Board amends resolution for non-bargaining staff

By MELISSA WILTHEW
Jambar Editor

During Friday's Board of Trustees meeting, it was reported that University professional and administrative staff will vote next month for union representation.

Among numerous amendments, the board passed a budget for Student Government and passed an amendment accepting a generous gift of money towards the drug testing program.

Members of the professional and administrative staff will vote next month for union representation, Dr. Taylor Alderman, vice president of personnel services, reported.

The number of staff eligible to vote is estimated at 100 and 110 which includes advisors, assistant coaches, athletic department personnel, counselors and librarians.

On Sept. 18 the State Employment Relations Board approved an election agreement between the University and the Association of Professional-Administrative Staff, Alderman told the board. The YSU-APAS is seeking to represent the workers in collective bargaining.

If the majority vote for YSU-APAS representation, SERB will probably certify the union in November, after which negotiations will begin, Alderman reported. Negotiations could be complete by February or March 1987.

Student Government's budget of $119,104 was approved by the board, an increase of $1,188 over last year. Student Escort wages "were increased from $3.35 to $3.55 per hour without a corresponding increase in the funding of the Student Escort Service," the amendment stated.

The board passed the resolution amending the Intercollegiate Athletics Budget for fiscal year 1986-87 which included accepting "a generous gift" of money from Edward DeBartolo, Jr. for the drug testing program.

An additional resolution adopted was one urging the state to finance the acquisition, demolition and reparcelsation of properties in the transition area enabling University housing to be built.

The transition area is considered the area between the University and the business district.

Provost Bernard T. Gillis reported that the chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, still has not submitted preliminary planning documents on the proposed Ph.D. degree in educational administration and policy to the Regents Advisory Council on Graduate Studies.

However, the psychology department has taken steps to implement a Master of Arts in pediatric psychology by drafting a prospectus, Gillis said.

During final action, the board amended the conferral of honorary degrees: a Doctor of Laws (LL.D.) degree upon Arthur G. Young and a Doctor of Military Science degree upon Major General Donald R. Infante.

The next regular meeting of the board will be 3 p.m. Friday, Dec. 19.

Student victim of robbery

By PAMELA GAY

A YSU student was robbed of her purse as she walked home from school with her roommate Thursday night.

The Campus Security report stated that the two were walking north on Fifth Avenue near the west sidewalk of Lexington Avenue when a subject approached and pointed a "sharp object" into the victim's back. The subject then demanded, "Have any money?"

The report continued that when the victim attempted to turn around and look at the subject, he yelled, "Drop the purse to the ground."

The subject grabbed the purse and ran south on Fifth, See Robbery, page 2

New communication center opens

By SUE KNAPIC
Jambar Reporter

Recently the Ohio Board of Regents awarded $60,000 to YSU to upgrade "journalism studies and enrich technical writing classes."

The funds enabled the English Department to purchase nine IBM XT's (which will eventually increase to twenty-one), a laser printer (including a scanner), manual graphics tables and equipment. The funds permitted the hiring of a part-time supervisor: Elayne Klovis who graduated from YSU with a Bachelor's Degree in Fine Arts. The new equipment will be the main component to make up the new "Professional Communication Design and Production Center" located in the English Department.

According to Dr. Bege Bowers, an assistant professor of English who specializes in professional writing, "The lab will enable students to produce desktop publishing along with near typeset quality printing of brochures and newsletters. Students will be able to gain valuable experience by producing published-quality documents on a first-hand basis."

"We will be using brand new software in the lab, said Dr. Bowers. "This new page composition program will permit students to merge word processed text with graphics."

Funds also allowed Dr. Charles Nelson, an English professor who specializes in technical writing, along with Dr. Bowers to visit companies in surrounding areas such as Youngstown, Akron and Cleveland. Together they inquired about possible internship jobs that would provide valuable experience to students in technical writing fields.

The center will be used by students in professional communication courses, students serving internships, journalism and Jambar students, faculty members in the English Department wanting word processed material and other interested faculty on campus.

"Because the software and computer programs are so new we will be one of the first schools to offer this type of program," commented Dr. Bowers. "The lab will be able to provide students an opportunity to work with each other in a professional atmosphere that they would have to be accustomed to some day on the job."

In the program's description the goal of the center is "to furnish both the guidance and the equipment that will enable 'real-world' projects in the classroom, thereby acquiring valuable expertise in composition, graphics, layout and design."

Dr. Bowers also commented that "the lab will not only benefit English majors but students minoring in professional communications as well. For example, many engineers are now required to take technical writing courses. This type of experience may give students the needed edge to move up the ladder of success."

The Professional Communication Design and Production Center is now in the final stages of completion. Any instructors who are interested in its benefits should contact the English Department.

Last class for program

The Associate Degree program in Nursing will accept its last class in the fall of 1987. Any students who intend to apply for admission to this class, must complete all admissions requirements and notify the CAST academic advisor during the current academic year. For admissions requirements contact the CAST academic advisors in Room 2068, Cushwa Hall.

Robbery

The report stated. Both girls then saw the subject stop and run back towards them, the report added. The girls ran to a retirement home between Fifth and Lexington. Youngstown Police were notified and a report was filed. The subject is reported to be a black male, approximately 5'5", with short, braided hair, medium build and medium to dark complexion, clean shaven, wearing a medium brown sweater and tennis shoes. The report stated that a purse with a YSU check valued at $150, and a wallet containing a YSU ID, driver's license, Social Security card, $2, a checkbook and apartment key were reported stolen by the victim.

Report releases campus facts

In the Annual Report for fiscal year 1986, released during Friday's Board of Trustees meeting by President Neil D. Humphrey, YSU decreased and increased activity in a variety of departments.

- Reported facts included:
- Maag Library showed traffic up from 554,427 to 558,159.
 - New freshmen applicants and enrolled applicants declined for the fifth year in a row. Fall of 1985 freshman applications were down to 2,181 (five percent less than fall quarter of 1984).
 - Campus Security personnel completed more than 1,100 hours of training for fiscal year 1986. All officers qualified with their duty weapons at the initial re-qualification testing.
 - YSU's permanent work force consists of 1,057 employees (eight more than the 1985 work force); 111 (10 percent) are minority employees; and female employees increased from 454 (43 percent) in 1985 to 469 (44 percent) in 1986.

•Disciplinary hearing panels totaled 40 and were conducted by the Executive Assistant, down approximately 11 percent from 1985. The hearing panels rendered five not guilty verdicts, placed nine students on disciplinary warning, placed 22 students on disciplinary probation, suspended three students and upheld a residence hall sanction.

Just another drug

As I sat in The Pub having dinner with a friend last Wednesday, a group of about eight students were having a very good time. Plastic cup towers and the annoyance of a waitress seemed hysterically funny to the group. I thought to myself, they might be freshman taking extreme advantage of a bar located for easy access in the midst of classes; or they simply didn't care that the quarter had started which means it's time to buy books and start implementing a routine of reading, memorizing and taking notes.

However, one thing was clear — they were drunk. The YSU Board of Trustees amended the Intercollegiate Athletics budget for fiscal year 1986-87 which includes $35,000 set aside for the drug testing program. With all the present commotion over drug testing resulting from the deaths of two promising athletes, Len Bias and Don Rogers, the abuse of alcohol is a serious, often over-looked disease.

Granted, the out-of-hand trend of taking drugs, such as cocaine, took the lives of two talented athletes. And countless more of those who abuse drugs will die unless something is done.

But weekend drinking parties and bar-hopping are a tradition among college students. Some students don't understand where social drinking stops and abusive drinking begins. The long-term effects of alcohol use will cause the death of an uncounted number of students, not to mention the death of innocent victims, when those who are drunk get behind the wheel of a car.

Amidst the many comments made about the drug testing program, Joe Malmisur, YSU athletic director, stated, "Alcohol could be another problem. We hope to test for that too."

Another problem? Many students would agree that it is the problem amongst fellow students and friends.

It's a sad comment on our society when it takes the death of two athletes to focus the attention on the use of drugs. How many ruined lives will it take before a program specifically designed for alcohol abuse is implemented?

COMMENTARY

Life saved by seatbelt

As I debated whether or not to fasten my seatbelt on the morning of February 20, 1985, I had no idea I was making a life or death decision. Five minutes later, less than 500 yards from my destination, a 30-ton dump truck crossed the center line. It struck the Renault LeCar I was driving head-on with a combined impact estimated to be more than 90 miles per hour.

When I woke up I had no idea where I was, or who the strangers gathered around me were. The last thing I remembered was buckling up. The next thing was "Where am I?" The whole thing sounds like a corny movie, but it is all true.

After several hours for X-rays, C-T scans, and a heart catheterization I was still in the emergency room area. Because of the fractures of my sinuses, I was losing blood at a tremendous rate. Since the bleeding was coming from inside my skull, the doctors weren't able to stop it until a plastic surgeon was called in. He was able to apply enough pressure to finally stop the bleeding.

Finally I was put into intensive care, and spent the next week in a semi-comatose condition only vaguely aware of what was going on. On the eighth day my heart stabilized enough for me to undergo the reconstructive surgery for my face. My left cheekbone had been broken in three places, my nose had been smashed, and my left eyebrow was depressed.

After three-and-a-half hours of surgery I felt like I had been hit by another truck, but my face was back together.

The number of broken bones was staggering. They included both legs just below the knee, both wrists, my left elbow, sternum, ribs, and many, many, skull fractures.

For six entire weeks I was nearly helpless, but once I started moving around I learned that the broken bones were only a small part of my problems. The incredible whipping of the impact had injured both my shoulders, my back, and my neck. My shoulders are much better, but my neck and back still hurt all the time!

If all the aches and pains weren't enough, I started noticing memory lapses, confusion, frustration, anxiety because I was realizing I didn't know who I was anymore. This was caused by a combination of the head injuries and just not being able to do anything.

I have spent the last 18 months trying to rehabilitate myself, but it has been a slow process. Everything about me is so different. A friend who is in medical school asked what it is like dealing with all the injuries. My answer was "it is as though I died and came back in another mind and body."

Still, there are some benefits to be gained from every experience. At Christmas, when my father was dying from terminal emphysema, I was able to comfort him.

Having come so close to death I understood his struggle to survive. Death is a seductive thing. It tries to convince you to give up your struggle to live, that things will be so much easier if you

Refutes freshmen stigma

Dear Editor,
Life for any entity actively participating in the U.S. society today is, perceptually speaking, an evolving or growing process. Existentialist Albert Camus refers to this process by writing that we, throughout our lives, "fall" from or leave many gardens of security and enter larger gardens that offer less security.

Through that lack of tangible security is offered the opportunity to grow or evolve.

The last two issues of The Jambar have seemingly attempted to sell short the beauty of this evolution by portraying the "freshman" position as something less than desirable. Why all the inferred negativity? I can't help but wonder what deranged insecurities underlie these efforts of stigmatization. There are many advantages to being a "freshman."

First, think of the clean slate the average "frosh" is vested with. While most of us who have been around for a couple years are neatly labeled by cliques of acquaintances, the "freshman" is undarkened by the fearful cloud of social categorization. The only labels the great minds of this campus have been able to concoct are "freshmen" (of course) and "greenhorns." How original. Also let's not forget the advantage of having the chance to NOT make all the subjectively regrettable mistakes seasoned veterans have made.

It is productive to keep in mind that we, as students, were all in the "freshman" position and when we, as graduates, reach for that diploma we will also renew our label of "greenhorn." I suggest that we extend a more positive welcome to newcomers, particularly freshmen, on this campus.

Romantic Times, one of the biggest romance publications in the nation, announced the Reviewer's Choice Awards of 1986: Henke won a Best New Western Author award for her first book, Golden Lady.

Locally, the novel ranked in the top 20-25 percent at area Waldon and Dalton Bookstores. Henke said that the percentages mean that out of 500 new books released this month, her book registered at number 85 and number 100.

"What that means in terms of sales, I don't know yet," said Henke.

Henke said that she enjoys writing more than anything that she has ever done. "It allows me to do something totally unstructured — no guidelines and no do's or don't's."

Commentary

 will just let go. I was lucky enough to be able to hang on.

Suffering also teaches you a deeper compassion than most people can gain without it, because until something happens to you that lasts for a long time, it is hard to imagine what others are going through. It can be like being trapped in a nightmare from which you can't wake up.

Some people think that there is some reward to be had from a lawsuit. They are wrong. No matter what a court awards a victim of such an accident, nothing can make that person whole again. The only thing money can buy is some relief from the anxiety of not knowing how you are going to support yourself. Fortunately, my mother has been both willing and able to support me through this.

I consider myself lucky though; things could have been so much worse. I am able to move fairly normally, I have no major scars, and relatively full use of my limbs and mind.

As I said in the beginning, if I hadn't had my seatbelt on I would have either been killed, crippled, or left a vegetable from the head injuries. At one time I didn't believe in seatbelts, but after this I tell anyone who will listen: "Buckle up; it saved my life. It could save yours."

Sigma Chi recipient of national awards

By LISA M. SOLLEY
 Jambar Managing Editor

The Sigma Chi fraternity chapter at YSU recently received two of the highest honors from the international fraternity to be bestowed upon an undergraduate chapter in the Sigma Chi fraternity.

The Peterson Significant Chapter Award and the Legion of Honor Scholarship Award were presented to the three delegates of the YSU Sigma Chi's at the international fraternity's 39th annual leadership training workshop held August 8-11 at Colorado State University.

Pat Ferraro, Andy Beistel and Bob White were the YSU delegates who accepted the awards from the international Sigma Chi President Keith Sorenson.

Out of the 194 active campus chapters, only 67 received the prestigious Peterson award.

The award recognizes outstanding performances in all major fields of operations, programs and activities.

The major field of operations include areas such as scholarship and leadership abilities. See Sigma Chi, page 9

Burger King adds to the beauty of campus

By SUEANN HINES
Jambar Copy Editor

Aah, the sweet smell of char-broiled beef. Isn't it nice to know there is a roast beef alternative on campus?

Burger King has long been a part of the YSU community; it's never looked so good.

Spence Management Services of Warren, who owns the franchise to the YSU Burger King and 24 others in Northeast Ohio, Dayton and Illinois, has invested over $350,000 in this restaurant.

"Someone has to start rebuilding in Youngstown," said Ed Mulgrew, director of Operations for Spence.

The newly renovated Burger King is a lot more "modern looking", said Edwin Molina, junior Biology, who plans to frequent the place now that it's fixed up.

Melissa Taylor, freshmen undetermined, thinks that Burger King is "the best" restaurant available near campus and the least expensive too. Mulgrew, who hasn't heard a negative comment about the new Burger King, said that the Spence Corporation is trying to cater this restaurant specifically to the YSU community.

"A good percentage" of Burger King's 80 employees are students at YSU, said Mulgrew. He noted that more part-time help is still needed during rush hours.

The remodeled Burger King, which now features a drive-thru service and a self-serve drink counter, has been designed to give its customers the feeling that they're sitting in a modern version of a 50's soda shop.

The architect selected for the remodeling project was Anthony Hayek. K. Anthony Hayek & Associates have been involved with many projects at YSU, thus the attempt to keep with a modern theme.

Neon lighting, chrome, glass block, marble-like table tops, twist stools and bright red exposed heating pipes all add to the charm of the restaurant.

The addition of two greenhouses and an outdoor patio have expanded the seating capacity of the revitalized Burger King.

The only price change that has taken place is the rise in drink costs, said Mulgrew. Free refills are now available due to the new self-serve drink island.

To accommodate large take-out orders, a separate telephone line has been installed — 743-9111. Burger King's new hours are 6:30 a.m. to 12:00 midnight.

So if you're ever studying late at the library, or even if you don't study, and you get a hankering for a tasty burger and fries, there's a viable new choice on the block — Burger King.

North Jackson auto thefts unsolved crimes of the week

The unsolved $50,000 auto theft of four brand new 1986 Chevrolet vehicles and one used Chevrolet auto, stolen over the last two months from Dave Myers Chevrolet, Inc., in North Jackson Township, has been selected as the Crime of the Week by the Greater Youngstown Crime Stoppers.

Dave Myers Chevrolet is owned and operated by Mr. Dave Myers, who has been at the same location for the last eight years and until now, has not had any problem with auto thieves before from this location.

Stolen from the rear Westside parking lot of Dave Myers' Chevrolet, sometime during the hours of 7:00 p.m. on June 10, 1986, and 6:00 a.m. on the morning of June 11, 1986, was a 1986 black and gray Chevrolet Blazer Truck and a 1986 black two door Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

Once again, Dave Myers' Chevrolet was the target of auto thieves sometime between the hours of 9:00 p.m. on August 24, 1986, and 7:00 a.m. the morning of August 25, 1986. Stolen from the southwest corner of Dave Myers' parking lot was a 1986 maroon, two door Chevrolet Monte Carlo, a 1986 black and red Chevy Blazer Station Wagon, and a 1983 black, two door Chevrolet Z-28 Camaro.

Captain Anthony Tabachino, from the Mahoning County Sheriff's Department, has stated that until now, only the 1983 black, two door Chevrolet Z-28 Camaro and the 1986 Chevrolet black and red Blazer Station Wagon have not yet been recovered. The other three vehicles have been recovered, but have either been in a stripped condition or completely burned out or both.

Anyone with information on this auto theft is asked to call Crime Stoppers collect at 746-CLUE Monday through Friday between 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. Persons with information do not have to give their names. A code number will be assigned to each caller. If the information leads to the arrest and indictment of the person(s) responsible, a cash reward of up to $1,000 will be given as authorized by the Crime Stoppers Board of Directors.

Crime Stoppers is a non-profit organization which offers cash rewards for information leading to the arrest and indictment of person(s) responsible for any serious crime in Mahoning, Trumbull and Columbiana counties.

Contributions to the Crime Stoppers Reward Fund may be sent to P.O. Box 4, Youngstown, Ohio 44501. Contributions are tax deductible and will be greatly appreciated.

Some of the programs and activities the fraternity sponsors are Derby Days, which is a week of activities to raise money for the Cleo Wallace Village for disabled children in Colorado. Other activities the chapter sponsors that benefit the local heart association are Aquacade, a competitive swimming event between all of the YSU Greeks and dribble for dollars held at the Southern Park Mall.

The Legion of Honor Scholarship Award was presented to 56 campus chapters. The award is presented to chapters for carrying commendable scholarship programs. The YSU Sigma Chi chapter currently carries a 2.6 GPA, for which they received the award.

The YSU Sigma Chi's have approximately 35 members. The fraternity was founded in 1855 at Miami University, Ohio.

SONDRA MCGIRR

Welcome YSU alumni named to new position

By LISA M. SOLLEY
Jambar Managing Editor

The position and the face may be new, but Sondra McGirr is no newcomer to the block. McGirr, a 1986 graduate of YSU, was recently appointed as Greek advisor. She is replacing the student activities assistant position that was vacated by Craig Duff.

Being involved in activities at YSU is nothing new for the graphics art major, who has a string of organizational involvement tacked on her resume.

McGirr has been involved in activities and organizations ranging from Pub programming to being named to Who's Who among college students.

McGirr said she feels being involved in activities during college was a main factor in landing her present position.

The newly named position will still require McGirr's attention to be focused on the student involvement campaign — The Network. However, her duties will also be expanded to advising and guiding the Greek organizations on campus.

McGirr started the job only three weeks ago and since has been busy preparing the student involvement campaign and organizing Greek activities.

The student involvement campaign is a measure to try and place incoming or upperclassmen in organizations or activities that are of interest to them.

Since the position was instated, McGirr has set certain goals she intends to accomplish involving the YSU Greek programs.

"I would like to get the fraternities and sororities more involved with each other," stated McGirr.

There are currently nine fraternities and six sororities on campus. McGirr attends meetings of the organizations and also oversees and stores information on the chapters.

Another goal for the first-year advisor is to establish a Greek newsletter solely for their purposes and to be able to forward the letter to their respective national chapters.

McGirr is also working on designing a logo for the Greek programming board.

"I feel the Greek organizations at YSU can be stronger and more involved with the YSU community," commented McGirr.

Although her position title was changed in order to focus more attention on the Greek channels at YSU, McGirr also remains in charge of the student involvement campaign.

The Network sends freshmen students forms through the mail inquiring if they would be interested in participating in student activities or organizations. Upperclassmen may obtain the student interest forms at the information center on the second floor of Kilcawley.

Once an interest has been shown, McGirr schedules an appointment to try and match the student's interest with an applicable activity or organization.

According to the activities office, there has been a 15 percent increase in student activities' memberships.

One new tactic McGirr is using to promote student activity interest is a different set-up for the Organizations Fair.

Instead of the annual Organizational Fair taking place inside Kilcawley Center, displaying the various organizations on campus, the fair will be conducted outside with a somewhat party atmosphere.

The fair is scheduled to take place Oct. 1 in the amphitheatre area. Refreshments will be available along with entertainment.

Bob Lytle will help McGirr promote an acoustic guitar performance with walk-on performers welcome.

GOOD VIBRATIONS

Editor's note: Good Vibrations is a weekly column which will alternately be written by Rev. John Polanski, Rev. Jim Ray and Sr. Mary Ann Montavon, H.M.

Campus ministry has been active at YSU for a long time, but let's face it, most students are not really sure what we're all about, why we're here. So in order to relieve your curiosity, and give you a little something to think about from time to time, we asked the editors of The Jambar if we could contribute a weekly column. They graciously agreed, so here we are.

"We," by the way, are your campus ministers: Rev. John Polanski and Sr. Mary Ann Montavon, H.M., of the Newman Center, and Rev. Jim Ray, of Cooperative Campus Ministry. We work on campus full-time, providing service to the University community — students, faculty, administration and staff — offering ourselves and the facilities at our respective institutions in any way that we can be of assistance.

Campus ministry is a friendly ear to listen, activities and programs to help round out your education, a quiet place to reflect or relax that's close enough to be convenient but far away enough to be private. Our main concern is that your time at YSU be productive and satisfying, and we hope we can be a part of the effort in learning you have undertaken.

That's nice, you might say, but why? Why would a priest, a nun and a minister want to work on a state university campus? It's a fair question, and one that more than a few people have asked. First of all, we're not part of the University staff in a strict sense. We are hired by our religious communities because we (and they) think that the "spiritual side" of higher education should go on at the same time as the other aspects of learning. We want to be here because people need to be aware that knowledge is more than the accumulation of ideas, that the best knowledge is that which leads always to life.

Parker Palmer, in his book To Know As We Are Known/A Spirituality of Education, describes this kind of knowledge: "... (it) can contain as much sound fact and theory as the knowledge we now possess, but because it springs from a truer passion it works toward truer ends. This is a knowledge that originates not in curiosity or control but in compassion, or love — a source celebrated not in our intellectual tradition, but in our spiritual heritage.

The knowledge that originates in compassion and love is what we all pursue in one way or another, whether on a church affiliated campus or at a state university. Through reading and study, in classrooms and labs, in the library and in the lounge, we seek to learn that which will help us to be happy and successful. Hopefully, we also want to discover what we will need to assist those around us to experience that same happiness and success.

If all this is true, each of us needs to develop a perspective that allows her or him to see that the source of the knowledge gained here really is love and to begin the process of living that this knowledge has made possible. Gaining such a perspective and living in compassion are not accomplished easily; we need the support and concern of others who are involved in a similar task and who understand our goals.

As campus ministers, we strive to show that support and concern in a variety of ways, some of which are obviously religious in nature. But even if you are not a particularly religious person, that doesn't mean we don't care about what's happening in your life at YSU. Anyone who wants to learn about life and what it means is a person in whom we are genuinely interested. That's why we're here.

Hanks takes on uncommon role

By SHANNON CASEY
Jambar Reporter

Nothing In Common, a Tri-Star release featuring Tom Hanks and Jackie Gleason is not the 1986 version of the Odd Couple.

And Nothing In Common is not quite the usual class of comedy we're used to seeing Tom Hanks star in. In fact, Nothing In Common has very little in common with any movie Tom Hanks has done yet.

But it's a welcome change. Hanks plays David Basner, an up and coming advertising executive who can't seem to resist the temptation for the usual Tom Hanks-like pranks or the challenge of a beautiful woman.

His temptation for women seems to be the only thing David has in common with his father Max, convincingly played by Jackie Gleason.

The happy-go-lucky life of the young advertising exec is suddenly complicated when, after 36 years of marriage, his mother, youthfully played by Eva Marie Saint, leaves his father.

This situation leaves Basner to contend with seemingly endless telephone calls from both parents which eventually take their toll on the young man.

When things get too much, Basner habitually confides in an old high school pal who just happens to be a beautiful, down-to-earth acting professor played with grace and style by Bess Armstrong.

The camera is especially kind to Ms. Armstrong, whose charm makes her character likeable from first glance; instructing her college students on the fundamentals of "becoming" an amoeba.

As Hanks' character tries to balance his family troubles and a very important ad campaign, he begins to spend more time with his father who does not take the separation as well as his wife.

As an ailing salesman, Gleason is reminiscent of Dustin Hoffman in his portrayal of Willy Loman in Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman.

Obsessed with horse racing and jazz music, the elder Basner is devastated by the loss of his sales line and begins to experience serious health problems that he has ignored for years.

Anyone who can watch this movie and not feel a surge of emotion for this man may be beyond a heart transplant. Gleason's acting experience allows him to shine in this role.

Nothing In Common is a story about growing up. Hanks is the class clown who must painfully watch as time takes its toll on his parents. Through it all, he learns a lot about himself. Both father and son learn to express their love for one another and admit they need each other.

Garry Marshall directs what starts off to be yet another Tom Hanks "prankster" film but winds up being a realistic portrayal of life.

Many times throughout the movie the theater was so quiet that even the slightest noise could be heard and other times the laughter actually muffled the dialogue.

Every scene, every exchange was so effectively orchestrated to be exactly what the ad for Nothing In Common claims: "It's a comedy. It's a drama. Just like life."

Now look son!

Jackie Gleason makes a point in a scene from Nothing in Common.

Look again: This scene isn't from Gulliver's Travels; it's a part of the continuing Doll Exhibition in the Kilcawley Center Art Gallery.

Planetarium shows 'Skywatch'

A new type of planetarium show is headlining the season at YSU's Ward Beecher Planetarium.

"Fall Skywatch," at 8 P.M. Oct. 3 and 4, is not a traditional planetarium program but an informal presentation of the constellations, stars, planets and sky phenomena in autumn.

It will include the Oct. 3 eclipse of the sun and there will be a discussion and simulation of the meteor shower which will occur Oct. 21.

Premiering the reopening of the Planetarium, which has been completely refurbished during renovations at Ward Beecher Science Hall, will be "Digital SpaceScapes," which begins Nov. 6.

Planetarium shows are free and open to the public but reservations are required due to limited seating capacity. Reservations can be made by calling 742-3616.

YSU music grad solos on new Mozart album

Gordon Campbell of Mexico City, Mexico, a graduate of YSU and former Niles resident, is featured soloist in a recently released EMI/Angel album of the four Mozart horn concertos, recorded in Mexico.

Campbell has appeared as conductor and soloist with many symphonies in the U.S. and in North, South and Central America. He has been first horn with the prestigious National Symphony Orchestra of Mexico for the past eight years.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Campbell of Niles, he was a member of the Warren Junior Military Band and studied French horn with its director, Donald W. Hurrellbrink. He graduated from Niles McKinley High School, where his band director was Donald W. Byo-of Hubbard, now director of YSU's Dana School of Music.

Campbell received a Bachelor of Music degree in 1968 and Master of Music degree in 1973 from YSU. He studied horn with Lois Hopkins of New Wilmington, Pa., and William Slocum of Youngstown, Dana faculty members.

While in Graduate School here, Campbell conducted the Repertory Reading Band under the direction of Robert Fleming of Warren, former YSU band director and current director of bands at Hiram College, and served as assistant for the YSU Symphony Orchestra.

He was also music director for the Temple Ohev Tzadek, the First Methodist Church of Niles, and the U.S. Steel Chorus of Youngstown. He founded and performed with the Western Reserve Chamber Players, and appeared with the Kenley Players Orchestra and the Youngstown Symphony.

After joining the National Symphony in Mexico, Campbell founded the Camerata Panamericana, which toured Central America in 1984, and was featured in the Inter-American Festival of Music in Washington, D.C., in 1985 under sponsorship of the Organization of American States.

Currently, Campbell is coordinating the publication of the first horn method book in Spanish, specifically geared to Latin American students. The book, The Horn, It's Theory and Basic Technique, is by Antonio Iersolino of Buenos Aires, who is on the faculty of Mannes School of Music in New York City.

Former YSU hurler makes it big in major leagues

By STEPHANIE UJHELYI
Jambar Reporter

Throughout his baseball career, Dave Dravecky has always made a name for himself, whether he was setting a record under Coach Dom Rosselli at YSU or saving a division-clinching game for the San Diego Padres.

After attending Boardman High School, Dravecky chose to attend YSU, playing Penguin baseball from 1975-1978.

The former Penguin hurler rewrote the Penguin baseball record book, achieving listings on 16 of the possible 24 pitching record categories. He holds the records for most strikeouts (251) in a career and most shutouts (4) pitched in a season, as well as shares the record for most victories (21 wins and 7 losses) in a career.

Upon graduation, Dravecky was chosen in the 21st round of the 1978 June Free Agent Baseball Draft by the Pittsburgh Pirates. After signing, the Pirates sent him to their Charleston minor league club, followed by their Buffalo club.

While at both farm clubs, Dravecky formed a cumulative win-loss record of 23-16 and an earned run average (ERA) of 3.92 before being traded by the Pirates to the Padres in April 1981. He was sent to San Diego's Amarillo (Double A) minor league club where he went 15-5, leading with four shutouts, and was named Padre Minor League Pitcher-of-the Year after striking out 141 opposing batters.

In 1982, before being recalled to San Diego, Dravecky was 4-1 in 16 outings when playing for the Padres' Hawaii minor league club.

Before landing a starting position, he made 19 straight relief appearances. At the conclusion of the year, he was a starter and on his way to a 5-3 mark and a 2.57 ERA as a rookie. His first major league victory came on July 4, 1982 against the San Francisco Giants, a club he entered 1986 with an 8-3 lifetime mark against.

In 1983 Dravecky went 14-10 with a 3.58 ERA with 74 strikeouts; and in 1984, he hurled 10.2 innings of scoreless baseball against Chicago in the National League Championship Series (NLCS). During the NLCS, the Dravecky retired 12 of the 13 men he faced in four innings (two each day) allowing only one hit. Dravecky's ERA was the 12th best in the National League, 15th in the majors.

In 1985 Dravecky went 13-11 with a 2.93 ERA and struck out 105 opponents.

Sports Illustrated sportswriter Steve Wulf named Dravecky to his "Team of Your Dreams" along with such baseball greats as Royals' Dan Quisenberry and George Brett, Met Dwight Gooden, Oriole Eddie Murray and others. About Dravecky, Wulf wrote, "He (Dravecky) was indispensable to the Padres, who might have given the Tigers a better series had Dravecky gotten one of the starts. Dravecky makes a perfect lefthanded swingman."

"My family was very supportive of my pursuit but no one really influenced me. God granted me the talent that ultimately helped me make it," Dravecky said.

Adding, "I'm not one to boast about my performance."

Women grades higher campus study shows

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE — Women get higher grades than men, and probably do better in college because they mature faster, said a six-year study by a sociology professor at Siena College in upstate New York.

"Women students consistently did better (at college) than did the men students," said Professor Paul Murray. "During their four years at school, women seem to improve their study habits. The men don't."

"It appears," he said, "that sometimes the academic end of college becomes a secondary pursuit for males."

Murray, in trying to figure out why some students got better grades than others, examined students' academic and family backgrounds, living arrangements, extracurricular activities and study habits before noticing that gender seemed to influence their grades most of all.

No one is sure why women get better grades than men, but Dr. Cynthia Secor, director of Higher Education Resources Services Mid America, hypothesized it may have something to do with the way people become socialized.

"Girls are socialized to be more verbal, more detailed and polite," Secor explained. "Girls are socialized to be not as rambunctious as boys."

Women scored higher in Murray's classes than male students did, and the disparity, he said, "is much wider in upperclassmen."

Although she does not disagree with many of Murray's findings, Secor added, "The real difference (in performances) is when both get out in the real work world."

"Women do better in school gradewise than men, and then don't do as well in the real world," she contends. "Men will achieve more there."

When he started, Murray hoped to find the characteristics that separated students who did well in college from those who didn't.

"My original focus was to make only incidental reference to sex differences," Murray said, "but it began to appear that this was the most significant finding. There is a sex difference on almost every variable."

For example, the study showed the sons of working mothers scored lower than boys whose mothers didn't work outside the home.

But women with working mothers scored higher on Murray's tests than women whose mothers stayed home. Secor believes women emulate working mothers and learn that "it's okay to succeed if you work."

Murray's tests also indicated middle-income families produce high-scoring children, be they male or female. Yet male students from upper-income families achieved the lowest scores of all.

"Well, they have it made in the shade," Secor said, laughing. "If you were single, white, rich and goodlooking, would you work?"

Henke

Sylvie Sommerfield, also at the Mall autographing copies of her works, is a cohort of Henke's and aided her in the publishing of Golden Lady.

Sommerfield is the top romance writer for Zebra Books, writing 15 consecutive best sellers.

Henke wrote Golden Lady in 1980, while still an instructor of composition at YSU. She combined her interests in history and writing and developed a plot and story within a year.

"It's a gritty book," said Henke. "Action, fist fights, horseraces. It's set during the Gold Rush in California and in Mexico. The history in it is accurate as well, because I do a lot of research."

Henke said that an earlier trip to Mexico in 1979 inspired the setting for her book.

"I went to the library after the trip and started doing research," said Henke. She wrote the book and her partner Carol Reynard typed it. They sent the transcripts to more than six publishers, but each one returned them unopened.

Sommerfield read a copy of Golden Lady and offered to manage Henke as an agent. Henke said that the initial contact happened in an English class at YSU with Sommerfield's daughter and a friend of Henke's. They discussed the novel and shortly afterward Sommerfield read Golden Lady and contacted Henke.

Her next novel, Love Unwilling, is due out in May and Capture the Sun will follow at the end of next year.
