Union seeks end to sex-biased pay

By CLARENCE MOORE
Jambar News Editor

Achieving equality between salaries earned by male and female teachers has become a top priority of The National Education Association (NEA).

The NEA, the nation's largest faculty organization, is actively involved in a national campaign to end sex-pay discrimination.

Dr. Thomas Shipka, president of the Youngstown chapter of the YSU-OEA organization, said he supports the NEA's national fight.

He said the local YSU-OEA did a study 10 years ago, in 1973, and discovered there were discrepancies between the average wages earned by faculty men and women.

To correct the problem, he said, the University established a $175,000 salary equity fund, that was especially generous to women faculty members.

Some women faculty received 30 to 40 percent salary increases, said Shipka.

The YSU-OEA explored the sex-pay discrimination issue again in 1979.

"We did a thorough study of faculty salaries by computer," Shipka said of the last investigation. "The results were inconclusive in my opinion."

He said the study did not in-dicade that there was a "clear pattern" of inequities in terms of salaries earned by men and women.

"We made the study available to the women faculty, offering them full legal assistance, should there have been any challenges to the study's findings," said Shipka, but no one complained.

"Independent of the study we did," he noted, "a woman did issue a complaint about her salary."

The administration granted the woman a $2,000 salary increase, because it "deemed it necessary," according to Shipka.

He said that by the time the faculty members' full contract comes up for re-negotiation in the spring of 1986, the YSU-OEA will have completed another sex-pay discrimination study.

One problem that the University does have, and has in common with other Universities, is the fact that it pays lower wages to faculty women in certain disciplines, traditionally thought of as "female dominated fields," he said.

Shipka said women working in the applied sciences and nursing departments, for instance, are paid less than men in fields that are traditionally "male dominated."

"These women are not com-

Thief flim-flams $77 from Arby's

By DAN PECCHIA
Jambar Managing Editor

Campus police are looking for a man in his early 30s who used a quick-change scheme to rob Arby's of $77 last Thursday afternoon.

The man tried similar tricks at several other Kilcawley-Center establishments but came away empty. Police are investigating the case, but have reported no suspects.

An Arby's cashier said a man came to the counter and asked for a small soft drink at about 2:30 p.m. He paid for it with a $10 bill. The cashier said she was about to give him change when he told her he instead wanted to pay with a $1 bill.

The man, wearing a brown tweed cap and coat with a fur collar, continued to give the cashier bills and ask for change, she said, until she began to lose track of how much he was giving her.

"He kept talking quickly and counting real fast," the cashier said. "He never stopped talking. I didn't even have a chance to check how much was missing. By the time I realized, he was gone. It was a terrible experience."

Brian Sterling, an assistant manager at Arby's, said such flim-flamming is not new to the store.

Council opens new quarter with quorum

By SAM DICKEY
Jambar Staff Writer

Student Council received a very welcome quorum at yesterday afternoon's meeting.

Vice-chairman James L. Hook announced that three members of Council had been removed because of excessive absences. Members are limited to two absences per term, yet these members had missed more than four. They had received two warning letters, but failed to respond to them.

During fall term, the lack of a quorum hampered Council many times.

Jim Miller, responsible for Parking Services, will be present at next week's meeting to talk about the parking situation and to hear students' comments about the issue. Chairman Tony Rossi said, "He came to us and offered to speak and answer questions. Students have a legitimate complaint. Let's get them here so they can be heard." The meeting will be held in Room 2068, Kilcawley, Monday, Jan. 16 at 3:30 p.m. The Scarlet Room, where Student Council meetings are usually held, will not be available.

Jim Boniface, of Richard Fleischman Architects, will be present at a meeting on Thursday, Jan. 12 at 4 p.m. in the Arts & Sciences auditorium, during which time the architect will seek input concerning the "Long Range Facilities Development Plan" which will give a general idea of how the University's facilities will be used in future years. Students will be able to examine copies of this report in advance; they are available in Rossi's office, in Maag Library, and in the Information Center.

In the Cabinet report, Gary Lawman announced that a blood drive will take place Jan. 17 and 18. To promote the event, the Adults and the Bangorillas will perform on Friday, Jan. 13, from 9 p.m. to midnight in the Chestnut Room. The Organizations Fair will take place from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in Kilcawley. In connection with the Fair, Kids After Dark will perform from noon until 2 p.m. in Arby's.

In other business, Council allocated

$404.50 from the Contingency Fund to the American Institute of Industrial Engineers. This will enable them to attend a convention in Kalamazoo, Michigan and will cover transportation, lodging, and registration. Circle K received $251 for travel expenses and lodging to attend the Midwest Training Conference at Notre Dame.

Council passed a motion to form an ad hoc committee on faculty evaluations. This committee will investigate how these evaluations are used. The committee will be open to all students.

The commission on housing that was formed for the fall quarter was re-established for winter term.

Exchange repays students for books

By GEORGE DENNEY
Jambor Editor

Putting money back into the pockets of students is the order of the day at Circle K.

The service-oriented YSU student organization began a book exchange on a trial basis four years ago and, according to president Steve Marino, $31,000 has since been returned to students who have taken part in the program.

The Circle K Book Exchange program operates by taking in used texts and reselling them at a price set by the seller. If the book is sold, the seller receives 90 percent of the price of the book. Five percent goes towards a fund which is donated to a local charitable organization and the remainder is used for operating expenses.

Marino said this year's charitable organization is the Arthritis Foundation.

"We're helping the students by giving them money back to use for books next quarter," Marino said.

He explained that book exchanges were held by Greek organizations years ago, and Circle K — with the help of member Bob Capp — began the program on a regular basis because "books were just getting too expensive."

Marino said the response to the program has increased every quarter. He said during the last 15 quarters, 3,500 books were sold through the organization. Last fall quarter, 339 books were exchanged, representing $3,466. By this past weekend, the student organization had sold 343 books, returning over $3,600 to students.

Student's experience helps gain position

By SHARON CREATORE

A YSU student has recently been chosen by the American Cancer Society as first runner-up in the 1984 Ohio Nurse of Hope competition.

Peter Burns, presently enrolled in the two-year nursing program, represented Columbiana County in the statewide competition, which is open to all nursing students, all RNs and LPNs.

According to Mary Milligan, director of public information for the American Cancer Society in Ohio, 36 candidates competed for this volunteer position.

The candidates appeared before six members of the Ohio Division Board and were judged on professionalism, poise and a two-minute speech.

Burns was also the winner of the most outstanding speech competition. His speech was based on his personal experience as a cancer patient.

"My decision to go into the nursing program was made after my operations for cancer," stated Burns, who is now in his second quarter as a part-time student.

He works as an orderly at St. Elizabeth's Hospital and does clinical experience for his classes at Southside Hospital.

The volunteer work Burns will do for the American Cancer Society includes numerous speaking engagements which he has arranged by sending letters to the school districts, churches and groups in Columbiana County.

Financial aid on the increase, expected to reach $13 million

By CLARENCE MOORE
Jambar News Editor

Students, going to the financial aid well at YSU during the 1982-83 academic year, came back with more than just a few drops in their buckets.

Neil Humphrey, acting YSU president, told the Board of Trustees at its last board meeting Friday, Nov. 18, that students received nearly $10.8 million in financial aid assistance last year.

Next year, according to William Collins, director of financial aid, the University plans to offer even more assistance to its students. About $13 million is expected to be given to students this year.

Last year the University's biggest increase in financial aid came from the state. In 1981-82, students received $3,256,282 in aid, which is an average of $886 per recipient. But last year University students received $4,002,527 in pell grant funding, an increase of 746,245, and an average of $1,091 per recipient.

Students receiving YSU Educational Foundation scholarships and grants received some $66,000 more in scholarship money than students in 1981-1982.

Scholarships and grants totaled $712,279, last year and private aid to students totaled $1,278,151. The only financial aid disappointment came in the form of wage payments made to students employed on campus. During the year, nearly $870,000 was earned by student/employees. This was $16,000 less than the $886,327 total paid to student employees during 1981-1982.

Next year, the financial aid outlook promises to be even better, said Collins.

"We expect to have more students at YSU next year and we hope to have more money to give them," he said.

He said he expects the pell grants to increase from the $2 million made available to students last year, to nearly $4 million for 1983-84.

"We're pleased that we're able to help students to the degree we have," Collins said. "For a low-tuition institution like YSU, we're offering a lot in the way of financial aid to the students."

Collins estimated that out of the nearly 16,000 students attending the University, half are receiving some sort of financial aid.

He said he thinks it's "pretty remarkable" that much of the financial aid assistance was not given out in the form of loans, but in grants, scholarships and wages earned.

members who have masters degrees and paid them salaries that were not in accordance with their skills.

Shipka said he doesn't expect the answer to this problem to be solved on the local bargaining level.

The "comparable worth" issue is still in heavy court litigation across the country, he said.

When the courts finally make a decision in regard to the "comparable worth" issue, then and only then, will the local YSU-OEA organization be able to negotiate for salaries in these traditionally female dominated fields.

Another problem for the YSU-OEA will be attempting to resolve this spring, he said, will be raising the entry-level salaries of newly hired faculty persons.

On occasion, Shipka, said, the University has hired faculty

Shipka said the YSU-OEA will attempt to increase the entry-level salaries for future YSU faculty members, who will earn wages according to their skills and earned degrees.

CAMPUS QUOTES

Was Jesse in the right by his visit?

Did Jesse Jackson take the proper course of action in affecting the release of naval pilot Goodman from the Syrians?

STEVE SHELTON

As a citizen of the United States, he made the proper move to do the job.

ANITA REED

I think he did it as a political ploy and it worked.

JERRY BUCCI

He just did it on moral and humanitarian grounds and from a moral and humanitarian standpoint, it was a success.

DUNNOVAN LEE SAPIENZA

Yes, I do, because the United States is notorious for having informal routes for achieving political goals and I think Jesse Jackson was definitely an informal route.

DARLENE WALLS

I don't think that he had anything to do with it. I just think that the Syrians felt that they wanted to let Goodman go, and Jackson was just there when it happened.

LATHAN DE VOOR

There's really nothing wrong with him doing that, as long as he saved somebody's life. He went over as a humanitarian.

ANAMIKA MISHR

I think the only reason he went to get Goodman from Syrian was because he wanted to get attention for the election.

JOHN KUFCHAK

Yes, I believe he did take the proper course, but I don't see what reason or right he had going over there.

Needed energy

The Rev. Jesse Jackson's recent mission to Damascus, Syria was a major triumph on several levels. 1) His humane appeal to the Syrian government resulted in the release of Navy Lt. Robert Goodman, Jr. 2) His successful negotiations with the Syrians also left some egg on the face of the Reagan administration, which seemed mysteriously slow in dealing with the Syrian government for Goodman's release. 3) His mission to Syria also showed that he is not just "a black-civil-rights leader" running for president.

By going to the Middle East, Jackson proved that he is a skillful politician who can deal effectively with foreign leaders on matters of foreign policy.

The Middle East trip and Jackson's "Lone Ranger" tactics have put badly-needed excitement back into a presidential campaign that seemed ready to keel over from boredom.

While the other democratic candidates busied themselves making verbal attacks on each other and the Reagan administration, Jackson decided that talk was not enough.

He refused to sit by and watch the Reagan administration play half-hearted politics with the Syrian government for the release of Goodman.

Seeing an opportunity, he made the most of it — whatever motives he may or may not have had.

Critics have called his successful mission everything from "busybody meddling" to "political grandstanding."

Instead of criticizing Jackson, these critics should thank him for ending a situation that could have, quite possibly, gone on for as long as American troops remain in the Middle East.

How quickly these critics forget that the last time Americans were held hostage in the Middle East, it took 444 days before they went free.

So despite what his critics seem to think, Jesse Jackson has restored some badly needed energy to the 1984 presidential campaign: A campaign that many are already counting as a victory for Reagan, who has not even announced his candidacy.

COMMENTARY

It's Smudgepot Awards time

Good evening, ladies and gents, and welcome to the first annual presentation of The Jambar Smudgepot Awards. Recipients of these awards have distinguished themselves in 1983 through events and actions of uncommon wisdom, innate nobility, great perseverance or simply exceptional idiocy.

The "Undeserved Reputation" Award goes to pollster George Gallup. A man supposedly aware of public thought and opinion, Gallup scheduled a speech at YSU on the same evening that CBS broadcast the 2½-hour final episode of "M*A*S*H," when most Americans were glued to their TV sets.

The "AT&T" Award for fixing something that wasn't broken is presented to the University administration for its revision of its payment system for alleged "non-employees" who received stipends. These students, previously paid on a monthly basis, now receive their checks at the end of the quarter. (Newsflash! Non-employees have bills, too!)

The "Turnaround of the Year" Award is presented to the YSU men's basketball team. After finishing the '82-'83 season with a less-than-satisfying 12-15 record, the cagers have started the '83-'84 season by registering seven victories before the end of 1983, and one of their three losses was an impressive effort against nationally ranked Purdue.

The YSU football team, however, gets the "We're Still Waiting" Award. Remember "competitive and regional prominence"? We're tired of just hearing about it, especially after sinking 44 percent of fees into athletics. In addition, Stambaugh Sports Complex is a football stadium, despite what I've been told by the administration. Classrooms usually don't have a 16,000 seating capacity.

The "James Watt" Award goes to a state official attending a dedication at the YSU library who, in a live radio broadcast, expressed his enthusiasm for being at "Maag Memorial Hospital." (No, no. Those students really are sleeping. They're not

And while we're on the subject, Maag receives the "Familiarity Breeds Contempt" Award for its marvelous copy machines. YSU students are very familiar with how these things (don't) work, and have contempt to spare.

Ohio voters share the "Justice in Democracy" Award for their roles in the defeat of Issue 1. Choosing to let the current laws stand, which include tougher penalties for drunk drivers, they decided that 19- and 20-year olds, who have the honor of getting blown up while meddling in other nations' affairs because of a singularly stupid foreign policy, can also stop for a beer. (Sorry, Mr. Reagan. Better luck next time.)

The "Ellery Queen" Award goes to Student Council, for solving the mystery of the lost quorum. Council and The Jambar share the "Cease Fire" Award for conspicuous absence of the animosity they previously shared.

The "Best Remake" Award is presented to Bliss Hall for the attempt at imitating "The Towering Inferno" last winter. (I know it's not the Oscar you expected, but that's show biz.)

The Pollock House (it is still standing, isn't it?) receives the "Indiana Jones" Award for last-minute rescues.

Neil Humphrey is honored as "Pinch Hitter of the Year" for his performance as acting president of YSU, while John Coffelt is on medical leave.

The YSU Administration receives the "Johnny Had Damn Well Better Be Able To Read" Award for telling city schools that they must start giving students the basics, so that YSU can stop playing nursemaid.

Well, that's about it for this year's awards. If I've missed your favorite, be sure and write in.

Walk to protest arms race

To the Editor of The Jambar:

The Jobs and Peace Task Force will hold a "Freeze Walk Through Death Valley" to dramatize the need for an end to the arms race and military adventurism.

The Freeze Walk will begin at noon, Jan. 12 at the corner of Hazel and Front streets and will proceed along the north bank of the Mahoning River.

The event is part of a nationally coordinated effort to pressure Congress into withdrawing all U.S. troops from Lebanon; all first-strike nuclear missiles from Europe; and all U.S. military personnel from Central America and Grenada.

Members of the Trumbull Peace Council and Peace Council of Youngstown will focus on the economic effects increased military spending has had on the Mahoning Valley.

Peace activists will carry a coffin from the empty Republic Steel plant near downtown to the vacant Wean United plant. Along the way 253 nails will be driven into the lid of the coffin. Each nail represents $1 billion of money budgeted for the Pentagon in 1984. This event, starting at 12:30 p.m., is intended to be a memorial service for the jobs lost in the Mahoning Valley because of the military budget.

Activists will design a "peace budget" during the service and then visit Congressman Lyle Williams' office to ask him to take action concerning the defense issues.

More information may be obtained by calling 759-1944 or 898-7977 in Warren.

Behavior tests show odds of college success

From The College Press Service

Cleveland, OH — Behavior tests administered in early adolescence can predict later success in college just as well as more commonly used scholastic aptitude tests, according to a Cleveland State University researcher.

Youngsters who scored high in

In 1968, Schuerger gave psychological and personality tests to over 3000 males aged 14 to 19, and recently contacted the

'Streetcar' rides for two weekends

University Theatre will present Tennessee Williams' A Streetcar Named Desire, 8 p.m., Jan. 12-14 and 19-21 and 3 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 22. All performances will be held in the Spotlight Arena Theatre, Bliss Hall.

A Streetcar Named Desire is Williams' tragically passionate drama which reveals the depths of the character of Blanche du Bois, a woman whose life has been undermined by her romantic illusions.

Performing the role of the desperate Blanche is Carol Weakland. Rosie Rokus-Boehlke will portray Blanche's sister, Stella, while Stella's husband, Stanley, will be played by Nicholas A. DePaola.

In supporting roles are Craig Duff as Mitch, Michael Angelo Barany as Steve, and Fedra Anastasiadis as Eunice.

Also appearing in the cast are John Gatta as Pablo, Mark Passerello as the young man, James Tisdale as the doctor, Susi Baxter as the nurse, Alicia Perry as the neighbor, and Nancilyn Gatta as the blind Mexican woman.

Donna Downie, limited service faculty member, is directing the play with assistance from Joseph Mineo. Professor Frank Castronovo, speech communication and theatre, is scenic and lighting designer, while Jane Shanabarger, theatre instructor, is costume designer.

Reservations for the play and a "First Nighters' Buffet" to be held 6 p.m., Jan. 12, at the Wicker Basket may be made by phoning the University Theatre Box Office at 742-3105 between 10:15 a.m. and 5:15 p.m., weekdays.

Tickets are $4 for the general public. Admission is free for students with I.D. cards.

REVIEW

Faulty dialogue leaves audience waiting in the dark at Playhouse

By DIANE SOFRANEC
Special to The Jambar

The Youngstown Playhouse's presentation of Wait Until Dark further proves that fine acting cannot save an incomplete script.

Since the storyline left several unanswered questions concerning key characters, Friday night's audience was in turn left confused as to how and why particular events occurred.

Even first-rate acting could not accommodate the various plot twists and the climactic ending featured in Fredrick Knott's suspense thriller.

The storyline centers around a supply of heroin stashed in a doll. Three thugs are determined to retrieve the heroin. An unsuspecting blind girl is caught up in the action as it is discovered that her basement apartment holds the goods. The men then proceed to overrun the apartment in a series of deceptions, false identities and later, threats that involve criminal intrigue.

Unfortunately, it is at this point that the audience becomes confused instead of entertained. The dialogue in Wait Until Dark fails to specify information needed to understand the fine points of the story. It is for this reason the play lacks in an effort to surprise and convince the audience into believing the characters' motives. The final scene, in which the blind girl uses her handicap to her advantage, is the only one that truly attempts to move the audience with suspense.

Anne Finnerty-James plays the blind girl with accuracy enhanced by walking into furniture and walls, and rolling her eyes upward. She must be commended for her portrayal of naive, but quick-witted and courageous Susy Hendrix.

Robert Spain, Chuck Mastran and James Elder were convincing as the three gangsters. Elder's sinister portrayal as the deranged heavy helped build much of the suspense in the play's final scene.

Amy Fisher, in her first Playhouse role, appropriately played Gloria, the obnoxious child who is instrumental in the outcome of the play.

Jim Lubarger, lighting director, is responsible for the intriguing atmosphere. His use of lighting techniques sets the stage for danger, excitement and an element of surprise.

The low budget furnishings (excepting some photography equipment) utilized by Paul Kimpel, set designer, lent authenticity to the Greenwich Village apartment.

Wait Until Dark will run weekends up to Jan. 22 at the Playhouse. Tickets are $8, $5 for students and senior citizens. They may be purchased at the Playhouse box office from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. YSU students may obtain a discount voucher from the Student Government office in Kilcawley for $2.50.

WYSU offers special music and drama

YSU fine arts radio station, WYSU-FM (88.5), will begin broadcasting four separate series of programs in January.

The programs are being provided through National Public Radio. They include "Music from Europe," 10 p.m., Mondays beginning Jan. 9; "Music from Washington," 10 p.m., Wednesdays beginning Jan. 11;

"Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival," 10 p.m., Thursdays beginning Jan. 12, and the dramatic series, "Happiness," 4:30 p.m. Sundays, beginning Jan. 22. "The Music from Europe" series will include a performance by the George Kiss Ensemble and "Grenoble Instrumental Ensemble on authentic reproductions of 18th century flutes, harpsichords, and strings. French conductor Stephan Cardon will direct this performance.

Other programs in this series will include world-renowned conductor Barenboim directing the Berlin Philharmonic in a performance of the 1878 version of Bruckner's Symphony No. 3 in D-Minor and a concert with Italian conductor Riccardo Chailly directing the Berlin Symphony Orchestra.

The "Music from Washington" series will showcase internationally-acclaimed artists, including flutist Jean Pierre Rampal, cellist Lyn Harrell and pianists Christopher O'Riley and Janina Fialkowska. The first 13 presentations, which also feature resident and visiting ensemble, were taped live at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performance. See WYSU, page 9

The 14-part "Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival Series" will include such celebrated artists as the 1981 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition winner Andre-Michel Schub, pianists Andras Schiff and Alicia Schachter, the festival's co-founder and artistic director, violinists James Buswell, Ani and Ida Kavafian; cellists Carter Brey, Ralph Kirshbaum and Timothy Eddy; flutist Marya Martin; hornist Dale Clevenger; and harpsichordist/pianist Kenneth Cooper.

The five-part dramatic series "Happiness" stars Barbara Barrie, best-known as Barney Miller's wife on television and as the mother in the film, Breaking Away. Written by novelist/playwright Anne Leaton and produced by Karl Schmidt. "Happiness is the reminiscences of Millie, a 60-year-old Houston woman, who recalls her homes, her jobs and her husbands throughout her quest for happiness.

of sweat shops and child laborers. All of the pre-union realities are brought to life in his battles with railroad tycoon George Pullman and other dragons of the industrial age.

The show also traces many famous courtroom fights in Darrow's public life, including the Scopes "Monkey Trial" which pitted the eloquent William Jennings Bryant against Darrow over the theory of evolution, and his dramatic defense at the trial of Leopold and Loeb after the infamous 1924 Chicago murder.

The private Darrow — a man filled with Midwestern humor — is shown as well. "At the Scopes Trial, some reporters were giving me a hard time," he says. "I told them 'I spend as much on my clothes as you do...the only difference is I sleep in mine!'"

Based on Irving Stone's biography, the show has been rewritten to include Darrow's actual courtroom transcripts, suiting the style of actor David Fendrick, in his first national tour, as Darrow.

Record crowd spurs Penguins on to victory

By JANICE CAFARO
Jambar Sports Editor

Akron's Joe Jakubick looked tired.

But after having five of YSU's players guarding him all evening, it's no wonder.

Bruce Timko, Kevin Cherry, Garry Robbins, James Fulcher and John Keshock took turns wearing Jakubick down so that the visibly fatigued guard left the court with only 19 points to his credit. And although 19 points is nothing to scoff at, it's considerably lower than the 27.8 points Jakubick was averaging prior to the game.

YSU defeated Akron 80-51 last Friday in front of a record-breaking crowd of 6,320 at Beeghly's Dom Rosselli Court. The previous attendance record of 6,000 was set at the 1978 YSU-Akron contest.

With the win — an Ohio Valley Conference (OVC) opener — YSU raised its record to 8-3 while Akron's fell to 4-6.

"Our defense was designed to wear Jakubick out," noted YSU Head Coach Mike Rice. "All night we kept switching people on him. Towards the end I think he realized we had more people than he had strength."

Indeed, YSU limited Jakubick to only six points during the first half. Still, the Akron guard managed to set a new all-time school record for total points with 2,038.

The Jambar/Clem Marion

"Everyone gives Jakubick the outside shot and that's where he's really dangerous," Rice said.

"All evening I think he was only open three times, and on each he scored."

Ricky Tunstall explained why he felt Akron failed to come alive offensively.

"We were able to control Jakubick and that really helped," said Ricky Tunstall. "But we were also able to keep Akron's entire offense from scoring for several minutes at a time. And this hurt them. Akron is the type of team that likes to be offensively explosive."

In addition to Jakubick, Bryan Roth was the only other Akron player to score in double figures with 15 points. Both combined to give Akron 34 of its 51 point total. Curt Shaffer, Akron's third highest scorer lagged behind with four points.

YSU, on the other hand, saw five players break into double figures with Bruce Timko leading the way at 17 points. Kevin Cherry followed close behind with 15. Other players who reached double figures were Ray Robinson with 12 points and Troy Williams and Tunstall with 10 points each. Tunstall also led the team with 12 rebounds and four blocked shots.

As a team, the Penguins hit 28 of 61 from the field for a 25.9 percent average while Akron made 16 of 58 for 27.6 percent.

Rice noted that the crowd's enthusiasm was also responsible for the win.

"The crowd really spurred the team on and intimidated our opponent," he said. "Our guys had to play well in front of everyone."

Rice added, "This was the type of win we needed in the league opener. I think the momentum will carry through our next two home games."

YSU needs win against Austin Peay

"Austin Peay is the dark horse of the conference, but they are as tough as anyone in the OVC," head basketball coach Mike Rice warned.

YSU will host the Austin Peay State Governors at Beeghly Center's Dom Rosselli Court on Thursday. Tip-off time is 8 p.m.

"This next game will be crucial," Rice noted.

The Penguins will start with junior guard Kevin Cherry, junior forward Ray Robinson, sophomore guard Bruce Timko, senior center Ricky Tunstall and junior forward Troy Williams.

Robinson is YSU's top scorer with 12.8 points per game.

Austin Peay will start with senior forward Lenny Manning, senior guard Joe Parker, senior center Mandel Stockton and sophomore guard Lonnie West.

YSU edges Zips despite mistakes

By CLEM MARION
Jambar Staff Writer

Before Friday night's showdown with Akron, head coach Ed DiGregorio said the YSU women's team was ready for Akron.

He was right, but not by much.

Although the Penguins easily defeated the Zips, (74-56) during the Kent State Tourney in November, the going was rougher this time, as the Penguins held on for a narrow 70-68 victory.

Mary Jo Vodenichar and Danielle Carson combined for 24 first-half points as YSU built leads of 14, 17 and 19 points, before entering the lockerroom with a 16 point half-time advantage, 39-23.

But with high percentage inside shots not falling, missed free throws and errant outlet passes, the Penguins lead was quickly chopped down to a mere five points during the first five minutes of the second half.

"We tried rushing early in the second half," explained junior guard Margaret Peters. "It was not the best game that we could have played."

"Turnovers kept Akron in the game," added sophomore guard Carson.

DiGregorio had another explanation concerning the narrow margin of victory.

"We get a team on the ropes, but we just can't put them away," explained DiGregorio. "We've got to play disciplined basketball for 40 minutes."

The lack of discipline almost cost YSU the game. With 43 seconds remaining in the game and the Penguins hanging onto 70-68 lead, Paula Davis failed on

Pete's Beat

What a weekend! YSU's men's and women's basketball teams registered victories before a record breaking crowd of 6,320 in Beeghly last Friday. Now that's what I'd call Penguin perfection. The women's swim team also made quite a splash at the Kent State Invitational over the weekend. YSU finished second in the meet with Janet Kemper earning "Swimmer of the Meet" honors for placing first in three events. Congratulations Janet. And congratulations to all intramural basketball winners from Sunday's season-opening action at Stambaugh Stadium.

IM: Deadlines, scores listed

All YSU students interested in participating in the winter intramural programs should register on or before the deadlines listed: one on one, free throw and squash — Jan. 20; co-ed badminton doubles — Jan. 13; table tennis singles and men's wrestling — Feb. 3; and men's arm wrestling — Feb. 17.

Here are the results of the Intramural basketball games held last Sunday at Stambaugh Stadium:

Opes defeated CJ's 17-15; Melvin & Blue Notes defeated Crabs 42-14; Bearded Clams defeated ROTC 51-17; Smalltown Boys defeated Pony Express 34-23; Express defeated Throbbing Members 60-46; Pal Joey's defeated SMEGMA 52-31; Steelmen defeated Strikers 50-30; Mixers defeated Sisters of Force 28-11; Foul Play and Guzzlers rescheduled; Special Forces defeated Jam Force 33-30; Queebs Revenge defeated Fred's Tavern 26-24; Veterans defeated Mavericks 72-5; Generic Boys defeated Vandals by forfeit; University Beverages defeated Ramblin' Recks by forfeit; Campbellites '4 defeated Tar Heels 41-27; MACS defeated Zeta Tau Alpha by forfeit; DEFWU defeated Beaver Patrol 42-36; G.O. and Spoilers rescheduled; B-Team defeated Bad Lads by forfeit; Beck's Rejacks defeated Linko for State Rep. 73-15; ICL's defeated Stumbling Wrecks by forfeit; Samonas defeated Snatch Packers 42-38; Alpha Phi Delta defeated Sigma Chi 41-34; Delta Zeta defeated Fox Luck by forfeit; Just Toyin' defeated A.I.L.E. 26-22; Sharp Dressed Men defeated Rags 54-28; Deck of Cards defeated Charred Remains 36-28; Nads defeated One-Way 50-30; Beaver Party Shop defeated Nubian Nuts 36-30; MACS defeated Force 24-19; Theta Chi defeated Phi Kappa Tau 38-21; John's Tavern defeated Wild Red by forfeit; Miller Time defeated Enforcers 40-39; Underground Hounds defeated Jerry's Kids 39-16; Basketeers defeated American Express 72-52; Penetrators defeated Kardiac Kids 32-26; I.E.E.E. and Sultans rescheduled; Whiskey & Water defeated A.S.C.E.T. 52-21; Sigma Alpha Epsilon defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon 33-17; Gladheater II defeated None of the Above 50-20; Immigrants defeated Dukes 37-33; Gunners defeated O-Team 57-11; Counts defeated College Inn 26-12

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK: Bruce Timko

After scoring 17 points last Friday against Akron to lead YSU to a 80-51 victory, Bruce Timko is The Jambar's Athlete of the Week.

Timko, a sophomore from Warren, Ohio, also leads the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC) in assists with 71. Last year he led the team in assists with 90. Timko, a 5-11, 170 pound guard, currently leads the team in steals with 19.

Swimmers place second during Kent State meet

By JOE ROMANO
Jambar Staff Writer

In this month's issue of Swimming World, the YSU women's swim team has been tabbed a darkhorse to break into the top ten in Division II this year.

Last Friday and Saturday at the Kent State Invitational, the women looked worthy of the prediction, finishing second only to Division I Ohio State in the five-team meet.

Sophomore Janet Kemper walked off with "Swimmer of the Meet" honors for her efforts. She took first place in three events: the 50 free; the 100 fly; and the 100 free. She also qualified for NCAAs in all three events. Sophomores Cathy Sipka and Becky MacFadyen also gave noteworthy performances, along with freshman Carol Sipka.

Cathy Sipka's finishes included: 2nd (100 free), 3rd (200 free), 4th (500 free), and 5th (100 back). MacFadyen placed 2nd in the 100 fly, 3rd in the 200 IM and 4th in the 100 back. Carol Sipka broke her own school record in finishing second in the 100 breast (1:12.13). She also took 3rd in the 100 free and 4th in the 200 IM.

Sophomore Lori Greenlee (3rd in the 100 back) and freshman Kay Walter (6th in the 200 free) were other top Penguin finishers.

For the men, senior Greg Hetsen place first in the 50 free with a time of 20.9, missing the pool record by only one-tenth of a second.

Penguins pin champ but drop match

By JOHN HUNTER
Jambar Staff Writer

All-American Jack Uppling, who was a 1982 state champion of Pennsylvania, was pinned to the mat by YSU grappler Aquilino "Oscar" Morales. But despite Morales' efforts, the Penguins were defeated 30-11 in Friday's match against Pitt.

"I was just going out to do my best and it happened," said Captain Rick Brunot got the Penguins' only other victory of the night by defeating Pitt's Dan Kaspoikoski 17-1, chalking up the still-undefeated heavyweight's fifth victory. now a victory, said, "I thought I had him. This is the first guy I haven't pinned this season and I really wanted it." The Penguins were defeated again at home by Kent State Saturday night, 43-7, giving the team a 0-6 record. YSU matmen will be looking forward to their first victory tomorrow as they face both Baldwin Wallace and Malone College at 7 p.m. in Stambaugh Stadium.

Ten seconds later, Carson had an opportunity to provide some breathing room for YSU, but also missed the front-end of a one-and-one-situation.

With only ten seconds remaining in the contest, Carson could not capitalize on another one-and-one situation.

"I choked on my foul shots," Carson said. "Those are given plays."

With three seconds remaining in the game, Lori Rotruck gave Akron one last shot at sending the game into overtime. She missed the first end of a one-and-one, however, and Sharon Woodward's rebound preserved the win for YSU.
