YSU professors predict '86 economic future

By JOHN GATTA
Jambar Editor

The economic future for the manufacturing industry in the area continue to look grim, while nonmanufacturing will have modest growth in 1986. This is just part of the economic forecast for the Youngstown-Warren area predicted by Dr. Yih-Wu Liu, YSU economics professor, and Dr. Anthony H. Stocks, chairman of the YSU economics department.

A press conference was held last Friday to announce their latest findings for the final quarter of 1985 and forecast for the four economic quarters of 1986.

According to their report, 1985 found no improvement in the manufacturing of transportation equipment with the exception of the General Motors Lordstown plant and its Packard Electric plant in Warren.

The manufacturing of steel and fabricated metals continued to be lackluster. Stocks said that manufacturing must modernize and adapt with high technology in order to survive.

He also said that the fabrication industry must specialize in order to be stronger in the national market.

But neither industry will do as well as those in nonmanufacturing.

Construction did well in '85 due to low interest rates and also because of the destruction left by the May 31 tornadoes. The report continued to say that wholesale and retail trade grew because of "expansion of the national economy and proximity to regional markets...lower interest rates and increased availability of credit in the consumer durable goods markets."

Despite this growth, the unemployment rate continued in the double digits for 1985. This is in direct contrast to the "golden era of manufacturing" when the unemployment rate was 3 1/2 per cent.

Their findings for 1986 see the area's economy having a "flat performance." It will start off weak, pick up spring and fall and then be "vigorous" at the end of the year. Liu and Stocks believe that the wholesale trade sector will continue expanding while services will grow. Stocks pointed out that Route 224 is becoming similar to The Strip (Route 422) in Niles with its many service-oriented places. "We need to continue to diversify from the manufacturing base," he said. Stocks also said that the effect of Meshel Hall will be favorable, especially if some of its attentions turn to such activities as robotics.

Stocks pointed out the national trend towards small businesses. He said it would be good if that trend continued into this area and noted the effects of big businesses such as steel that have left and hurt the area.

The conclusion for the area was that the immediate future did not look very bright. They feel that if present trends including outmigration by residents, possible modernization in manufacturing and growth of the nonmanufacturing industry continue then there will be a good distant future. A new business will find a number of semi-skilled workers and there will be fewer people vying for jobs, Stocks said.

Liu and Stocks are currently working on similar forecasts for Akron and Canton. They hope to link those cities' situations with Youngstown and possibly link that with the rest of the nation.

False alert Meshel Hall fire alarm activated

By MELISSA WILTHEW
Jambar News Editor

In the empty corridors of Meshel Hall a second-floor fire alarm went off around 1 p.m. Sunday for no apparent reason, according to a YSU Campus Security report.

No smoke or fire was visible in Meshel Hall after a thorough check by YSU Campus Security. According to Sgt. Ralph Goldich, YSU Campus Security, the fire alarm was unable to be reset as a result of the false alarm.

The fire alarm system on the second floor was disconnected, according to the report. Goldich noted that physical checks of Meshel Hall were being made periodically by campus security.

The fire alarms and smoke detectors were installed by Simplex, a Pittsburgh-based company. The electric work was done by Evets Electric, Inc. of Youngstown.

The second floor of Meshel Hall houses the printing room, terminal labs, classrooms and the student commons area.

"It is safe to be in the building," said Michael J. Skurich, manager of technical services. The fourth floor is the only floor occupied by a computer staff from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily, Skurich noted.

As Meshel Hall is not entirely open yet some things are still being taken care of. "The fire alarm system is not 100 percent functional yet," Skurich said. "We have two more months to work out the bugs."

As to the cause of the false fire alarm, the problem is still being investigated by Evets, according to Skurich. "If there is a malfunction we will replace whatever part necessary," he said.

According to Meshel Hall dedication remarks, fire protection measures for the building exceed the codes required for newly constructed buildings. Special features include a state-of-the-art sprinkler system throughout the building and a steel structure sprayed with fireproofing material.

Meshel Hall classrooms, laboratories and other elements are scheduled to be in full use during spring quarter which begins March 31.

As a result of frequent false fire alarms in Williamson and Ward Beecher, Skurich explained the low ceilings may be the cause of the problem. "I was in Ward Beecher and the fire alarm went off for no reason," Skurich said.

Skurich explained that the smoke detectors are so sensitive that if two or three students are smoking in the hall they might go off.

Female cadet finds YSU ROTC challenging

By MIKE SANKO
Special to the Jambar

Diane Glassmeyer wants to be all that she can be.

For this reason, Glassmeyer and many women are joining YSU's ROTC program.

Glassmeyer performs in the celebrated spirit of 10 years of female participation in the program. She eagerly plans to join the ranks of the 38 women who have graduated from ROTC as commissioned officers.

Out of approximately 50 cadets, Miss Glassmeyer is one of seven women involved in the advanced program. The advanced program is designed to teach Military Science to cadets at the junior and senior levels.

"Those women that continue in ROTC into the advanced program are fairly sharp and extremely competitive," said Major Richard Pletcher, Military Science. "Many of the guys will have to work to keep up with them."

"I think if anything has increased the number of women in our program, it isn't nationalism or so forth, it's the changing role of women in society," Pletcher said.

Glassmeyer is certainly active in the changing role of women. She began to respond to it in high school.

"I've always been interested in the military," explained Glassmeyer. "I wanted to enlist right out of high school."

Glassmeyer is a senior in CAST, working towards her degree in mechanical engineering technology. However, she said, she probably will not use her engineering skills as much in the Army as would a civilian in private industry.

"Really there are not any engineering opportunities for a female in the Army because they have a dual mission," she said. "First they have to be engineers and second they're infantry."

Women are restricted from combat, the main mission of the infantry. Though they are restricted now, Glassmeyer sees this as possibly changing in the future.

According to Pletcher, however, the Army does not foresee women's roles extending over to combat service. Women presently comprise 20 percent of the ROTC cadet corps here at YSU. Pletcher predicts this will rise to 30 percent over the next year or two. This increase would satisfy the Army's need for women officers, he said. But because the majority of officer positions in the Army serve the larger combat branches, such as infantry, armor and artillery, an increase over 30 percent could result in a surplus of women officers, he added.

Nevertheless, women are still trained in the strict code of leadership that is most often associated with the combat leader. This training will serve them in leading the Army in such fields as medicine, high tech, business and nursing.

"ROTC has opened my eyes to some of the different ideas involved in being a leader that I didn't see before," Glassmeyer said.

Pletcher said, "If they can physically compete, and if they have confidence in themselves, and they have common sense, they're just as able to influence and lead others as anyone else."

Glassmeyer saw these leadership credentials in herself before joining the ROTC. She said confidently, "ROTC was questionable, but something I thought I could do and be good at because of my attitude and my physical fitness."

Physical training is a major element in developing leadership. It builds self-confidence and teamwork. Glassmeyer sees her physical training and her involvement in inter-collegiate sports in this light.

"They have helped me to learn to talk with others," she said. "In ROTC, that's a lot of it — to relate to your peers."

Glassmeyer personally does not find any difficulty in the physical training, but finds that some women do. She said she especially noticed this in the rope climbing event on the obstacle course. Pletcher has noticed that women initially have difficulty with pushups.

"You would think because of the physical nature of the training, women tend to have a disadvantage, and I think they do," Pletcher said.

"They may fall short physically but the effort is there," Glassmeyer said.

Because women have to make a greater effort than men in physical training, Glassmeyer found they receive an added benefit, "Women have more endurance than men," she said.

However, Pletcher did not share this view when he stated, "Women can succumb to the physical rigors faster maybe than males; thus they need to apply greater effort to being in good physical condition."

Glassmeyer is not intimidated by the disadvantage physical training can pose to women.

"Basically, I think there is a basic challenge for women not being able to do everything a guy can," she said.

Glassmeyer sees the ROTC program at YSU as something that will always benefit her. She said it will not only lead her through officers school after college

Major Richard Pletcher, Military Science

but also take her successfully through the private business world after the Army.

"I'm interested in getting into management and that's real difficult to make the jump from college into management in engineering because you don't have any experience," she said.

She feels the Army ROTC gives you the best experience because it involves so many stressful demands.

Glassmeyer feels the secret for women, or even men, to succeed in ROTC is two-fold. "It's a combination here at ROTC of your intelligence and your leadership capabilities."

"ROTC has made me strive for worthwhile goals," she said.

YSU offers scholarships

By SUEANN HINES
 Jambar Staff Writer

Many YSU students aren't aware of the vast amount of scholarship opportunities available to them. But Youngstown State University offers more to its students than just a good education; it offers them the money to pay for it.

YSU Foundation Scholarships are awarded to YSU students on the basis of merit determined by your grade point average (GPA). For full time undergraduates with class standing of sophomore, junior, or senior, the following awards are made:

Cumulative GPA of 4.0	$1,200
Cumulative GPA of 3.8-3.99	$775
Cumulative GPA of 3.6-3.79	$550
Cumulative GPA of 3.3-3.59	$330
Cumulative GPA of 3.0-3.29	$165

Students who are attending part-time receive one-half an award for six to eight credits and three-fourths an award for nine to eleven credits.

To apply for the YSU Foundation Scholarships, simply complete the Undergraduate Scholarships and Financial Aid Request form (SFAR) and mail it to the Scholarships and Financial Aid Office at YSU. The form must be received prior to April 1 to be considered for scholarship to the next school year.

The SFAR forms are available from the YSU Scholarships and Financial Aid Department located in Jones Hall.

Miscellaneous scholarships are given to YSU students through donations made by numerous individuals and organizations. These awards are

Navajo relocation discussed

A presentation on "Navajo Relocation: Apartheid in Arizona," sponsored by the Anthropology Colloquium, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12 in room 455, Debartolo Hall. In Arizona 10,000-12,000 Navajo face relocation from their ancestral homelands. Energy corporations and the Hopi Tribal council favor the relocation because it frees up the land which can be stripmined for coal and uranium. To the Navajo, there is no concept for leaving the land: their very physical and spiritual practices are bound to it.

Come learn about apartheid in our own country and what we can do about it. This colloquium is open to all.

Education students honored

The School of Education announced a new award that will be presented during a special commencement for education majors to be held following the regular graduation ceremony on March 29. The award will be presented to students exhibiting outstanding performance in student teaching.

Dr. Angle, Acting Assistant Dean, indicated that to be eligible for this award the students must have a grade point average of 3.0 or higher and be classified as exemplary by the cooperating teacher and campus supervisor. Both supervisors must submit a letter of recommendation which would endorse the student for this award.

"This recognition will be a tribute to the student and enhance his/her employability," Angle said.

Up to 20 percent of the total student teaching population from elementary, special education, and secondary are eligible if they meet the criteria.

Democracy inaction

Just like the little boy who can't stand to lose a game, so he takes his ball and goes home, we have Filipino President Ferdinand Marcos who may void the "democratic" election he announced in his country because it looks as if he won't win.

Under Marcos and his idea of democracy there are fixed elections, martial law for nine years and constitutional amendments that give him even more power. Such amendments include extending his presidency tenure from four to six years, the ability to rule by decree whenever he chooses and arrest possible national security violators at will.

In an attempt to show the world and the opposition his political power as well as his "democratic" skills, Marcos allowed an election to be held last Friday.

It has been a mess since it was first announced.

There have been over 200 incidents of violence and 80 deaths in relation to this election.

In order to protect the election from further tampering, supporters of opposition candidate Corazon Aquino made human chains around ballot boxes when the boxes were carried out.

Marcos finally announced on national American television that he would abide by the results of the election which now show Aquino in the lead and help make a smooth transition of government.

Of course, he has made many promises before which he's only kept when he felt like it.

That's the beauty of Marcos-style democracy. You can act like a dictator yet call your government a democracy and not look back for an instant.

'Metal' lives on

No more will Kilcawley Hallways be echoing with the sounds of wailing vocals and crunching power chords.

After three consecutive years of broadcasting for WUGS, YSU's only cable music station, Mike the Metal Maniac is hanging up his spiked colored black jacket for good.

The Maniac started his broadcasting career during the fall quarter of 1983. He played an entire hour of Heavy Metal a week. Receiving a fair share of praise, the Maniac tried to introduce Metal to YSU.

The Maniac soon discovered that students were too hung up on Top 40 music and were listening to his shows with deaf ears. The Maniac traced the growth of Top 40 music explaining that in 1978 Heavy Metal was making a come-back over a popular form of music called Disco. After Disco was dead, the Maniac explained, Metal was on the rise, but suddenly, with the presence of stars like Michael Jackson, Prince, Madonna and even the Boss a new form of music was born (Top 40) that overthrew Heavy Metal.

The Maniac explained how several Metal groups altered their musical styles to blend in with the current Top 40 craze.

"Ozzy Osbourne, Ratt, Motley Crue and Y & T, all popular Metal groups in their own right sold out to the very enemy they sought to destroy. Top 40 is revived Disco. The sooner people start opening their eyes to this fact, the better!" the Maniac exclaimed.

The Maniac explained that he's tired of raging his war on popular music alone and has given up on Youngstown.

"I'm sick of Youngstown, just sick of it!" the Maniac said with a scowl. "In Youngstown no one can be original. Everyone is the same. Everyone dresses the same, looks the same, has the same hair styles and likes the same kind of music. If you don't like the Boss or Madonna, forget it, you'll never make it in Youngstown."

The Metal Maniac easily summed up his thoughts about Youngstown by comparing it to something he knows almost as well as Heavy Metal: the bar scene.

"It's like this, if you were to walk into any bar around town without a football shirt or a Michael Jackson jacket on, you're liable to get looks, stares, threats and, if you're not real lucky, beaten to a pulp."

Obviously the Maniac knows his music isn't meant for everyone as he explained, "On my show, I was for the little guy, the underdog. I wouldn't call my listeners "nerds" just because they aren't in the mainstream. If you want to describe the average Metal Maniac listener, call them Hellrats, Rivetheads, Earthdogs and Head-bangers, never Nerds!"

When asked to consider the possibility that not too many people like Heavy Metal because it is loud, rude and devil music, the Maniac replied that he denies that Heavy Metal has any Satanic implications.

"I don't believe any of that demonic hocus pocus," the Maniac laughed, "It's all part of international conspiracy to wipe out Heavy Metal."

The Maniac believes there is a large plot to stamp out his favorite form of music. "The controversy over putting warning labels on records, is all part of the conspiracy. The Government's in on it. They want to wipe Heavy Metal off the face of the earth!" the Maniac said.

The Maniac knows why so many people are out to destroy Metal. "Basically, I think people are afraid of it. When I would announce that I was going to play an hour of Heavy Metal over WUGS, several restaurant owners in Kilcawley would switch it off."

The Maniac admits that Metal is not popular now, but he still sees a bright future for it. "Life's like a wheel," he explained, "It's always turning and changing. And like Ronnie James Dio once said, 'Just remember, it might stop rolling and take you right back around.' Metal will be back, when everybody's sick of this revived disco stuff. Metal has survived for about twenty years and I know that it will survive far into the future. It's a durable art form that will always have a cult following."

Although the Maniac has washed his hands of Youngstown's music scene, he still has one last message for his fans:

"Keep the faith Metal Heads!!"

Voices need for reallocation

Dear Editor,

We, as students, feel that the 4.4 million dollars intended for the renovation of the Pollock House could be more beneficial if used for on-campus housing.

Although the renovation of the Pollock House is a worthy project, the need for student housing is a more urgent concern. YSU is generally regarded as a commuter campus; many of these students are not commuting by choice, but rather by necessity. This is due to the fact that the only on-campus housing is primarily designated for the purpose of housing students receiving athletic scholarships. Therefore, why not reallocate some of these funds designated for the Pollock House for greatly needed student housing?

Another important issue related to student housing is the safety factor. Due to the fact that there is little on-campus housing, many students, unable to commute, are forced to live in off-campus apartments. Most of this housing is located in the high crime areas of Youngstown. It is true that the University is developing programs solely for the purpose of safety to nearby off-campus residents; a better solution to this is on-campus housing.

Much emphasis is placed on student involvement, but how can students be expected to attend after class activities if they have a thirty minute or more drive ahead of them. Many activities that occur on campus take place in the evenings and on weekends, such as the free movies and the dances in Kilcawley. This is normal for most universities, but at YSU, many students skip these activities due to the long drive home. If more campus housing was available, student activity could be increased. After all, there are other important aspects of college life besides academics.

YSU professor makes progress with transplants

By MELIA DAVIS
Special to the Jambar

For many years in medical history, scientists and doctors have been constantly trying to perfect the transplant of artificial heart transplants, and none of the transplants were guaranteed to be successful.

One of the major problems in the growing field of human transplants has been the rejection of man-made parts by the body. What can be done?

A YSU professor, Dr. Charles G. Gebelein, is continuing to make new progress in organic chemistry. Gebelein is a recognized authority in this field and in biomedical polymers.

His interest in polymers, or plastics, has been on-going since his high school days 40 years ago. "Polymer chemistry has fascinated me since I was a child," he said.

Gebelein became involved with the Science Club in high school and his interest took him from there.

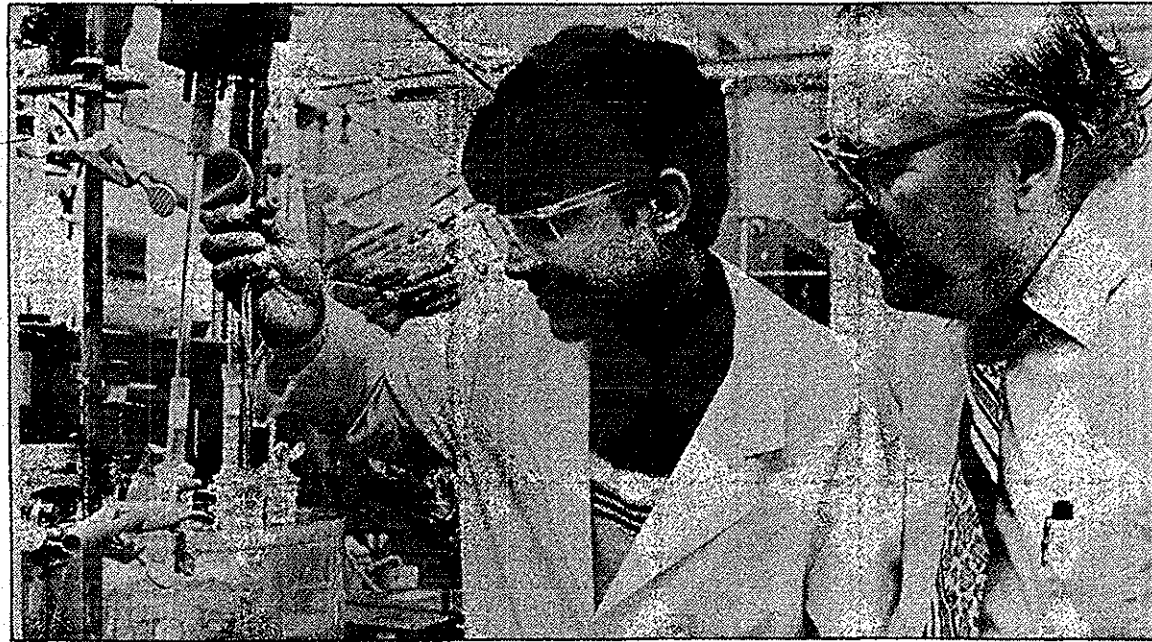

Gebelein also said that out of all the areas he could choose to work in, this area is the most useful to people.

"I could work at anything I want or nothing!" Gebelein said "I don't have any pressures here to do research."

Gebelein is a person with confidence and the loving need to help others. His office reflects the commitment to his work. The bookcases are crammed full of books about polymers, and his desk is covered with papers.

Gebelein has written and published several papers on polymer chemistry. He has just finished his sixth book Polymer Materials in Medication, and is currently working on the seventh.

In the hopes of making cancer treatments more bearable, Gebelein is also endeavoring to create a better drug release system. "Essentially we want the drug to release the same amount See Transplant, page 12

Dr. Charles G. Gebelein, right, YSU chemistry professor and authority on biomedical polymers, supervises a laboratory research project with Tahseen Mirza, a graduate student from India. Using an ultraviolet-visible spectrophotometer, they are taking a sample to measure concentrations of a cancer-controlling drug and to determine how the drug would be released in the body.

Jazz musicians, artist join for successful evening

By PETE KONDOLIOS
Jambar Staff Writer

As part of Black History Month at YSU the Jazz Revival Orchestra's premiere performance in Kilcawley's Chestnut Room last Friday was pleasing to the ears. Portraits of jazz artists by Michael Green, a very talented YSU artist, lent a feeling of authenticity to the performance.

Donald Bryant, president of YSU Black United Students, introduced the works of Green. Green, a sophomore art major, whose showcase of portraits include such notable jazz musicians as John Coltrane, Duke Ellington, and Count Basie, made one believe that these artists, some alive and some no longer with us, were actually hearing the beautiful music coming from the stage.

Bryant then introduced the Jazz Revival Orchestra leader Dennis Reynolds, junior music ethacology major. Following a short address by Reynolds, the band began to play.

There is something about jazz that you do not feel in other kinds of music. The audience felt the rhythms the musicians were playing and began to tap their feet and participate in the performance. It was as if the music was all that mattered. Cares and worries were forgotten as the band continued to play.

After each tune, the audience responded by clapping louder and encouraged the musicians to play to the best of their abilities. During the middle of almost all of the songs some of the musicians got up and performed great solos.

The musicians played their hearts out and the audience responded with a roar of thunderous clapping after each number was performed. Some audience comments during this concert included, "they sound good, real good," and "Yea sing it daddy."

With comments like these what more could you ask?

After a short intermission the band picked up its instruments and began to play again. The musicians enjoyed what they were playing and transmitted this feeling to the audience.

Curtain rises on 'Boy Friend'

An invigorating taste of 1920's nostalgia will appear onstage when University Theatre and the Dana School of Music at YSU present Sandy Wilson's London and Broadway hit musical, The Boy Friend, beginning Feb. 13. The show will continue through February 14, 15, 20, 21, and 22. Curtain time is 8 p.m. each evening, in Ford Auditorium, Bliss Hall. The Boy Friend is a witty, stylish tribute to the Jazz Age. A fantastic London hit, it won similar enthusiastic reaction when it opened on Broadway at New York's Royale Theatre in 1954.

Besides its uniquely funny style, it highlights the mechanics of old-style operetta, using flapper-type music and lyrics.

The story is a gem reminiscent of Franz Schubert. The place is the French Riviera in the 1920's where Polly, a millionaire's daughter, is attending Mme. Dubonnet's fashionable finishing school. She falls in love with Tony, a delivery boy, who, of course, turns out to be the son of Lord Brockhurst. To hold his interest, Polly pretends she's a working girl.

Filled with fun, The Boy Friend is a good-humored, tuneful and affectionate valentine to the innocence and high spirits of the Charleston, Cloche hat, and "flapper" days.

Appearing as Polly, the role that first brought attention to Julie Andrews, is Kay Dietzel, freshman nursing student. Joe Mineo, junior theatre major, will create the role of Tony.

Madcap Maisie will be portrayed by Wednesday Williams, freshman music major, and her love interest, Bobby, will be played by Bernie Appugliese. Fedra Anastasiadis, junior voice major, will play the role of Mme. Dubonnet, the school's Head Mistress who woos Polly's father, Percival Browne, portrayed by Wesley Brainard, freshman theatre major. Lord and Lady Brockhurst will be played by Darryl Yeagly, sophomore voice major, and Marlene Strollo, freshman theatre major. Also appearing in the cast are Sue Ivan, as Hortense; Kelly Connors, as Dulcie; Julie Tucker, as Fay; Theresa Loomis, as Nancy; Terrence Thomas as Marcel; Douglas Toman, as Pierre; Peter Procter, as Alphonse; and Mark Pasarella, as the waiter.

The dance ensemble will be comprised of Susi Baxter, Lori McMurray, Janet Mika, Coleen Shutrump, Matthew Koren, Eric Krepp, Randy Soles and Ashraf

Zendah.

Dr. Dennis Henneman, coordinator of theatre, is directing the production. He is assisted by Janet Oliver, and Paula O'Connell.

Choreography is by Joan Wagman. Wagman recently joined the YSU faculty as an instructor in dance.

Michael Gelfand, Dana School of Music, is the musical director and James Johnson is the rehearsal accompanist.

The set is created by Dr. Frank Castronovo. Jane Shanabarger is designing and building the costumes. Lighting design is by W. Rick Schilling.

A "First Nighter Buffet" will be served at 6 p.m. on Feb. 13th at the Wicker Basket Restaurant, Kilcawley Center. Cost of this special buffet is $7.00 per person and reservations must be made in advance.

A "Meet the Cast" reception, will be held on Thursday, February 20, in the Bliss Hall Gallery immediately following the performance.

Reservations for the show and/or buffet may be made by phoning the University Theatre Box Office at 742-3105 between 10:15 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. weekdays. Tickets are $5 for the general public and free for YSU students with proper ID.

Penguins shock Middle Tennessee, 72-61

By JOSEPH MOORE
Jambar Sports Editor

What's a "blue" Raider?
It's a basketball player from Middle Tennessee, who's just been upset by YSU, 72-61, which is exactly what happened last night in Beeghly Center.

The Penguins played giant killer and turned back the Ohio Valley Conference's number one ranked club before 2,954 fans.

The back-to-back wins over Middle Tennessee and Tennessee Tech, Saturday night, put YSU at 5-5 in the OVC, and 9-13 overall.

YSU's Robert Johnson, a 6-8 forward hit 9-16 from the field, 3-4 from the charity stripe, for 21 points. Johnson also grabbed 10 rebounds.

Freshman center James

Wilson popped in 19 points and hauled down 9 rebounds. Senior Garry Robbins added 15 points and dished out 6 assists.

Trailing throughout the contest, YSU tied the game when Bruce Timko canned a 20 footer at the 11:36 mark in the second half.

Tilman Bevely scored 4 of his 8 points with under 8 minutes to play, canning consecutive buckets to put YSU up by 4.

YSU never trailed from that point on.

Saturday night, the Penguins shut down Tennessee Tech's superstar Stephen Kite, and held on to defeat the Golden Eagles in Beeghly Center, 63-55.

For 9:14 in the first half, YSU prevented Tennessee Tech from registering a point, during which time YSU extended their lead to 30-14.

In the second half the Golden Eagles crept to within 10 points several times, but they could get no closer until the last few seconds of the contest.

Senior co-captain Garry Robbins flipped in 18 points to lead all scorers. Robbins also had six rebounds and three steals.

Freshman James Wilson meshed 13 points and grabbed nine caroms, while junior forward Robert Johnson scored 12 points and pulled down seven rebounds. Sophomore Tilman Bevely had 10 points and seven rebounds, while senior co-captain Bruce Timko passed out seven assists and had three steals.

The Penguins outrebounded Tennessee Tech, 48-38.

Lady Penguins drop OVC pair

By JOSEPH MOORE
Jambar Sports Editor

Kay Willbanks stuffed in 26 points, and Kim Webb added 16, to lead Middle Tennessee State over the Lady Penguins, 77-67, last night in Beeghly Center.

YSU has now lost their last five games, all Ohio Valley Conference frays, leaving them 4-6 in the conference, and 8-14.

For YSU, center Dorothy Bowers rang up 28 points and pulled down 20 rebounds, while Danielle Carson had her fifth "triple double" game of the season, with 14 points, 11 rebounds, and 10 assists. Forward Debbie Burkett tallied 15 points and grabbed 7 rebounds.

The Lady Penguins were down by 1 point with 3:52 left in the first half. Then, a series of turnovers and missed shots gave the Lady Raiders scoring opportunities which they cashed in for a 10 intermission lead.

The Lady Penguins came to within 8 points early into the second half, but could get no closer.

In the rebounding department, both clubs snared 44 caroms.

From the field, YSU shot 41 percent, (24-58), while the Lady Raiders hit 44 percent (31-71). YSU converted 16-21 from the charity stripe. Middle Tennessee managed 15-26.

The slump continued through Saturday, as YSU's Lady Penguins lost their fourth Ohio Valley Conference game to Tennessee Tech, 73-71, Saturday in

Shooters fall to Akron

YSU's rifle team lost to Akron Saturday, 4092-3838, at the Beeghly Center rifle range. Despite the loss, YSU coach Larry Hensley was still pleased with the squads results. "Our kids did great," Hensley said. High shooter for the Penguins was senior Dave McIntyre (1002). Akron's Joe Roman was the match's high shooter, gunning a 1051. Other YSU shooters were Tony Koulianos (973), Bill Machingo (945), and Michael Sprague (918).

Snow softball game slated

The Seventh Annual Original Youngstown Snowball Softball Tournament will take place at the four Volney Rogers softball fields in Mill Creek Park, Feb. 22-23, and Mar. 1-2.

A meeting and drawing will be held at the Youngstown Central YMCA in Club Room One, at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 18.

The first 32 amateur teams to pay the $85 entry fee will be accepted into the tourney, and proceeds will go to pay for field usage, umpires, softballs and awards. Some proceeds will go towards a local charity chosen by the tournament directors. The championship team will receive 15 softball jackets, and sponsor trophies will be presented to the first and second place teams. A Most Valuable Player trophy will also be presented. Each game will be officiated by an ASA registered softball umpire. To sign up, call either one of the tournament directors in the evening: Greg Gulas, (216)788-0556, or Milan Belohlavek, (216)743-7613.

Women

Beeghly Center.

Cheryl Taylor tallied 30 points and 14 rebounds to pace Tennessee Tech, while teammates Tammy Burton and Leah Frazier contributed 23 and 12 points, respectively.

Dorothy Bowers led YSU with 18 points and 12 rebounds, while Danielle Carson meshed 15 points and passed out 12 assists. Debbie Burkett canned 14 points, eight of which came late in the second half when the Lady Penguins made a run at Tennessee Tech. The Lady Penguins were outrebounded by the Golden Eaglettes, 43-39. Tennessee Tech also shot better from the field, netting 52.5 percent (32-61), while YSU hit only 42.3 percent (30-71). From the charity stripe, the Lady Penguins converted 11-19, while Tennessee Tech meshed 9-13.

Swimmers lose two over weekend

YSU's women swimming and diving team fell twice over the weekend, to Division II powerhouse Clarion University and to Cleveland State.

The losses leave YSU at 6-4 overall. The "swimmin' women" dropped a close one in Cleveland, 74-65, Saturday.

The 200 medley relay team of Lori Greenlee, Kay Walters, Cathy and Carol Sipka, finished first in 2:01.25, remaining undefeated on the season.

The 400 relay team of Janet Kemper, Kay Walters, Carol and Cathy Sipka took first place and also remains undefeated on the 1985-86 campaign.

Senior diver Sherrie Zimmerman won the one-meter event with 409 points and became the first YSU diver ever to qualify for NCAA Division II Nationals.

Kemper won the 100 freestyle (53.03) and the 100 butterfly (59.63), while Carol Sipka outstroked her Viking opposition in the 100 (1:15.75) and 200 (2:40.66) breast stroke events.

Cathy Sipka took first place in the 200 freestyle with a 2:00.75. Clarion State came to Beeghly Center Natatorium Friday and out-swam the Penguins, 83-48.

However, YSU's 200 medley relay and the 400 freestyle relay quartets were victorious and remained perfect on the year.

The 200 medley relay team (Greenlee, Carol Sipka, Becky McFadyen, and Kemper) clocked a 1:55.49, while the 400 freestyle relay team (Greenlee, Cathy and Carol Sipka, and Kemper) finished in 3:40.14.

Kemper set a new school record in the 100 freestyle event with a time of 52.10, while Sipka won the 200 freestyle (1:59.80). Greenlee took the 200 backstroke (2:23.16), and McFadyen placed first in the 100 butterfly (59.39).

YSU is also awarding 96 scholarships to 16 students in each of the six undergraduate colleges and schools within the University. These scholarships are called Dean Scholarships. Through them, $1,500 will be given to four students in each of the class levels in the six undergraduate colleges and schools, to be used during the 1986-87 school year. The scholarships are renewable for up to three years.

Because each college and school decides which students will receive the scholarships, each has its own set of criteria that applicants must meet.

For an application or information about the Dean's Scholarships, contact the Dean in your college or school. The application deadline is February 15.

Transplant

Using three pens with blue, green, and red caps to demonstrate how the drug would work, he explained that the systemic drugs now in use must travel through the whole body, rather than specific areas. The problem is that the chemicals released often effect healthy cells as well as cancer cells.

Gebelin is one of ten scientists across the nation appointed to the Polymer chemistry testing subcommittee of the American Chemistry Society. He recently organized and participated in a symposium at the national meeting of the ACS in Chicago.

"Many scientists from around the world participated," said Gebelin. In February, he will be attending another symposium in California. "I even went to China!" he added.

He has been a member of YSU's faculty since 1967. He teaches a course created at YSU, Biomedical Polymer. "Essentially, I have structured a course and I still use my notes to serve as a guide," Gebelin said.

In his spare time, he serves as a faculty advisor for Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. He also has been a foster parent to 28 children and visits nursing homes.

He described himself as a hard and dedicated worker. "I guess I still am," he said.

"If you want to accomplish something, you have to do something! You can't exceed without that," he said.
