Future hopes

YSU's Meshel Hall dedicated to economic future

By MELISSA WILTHER
Jambar News Editor

The room was packed with businessmen, congressmen and news people. Eyes looked upward in awe at the skylights and the large pillar of glass that appeared to hold up the building. It was finally finished and ready for all to see.

"Meshel Hall will be the cornerstone of economic future for the Mahoning Valley. It will draw together outstanding resources. Meshel Hall will bring jobs of the future here," Ohio Governor Richard F. Celeste said during the Meshel Hall dedication on the second-floor atrium Friday afternoon.

His attendance at the memorial for space shuttle astronaut Judy Resnick delayed Governor Celeste for about 15 minutes. "She stretched further than those around us. She stretched further to get into the space program," Governor Celeste said of Resnick.

On a lighter note Celeste announced his upcoming "University Day" visit to YSU on February 27. "I want to learn firsthand about YSU and what it means for future needs," Celeste said.

Celeste said he believes the Ohio Board of Regents should have allocated more money to YSU this year. Celeste is scheduled to spend the night in Kilcawley Dorm during the overnight visit.

Celeste went on to praise Senator Harry Meshel for the support he has given YSU and the community. "Nobody is a more enthusiastic supporter of higher education than Harry Meshel and, similarly, nobody is a greater supporter of YSU than Harry Meshel," Celeste said.

Senator Meshel agreed with Celeste the new high-tech center would play a major role in the Mahoning Valley's economic recovery. "YSU is the catalyst focal point that will revitalize the community," Senator Meshel said.

Senator Meshel has created a strong bond between YSU and the Ohio General Assembly helping to secure support for Meshel Hall thus the reason for naming the building after him.

The $15 million computer science building contains six classrooms, one lecture hall, 14 computing laboratories, a student commons area and 25 faculty offices. Meshel Hall offers the latest in fire alarm and sprinkler protection, light fixtures and "user-friendly" furniture designed specifically for efficient computer use.

Senator Meshel said he alone could not take credit for the building. "No single person, certainly not I, deserves this honor alone," Meshel said. "So many people were involved." Senator went on to thank everyone from the architects to the construction workers.

Senator Meshel is a native of Youngstown and a graduate of East High School. He received a Bachelor of Science in business administration from YSU and a Master of Science in urban land economics from the Columbia Graduate School of Business.

Opening ceremonies mark Black History Month

By DIANE SOFRANEC
Jambar Managing Editor

Opening ceremonies for Black History Month were held yesterday at noon in the Ohio Room of Kilcawley Center.

The theme for this year's event is "Black Perspectives on Art, Politics and Spirituality." The topic for the opening ceremonies was "An Overview of the Black Experience." Professor Alfred Bright, Director of Black Studies at YSU was the keynote speaker.

The Rayen Gospel Choir from Rayen High School entertained the audience. Youngstown Mayor Pat Ungaro read and then presented the proclamation of Black History Month to Bright.

An internationally acclaimed artist and professor of art, Bright presented an overview of the celebration of Afro-American people through art.

His lecture and slide presentation illustrated how Africa is the second largest land mass in the world and encompasses over 1800 ethnic groups. Bright went on to explain that Africans did not come to this country from backward civilization but from "civilizations that are highly advanced."

Dana faculty member nominated for Pulitzer Prize

A composition by Dr. Robert L. Rollin, Dana School of Music, has been nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in music.

The classical composition, "Five Pieces for Flute and Piano, on Legends of the Seneca Indians," has been performed nationally more than 10 times within the last year. It was nominated for a Pulitzer by Seesaw Publishing Co. of New York City, which published the work.

It was the second recent Pulitzer nomination for a YSU faculty member. Dr. James P. Ronda, history, had his book, Lewis and Clark among the Indians, nominated in 1984. It was not selected for a prize.

"I'm really excited," said the 38-year old Rollin. "It's just like the Academy Awards. Whether you win or lose is not quite as important as just being nominated. I feel very fortunate."

"It means a distinguished panel of judges, including composers, will review the work," he said.

Announcement of those selected to receive Pulitzer Prizes will be made in late spring.

Rollin got his inspiration for the piece as a result of a trip in June 1984 to the Allegheny Indian Reservation and the Seneca Indian Museum in New York State. He became interested in the culture and folklore of this tribe, and it was this folklore which helped generate formal plans and moods for the composition's five movements.

A Phi Beta Kappan at the City College of New York with honors in music and English, Rollin earned his master's and doctoral degrees in composition and theory from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. He was a teaching fellow at Cornell and then taught at Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio, and North Central College, Naperville, Ill., before joining the YSU faculty in 1977.

Rollin has composed a wide range of musical literature for many instruments and voices. His music has been performed nationally and internationally, and his experiments and writings about music and its relationship to other art forms have been published in numerous periodicals. He has

Arms agreement may ease Superpower tensions

By JOSEPH MOORE
Jambar Sports Editor

The United States and the Soviet Union could have an arms control agreement signed before 1986 expires if everything goes according to schedule, said Matthew Murphy, information officer with the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Murphy spoke to a small crowd in the Scarlet Room, Kilcawley Center, Thursday.

Another summit will probably be held in June or September between President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev, and it appears that the chances of reducing the risk of war with an arms agreement are good, Murphy said.

At the Geneva Summit arms control as well as bilateral relations, regional differences and human rights were discussed between the Superpowers, Murphy said.

The Reagan Administration is aiming for deep reductions in long-range strategic weapons (missiles with a range of 3000-plus miles), a limitation of intermediate range weapons (1500-3000 miles range), and on site verification, but the administration does not want to barter with the Strategic Defense Initiative, Murphy said.

The Soviets have held a staunch position on SDI, a network of particle beam lasers, satellite-based with the capacity to determine the Soviet stance on research as of now. Prior to the Geneva Summit Gorbachev did a reversal on the Soviets' position on research of SDI, saying that research to certain degree could be conducted. However, just where they stand right now is hard to determine, Murphy said.

The Europeans, Murphy said, are generally pleased with the talks between the Super powers and view the US-Soviet relations as improved. They're also happy about talks going on now in Vienna where both sides are discussing setting up "risk reduction centers", a communication set-up for rapid information transfer between the Soviet and US governments and militaries, in order to avoid tragedies such as the shooting down of the Korean Airline 727.

Registration eased by computer implementation

This week as students pick up spring quarter registration material in Jones Hall the procedure will be a little different.

YSU students will no longer have a registration sheet where desired classes are listed and a separate permit to register stapled together, according to Dr. Harold Yiannaki, registrar. The entire computer-printed sheet will act as the student's permit to register, Yiannaki said.

An additional reason the two registration materials were combined was that the students were losing their permit to register, Yiannaki said. Students would then have to obtain a duplicate permit to register.

When fully implemented, the new registration pick-up process should save student's time. "The new process is low cost and time-saving to the student," Yiannaki said.

YSU chemist featured lecturer

The second annual Distinguished Lecture, sponsored by the YSU Chapter 143 of the national honor society Phi Kappa Phi, will feature an address by Dr. Janet Del Bene, chemistry.

Del Bene will speak on "Quantum Chemistry Comes of Age" from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 5 in the Ohio Room, Kilcawley Center. The program is free and open to the public.

Del Bene is a specialist in quantum chemistry and has been nationally recognized through many honors and grant awards for her research. She is also the author of numerous publications about hydrogen bonding.

A member of the faculty since 1970, Del Bene has been selected as a YSU "Distinguished Professor" five times and also was named a YSU "Research Professor."

Phi Kappa Phi recognizes academic excellence in all disciplines, and has chapters at 241 colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Student enrollment down during '86 winter quarter

If you have noticed fewer YSU students on campus this quarter, it's because there are fewer YSU students on campus this quarter.

Winter quarter student enrollment at YSU is down to 14,120. This is 348 fewer than enrolled last winter, and 97.6 percent of that total of 14,468 students a year ago.

The student body this winter includes 9,092 full-time students who are carrying 12 or more hours of credit and 5,028 part-time students.

The Full-Time Equivalent (FTE) this quarter is 10,697. (FTE is the student-credit hour formula used by the state to measure both part-time and full-time students into a full-time equation.)

Of the total 14,120 students, 13,148 are undergraduates and 972 are graduate students; 7,407 men and 6,713 women.

The freshmen class again leads enrollment with 4,421, followed by 3,187 sophomores, 2,969 seniors and 2,571 juniors.

Of those attending winter quarter classes, 12,951 are Ohioians and 1,169 are from other states and some 50 other countries.

Winter enrollment by schools and colleges shows 4,559 in the College of Applied Science and Technology; 4,246 in the College of Arts and Sciences, 1,558 in the Warren P. Williamson, Jr. School of Business Administration.

wishes to announce that its 1986 membership drive is now under way. Now, we cannot promise any rewards—certainly not financial ones, and probably not the intangible ones of getting to know tomorrow's leaders—though who can tell about that? We can only promise a congenial company of idealists, who are nothing like the spineless bunch of cowards and faint-hearted weaklings you might expect us to be—with a name like Students United for Peace. But don't take our word for that. Come and meet us.

The next time you see us standing out in the Core (Tuesdays at noon-time), stop and shake a hand. Or drop in at one of our meetings (listed in the Kilcawley Calendar.)

You might be surprised by who you'll meet there. Shalom, you all.

EDITORIAL

High tech hopes

Well there it is for all to see. So, go see it. No more preview pictures are needed when you can take your own tour through the newest building on the YSU campus, Harry Meshel Hall.

It may look like a parking deck from the outside but inside it's got that high tech look needed for a high tech building.

Last Friday, Meshel Hall's dedication ceremonies took place with YSU dignitaries, Governor Celeste and Meshel himself present.

The consensus amongst those in attendance was that this building will help bring the Valley out of its economic doldrums.

Let's hope that Meshel Hall will actually prove to be worthy of such encouraging thoughts.

In the past, we've been disheartened by the economic opportunities that have slipped out of our grasp.

Remember the excitement of the aircraft plant? Or the brewery? Or the hoopla over the Saturn plant?

Then there's the downtown area whose main attraction, besides decay, is a bus station made out of glow in the dark lime green bathroom tile.

It hasn't helped the Valley's morale when hopeful signs, which all the aforementioned plans were, are presented and then because of various mishaps or screw ups the prospective business is ignored until it's slipped away to somewhere else.

Nothing is going to attract businesses to the Valley until the Valley has made itself attractive enough for them to come here and remain here.

Maybe Meshel Hall will do that. It could be something that will have us going in the right direction.

Who knows? If Meshel Hall lives up to its promise, the Steel Valley may someday be known as the Silicone Valley.

COMMENTARY

Tales from a prison ward

Shoes click on a hard, cold cement floor.

"Right this way."

The prison warden led the way to the cells. And there they were. Pistols, rifles, .45 caliber revolvers — all behind bars where they belonged.

"Just got in a new load today. Real beauties, eh mister?"

"Look, look at that one in the left cell. Why, he murdered 12 men, injured a child and held himself over some gal as she was being mugged! He's really been around the block, wouldn't you say?"

"Uh, yes!"

"And that there rifle. He was holding himself focused on a policeman as he was being punctured with broken bottles. Yeh. So we arrested the freakin' rifle."

"Yes." Silence. "What, uh, has the NRA had to say about all of this?"

"The NRA?! What can they say? We've got all of their precious guns behind very real iron bars. There's nothing they can do now."

Soon, the visitors came in: thugs, murderers and muggers. They all filed in with pity and a slight grimace. Some of the more inexperienced were still bringing in cakes and baked goods. And the prison warden was not fooled.

"Hey, let's have ourselves a look at that there Angel Food cake." A minute goes by as the warden forages through spongy cake and icing. Only a minute — and the verdict.

"Aww, Harry. You know better." He pulls out a handful of bullets. "We try to warn you people about sneaking in those bullets to the felons. I'm sorry. Your visitation time has been cancelled."

A bell rings throughout the prison and the guns know that visitation time has ended.

LYNETTE YURCHO

Every last one of them sighs deeply, because prison is a lonely place to live. The food stinks, too.

"As I was saying," continued the warden, "these guys are one mean bunch. We've got every last one of them off of the streets too. I helped. A lot..."

"...We searched and we investigated. We confiscated and we snatched. We locked up and we jailed. We sliced and we diced, and all of them guns — them dirty criminals — all of them are behind bars. Think of it! No more murders! No more muggings! No more killings! No more!"

He stopped then, evidently to catch his breath. His face shone profusely with perspiration. He leaned over to turn on the radio.

"...for listening to WWBX! To repeat that earlier news story, here's Margie Pelican."

"Thank you, P.K. Earlier today, at the Cromwell City Mall, 15 people were stabbed to death with kitchen knives from the Sears houseware department..."

The warden looked confused for a moment, then regained his composure.

"Well, we'll just have to arrest every last kitchen knife as well," he said.

And while we're at it, let's take into custody all barf bags because they force people to throw up.

LETTERS

Feels "theys" have it

Dear Editor,

As I get older, life seems to get more complex, or perhaps I have become more simple minded and what was once comprehensible I now perceive as complex. (I know many people who would argue for the latter). None the less I am confused about some pertinent issues in regards to the omnipotent, intangible of "they" in our society and "their" actions. So as a result of this confusion I have written another letter in the hope that the publicity will stimulate feedback that may serve to settle the dust on the prairie of my mind. The issues:

•Given the assininity of a multi-million dollar football game this may seem academic but why do "they" insist on butchering the national anthem at the beginning of every Super Bowl? This is a twisted tradition that has existed as long as I can remember. This year "they" had a trumpet player doing a fine job on the melody but his backup was obviously a first year piano student playing chords reminiscent of every Vincent Price movie I've ever seen. Maybe after all the money "they" spent on the arrangement "they" were too embarrassed to admit that it stunk. I don't know.

•Why do "they" charge so much for orange juice and so little for coffee in restaurants? Counting two refills, the average person will spend 15 cents a cup for coffee in restaurants but almost $1.00 a cup (no refills) for orange juice. For Pete's sake, a gallon of O.J. only costs approximately $3.84 so on 16 cups "they" make a profit of $12.16. One gallon of coffee is 16 scoops which is approximately $1.50, breaking down to about 9 cents a cup, so figure "they" make 96 cents profit on every gallon of coffee. Granted 96 cents is not much profit and must be compensated for somewhere, but why attack the orange juice drinkers? Maybe "they" have a genocidal plan whereby "they" get rid of "us" through caffeine induced cancer so the only ones remaining are "them."

•Why do the "theys" who provide money to universities provide monies to build track facilities for non-existent track teams and plant flowers and shrubs for non-existent gophers but have not provided monies to build or sponsor student apartments for existent students who have taken vows of cleanliness and therefore cannot live in student dorms? Surely there must be some way to more pragmatically facilitate monies by expanding the conditions under which these monies are handed out.

If you have answers to any of these question shrouded in a personal mystery please drop me a line.

Says YSU needs big ideas to grow

By NICK DUBOS
Special to The Jambar

A university in a true sense of the word is much more than classrooms, buildings, professors and students. In my opinion, YSU has only become a true university in the last few years. It still has a long way to go. A university consists of open fields for recreation, dorms and student involvement. Considering the above three, YSU is a generic university.

YSU has a nice campus and since it's not that big, one can get to any point on campus in a short time. This is a big advantage over schools with a large campus such as Ohio State. But who says that YSU must be a commuter school? Since the football stadium has been built, student involvement in intramurals and the use of what the stadium has to offer has increased remarkably. This is what a university is supposed to offer. But student involvement is still at a low percentage of what it should be, mostly because students commute.

YSU only has one dorm on campus and two small dorms off campus. Both Kilcawley Dorm, and Buechner Hall, (which is on campus, but not part of the university), have to turn away many students each quarter because of lack of rooms. Each has large student waiting lists. Also, with the opening of Meshel Hall, many more students from outside the area may decide to come to YSU.

Most students who live in off campus housing live on the North Side of Youngstown, parts of which are high crime areas. The recent murder of a YSU co-ed proves this point. Basically, what I'm saying is that YSU should concentrate on building as many dorms or apartments as possible on or near the campus. YSU, along with Mill Creek Park, is the pride of Youngstown. So why can't it grow even larger?

The question then arises on where these dorm/apartments should be built. While Wick Oval can allow for some growth, it's limited. Sooner or later, YSU is going to have to cross Fifth Avenue, especially in that area directly across from the football stadium and down to the Lincoln parking deck. This area would be the best spot for the building of not only apartments and dorms, but also other education buildings and dorms, but also other education buildings and dorms, but also other education buildings and dorms.

Faculty member attends 'Merger Mania' seminar

By MIKE PETRUCCI
Jambar Staff Writer

Dick James, speech communication and theatre, has been selected by the International Radio and Television Society as one of 75 communications professors to attend the International Radio and Television Seminar, February 5 through 9, in Rye, New York.

The topic of the seminar will be "Merger Mania" and will focus on the cause and effect of merging cable and broadcasting companies. The yearly seminar is sponsored by the Radio and Television Society.

Senior telecommunications student Brad Barkley will join James at the seminar. Barkley was chosen from 300 applicants from many colleges across the country. He is one of 30 students who will attend. James explained that Barkley was picked after submitting information on his extra-curricular organizations.

James said that he is proud of Barkley and glad that he can be "up there with the heavy hitters." Key members of national broadcasting companies will also be attending the seminar.

Steve Nenno of ABC Entertainment will be chairman of the seminar and an award will be given to former CBS President Dr. Stanton.

"It's going to be a smorgasbord and I'm going to taste it all," said James, referring to the many topics offered at the seminar. "How to Finance Market Mergers," "Buyers and Sellers in Media," "Independent Television Syndication," and "The Future of Telecommunications in the Year 2000" are some of the topics.

Cooperation of faculty and industry is a main focus of the seminar. "The entire idea for the seminar is to show the real world to students," James said. "Students will be able to meet first hand with people from CBS, NBC, and ABC networks."

Merging broadcast companies are a big issue in telecommunications today, James said. "A lot of things are shaking loose with merging broadcasting companies," James added expressing concern over mergers between ABC and Capitol City, RCA and GE and CBS and Ted Turner.

James explained that he is going to be like a sponge and absorb all of the information he can and then incorporate it into his communications classes from the lowest to the highest level. "The merger scene is not over," James said. "I think young people should be aware of it." James is going to bring the merger concept back into the classroom explaining that it is his "responsibility."

Crime busters

Organization strives to prevent neighborhood crimes

By DEB PETTEN
Jamber Staff Writer

Are you involved in a neighborhood crime watch?

"In a 24 hour period an average of five to nine home burglaries take place around the YSU area," said Sandra Bell, a Youngstown police officer who is assigned to the Crime Prevention Unit.

She added that most of these burglaries take place between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Bell is instrumental in providing public awareness about crime prevention.

"A crime watch can be as simple as looking out your window," said Bell. Some people patrol their neighborhoods and report any suspicious activities to the police department. She said this is a more sophisticated operation than "window watching" and it's a way of letting potential criminals know residents in that neighborhood are "on the streets watching."

Bell pointed out that visibility is a key factor in discouraging a criminal.

Alex Rosenthal, captain of the block watch in his area, said his group formed as a result of numerous burglaries in his neighborhood.

"The key is to know your neighbors," said Rosenthal. He noted that some people are afraid that their privacy will be invaded. "It doesn't have to be like that," he quickly added.

Rosenthal explained that the purpose of crime watch is to educate people about crime prevention and get them involved in crime watch groups. Rosenthal said he feels this is important because police are short handed and this is one way of "detering crime in your neighborhood."

Another person interested in discouraging theft is Karen Len, a YSU senior majoring in law enforcement. She has been involved in a crime watch unit for about one year.

Len said she was interested in the organization as a "preventative measure against crime."

As captain of the crime watch unit in her community, Len encourages people to acquire the habit of looking out their windows. She also stressed the importance of knowing who your neighbors are. "Some people may think I'm nosey looking out the windows, but it's better than saying later 'boy I wish somebody would've been watching my house 'cause it just got robbed.'"

Both Rosenthal and Len said they felt that a crime watch unit does make a difference in the neighborhood.

According to Bell there are approximately 65 active crime watches and 30 to 40 inactive crime watches — usually people who have disbanded because they feel a crime watch is no longer needed.

Crime watch units attend monthly meetings to help iron out any problems the group

Jazz artist speaks of his experiences

By PETE KONDOLIOS
Jambar Staff Writer

Well-known jazz musician, Jimmy Owens lectured and performed in Kilcawley's Chestnut Room Saturday afternoon before a small but enthusiastic crowd. He was here as part of YSU's observance of Black History Month.

Owens spoke on the plight of Black musicians and traced the migration of Black music from Africa to the continent of America.

Owens is an innovative jazz musician. In 1969 he started his own group, Jimmy Owens Plus. Owens has traveled and lectured all over the world, and has been involved in many workshops and clinics pertaining to jazz. He has worked with various jazz artists on more than 75 recordings, including Lionel Hampton, Charles Mingus, Herbie Mann and Dizzy Gillespie.

Owens has four albums to his credit: You Had Better Listen, No Escaping It, Jimmy Owens, and Heading Home.

Owens said that jazz is a force so powerful it has traveled around the world and affected the music of other countries. Jazz, was introduced to Europe by jazz musicians in the 1920's and '30's, he said.

Owens said a sub culture pertaining to music in the African American tradition is still noticed in Europe. Jazz musicians in Italy, France, and Hungary created their own way of performing jazz, he noted.

Owens traced the roots of Black American music back to its origins in Africa. Native

Africans were taken from Africa against their will and separated so they could not communicate in their native tongues. Their instruments, mainly drums, were taken from them. They became illiterate in their own tongues and in the English language, he said. Music was the means of communication that these transplanted people used to communicate.

Owens said that artists such as Sarah Vaughan, Ella Fitzgerald and Billie Holiday changed the face of American music. Jazz is the "classical music of America created here," he said. Stevie Wonder, Aretha Franklin and Michael Jackson are modern forces of American music who express themselves through their music.

Owens said that the entertainment industry grew from the work, sweat, and soil of black people and that part of the music was not controlled by the musicians that created it. "The music was controlled by European — American businessmen who censored what reached your eyes and ears and made you aware of who was great," he said. There were terrible injustices faced by black musicians who created the music.

Owens also said that we may not have had the three major TV networks today if it was not for the pioneer forces in Black American music. "Those artists gave seeds to new and emerging industries called radio and television," he said.

CPS NewNotes NUMBER OF DIVESTING COLLEGES DOUBLES IN A YEAR

Sixty-four schools have now sold at least some stock in firms that do business in South Africa, the Investor Responsibility Research Center reported to last week's American Council on Education meeting in Miami Beach.

Only 31 had divested at this time last year.

But at the same time, Illinois' trustees voted down a proposal to divest themselves of interests in the firms.

If I Could Just Lose Five More Pounds!

No matter how much weight you've lost — 10, 20, 30, 50 pounds — you think that losing "just five more" will make things perfect. The trouble is that five pounds later things are not perfect.

Then you think perhaps another five pounds will do the trick. And so the cycle begins. And so does anorexia.

Anorexia is a serious, life-threatening disorder of deliberate self-starvation. The term "anorexia nervosa" is a misnomer, because it means "lack of appetite due to nerves." In actuality, the reverse is true: The person is obsessed with food, weight, counting calories and exercise.

The greater Pittsburgh area's Anorexia Bulimia Treatment and Education Center (ABTEC) at The Medical Center of Beaver County has a specially trained staff to help you identify the symptoms of eating disorders and, if necessary, provide treatment for the illness. ABTEC offers a variety of services, including an inpatient treatment program and the ABTEC Support Group, which provides an opportunity for open discussion of feelings, attitudes and behaviors.

"If I could lose just five more pounds" is the kind of thinking that can add up to a life-threatening illness. Let The Medical Center of Beaver County's ABTEC show you how to get help.

'Dave' offers fine, fine comedy

LISA SOLLEY
Jambar Entertainment Editor

Stupid pet tricks, stupid human tricks, even stupid YSU co-ed tricks. What more could you ask for? It's Late Night With David Letterman, that is an imitation David Letterman at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 7 in the Pub.

Although the characters will be impressionist, the show will be as close to the real thing as possible according to Chris Flannigan, chairperson for the mainstage committee of PAC. "We feel that the skits being performed, the light and sound show and the character performances will be as close to the real show as you can get," said Flannigan.

Flannigan explained how she is a big fan of David Letterman, and that it would be a good idea to stage an imitation show on campus because such a large majority of the shows fans are college students.

Planning for the show has come together well so far, according to Flannigan, but the cast of YSU Late Night would like to get more response from the students before the Friday night performance in viewer mail. "We have gotten about 15 letters so far, but unfortunately some of the letters can't be read in public," stated Flannigan. "We want your letters, but please no four letter words." Ken Keller, a YSU student who will portray Letterman said, "any suggestions for the show would be greatly appreciated."

The show will have Paul Shaffer (Lou Kennedy), and the band as usual, and celebrity guest will include Julian Lennon and Mozart (Mark Passerello, YSU student). The infamous guest will be a YSU cleaning lady and a stand up comedy act will be performed by YSU student Dave Morgen. The regular will be a contortionist-comedian, Paul Holzak. Special guest will be the Coors Beer Wolfe. Skits will include "My Dog Bob," a view of life from a dog's point of view, and audience participation spots describing a brush with greatness and a brush with stupidity.

"We want to make this a fun night out," explained Flannigan. "We're hoping to have a large response since Letterman appeals to the college crowd." Flannigan also commented on how she called and wrote letters to David Letterman explaining what YSU was doing. She made contact with his secretary, who offered any type of assistance, but explained that sending clips would be impossible.

The cast of YSU Late Night would like to encourage all students to stop by the show Friday, especially those students who live on campus. "It would help if you could watch some of his shows before Friday so you can get a feel for the humor," stated Keller.

There will be some prizes and T-shirts to be given away and of course there will be more fun than humanly possible.

Barbecued hot dogs, zucchini, jello, tricycles and students. Sound a little bizarre? Well, crazy, bizarre and hysterically fun is what Thursday, Feb. 6 promises to be.

The first annual Contest Day is sponsored by PAC as part of comedy week. The event is scheduled from 11:45 a.m.-1:30 p.m. in the Pub and will consist of food eating and a comedy contest.

Carol Sorenson, co-chairperson of the main stage committee of PAC explained that besides the food eating contest, there will be four other events including a fruit and vegetable pass, jello through the straw, a tricycle marathon and musical chairs.

According to Sorenson, YSU hasn't had an event like this for many years and they're hoping for a positive response. "This is a great way for students to relax and blow off steam," stated Sorenson. The committee is trying to get as many students involved as possible to make participation and spectating fun and enjoyable.

There is no registration fee and any student can sign up for events in the information center in the Kilcawley Center. Extra incentives besides having fun, explained Sorenson are $50.00 and $25.00 cash awards and other prizes including T-shirts, surf's up cups and food coupons for participants.

Food Eating Contest — Participants will have a certain amount of time to consume as many barbecued hotdogs as possible. The winner of this event will receive a cash prize of $50.00.

Jello Through the Straw — Contestants must suck jello through a straw for a time period of one or two minutes.

The person sipping the most amount or the one to finish their amount first will win a $25.00 cash prize.

Fruit and Vegetable Pass — Duo teams will have their hands tied behind their backs and must pass an apple lodged between their neck from one to the other. The vegetable pass also requires teams to have their hands tied behind their Tricycle Marathon — The race will begin in Arby's and wind its path throughout Kilcawley. The first person to reach the finish line wins.

Musical Chairs — This event will take place in the lounge area of Kilcawley. A live piano performance will be staged for this event.

"We're hoping to get students more involved in YSU by staging events like Contest Day," explained Sorenson. "Hopefully, with student cooperation Contest Day will be successful and get students to inter-relate and become involved."

Since they got together in 1984, the Raunch Hands certainly have impressed music critics. Writers of The Village Voice, Sounds and Rolling Stone Magazine like their records and even think they are fun to see live.

But who cares what the critics say. Go to the Cedar Lounge Wednesday night. Find out for yourself and get hip to the sounds of the Raunch Hands.

Accuracy in Academia attacks 'liberal' professors

From the College Press Service

Accuracy in Academia, the ideological watchdog group that began hunting for "liberal" professors earlier this fall, has begun to name names and, according to some, to apply pressure on administrators to rein in — if not fire — the professors.

In its first newsletter, AIA accused Arizona State political science Prof. Mark Reader of using his classes to expose his views on nuclear weaponry.

AIA then sent a letter complaining about Reader to the ASU administration.

AIA National Director Matthew Scully says AIA will be naming three more allegedly-leftist professors in its next newsletter, which the organization distributes to 5,000 people and organizations.

Though Scully refuses to name the three teachers AIA will charge misled their students, College Press Service has learned that Mary Karasch, a history professor at Oakland University in Michigan, will be one of them.

Scully estimates there are 10,000 leftist professors working on American campuses today, and reports classroom "monitors" — anonymous students who inform AIA of what they perceive as leftist teachers — have already turned in the names of about 100 instructors since the program began in September.

"I would assume a good number (of complaints) are valid," Scully says.

So far, ASU has stood behind Reader, the lone professor named publicly.

"There have been no reprisals against Reader," says Brent Brown, Arizona State's vice president of community affairs. "He is a respected member of our faculty."

"The administration has come out on my behalf, fully and completely," Reader affirms.

Brown adds there's been no reaction from the state legislature, either. During the McCarthy Era in the early 1950s, state legislators sometimes threatened to slash college funding if the college refused to fire professors with whom they disagreed.

"I don't see any indication of any pressure to muzzle our professors," Brown says.

"We are very pleased with the response of college presidents," says Iris Molotsky of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), which at a national meeting last week passed resolutions condemning AIA.

"We don't think professors are above criticism, it's the methods (AIA uses to monitor lectures)," Molotsky explains.

"What's really disturbing is that they are enlisting students who won't reveal their identity," she says.

"Spies in the classroom break trust between people," Reader contends. "Students have told me they are less willing to speak up in the class and professors don't feel free to talk privately to students anymore. They don't want conversation to become public property."

Scully, however, disagrees with Reader's public lectures, largely because he uses too much class time to discuss the threat of nuclear war.

"He devotes his whole class to the nuclear issue," Scully says. "If you call a course one thing, you should not teach something entirely different."

"The charges are false" Reader says.

"What's so lovely (is that) I have so much documentation. It will show that they are inaccurate."

An anonymous AIA monitor contends Oakland University Prof. Karasch presents only the "leftist" viewpoint about Central America in her classes.

Scully refuses to elaborate on the Karasch case, and Karasch did not return phone calls to College Press Service.

Scully says AIA looks into its monitors' reports before "reviewing" professors in its newsletter.

But AIA's investigations and professors' confidence their schools will support them haven't muted the alarm in the academic community.

"I have never had the volume of responses to any issue as this one. It's of great concern," Molotsky says.

The implication of what AIA is trying to do worries Reader. "It's absolutely frightening."

"One step leads to another. McCarthy started by labeling people communists, but then some of them lost their jobs," Cal-Davis administrator Bill Antaramian observes.

"This is what was done in Nazi Germany. Students did this for Hitler when he was getting started," Antaramian adds.

Scully contends AIA's objective is merely to "make free and open debate," on views espoused by leftist professors.

ASU's Reader attributes the effort to what he sees as AIA's unwillingness to allow free and open debate.

"Most political thinking (today) is being cast against the possibility of extinction of the human race," he says. "These people don't want to think about the extinction possibility."

But Scully insists that it's the professors who aren't thinking.

"They (professors) have led an insular existence. A word of criticism to them represents censorship," Scully observes. "When you have an ideological fever swamp, a little chill might do them some good."

"If professors don't tell students how lucky they are (to live in the U.S.), they are not doing their job," Scully believes.

He does not think "conservative" professors advocate their view in class.

"We need not pretend to need to monitor conservative professors abusing their position," Scully says.

"One step leads to another. McCarthy started by labeling people communists, but then some of them lost their jobs. This is what was done in Nazi Germany. Students did this for Hitler when he was getting started."

Billikens drum YSU

The Penguins got behind early and had to play catch up, but it didn't work.

St. Louis won for the second time against YSU this season, drilling the Penguins, 78-61, last night in Beeghly Center.

YSU played St. Louis, a non-conference school, away Nov. 30 and dropped that game, 76-58.

The loss leaves YSU's overall record at 7-14. St. Louis improves to 10-11.

The Penguins hit only 9-29 field goals in the first half, while the Billikens canned 59.2 percent of their shots (16-27). The Penguins leading scorer, senior Garry Robbins, picked up 3 early fouls and had to sit down.

Down 36-28 at the half, the Billikens came out and scored 4 quick points before junior forward Robert Johnson answered for YSU.

St. Louis continued to find the open man and pop from the outside as they ran the score to 52-38 with 12:21.

YSU tried to rally at about the 9 minute mark, but could get nothing un-tracked. The Penguins also got into foul trouble and put the Billikens on the free throw line quite a bit, as they tried to make a run at St. Louis.

Freshman James Wilson and Robbins each scored 12 points, while Tilman Bevely added 11, and Johnson hooped 9 for YSU.

For St. Louis, Douglass Monroe tallied 18 markers and Redoitt Hudson flipped in 15.

In the rebounding department, YSU had a slight edge, 43-37, while the Billikens had the superior shooting eye on the night, meshing 53.7 percent of their shots compared to 34.8 percent for the Penguins.

Zips dunk women cagers

By JOSEPH MOORE

The Lady Penguins have fallen on hard times as they dropped their third Ohio Valley Conference contest in a row, this time to Akron, 67-57, in JAR Arena.

YSU slips even further back of OVC leaders Middle Tennessee and Tennessee Tech with the loss as their record now stands at 8-12 and 4-4 in loop play. Akron raises its mark to 8-11 and 4-4 on the season.

YSU has played the Lady Zips three times this year, beating them in a non-conference contest during the Kent State Holiday Tournament, 75-72. However, the Lady Penguins have lost both conference contests to Akron, the first time that has happened since 1982-83.

Center Dorothy Bowers, a 6-0 sophomore, tossed in 18 points and grabbed 12 rebounds, while teammate Danielle Carson added 10 points and hauled in 12 rebounds. Sophomore Bridgett Rosko canned 12 points for YSU.

Leigh Ann Riddle netted 14 points, while Carla Norris added 13, and Austintown Fitch product Pam Arnold tallied 8 points and pulled down 7 rebounds.

YSU down by 7 at the half, 37-30, was never able to get into the contest. With less than 5 minutes to play, the Zips were up by as many as 17 points, before the Lady Penguins whittled down the margin.

YSU grabbed 53 rebounds compared to Akron's 36. However, the Lady Penguins suffered from the field hitting only 23-66 shots. Akron canned over half of their field goals in the first half and ended up converting 30-64 shots on the night. YSU made 11-22 free throws, while the Zips managed 7-14.

Next for the Lady Penguins is Tennessee Tech, Saturday, Feb. 8 at Beeghly Center. Tipoff is at 5:15.

Akron Zips fall to Penguins

By JOSEPH MOORE
Jambar Sports Editor

YSU shot better than it has all season as they got back their winning form and defeated the University of Akron, 65-62, Saturday night on the Zips' homecourt.

It was YSU's first road win of the season in a dozen attempts. The victory puts the Penguins at 3-5 in Ohio Valley Conference play and 7-13 overall. Akron falls to 5-3 and 14-6.

Senior co-captain Garry Robbins, a 6-3 guard, was the game-high scorer with 20 points, 7 coming in YSU's 15-3 run at Akron midway into the second half. With that burst of points, YSU tied the game at 53 with 6:21 left.

Akron was able to tie the game one last time at 55, before the Penguins spurred for 6 unanswered points. Senior co-captain Bruce Timko hit a pair of free throws, and Robbins and Sophomore Tilman Bevely drilled field goals to extend the Penguins' lead to 61-55. YSU was up by 7 before the Zips' mounted a futile comeback effort.

At one point in the first half, the Penguins were up by 14 points before Akron came back to make the score 26-23 YSU at the half.

The Penguins ended the night shooting 60 percent (27-45) from the field, while they managed to mesh 11-18 from the free throw line. The Zips went the other way, shooting a season-low 23-58 from the field, while they fared better at the charity stripe (16-28).

For YSU, junior forward Robert Johnson, freshman center James Wilson and Timko all had 10 points a piece. Wilson also had 7 rebounds.

The Zips' scoring attack was led by the OVC's number 2 point-maker, Marcel Boyce, a 6-7 forward, who tallied 16, while teammates Doug Schutz scored 13, Mike Dowdell 11 and John Loyer 10. YSU coach Mike Rice had praise for Robbins and Timko, as well as Wilson, Johnson. Akron won the battle of the boards with a 30-27 rebounding margin.

Wright State knocks off YSU

Senior Janet Kemper was the bright spot in a losing cause as the YSU swimmers suffered a defeat at the hands of Wright State, 92-47, Friday in Dayton. Kemper set two pool marks, in the 50 freestyle (24.35) and the 100 freestyle (52.29). The 100 freestyle time was a career best as well as a Penguin record.

The 400 freestyle relay team of Kemper, Becky McFadyen, Cathy and Carol Sipka took the event in 3:39.5, which leaves the quartet undefeated in 8 outings.

YSU diver Sherri Zimmerman came in first in the one meter diving event with 186.7 points.

YSU's "swimmin' women" now stand at 5-3 on the 1985-86 campaign. The Penguins host unbeaten Clarion University at 2 p.m., Friday, Feb. 7 in Beeghly Center Natatorium.

In conclusion, YSU should not think small. Whether it's in increasing the number of different degrees one can receive, athletics or housing, YSU should always think big. This university is a big asset to Youngstown,
