Dr. David Sweet, YSU's sixth president, has drawn some tentative plans for his future at the university.

The dean of the Levin College of Urban Affairs, Cleveland State University and chair of the Ohio Board of Regents Urban University, was elected in a meeting Friday by the board of trustees.

"I want to express my appreciation to the board for choosing me," he said.

Sweet's short-term plan for himself consists of getting a feel for the university community and dealing with the larger issue of the Q2S conversion.

"The transition from quarters to semesters is first on my agenda. The students need a seamless transition," he said. "We also need to look at retaining students during the conversion. We need to get the students familiar with semesters and stress the importance of them signing up for the same amount of credit hours."

As for his long-term goals, Sweet wants to focus on the future directions of YSU.

"YSU must respond to the needs of the community. [It] is the institution for the Mahoning Valley and that carries a lot of responsibility," Sweet said.

Enrollment decline is another problem Sweet has to face, but he believes that, with a rich diversity of programs and people, YSU can come out on top.

Publication date shoots for May

■ The Youngstown State University Penguin Review is coming back after a year of not publishing an issue.

JAH M. HARVEY
Assistant News Editor

Due to a lack of financial support and leadership, the 1999 edition of The Youngstown State University Penguin Review never saw the light of day. With 2000's edition approaching, the question remains, what will become of last year's Penguin Review manuscript?

"The good news is that I now have the '99 manuscript," said Angel Rae Hill, current editor of The Penguin Review. "We plan to combine the '99 edition with the 2000 edition and run it as a double issue."

Dr. James Schramer, English professor and student adviser for The Penguin Review, said that they are trying very hard for a May release date to coincide with semesters.

Judith Gaines, executive director, Student Life, commends the work being done this year.

"I am very impressed with Dr. Schramer and his attempts to get the publication reestablished," she said.

"We're going to call this edition, 'Bridging the Centuries,'" said Schramer. "There's too much history in [the publication] to see it fold up. Not that it would, but we want to increase its visibility."

According to Hill, the biggest problem she faces right now is restoring the publication's reputation in the public's eye.

"We said we were having an issue last year and it never happened," said Hill. "People who sent in submissions wanted to know when it would come out. At the time, we had no answers, so a little trust was lost. This year will be different."

The Penguin Review does have its share of obstacles to face before the issue hits the stands. According to Hill, it's difficult to organize and prepare the publication without voice mail, a key to her office and the proper equipment.

Schramer said he has been working with Dr. Cindy Anderson, vice president for Student Affairs,

Area churches help ADA battle diabetes in African-Americans

■ According to the program manager of the American Diabetes Association, the disease tends to strike African-Americans more often than Caucasians.

JENNIFER HALIBURTON
Contributing Writer

Diabetes stalks its prey oh so silently, careful to go unsuspected. It strikes ruthlessly, injecting its incurable, chronic venom into an astounding 2.3 million African-American bodies, killing mercilessly enough to become the seventh leading cause of death in the United States.

But the predator is about to become the prey.

The American Diabetes Association has declared Feb. 6 and 13 as "Diabetes Sunday," when several Youngstown-area churches will become information centers on the African-American community and diabetes. Data on the warning signs, risk factors and the seriousness of diabetes will be dispersed in an attempt to prevent the increase of a disease that is "near epidemic" in the black community.

"It isn't known why African-Americans seem to be more susceptible to diabetes than whites," said Yvonne Sebastian, area program manager of the ADA and director of Diabetes Sundays. "It seems to be just more of a genetic factor in minority communities, because the Native- and Hispanic-American communities also have very high rates of diabetes," she said.

Diabetes is an incurable disease that affects the body's ability to produce or respond to insulin, a Everett Koop.

"Most people simply ignore a lot of the symptoms, or they blame the symptoms on something else," said Sebastian. "They find themselves getting up in the middle of the night a lot to go to the bathroom, and they say, 'Oh, it's just because I drank too much coffee.' Or they find themselves being thirsty all the time, and they think it's just because they eat too much salty foods. What they don't know is that these are possible symptoms of diabetes."

Diabetics are often thirsty and urinate a great deal because in the body's attempt to rid itself of the excess glucose, a lot of water is removed with it.

The Berean Fellowship Church on Landsdowne Boulevard will be one of the churches involved in the program. Other churches involved have yet to be announced.

All those interested in finding out more about diabetes or the Diabetes Sunday program may call 1-888-DIABETES.

"Most people simply ignore a lot of the symptoms, or they blame the symptoms on something else."

Celebrate history every day

Today marks the beginning of a month-long chain of events geared toward improving the education of everyone regarding African-American history. But this isn't just African-American history. It is the history of America. It's just that a good part of that history has been neglected in classroom textbooks.

Many events are planned throughout the month, both in the community and on campus, and they are open to everyone and anyone who wishes to attend.

The call goes out to everyone who is able to attend the events that are being held. In an age of diversity, learning more about each other needs to be a priority for students, faculty and administration.

History is history, no matter who the focus is on. Without all citizens of the United States coming together to share their lives, history would not exist.

A lack of understanding and of knowledge dooms us to continue living life with blinders on, oblivious to the fact that our history books do not present a complete and accurate account of events that lead us to the 21st century.

What better way do we have to expand our knowledge and understanding of a complete history of America?

Black History month isn't intended to appease a small group of people who feel they have been neglected throughout history. It isn't only to honor a slain African-American leader. It is intended to educate the general public on less publicized African struggles and achievements.

White Americans don't owe African-Americans the honor of their presence at events designed to educate the rest of the world. White Americans owe it to themselves to learn more about the people who made significant contributions throughout the history of their country that make all of our lives better today.

Do you know Vivien Thomas? Thomas helped develop heart surgery techniques and taught surgery at John Hopkins University without even being a doctor.

How about Dr. Mae C. Jemison, the first black woman in space and only the fifth African-American astronaut? Or Robert Abbot, past editor of the Chicago Defender who was responsible for compartmentalizing the news? And don't forget William Harwell, who invented the attachment for shuttle arms, a device used to capture satellites.

Imagine where the medical field would be if it were not for Thomas or the journalism field without Abbot. There are many African-Americans who have made their mark on the history that is lived everyday. It is time to remember them all.

Beginning Thursday, The Jambar will be working to better educate the entire campus community on just a few of the many African-Americans who have made an impact on life as we know it. We urge the entire YSU community to take advantage of the programs and events scheduled during the month to learn more about American history.

President should put people first

YSU has chosen a succeeding president to Dr. Leslie Cochran, and I believe it's time for a change.

With all the hoopla from budget cuts and a declining enrollment, the YSU community needs someone to pick up the broken pieces at this university. Hopefully Dr. David Sweet, dean of the Levin College of Urban Affairs, Cleveland State University and chair of the Ohio Board of Regents Urban University, is our answer.

During his visit to campus a few weeks ago, Sweet spoke extensively on urban development, applied research and enrollment problems. But what about the students in general?

YSU needs a president who is both willing and able to work directly with students. We need someone who can not only meet with prominent student groups on campus such as

Student Government, members of the Greek system, or even The Jambar, but the student community at large.

We want someone who has contact with students on a regular basis. Someone who still wants to teach classes if possible and make his presence felt within all aspects of the campus community.

Faculty relations needs to be another important part of Sweet's agenda. Regarding everything going on concerning the allegations of plagiarism in the College of Education, we want someone who will attack the problem in the beginning, deal with it properly and effectively and not try to cover it up.

In addition to that, the president should have more of an active involvement in faculty contract negotiations, which also did not go smoothly this past year. Sweet should take note that many problems arose from there.

I urge a change for YSU. We've entered a new millennium and need to be up to speed in all aspects with other area universities. YSU needs to be able to compete with them, but tuition hikes and a declining enrollment will not be the answer.

So I guess this is a plea to Sweet: Please turn around this university. We need more students, more money and more job opportunities in the surrounding community. YSU needs to be instrumental in revitalizing Youngstown and we need a strong leader to put his best foot forward.

Sweet had a huge part in getting Cleveland State and its community back on track and I hope he can do the same for a struggling YSU.

We want someone who has contact with students on a regular basis. Someone who still wants to teach classes if possible and make his presence felt within all aspects of the campus community.

tance of the education experience and allow students to interact with diverse people and surroundings," he said.

Sweet also touched upon the issue of budget cuts, saying the university needs to look beyond state subsidies and money from tuition.

"The resource base of the university needs to grow and we need to address tuition reimbursement from employers, grants, contracts, research, outreach and internships as other means of support," said Sweet.

He wants to address the needs of this urban university by looking at other means of support.

According to Mark Shutes, associate professor, sociology and anthropology and OEA union president, the union leadership welcomes a change at the top but has a "wait and see attitude."

"We'd like to see more clear and defined leadership when dealing with grievances and union grievances than we have seen," he said.

"He has to have a willingness to work with people."

According to Bruce Beeghly, chair of YSU's Board of Trustees, Sweet was chosen as the president for his extensive background in urban studies and familiarity with the state government and higher education make up.

"He has spent 20 years in Cleveland or a community similar to ours and has dealt with those in Columbus at the Board of Regents," Beeghly said.

Beeghly added another quality the board considered was that Sweet has a good academic background and has brought national recognition to CSU.

"He has achieved excellence in his field. He has leadership qualities and the ability to move people toward a common goal," he said.

Beeghly added Sweet was the best fit for YSU among the five candidates, one of whom was Dr. James Scanlon, YSU provost.

At the end of a series of open forums by the candidates, Scanlon spoke Thursday of the importance of going back to our roots and how he feels they have been forgotten.

to get an idea of what equipment The Penguin Review needs.

Anderson was unavailable for comment.

The staff raised more money for the magazine by hosting bake sales and book sales.

The Penguin Review operates on a budget of $3,250, including printing costs.

Gaines explained the reasoning behind their small budget.

"They get their budget from student fees, like The Jambar or Student Government," said Gaines. "But they only print an issue once a year, so they don't need as much money. It's more comparable to a yearbook in that respect."

"We just ask people to understand the situation," said Hill. "We're on a shoe-string budget here. Hopefully, by the end of the year, we'll have the computers and software to make this easier."

Schramer said, a good networked computer would be enough to do much of the work more efficiently.

"With a networked computer, we could receive submissions by e-mail. That would make it easier to review material," he said.

The Penguin Review has been a part of YSU life in one way or another since 1956. At the start of a new century, The Penguin Review hopes to carry on that legacy.

"The Penguin Review is an excellent avenue for YSU students.

It's one of the only publications locally where they can show their creative side," said Hill.

Scholarships available for alumni's children

■ YSU's Alumni Association is sponsoring scholarships for children of association members attending YSU.

STEPHANIE THOMPSON
Contributing Writer

Following in mom or dad's footsteps may have some benefits for current YSU students.

The YSU Alumni Association is offering four $1,000 Legacy Scholarships to current YSU students who are children of YSU Alumni Association members.

"It is perpetuating children of alumni to come to this institution to keep that family trail," said Lori Factor, executive director of the Alumni Association.

"The Legacy Scholarship is really important to us because alumni associations are born and bred of history and tradition," she added.

Factor said the number of Legacy Scholarships has grown over the past few years, from one award to four.

"We were the sponsors of another scholarship and our board decided that it was really important for us to up that number of scholarships," Factor said. "And hopefully, we can continue to either add to the corpus or add to the number of scholarships."

A committee within the Alumni Association has established criteria for applicants.

"Obviously there are hard and fast things — the GPA and the hours accumulated and being in good standing are just non-negotiable sorts of things," said Factor.

Applicants must be full-time YSU students with at least a 3.0 GPA, and one parent must be a graduate of YSU as well as a member of the YSU Alumni Association. The Alumni Association encourages all who qualify to apply.

Incoming freshmen may not apply for this award.

Factor said inclusiveness and flexibility were key issues when deciding upon the criteria for the Legacy Scholarships.

"The feeling when the group got together originally to make the criteria for this particular scholarship was that we didn't want it to be skewed too much toward need-based," she said. "And we didn't want it to be skewed too much toward the scholarships that we already knew were out there."

According to Factor, the Legacy Scholarships are designed for those students that are caught somewhere in the middle.

Applications for the Legacy Scholarship are available at the Scholarship and Financial Aid office or they can be picked up at the Alumni House, located on the corner of Wick Avenue and University Plaza. The deadline for applying is March 31.

Indoor track and field senior Kofi Owusu-Ansah finished first in his heat in the 60-meter dash in 6.75 seconds.

Penguins pick up two league wins

The men's basketball team won two close conference games last week; first a one-point decision against Western Illinois, 59-58, and then a home win vs. Oakland, 68-65.

Harrison

Against Western Illinois, it was junior Desmond Harrison coming up big for the Penguins. Harrison hit a free throw with three seconds left to help propel YSU to their exciting win. He finished the game with only five points, but none bigger than his final one at the line.

"I was happy for Desmond in the Western game because he had a chance to redeem himself," said Head Coach John Robic. "I know he felt that he let the team down against Niagara. He stepped up with confidence and that was a big lift for us."

Senior Elmer Brown led YSU with 23 points, while senior Albert

Crockett chipped in with 12 and six assists. Senior Robbie Robinson had seven rebounds.

It was Harrison coming up big again for the Penguins in their victory against Oakland. He scored 15 of his 17 points in the second half and was the Penguins go-to-guy down the stretch.

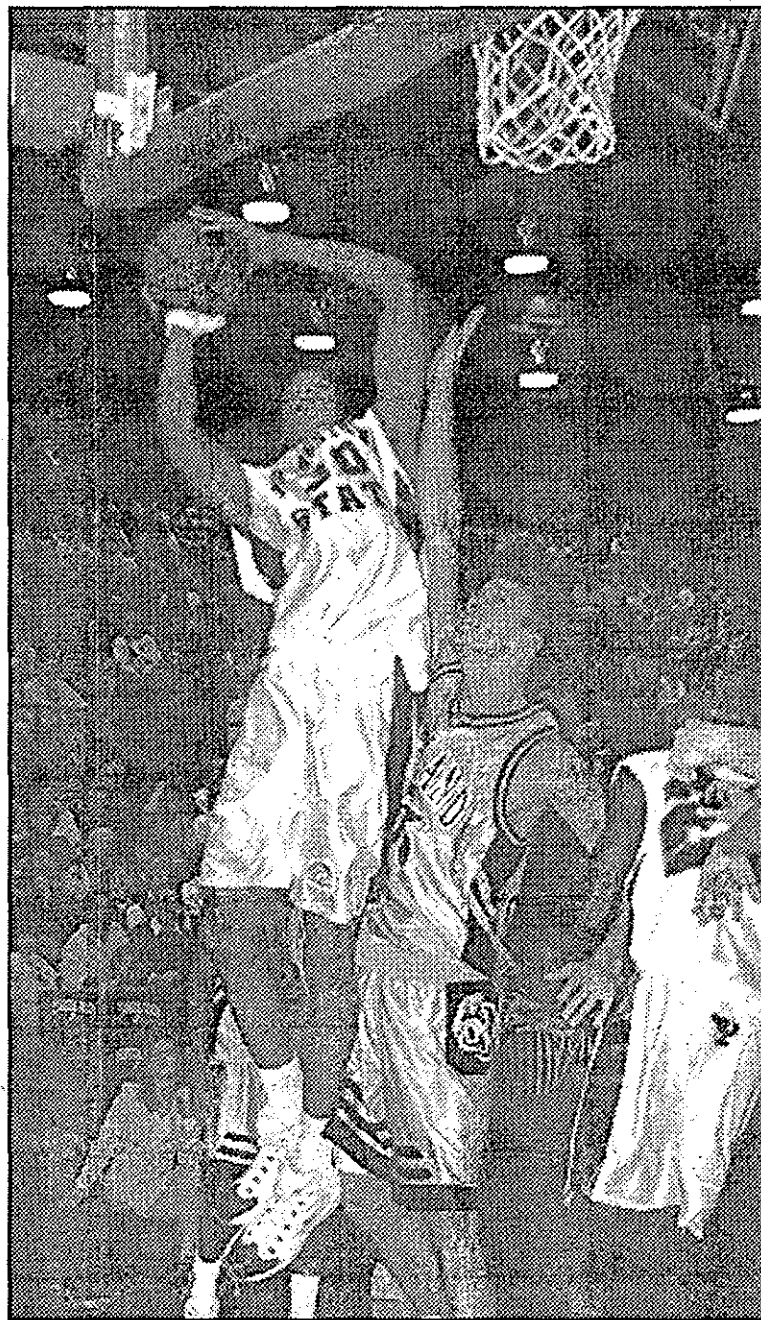

Oakland started the game on a 6-0 run, but the Penguins countered that with a 10-1 run of their own for a 10-7 advantage early in the contest. After trading baskets for the rest of the half, the Golden Grizzlies found themselves ahead 31-28 at the intermission.

In the second half, Oakland maintained their lead at 46-40 before the Penguins went on an 11-0 run, highlighted by an Elmer Brown to junior Craig Haese to Harrison layup. Oakland had one last lead at 56-55, but YSU snuffed that with great defensive play.

Offensively, Crockett led the Penguins with 23 points. Haese added 10 points while junior Ryan Patton had seven rebounds.

"Guys really stepped up and pressured the ball more," said Robic, referring to the Penguins' defensive play. "Our post-defense was much better. That was the biggest difference."

The Penguin's (10-10, 7-2) next game is 7:35 p.m. Saturday at home against IUPUI.

Dave Long, The Jambar

TAKING IT TO THE HOOP: Senior Robbie Robinson goes straight up with the ball in the men's victory over Oakland Saturday. YSU won the match-up 68-65 in Beehly Center.

Women's distance wins medley, Owusu-Ansah places at Air Force

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — The YSU women's indoor track and field distance medley relay team set a new school record with a 10th place time of 12 minutes, 21 seconds at the Penn State Open Saturday. The previous record of 12:37 was set in 1997.

Owusu-Ansah

Senior Annabelle Hunt finished 20th with a time of 5:29.

In the high jump, freshmen Diana Mobley and Jessica Wran each measured a jump of 5 feet 1/4 inches, placing 15th and 19th, respectively, for YSU.

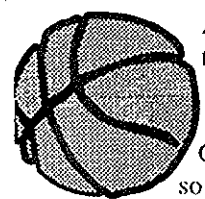

For the men, freshman Kurt Michaelis placed 19th in the 800 meter run with a time of 1:54, while sophomore Will Edwards finished 21st in the 5,000 with a time of 15:18. Senior Shawn Cobey ranked 13th in the weight throw with a toss of 46 feet, 4 inches.

While the teams were at Penn State, senior Kofi Owusu-Ansah traveled to Colorado to compete in the Air Force Invitational. He placed first in his heat in the 60-meter dash with a time of 6.75. He finished fifth in the 200 with a time of 21.74.

The teams see action again Feb. 12 at the All-Ohio Championships in Bowling Green.

Women find themselves in unfamiliar territory

MICHAEL KOPACHY
Contributing Writer

All of a sudden the friendly confines of the Beehly Center aren't so friendly for the Lady Penguins. They dropped their second straight at home for the first time since the 1995-96 season, this time to conference rival Oakland, 84-79, in front of 1,300 fans.

The hot-shooting Golden Grizzlies gained control early in the game and took a three-point lead into halftime, 37-34.

Senior guard Leslie Majewski tied the game with one of her seven three pointers at the 19:28 mark in the second session, but Oakland ran away with the game after that, going on a 28 to 11 run in the next 11 minutes.

The feisty women of the Red and White would not quit, closing the lead to three points, 74-71, with 2:23 remaining; but that would be as close as it would get. The Oakland Grizzlies outscored the Lady Penguins in the second half 47-45.

Majewski's seven three pointers tied a school record as she finished with 24 points and three assists.

Junior guard Brienne Kenneally was held to 10 points on four of 13 shooting; a huge drop from the 27 points she collected in their first meeting back on Jan. 8. The Lady Penguins beat the Grizzlies at their place, 84-77.

Sophomore center Darbi O'Brien had a double-double (10 points, 10 rebounds), as did senior forward Missy Young (15 points, 12 rebounds). Junior Alyson Vogrin added seven points and six boards off the bench.

The Lady Penguins were out-shot 52 percent to 39 percent.

Tuesday, in Macomb, Ill., the Lady Penguins scored a big win against fellow conference leader Western Illinois (12-8, 6-3) 70-67.

Five players scored double digits in the total team effort, led by Kenneally with 18. The defending Mid-Continent Conference Player of the Year was an impressive 10 of 10 at the charity stripe and is shooting 83 percent this year. She also dished out four assists and a steal.

Young has come on as of late, tallying another double-double (11 points, 11 rebounds), with a block and a steal.

Vogrin was a factor off the bench for the women, scoring 13 points and making all seven of her free throw attempts. In addition to that, she rebounded six times, and gave the Lady Penguins a spark off the bench that they had been missing over the last month.

O'Brien had 12 points and seven boards in limited action due to foul trouble. Majewski showed no signs of a bad ankle injury that had been hampering her play, adding 13 points and three rebounds, which included three three-pointers.

The women's record now stands at 13-7 on the year and remains tied with Western Illinois for the Mid-Continent lead at 6-3. They face IUPUI, who they beat 72-63 Jan. 8, in another conference game at 5:15 p.m. Saturday at Beehly Center.

Swim and dive drop two

CLARION, Pa. — The swimming and diving team competed against Clarion Saturday and Sunday, falling 166-75 Sunday and 165-75 Saturday.

Molly McAtee walked away with the only first-place finish for the women Sunday, winning the 100 freestyle in 59.76 seconds.

Megan McAtee placed second in the 200 backstroke in a time of 2 minutes, 22.25 seconds, while Kare Humes placed second in the 100 freestyle in 1:40.30, swimming her fastest time of the season.

Saturday, Mandi Smail won the three-meter dive with a score of 265.95, while Brandi Goetsch took fourth with a score of 259.95. The women travel to New York to face Canisius Sunday.
