Trustees amend student fees

Some fees have been deleted while others have been added or increased as well as converted.

ANGELA GIANOGGIO
Managing Editor

The YSU Board of Trustees voted to revamp student fees such as parking permits, room and board, and computing fees, which will go into effect with the fall semester.

However, not all students will be affected by all the fees, a report provided by Dr. G.L. Mears, executive vice president, indicated.

For instance, the $38 tuition installment payment plan application fee has been replaced with a $4 per month tuition payment plan service fee. Only students on the tuition payment plan will be affected.

Some fee changes will affect students on the meal plan by increasing the cost per semester, and dorm residents who stay on campus over breaks and in the summer will have to pay more as well. Room and board also has been increased by $105.

Overall, eight new fees were added, including one that resulted from a recent agreement between the university and Microsoft.

Both the computer assisted course fee and the computer intensive course fee have been deleted. However, the academic computing fee was doubled to cover the cost of the agreement with Microsoft. Students will pay about $9 for a license to receive four Microsoft programs and an operating sys-

Candidates will visit YSU this month

The presidential candidates were narrowed to five and the committee will make a final decision in early February.

MEGAN E. WALSH
News Editor

Students and faculty will soon get the opportunity to meet with the five presidential candidates when each of them arrives for their campus visit.

According to Allan Ostar, senior consultant with Academic Search Consultation Service, the candidates will make an individual trip to campus where each will meet with key people and the YSU community. They will be asked to participate in a series of meetings and interviews over a two-day period.

Students and faculty members are encouraged to meet the first of the candidates, Dr. Charles W. Sorensen, chancellor, University of Wisconsin-Stout in Menomonie, Wis.; in an open forum scheduled at 4 p.m. Jan. 13 in the Ohio Room of Kilcawley Center.

The candidates will also meet with the president, vice president and various other campus constituencies, according to Ostar.

According to Bruce Beeghly, chair of the YSU Board of Trustees, the purpose of the visits is to enable the campus and general community to see and evaluate the candidates and to allow the candidates to get further acquainted with YSU and its community.

Ostar said the YSU community will have some part in choosing the next president.

"It won't be a vote but the board will take into consideration what the community had to say about the candidates," he said.

The trustees plan to appoint YSU's next president by early February. Dr. Leslie Cochran, YSU's current president, will serve until June 30, depending on how soon the newly identified president can make the transition.

The 15-member committee narrowed the field from 10 presidential hopefuls to five at the Renaissance Hotel in Cleveland with 90-minute interviews Dec. 10 to 12.

Other candidates scheduled to make a campus visit are: Dr.

YSU OK with Y2K

There were no Y2K problems reported to the coordinator of University Development.

SABRINA SCHROEDER
Editor in Chief

It was business as usual when YSU's winter quarter classes began Monday morning.

Donna Esterly, executive director, Computing and Information Systems, said that although there were a few minor problems that were quickly corrected, her office is still watching for problems. She also said it looks like things are working smoothly.

Esterly said things went well once she began receiving phone calls from people across campus.

"Every one was saying that it was obvious that people have done a lot of work because they are not experiencing any problems," she said.

Esterly Donna Esterly came to Executive Director campus at Computing and Information Systems, Day to do a final walk-through, checking lights, the elevators and the mainframes.

"We are giving it until the end of the week, but it is a big relief because a lot of people have done a lot of work. Our biggest concern was that there could have been some deep, underlying, inherent problems and that if we couldn't get our software to run that we would not be able to fix them," she said.

"It took the work of an awful lot of people throughout the university to make this work," she added.

Pam Palumbo, coordinator of University Development, said she has experienced no problems at all and everything is working great.

"I had every confidence that it would be well done. I was not worried at all because we were reassured over and over that YSU was ready," she said.

“It took the work of an awful lot of people throughout the university to make this work.”

Samuel A. Kirkpatrick, senior fellow, American Association of State Colleges and Universities in Washington, D.C.; Dr. Roy H. Saigo, chancellor, Auburn University in Montgomery, Ala.; Dr. David C. Sweet, chair of Ohio Board of Regents Urban University Program and dean of the Levin College of Urban Affairs at Cleveland State University; and YSU's own Dr. James J. Scanlon, provost.

According to Ostar, any one of the candidates would serve the community well.

According to Y.T. Chiu in a press release, chair of the advisory committee and YSU Board of Trustees member, the selection was not easy.

"We had 10 very high quality candidates and it was a difficult task to make this final selection," he said in the press release.

The committee is now finished with its search duties and will forward the names to the board of trustees who will make the final decision, according to Linda Lewis, director of University Relations.

"We are proud to present to the board these five finalists, all whose credentials seem especially consistent with the desired presidential characteristics established for the search," said Chiu in the press release.

The programs available to students are Microsoft Office, Visual Studio, FrontPage and Back Office Client.

The ability to learn away from the university setting is becoming more of a reality with the expansion of the Distance Learning Centers. With these interactive video classrooms, students and teachers can take classes that are not offered at their schools or at a convenient time.

"We are trying to provide a variety of forms of instruction and information to people at a distance," said Dr. Gordon Mapley, assistant provost.

Fall was the first quarter for the distance learning program.

The newest classrooms are 3082 Cushwa Hall and 3405 and 4306 Beeghly College of Education.

High schools in Trumbull and Columbiana Counties are using distance learning between high schools to share information, and asked YSU to provide more content for their programs, according to Mapley.

With these programs, high school students can take college level courses for both high school and college credit without going to the university.

The distance learning program is fully interactive.

Students can see the instructor and the instructor can see them via a television set.

"Instructors and students can carry on dialogue in real time," said Mapley.

YSU is connected to Kent State University, The University of Akron, and Cleveland State University. Students at any of these universities can utilize the program.

"There were only a few students using distance learning [fall] quarter, but that will increase as we use it more and more. I am happy with the start," said Michael Graham, associate director, Video Services.

The classroom in Cushwa Hall can hold 20 to 30 students, and in the College of Education room 3405 can hold 45 people and room 4306 can hold 24 people.

High school teachers can benefit by taking graduate courses at a convenient time and without traveling to the university.

The program also can help parents of autistic children. The parents can go to a local high school and sit in on sessions broadcast through the program and taught by area professionals.

The College of Health and Human Services offers a master's in public health taught by Dr. Kathleen Akpom, associate professor, health professions, although they plan to offer more courses in the future, according to Graham.

The Beeghly College of Education offers a master's in health and human services out of Lorain County Community College on Saturdays taught by Dr. Louise Sellaro, professor, management, according to Graham.

"The programs are not broadcast quality, but it is still very good," said Graham.

In the future there are plans to have workshops with students in Brazil through the Williamson College of Business Administration, and possibly courses with schools in places such as China and the Caribbean, Mapley said.

Buechner Hall Truly Has Everything

This beautiful residence hall for women, located mid-campus at YSU, is truly first-rate. Single and double occupancy rooms are completely furnished, including linens, telephones, and free cable. The building is fully air conditioned, and staff and guards provide professional, 24-hour security. Weekly maid service, exquisitely decorated lounge areas, quiet study environment, on-premise dining room and home-cooked meals, fitness room, and laundry rooms are other features supplying their share of full-comfort living.

Sound expensive? Not at all. Thanks to the large bequest of the Buechner family, which completed the building in 1941, more than half of all residents' room rental is still absorbed by the Buechner fund. The remainder required from residents including 15 meals per week, is $837 per quarter for double occupancy and $907 per quarter for single. Payable weekly. Your inquiry is solicited.

Y2K poses no problems, all await Feb. 29

The world watched and waited, waited for the mass destruction that threatened to happen. Slowly, the seconds crept by and with the strike of midnight in each time zone across the world — nothing.

The hype about Y2K and the Millennium Bug had brought many to prepare for the worst, stocking their homes with propane, wood, water, canned goods and other essentials. You name it, it was bought.

In Youngstown, rumors floated that YSU would not have classes this week because the campus was not Y2K ready. To the dismay of many students, classes began on schedule and there have been no life-threatening problems due to the Y2K scare.

While the world prepared for the great "bug" to hit, YSU's Y2K team prepared the campus for the next century. People worked to ensure a disaster-free campus and their hard work paid off when midnight hit Friday.

As the new year slid across the globe, no problems were seen as people held their breath in anticipation of international disaster. There were no terrorist attacks, no power outages (except for the few people who played jokes on loved ones and turned their power off in their homes) and no money problems with banks or the stock market.

The growth of the economy in the United States since the late 1970's enabled the stockpiling of the survival tools by those who feared the coming of the year 2000. Without the economy in the state that it is, the purchases would not have been able to be made.

With Jan. 1 behind us, the next question that looms is that of "What will happen Feb. 29?" With the year 2000 being a leap year, many fear that the "bug" may hit in a little less than two months. Hopefully all the work done to prepare for the new year will alleviate any problems that may occur for the leap year.

Quote taken from The Freedom Forum's First Amendment Calendar

A CONTRIBUTING WRITER'S VIEW KRISTY FOSTER

Smelling rats with car mechanics

Just when I thought the days of taking advantage of a woman were over, real life hit me. I recently took my truck to the dealer to be serviced and was totally shocked by what happened.

I had trouble with my brakes so I made an appointment to get them checked. The inspection lasted about an hour and a half and included a mechanic taking it for a ride. The service manager then came out and told me that the "raps" valve was going in my computer and this was making the brakes not function properly.

This sort of took me by surprise because I was a little confused about why the computer would not make my brakes work. The service manager then proceeded to tell me that the part was $700 and was not covered in the warranty I had purchased from the dealer. When I purchased the warranty, which is up to 100,000 miles or five years, it was to cover everything but basic maintenance.

I questioned this and he told me that this system was not covered in the warranty, meaning the computer system. He also told me that my truck was not worth the $700 to replace and fix the part. Hello, my truck is a 1997 and I don't claim to know a lot about cars, but I know when I smell a rat!

I immediately questioned this and he would not answer my questions fully. I didn't trust what he had told me and decided to call another dealer to get another opinion. They discovered that it had nothing to do with the computer system and everything to do with the brakes. Big surprise! Both of my calipers had frozen up. Not only did I not have any front brakes, but I didn't have back brakes either. The entire brake system needed replaced.

When the warranty company was contacted about this, I discovered by talking to them myself that there had been no claim or any checks made against my contract regarding the "raps" valve. This angers me greatly because it doesn't take a brain scientist to see what was going on here.

I did have to pay for some of the brake work because the rotors and break lines were not covered in my warranty, but what concerns me is that the amount of damage accrued to my truck could have avoided if the service center would have pulled the tire off and looked at my brakes. I saw the brakes myself and was able to pick out the problem immediately when the tire was taken off.

I'm glad I have enough common sense to smell a rat.

This experience has changed my feeling about car dealerships and the way they do business. I have had only good experiences in the past, but this one experience has changed me for the better.

I can give everyone a little advice on car dealerships now. When taking your car in for repair and you smell a rat, check it out. It may save your life or another's.

YSU takes on the only other school in I-AA history to win four National Championships, Georgia Southern, in the 1999 National Championship game. Lady Penguins win 4 of 3 over break

MICHAEL KOPACHY
Contributing Writer

The Lady Penguins basketball team finished up the month of December with a 4-3 record to stand at 8-4 overall. This feat is impressive considering five of seven games were on the road. Instead of beating up on Mid-

Majewski

Continent Conference opponents, they faced members of the mighty Big East and Mid-American Conferences.

On Dec. 2 the women won their conference opener against Southern Utah 67-54 in overtime at Beeghly Center. This would be their only conference game of the month. Boardman native junior Jen Lyden came off the bench to spark YSU with 23 points, four assists, and six rebounds.

Cleveland State University dealt YSU its second defeat, 87-68, on Dec. 4. YSU went into the half trailing by one, but CSU came out smoking in the second session outscoring the Lady Penguins 51-33. Two bright spots for the Red and White came from the play of underclassmen Darbi O'Brien (10 of 16 shooting, 24 points) and Allison Metro (career high 10 points).

Youngstown defeated Kent after a week off, 93-88. Senior guard Leslie Majewski earned Mid-Continent Conference Co-Player of the Week honors for her performance. Majewski shot 10 of 15 from the field including seven of 10 from three-point land for a career best 36 points. She had an outstanding December, averaging 15.6 points per game for the month. Junior Brienne Keneally added 21 points and seven assists.

YSU then traveled to the Fitzgerald Field House in Pittsburgh on Dec. 18 and fizzled in the second half to lose to the Pitt Panthers 67-51. The Penguins trailed 29-26 at the break. Senior forward Missy Young and Keneally were the only two to notch double-figures with 12 points a piece.

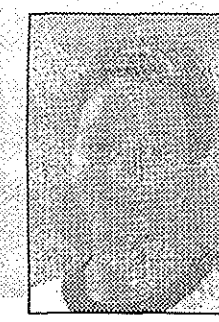

The Lady Penguins hung tough against a good Buffalo team (7-1) but dropped their second straight 74-65 on Dec. 21. Majewski had the hot hand again scoring 26 points on 61 percent shooting. Lyden had six steals defensively and Young grabbed 10 rebounds.

YSU snapped out of it against MAC member Toledo by blowing them away 75-57 on Dec. 18 in Toledo. Keneally, who had a 16.6 ppg average in December, had a game-high 24 points and five assists. O'Brien continued to improve by scoring 14 points.

In their final game of the century, Youngstown nipped Wright State 79-73 in overtime. Four players were in double figures for YSU (Keneally 22, Majewski 21, Young 12, O'Brien 10).

YSU's next contest, and their first of the new year, will be Thursday on the road against conference rival IUPUI.

Laforet

Soccer senior Missy Laforet was selected to the third-team All-Ohio by the Ohio Soccer Coaches Association.

She is also YSU's Most Valuable Player and the school's all-time leading with 25 career goals, 14 career assists and 64 career points.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — The Youngstown State University men's basketball team ended their five game losing streak by reeling off two wins in a row to capture the Dr. Pepper Holiday Classic championship in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

The Penguins defeated Tennessee State 80-73 in the first round of the tournament. Junior Craig Haese had 32 points to pace YSU. Junior Desmond Harrison added 15 points, while classmate Drew Hannon tallied 11. Harrison and junior David Brown had 6 rebounds apiece.

In the championship game, senior Elmer Brown scored 23 points to help the Penguins defeat Chattanooga 60-55.

YSU's five losses were courtesy of Kent (72-53), Niagara (82-77), Montana (103-83), Toledo (63-57) and St. Francis (72-69). On Dec. 2, the men picked up a win against Southern Utah, 76-72.

YSU next travels to Indianapolis Jan. 6 to take on Mid-Continent Conference foe IUPUI.

who said there are no good [bars] on campus?

The best bars on campus don't serve drinks, they serve their country. You see, when you complete Army ROTC and graduate, you'll be an officer and get a set of gold bars.

Register for an Army ROTC class today. Because there's no better buzz than the sense of accomplishment.

ARMY ROTC Unlike any other college course you can take.
