summary: This election system eliminates the previous staggered terms of office. Each elected candidate will serve a term of four quarters, including summer.

Issue Number 2

Shall the Resolution concerning individual recognition at the graduation ceremony be passed?

A brief summary: This resolution allows individual recognition at the graduation ceremony for all students graduating. A "yes" vote would allow Student Government to pursue such a change in the graduation ceremony. A "no" vote would allow the present system to remain in service.

Along with these issues is voting for representatives of various schools.

Name-calling

If there is a controversial issue on this quarter's Student Council election ballot, it is the question of individual recognition at graduation.

Right now, graduates are not recognized individually at commencement ceremonies. Some people don't like that, and Student Government wants to know if it should pursue a change.

The answer is no.

Name-calling at graduation was abolished informally over 10 years ago on a hot, humid day at the Struthers Field House. After the long line of graduates had been recognized and received their diplomas, then-President Albert Pugsley asked if they thought future gown-garbed graduates should be put through the same tedious formalities.

The answer was a resounding "no."

And that was that. For more than a decade YSU graduates have not heard their names on graduation day. Nor have they received their diplomas individually from their deans.

Nor — until now — have they complained, and there is a reason for that:

The graduation ceremony is long as it is; name calling would add about an hour to it.

True, it won't be as grueling an hour in air-conditioned Beeghly Center as it must have been in Struthers that day. And, as proponents of the change point out, what's one more hour after the years of hours students have put in at YSU?

It's just that — one more hour. An unnecessary one, and a tedious one, no doubt, for what would probably be the majority of graduates — those who are more interested in getting out and celebrating or getting into something more comfortable than they are in hearing their names called out loud and shaking hands with their deans.

With the number of people involved, how much sincerity can be contained in such formalities anyway? And do we really need to hear our names called to feel like we've accomplished something?

Think about it. Then vote.

COMMENTARY

God didn't make little green apples

Once again, the National Rifle Association has managed to force the U.S. Congress to ignore the concerns of the American people, at least temporarily.

The NRA has always been a staunch proponent of the right of American citizens to bear arms guaranteed in the Constitution, even to the point of making political contributions to nearly half the members of Congress, including our own Lyle Williams.

But I think many people will agree that with their stand on this one issue in particular, the NRA is being somewhat fanatical.

For months, legislation has been pending to ban "green apples," a special make of bullet coated with Teflon. These bullets can penetrate the lightweight Kelvar vests worn by law-enforcement officials like they don't exist.

According to the president of the International Association of Police Chiefs, the bullets have "no legitimate use... either in or out of law enforcement."

Realizing this, Sen. Daniel Moynihan and Rep. Mario Biaggi, himself a former policeman shot 10 times during his 23 years on the force, introduced legislation to ban this particular type of bullet.

Of course, the bill came up against opposition from the NRA, fearing that a ban of one bullet could cause a "snowball effect," leading to other gun-control legislation.

According to Wayne La Pierre, an NRA lobbyist, the bill "stands a good probability of banning a lot of conventional ammunition used by sportsmen because the Treasury Department unlimited discretion to determine what to ban."

Gee, what a shame. The poor NRA thinks it's being picked on because the government wants to limit the number of means it has at its disposal to blow away a deer for the insignificant reason of saving the lives of policemen.

Did I say policemen? What about the 21 people killed and 19 injured this summer at a San Ysidro, Calif. McDonald's? Anyone care to hazard a guess as to what ammunition James Oliver Huberty was packing?

Maybe we should make all the bunnies and other furry critters in the forests promise not to buy Kelvar jackets, just so the hunters can keep their "equal" footing.

One of the NRA's more prominent members, the allegedly "law and order" supporting President Ronald Reagan, himself a target not too long ago, thinks it's wiser to increase jail sentences for murderers using guns, rather than prevent the occurrence of murders.

Well, the NRA succeeded. In late September, the bill to ban armor-piercing bullets was shelved when its scheduling provoked a battle between gun-control advocates and the NRA lobby. According to House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, the issue became too sensitive to handle in an election-year climate.

That leaves the bill to rest until next year. That also leaves a lot of time for some other madman with a beef to wipe out a crowd of people. Or another criminal a chance to knock off a cop.

That's your NRA.

Encourages football wavers

To the Editor of The Jambar:
 With football season over for this year, I believe it's time to congratulate the 17 people who were personally responsible for our waves.
 The ambition shown by these 17 should be an inspiration to us all against the common perception of apathetic Youngstown these individuals persevered.
 I sincerely hope they haven't become discouraged and will attempt to recruit latent wavers to join them next season. Have faith, next year's freshmen may have a core of free thinkers that will join you. This could possibly double your numbers, after training, of course. I am sure that once such a formidable force is gathered a wave would be inevitable at Stambaugh.
 The Athletic Department could aid these bold innovators by awarding them 'W's for their jackets. It would be assistance if they could be assigned seats in the same row in all sections. If this was done they would surely present such an awesome visual aid that the uninformed masses would be drawn in spontaneously. Until next year, 1985 — the year of the wave.

GUEST SPEAKER

Seeks recognition for graduates

By WALT AVDEY
 Special to The Jambar

Are you satisfied? Earning a degree at YSU is no easy task. I think everyone knows that.
 After putting in thousands of hours of time, hard work, mental strain, and physical drain into a degree, shouldn't it end with a bang, instead of a whimper?
 There's a great deal of pride involved in receiving a degree. Just ask some of the students that have been here for two or four or five or 10 years.
 A college degree is certification of all those years of hard work. That degree shows a great deal of individual effort. That effort, that hard work, deserves recognition.

But many people (students, faculty, staff, parents, and friends) are unhappy with the recognition awarded to the graduates of YSU.
 For those of you who know nothing of the YSU commencement ceremonies, the problem arises because individual student recognition is not a part of the YSU commencement ceremonies. Many graduates have come back to say they feel cheated. They worked hard for their degrees and they feel they should be recognized individually for their efforts in front of the whole assembly present at graduation.
 For those students who are unaware of the goings on, become aware, because this could happen to you.

It's simple. After introductions and speakers degrees are conferred. The dean of your school asks all candidates for the degree to arise (AA, AAB, AAS, ALS, BA, BE, BFA, BM, BS, BSN, BS/AS, BS/BA, BS/ED, it doesn't matter. They're all done the same).
 That whole group of graduates stands up, has some words spoken to them (confering upon them the degree) and they sit back down. Now they all have college degrees.
 Oh, I almost forgot. Pick up your diplomas later.
 So, after all those years of busting your ass, making the grade to graduate, you do it ("is that it!?!") and then everybody knows that you graduated, because they See Guest, page 7

 Too bad that course instructors can't have everyone stand at the end of 10 weeks of anguish, and confer passing grades upon everyone. But it doesn't work like that, and it shouldn't. So neither should commencement.

 What has been proposed is a ceremony which would include individual student recognition. That recognition has been defined as "the reading of every name of every graduate as they receive their diploma from their respective dean in front of the congregation as a whole..."

This will undoubtedly make the ceremony longer than its already lengthy two hours. Spring commencement may gain an hour, whereas summer and winter commencements will probably be lengthened by one-half hour.
 But isn't it worth it after the thousands of hours devoted to receiving that degree?

Six out of nine state universities contacted recognized their students individually. This list includes Kent, Wright State, Ohio State, Miami, Bowling Green, and Akron. YSU should join that list. We are a fine institution and the students of this school deserve to be treated to a meaningful graduation ceremony. I've had my say, now it's time for all the students to voice their opinions. Today and tomorrow, Nov. 27 and 28, this issue will appear on the Student Council Election ballot. Voting will take place in the Kilcawley Arcade and the Maag Library.

 This issue affects all of us. Vote for your right to recognition. We want to know...are you satisfied?

Jazz Ensembles perform tribute to 'Count' Basie

Frank Foster, former sideman and composer for legendary jazz pianist and bandleader William "Count" Basie, will be guest artist when YSU's Jazz Ensembles I and II present a special tribute to the Count.

This opening jazz concert will be 8 p.m., Monday, Dec. 3, Chestnut Room, Kilcawley Center. Tickets are available for $3 in advance or $5 the day of the concert.

Foster will also hold a clinic at 3 p.m. the same day Room 2036, Bliss Hall. It is free and open to the public, and will deal with a wide range of topics.

Tony Leonardi, assistant professor of music, bass instructor and professional jazz bassist, is the director of the Jazz Ensembles.

Foster, who is considered one of the premier jazz artists on tenor saxophone, composed and arranged a major portion of the music for the Count Basie Band during the 50s and 60s. One of his pieces, "Shiny Stockings," will be featured in the concert.

A native of Cincinnati, Foster began writing music for jazz groups while still in high school. As a student at the State University at Wilberforce, he became a member of the Wilberforce Collegians which played at New York's Carnegie Hall. After playing and arranging in Detroit, he served with the Army in Korea, playing with the 7th Infantry Division Band, and then joined Count Basie in 1953.

Since Foster left Basie in 1964, he has toured extensively with his own bands, The Loud Minority, Living Color, and The Non-Electric Com-

REVIEW

Film depicts dull affair

By AMY CARPENTER
Jambar Staff Writer

The advertisements for No Small Affair make it sound like a juicy, seductive movie that you can't afford to miss. The truth of the matter is the movie just doesn't hold your attention. Re-runs of "The Love Boat" are far more entertaining than this dull movie.

The big flaw in the movie is its predictability. In the beginning we meet Charles Cummings (Jon Cryer), a 16-year-old student and aspiring photographer.

Charles takes pictures of anything and everything, including files in his French class. See Review, page 11

Jeanne Lasky, Council chairman, said the amendment would also change a Council representative's term of office to four quarters, three in the spring and one in the summer. Presently, students serve five terms.

Lasky also said the amendment would give University students equal time on Council and diminish "the turnover rate of council members and provide better representation of the schools."

There are also several other articles/changes that would go into effect if the issue is passed and students are advised to read these articles before voting.

Issue 2 concerns a resolution that would call for individual recognition at graduation ceremonies.

The resolution, if passed, would give Student Government the authority to pursue a change in the graduation ceremonies in which individual recognition of graduating students would be obtained by pronouncing each student's name as they receive their diplomas from their respective deans and schools.

PENGUIN BEAT

Xides wins punting title

YSU punter Nick Xides captured his second straight Ohio Valley Conference punting title, averaging 41.4 yards per punt. Xides is a junior out of Canton McKinley High School.

Penguins make All-OVC team

Five members of the YSU football team were recently named to the All-Ohio Valley Conference team. They include linebacker Pat Toler, defensive end Chris Stec, tight end Frank Pokorny, fullback Mike Hardie and punter Nick Xides.

McFadden, Goode vie

Former YSU teammates Paul McFadden and John Goode stood on opposite sides of the field Sunday when the Philadelphia Eagles faced the St. Louis Cardinals on network television. Tight end John Goode appeared on special teams for the Cardinals while the Eagles' McFadden is one of the premier placekickers in the National Football League. McFadden made field goal attempts of 31, 43 and 32 yards. His only miss came on a 26-yarder. McFadden is now 26 of 31 in field goal attempts this season. The Cardinals won the game 17-16 on a Neil O'Donoghue field goal with only seconds remaining.

'Guins beat Yugoslavs

By DARREN CONSTANTINO

The YSU basketball team prepared for the upcoming 1984 season with a 73-58 exhibition game victory over the Karlovac/Yugoslavia team currently touring the United States.

Junior guard Garry Robbins came off the bench to pace the Penguin attack with 19 points.

YSU went on top, 14-12, with 8:11 remaining in the first half on a jump shot from Tilman Bevely, and never looked back.

The Penguins owned a 35-22 lead at the half and led by as much as 22 points, 72-50, with 2:29 to play.

Other top scorers for YSU were Bevely with 11 points and Ray Robinson with 10. Miladen Cetinja of Yugoslavia led all scorers with 21 points.

Other schools that the Yugoslavian team has played on its U.S. tour include the University of Cincinnati, St. Louis, Northwestern and Northern Kentucky.

YSU wins Kent tourney

By DARREN CONSTANTINO
Jambar Sports Editor

Junior forward Danielle Carson paced the YSU women's basketball team to two consecutive victories as the Penguins captured the seventh annual Lady Flash Holiday Classic at Kent State University.

YSU opened the season Friday night, defeating Kent State 64-54, and then downed Akron, 63-59, Saturday, in the title game.

Against the host Kent State Golden Flashes, Carson led the Penguins by scoring 19 points and pulling down 12 rebounds.

The Penguins opened up a 35-25 lead at the intermission and never looked back. Senior center Mary Jo Vodenichar scored 14 points and senior guard Margaret Peters added 12 points and 10 assists in the winning cause.

The victory advanced YSU to the title game Saturday against Akron, in which the Penguins defeated the Zips, 63-59. Again Carson scored 19 points and this time pulled down 10 rebounds to pace the Penguins.

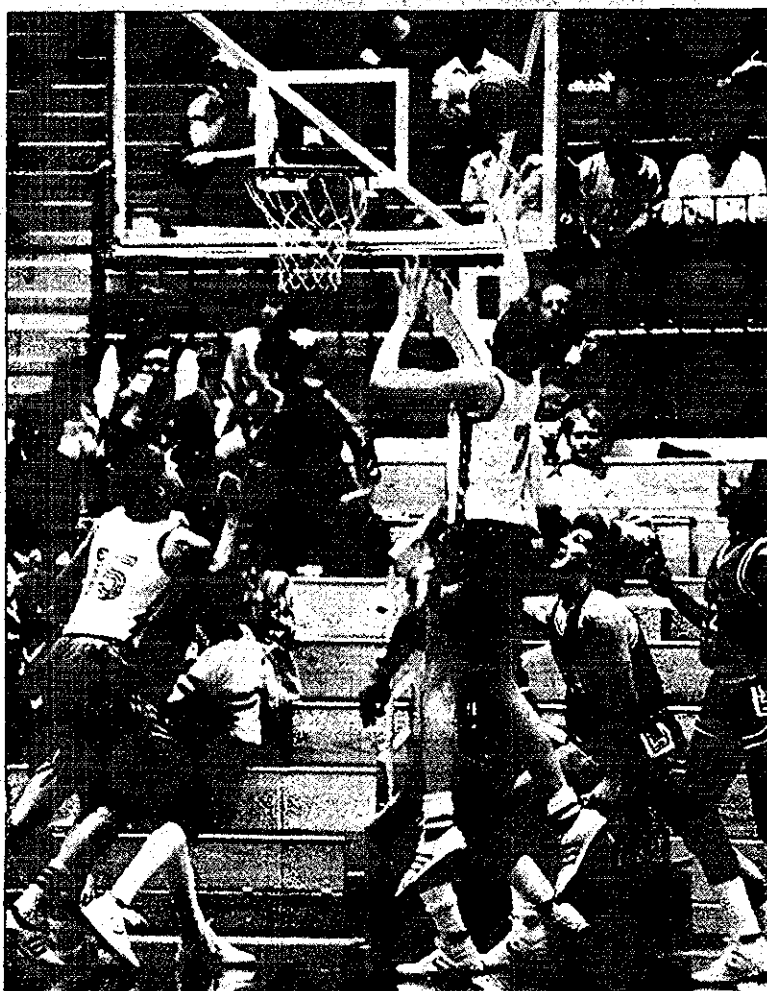

Senior forward Cindi Bruno also recorded 10 rebounds for the Penguins while Diane Hollish and Pam Arnold led the Zips with 22 and 15 points, respectively.

Akron had advanced to the finals by defeating Cleveland State, the defending tournament champions, 61-56. In the consolation game, Kent State defeated Cleveland State, 63-54.

YSU's Carson was named the tournament Most Valuable Player and Carson and Peters were both named to the all-tournament team.

The Penguins are now 2-0 on the season.

Penguins vs Yugoslavs

The Jambar/Kelly Durst

Dino Raga, 6' 10" center for the Karlovac/Yugoslavia basketball team, goes up for a jump shot in action against YSU Monday, Nov. 19. The Penguins defeated the Yugoslavians, 73-58.

Review

He then sells these pictures and hoards all his money so that after graduation he can escape from his mother and her live-in boyfriend and travel to Italy.

Of course Charles does have some problems: he's never been in love, he doesn't know how to handle women and he's a virgin.

As you probably already guessed, the rest of the movie features Charles as he deals with these typical teenage problems.

He develops a picture one evening and notices a beautiful brunette in the corner of it. Charles is instantly attracted to this woman (Demi Moore — "General Hospital" fans remember her as Jackie Templeton).

Although he knows nothing about this lady, he falls head-over-hills in love with her. It's love at first glance — the kind that only happens in a wishy-washy movie like this one.

Charles tries to find this brunette, but he gets distracted by his brother, who takes him to a bachelor party. Here, a cheap hooker propositions Charles, but he's too embarrassed to accept. She comes on to him anyway. This is the only nude scene in the movie and also one of the few scenes that induces spontaneous laughter.

The bachelor party then moves to a semi-classy nightclub — another new experience for Charles. When he looks up at the band, he's shocked to discover that the lead singer is the woman of his dreams.

The next day Charles arranges to meet this mysterious brunette, Laura Victor, a 22-year-old professional singer. Charles talks her into letting him photograph her for publicity purposes.

As they get to know one another better, they share some memorable moments: going for a romantic ride on his moped, crashing a wedding reception and touring her apartment.

The big shocker is when Charles spends $6,000 of his hard-earned money on Laura. He has signs printed that advertise Laura and her phone number and has them put on the top of 175 taxi cabs! He feels this will give her publicity for her singing career.

Needless to say, Laura is furious and embarrassed. The relationship is over and Charles suffers a broken heart.

The two do manage to get back together for a moment of love and passion. This leads to good news and bad news. The bad news is that Laura tells him she is going to sign a contract with a major record company (thanks to Charles' hair-raising scheme). She will be leaving forever but will always remember him. The good news is that Charles loses his virginity with an older woman. What a way for him to go!

Clearly, this movie is what I call a "Harlequin Romance Movie." It lacks originality, things fall into place all too coincidentally, and the plot appears in numerous other bad movies (Risky Business and My Tutor, just to name a few).

If you still want to go see this lousy movie, wait a couple months — it's sure to be on HBO.
