Student housing available to YSU next fall

HORACE MCLEAN & ASSOCIATES

By LISA M. SOLLEY
Jambor Managing Editor

An apartment complex specifically designed for student housing will be constructed across from Ursuline High School on Wick Avenue by the fall quarter 1987, according to Student Government President Marvin Robinson.

The University Village, Inc. will be constructed by a private developer and will house up to 97 students. The corporation has been in contact with the University about the project, Robinson said.

Student Government also pointed out that this building is being constructed by private developers with private funds and is separate from the Wick Oval project that the University is considering constructing for additional student housing.

Robinson said he had met with developer Chuck Myers over the holiday break and discussed plans for the building which is expected to be completed in the fall.

Myers will be on hand at the Student Government meeting Monday at 4 p.m. in Room 2057 Kilcawley Center to address student questions. Myers wants feedback on what students are actually looking for in housing, Robinson said.

Board discusses drug abuse program

By LISA M. SOLLEY
Jambor Managing Editor

YSU stands to lose $5 million in federal monies if the University does not implement a drug abuse prevention program for officers, employees and students before fall quarter.

The possible cut was reported at last December's Board of Trustees meeting by Vice President of Student Services Charles McBriarty.

The $5 million is federal money given to the University for student aid. The money is used for Pell Grants, Student Education Opportunity Grants, student nursing money and Work Study money among other grants.

McBriarty explained that the appropriation for next year's money was sent to President Neil D. Humphrey and that any institution receiving federal money must accept the conditions or stand to lose the funds.

McBriarty met with Humphrey Jan. 7 to discuss a compliant plan of action. McBriarty said the president said he wanted McBriarty to develop a proposal of a solution.

According to McBriarty, the University has no formal mechanism for dealing with drug prevention and awareness. "Right now, we are dreaming of a broader appeal of setting up a possible facility where persons can be sent for chemical and alcohol abuse, prevention and the concept of wellness," explained McBriarty.

McBriarty also pointed out that they may just have a referral system set up to help people find answers and help if they need or desire it.

"We have a lot of excellent drug abuse agencies in the area and we will develop some cooperative links with them to come up with a good program," McBriarty said.

In other trustee action, YSU accepted gifts of money from numerous community members including a $300,000 gift from Michael I. Monus, trustee member. The gift will establish the "Monus Professor of Entrepreneurship" in the Williamson School of Business Administration's management department.

The Board directed the ad-

Trustees pass AIDS guidelines for YSU

By MELISSA WILTHEW

It's been labeled as the disease of the '80s — feared by millions and understood by few.

Acquired Immune Deficiency (AIDS) continues to be reviewed and researched by the YSU AIDS Task Force in an attempt to spread information to faculty, staff and students. The task force's first effort, the "AIDS Question and Answer Guide" was passed during December's Board of Trustees meeting.

The guide was developed so that more can understand the disease and fewer can fear the condition that is plaguing populations worldwide.

University President Neil D. Humphrey developed the task force in Feb. 1986 to "gather and maintain up-to-date facts and information on the subject."

Pollock set for changes

By SUEANN HINES

Restoration of the Pollock mansion on Wick Avenue into an 80-room inn will begin within a month due to the finalization of the financing for $4.2 million project.

Paul J. Ricciuti, architect for the Pollock House development, said that state approval last Friday of a $3 million low-interest loan was the "final piece" of the financing puzzle.

According to Ricciuti, the Pollock Inn Restoration Associates have already received an $800,000 Urban Development Action Grant from the city of Youngstown. He also said that there is

Internships available for qualified students

YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY — For those students who have taken 16 credit hours in journalism and/or technical writing, several area internships are currently available. Those interested must fill out an Internship Application form at the English department and must register for the internships by Saturday, Jan. 10.

Those currently available are: The Star Dispatch is looking for several interns every quarter; the Youngstown/Warren Business Journal can use several interns each quarter; Mill Creek Park can use two interns each quarter; and YSU's International Students Office needs an intern to write and design an international students' newsletter.

Aside from those currently available, several area newspapers and businesses will have internships open in the future.

New system protects campus

By PAMELA GAY
Jambar News Editor

YSU's Campus Security is moving into the future.

The department is installing an access card system. According to Sgt. James Gray of Campus Security, it is "one of the greatest things since water."

The system allows security personnel to monitor the doors of campus buildings. A reader installed at all doors makes it necessary to run an access card through the reader to enter the door. Anytime there is an attempt to enter a door without using an access card, an alarm sounds.

"This system is a way of keeping the outside world from intruding into the college community," Sgt. Gray said.

First installed at the University in 1985, it is now in operation at the Kilcawley Residence Hall, Stambaugh Sports Complex, the track, tennis courts and Recreation Area 5 on Spring Street.

"Every building on campus will have this system installed within the next year to year-and-a-half," Sgt. Gray reported.

A computer housed in Campus Security's office on Spring Street is the brains for the system. "We program the computer to turn the system on and off right from Security," Gray said.

Security reports stolen car

By PAMELA GAY
Jambar News Editor

While some YSU students had trouble finding a parking place the first day of the quarter, one student found a parking place — but upon her return, couldn't find her car.

Campus Security reports show that Pamela Moreschi, senior, education, parked her 1981 Olds Cutlass in the M-9 parking lot (Walnut Street and Adams Street) at 9:50 a.m. Monday. When she returned later, her car had been stolen.

According to the report, Campus Security checked all of the Smoky Hollow lots for the vehicle, but the car was not recovered.

Campus Security is still investigating.

In a similar incident, Rosemary Haridon, Dana School of Music, parked in the M-10 parking lot (Walnut Street and Carlton) at 9 a.m. When she returned at 2:10 p.m., she discovered that although the car was still there, it had been broken into.

Campus Security reported that the front passenger window and steering wheel column had been damaged.

See Cars, page 14

The computer is programmed to turn the system on during "down hours," or the time that the buildings are not in normal operation. For instance, residents in YSU's only dorm, Kilcawley Residence Hall, must use their cards after 11 p.m.

Currently, all dorm residents have an access card for the hall. Those who want cards for other campus buildings must put in a written request through YSU's Physical Plant.

One of the advantages of the system is that everytime an access card is used, Campus Security immediately receives a computer printout stating that the card was used. The printout details the owner of the card, the owner's Social Security number, what time the owner is entering the building and what building the owner is authorized to enter.

"If something happens on campus, that printout gives us a starting point."

The sergeant stressed that if a person is issued a card for one particular building, he or she can only use the card on

Scholarship applications available

NEWS SERVICE — The Tauro family, owners of Tauro Brothers Trucking Co., Girard, have established the Louis D. Tauro Scholarship Fund for entering freshmen at YSU.

The scholarships are in memory of Louis D. Tauro, a former chairman of the board of the Tauro Brothers Trucking, who died in May of 1985.

The fund was established by his widow, Kathryn Stabile Tauro, his children, Robert, Richard and Ronald Tauro and Marilyn Tauro and her husband, Frank DeJute.

The fund, set up with an initial contribution of $11,200, provides for an annual scholarship covering the instructional fee of $390 a quarter for a full-time undergraduate.

The award for entering freshmen will be based on financial need and high school academic achievement. It will be renewable for four years provided the recipient maintains an overall 3.0 or higher grade point average out of a possible 4.0.

YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY — The Ohio Board of Regents recently announced the new Regents Graduate/Professional Fellowship Program, designed to aid seniors who intend to continue their education after graduation.

Dr. Sally M. Hotchkiss, associate provost and dean of graduate studies, said that under this program, "seniors in Ohio colleges and universities who intend to pursue graduate or graduate professional programs at an Ohio institution of higher education" may apply for the fellowship.

Seniors may apply for a $3500-per-year fellowship for each of two years, or a total award of $7000.

The Board of Regents announced that at least one fellowship will be awarded to a student from each eligible Ohio college or university. In addition, a statewide fellowship pool will be established from which at least ten of the highest ranking minority students will be selected.

Each eligible Ohio college or university may nominate three students for the awards.

Application materials should be obtained early in January from the Office of Scholarships and Financial Aid in Jones Hall.

Hotchkiss will chair a three-member committee to pick the awardees and she said that "their decision will be made in February."

To be eligible for consideration, a graduating senior must:

- Be a United States citizen.
- Provide evidence of intention (completed application form) to be enrolled as a full-time graduate or graduate professional student in an eligible Ohio institution of higher education in the following academic year. (Note: students in academic programs leading to religious vocations are not eligible.)
- Submit a completed application and supporting materials. Detailed information and application blanks will be available in the Office of Scholarships and Financial Aids, 2013 Jones Hall, early in winter quarter.

•Submit an official score report and percentile ranking on the appropriate graduate or professional examination (e.g., GRE, MCAT, LSAT); the relevant test must be taken early enough that the official score report is received by Feb. 1.

NEWS SERVICE — A scholarship fund has been established in memory of Dr. Charles W. Dobson, assistant professor of psychology, who died following a heart attack Nov. 9. He joined the YSU faculty in 1983.

Dr. James C. Morrison, chairman of the psychology department announced creation of the Charles W. Dobson Memorial Scholarship Fund and said the annual award will be made to deserving juniors and seniors.

Selection will be made on the basis of achievement and need, with special consideration being given to adult students.

Morrison said anyone wishing to make a donation may do so by sending contributions to: Charles W. Dobson Memorial Scholarship Fund, in care of the Dollar Bank, YSU Branch, 410 Wick Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, 44555, or by contacting Dr. James Morrison, 742-3401.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

VIEWPOINT

Bosworth's larger than life image deems too much to handle

University of Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth's looks alone are enough to make a non-football fan sit up and take notice — bright blonde mohawk cut hair and an obnoxious personality to match.

However, during recent football bowl action, viewers were shown another side of Bosworth.

The outstanding collegiate athlete was banned by the NCAA from playing in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 1 for using steroids, a muscle builder. Drug testing revealed that Bosworth was not playing by the rules.

During the past year, Bosworth has become a phenomenon among the younger male set — standing proudly next to Rambo, The Terminator and Commando. Youngsters are even getting their hair cut like The Boz.

"The Boz" as he is so affectionately called, strutted the sidelines of the Orange Bowl donning a t-shirt displaying, "National Communists Against Athletes — Welcome to Russia!"

A sharp contrast to The Boz who just seven short months ago taped antidrug public-service announcements advising youth of the dangers of drugs. The 21-year-old college athlete is sending out mixed messages to his young impressionable followers.

But did those admiring youths really look down on Bosworth because he took steroids? Can an 8-year-old honestly understand why drugs are bad for their sports heroes?

That's the sad part. Youths begin to think taking drugs is allowable. The sports authorities preach and preach about not allowing drugs but rarely take action. The NCAA should be commended for sticking to a drug policy no matter how fantastically Bosworth performs.

Presently still under negotiations, the junior player may not return for his last year of eligibility to the Sooner football program. His brass and nasty attitude forced the Oklahoma coach to consider not renewing Bosworth's scholarship.

Bosworth made a formal apology for his statements and said he regretted embarrassing the Oklahoma football program. But sometimes sorry isn't enough.

To those boys playing football in backyards and backlots, Bosworth was seen as a hero made of steel. He had the right stuff. What a shame to burst their bubble with ripply muscles pumped up by the use of synthetic additives.

Last August's Sports Illustrated

stated, "Boz knows he can make too much money playing football to do drugs."

Since impressionable Oklahomans were bold enough to follow their hero by mimicking his looks and wishing to mimick his performance on the field, can we expect them to also believe that the "talent" that won this player a Heisman trophy nomination can be found in a pill bottle?

The NCAA had enough guts to cut Boz from playing. After college graduation and Boz is up for drafting by the NFL, his steroid use will probably be overlooked and his super-human abilities focused on.

That's the saddest part. Bosworth will continue to be looked up to — like Rambo, Commando and The Terminator.

COMMENTARY

Investigating computers incognito proves fruitful

It was my first "undercover" job as a reporter and I didn't want to ruin it. After all, I did have a legitimate gripe against the computer consultants in Meshel Hall, or so I thought.

Once I learned a few things about the consultants and their jobs, however, I saw things in a different perspective.

First off I learned that those people sitting around drinking coffee and playing cards were actually off duty and therefore not responsible for anything going wrong at Meshel Hall at the time.

The job of the computer consultant is to maintain the hardware and software of the computer center and to help students and faculty with the PC network. (The PC network, I might add, is something I still don't understand and I have been working with it for three months now.) It is not their job to help computer students with the logic or writing of computer programs.

ERIKA HANZELY

Talking with the consultants for awhile, I found that they had some complaints to voice. They have found that too many professors are giving computer assignments without giving the students enough information about how to log on to the system or how to get out of a program. Another problem has arisen now that the

Secretaries smoothly operate office

By CYNTHIA TABLACK
Special to The Jambar

Never a dull moment. That is the way the secretaries of University President Neil D. Humphrey describe a day's work.

There's no mistake with the word secretaries. It's not a typographical error. The word is plural. Humphrey has two secretaries. They are Mrs. Rose Marie Butler and Mrs. Patricia Martin.

Sharing an office on the second floor of Todd Hall, Butler and Martin work together to make sure that President Humphrey's office runs smoothly. They both work regular hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Typing briefs, making appointments and setting up schedules are a few examples of their daily activities that Butler and Martin encounter.

They also receive all incoming calls for Humphrey. He gets calls from the public, since the University is a state institution, parents inquiring about students' problems and various universities across the nation.

"We've received calls from the public asking about where their money goes and we sometimes get calls from people saying how nice the University is and that's nice," said Martin.

Butler and Martin also work a great deal with the Board of Trustees, making their jobs easier. They also coordinate ground breakings, breakfast functions, and the visits of various prominent people.

Both Butler and Martin have been students at YSU. Butler has studied, accounting and may seek her degree in the future. Butler applied for her job in 1978 when Humphrey was in need of a secretary. She got the job and worked for Humphrey when he was vice president of financial affairs. Martin received an associates degree in Business Administration and later went on to receive a bachelor in Applied Science.

Martin received a full-time secretarial job in 1967 after working as a student in Kilcawley. When Humphrey received the position of President of the University he needed both Butler and Martin as his secretaries to maintain his affairs.

When asked if they like working together, both Butler and Martin agreed that they do. They work together to keep the office very organized.

Minority enrollment declines over decade

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE — Despite the best efforts of traditionally white, middle-class colleges to enroll more minority students, fewer blacks and Hispanics are going to college now than 10 years ago, a new report by the American Council on Education (ACE) says.

The prognosis for attracting more black and Hispanic students in the future, moreover, is "dismal," the report's author added.

"All the new programs to increase minority enrollments worked for a while," said the ACE's Sarah Meléndez, who wrote the report.

Minority enrollment on traditionally white campuses began to increase in the mid-1980s, peaked in the mid-1970s, and has been declining ever since, she said.

The trend for black students is downward. Meléndez added that "for the Hispanics and native Americans, it all depends how you look at it."

It is either stagnating or remaining steady for them."

Although minorities make up 21.3 percent of the total U.S. population, they make up only 17 percent of college enrollments nationwide.

"The seriousness of this is no one group of minorities has ever achieved its corresponding enrollment level in college," she said. "Blacks are about 14 percent of the population, but represent only eight percent of the college enrollment. They are losing ground instead of staying current."

Victoria Valle Staples of Penn State — where minority enrollment decreased from 3.9 percent of the student body last year to 3.7 percent this year, despite a well-funded, ambitious recruiting drive — attributes the decline to money.

"Financial aid is more difficult to get," she said. "We have to provide more institutional aid."

Joseph Russell, Afro-American Studies dean at Indiana, found that "there is a general decline in student interest (in going to college), and black parents are having to make grave decisions about where to put their money."

"There are," he noted, "programs offered for students to get loans, but the parents and students aren't even certain if they can pay them back."

Worse yet, the rural and inner city high schools that many black students attend are not very good.

Meléndez, in fact, thinks the main hope for reversing the trend is reforming primary and secondary schools.

"One of the long-term solutions is giving greater attention to the education minorities receive in high school and elementary school," Meléndez said.

$400,000 of developer equity. Ricciuti added that "the work should be completed within 11 months."

The Pollock House was built in the 1880's as an Italianate villa and remodeled in the early 1900's to its current Queen Anne style.

Since then the house has been used as a residence, headquarters for the ROTC, offices for the YSU Credit Union and classrooms.

All of the changes added to the house to accommodate its past purposes will be removed; the house will be restored to the way it looked when it was first built.

The Pollock House gardens, the last remaining formal gardens on Wick Avenue, will also be restored.

A restaurant with a service bar and lounge will seat 75 in the newly restored inn and a 3000 square foot ballroom will also be featured.

A new wing is planned that will add another 43,000 square feet.

Forty-nine of the 80 rooms will be in this addition and will be a mixture of standard double-double or oversized double queen rooms. Sixteen of the remaining rooms will be suites with a bedroom, living area, bath and wet bar.

The Pollock Inn will be used for small conventions and conferences, cocktail parties and weddings. Heavy alumni use is also expected for special lectures, commencements and other events.

Commentary

center is located in Meshel Hall. The consultants are finding non-computer majors using the system "by the hourdes" and overlogging the system. To avoid this problem the consultants suggested that students buy a guide for the PC network which is available in the bookstore.

Problems do not lie only with the students. One consultant who wished to remain anonymous said, "I sat with a new computer professor and I had to teach her how to log on and libget. I was really surprised that no one from the department gave her a format or even told her the basics of the system."

The "facts" were all there: those people were paid to drink coffee and play cards while I (and probably many other semi-literate computer people) watched helplessly while my terminal refused to do what I wanted.

If you have had problems in the past finding someone to help you in the computer center, be forewarned: the staff at the center is going to be reduced from five consultants per hour to four consultants per hour next quarter.

My advice: don't rely on the coffee-drinkers to help you, rely on the PC network guide found in the bookstore.

YSU student dies, coroner investigates

The Trumbull County coroner is investigating the death of a YSU engineering student who was found dead in his home Friday, Dec. 26.

James E. Barnes, 19, of 72 Country Green Drive is the son of James E. IV and Lynda Kirkpatrick Barnes. Barnes was a construction worker for the Ben Rudick Construction Co.

and was a 1985 graduate of Fitch High School.

He leaves his mother and his father and stepmother, all of Austintown; a brother, Richard of Austintown; a stepsister, Dawn Simmers at home; a stepbrother David Simmers at home; and his grandparents, Edna Kirkpatrick of Austintown and Alice Barnes of Struthers.

Dining service aims to reach goal

By ROBERT SHEVETZ
Special to the Jambar

As you might have noticed, a new food service, Campus Dining Services, has replaced Pilot Food Services in the Terrace Room, Brass Rail and Wicker Basket restaurants.

Campus Dining Services, better known as ARA, is headquartered in Philadelphia and serves over 300 campuses across the nation and is the largest service company in the country. Some of the services ARA is involved in include: trucking, food distribution, emergency care, uniform rental cleaning and, of course, food services.

The main goal of Campus Dining Services, as indicated by Mark Zetts, resident dining manager, is "to provide the finest food and service that YSU ever had." This goal is fast becoming a reality for several reasons: an investment of $50,000 in new equipment; more variety in the menu; flexibility in meal time tables; and a variety of different meal plans for both the resident and commuter students.

A good indicator of the performance of the new food service is to ask the students who take part in the different food plans. James Demby, junior, A&S, a student who has been on the food plan for the past two years, said, "There is a better menu this year, they don't serve chicken every night." Demby also added, "The meal time hours are better, which makes it easier to make it to meals."

Sarah Gephart, junior, A&S, indicated that she "appreciates the way the new food service breaks the mealtime monotony by offering theme nights once in awhile and providing a better variety of food." Gephart further stated that the Brass Rail "has a nicer atmosphere because of the decorations and flowers on the tables."

The biggest difference between the old and new food services is the attitude toward the students. For example, Zetts said "every person is the most important customer we have." This attitude has enabled Campus Dining Services to strive "to make this the finest food service."

You don't have to be a resident student to take part in the different meal plans, commuters can also take advantage of the variety of meal plans ranging from just lunch to three meals a day.

Craft Workshop:
Design your own Rhinestone & Studs Sweatshirt

4 to 5 p.m., Tuesdays
January 27 thru February 24
Fee: $5

At this unique workshop, learn to create your own designer sweatshirt or shirt with rhinestones, studs, fabric paint, pearls and sequins.

Linda Reel, Minnesota Fabric's design instructor and district home economist, will demonstrate techniques for creating these fashion favorites in just five classes. (Techniques taught are also applicable to Jean jackets with a little practice.)

Registration fee is payable in the Information Center, upper level Kilcawley, through 4 p.m., January 27. Class is limited to 35 participants.

Class participants must bring the sweatshirt or shirt they wish to design in class. (Jean jackets are suggested only after a sweatshirt is completed.)

Registration fee includes 7 clear rhinestones per person and fabric paint. Additional colored stones, pearls and sequins will be available for purchase at each session.

A sample shirt is on display in PAC's glass case near Kilcawley's south entrance, lower level.

Presented by Program and Activities Council's Brain Drain Workshop Committee, Karen Stewart, Student Chairperson.

Waiting list exists for dorm living

By RONALD BURGESSON
Special to The Jambar

The Director of Housing, April Brown, described the housing situation as in need of more dormitory housing on campus.

Since former residents have priority and Dana School of Music, medical students, and athletes have first priority there is not much space left over for other students wanting housing on campus. The long waiting list is on a first come first serve basis.

Although the dormitory is co-educational the floors are divided with the 2nd and 3rd floors for women, and 4th through 7th floor for men. The 7th floor is also a permanent quiet study area. The six resident advisor's occupy the only private rooms, one advisor to each floor.

There are four separate rooms in the basement for TV, games, laundry and kitchen with movies scheduled for Sunday and Thursday nights. The building is staffed 24 hours.

The dormitory has no housemother as such but Brown suggested that she played that role since she lives in the building. Between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily the normal staff is on duty. Between 8 a.m. and 12 p.m. resident advisors are on duty at the desk, with a student working between 12 noon and 4 a.m. and an electronic system taking over for the last four hours of the day. The electronic "Kiddie Card" system allows students access after 11 p.m. daily.

Safety factors for evacuation of the building in an emergency are considered with monthly drills. It is well organized with one half of the residents exiting on each end of the building to avoid congestion in any areas.

YSU institute serves community

By PAMELA GAY
Jambar News Editor

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of two articles which deal with YSU's Public Service Institute.

YSU is not only a university that serves its students, faculty and staff, but also one that serves the public as well.

YSU's Public Service Institute is one such channel of service.

The Public Service Institute was designed to coordinate activities in the community, facilitate the sharing of resources among University departments, stimulate interest in public service among faculty and staff, and respond to the opportunities created in its urban environment.

YSU President Dr. Neil Humphrey announced the establishment of the Institute last year. Under the direction of Dr. Lawrence E. Looby, vice president for institutional advancement, the Institute is coordinated by Dr. Terry Buss and encompasses four centers.

They are the Center for Urban Studies, directed by Buss, the Charles B. Cushwa, Jr. Center for Industrial Development under Dr. David L. McBride, the Center for Human Services Development directed by Dr. Stephen Grossbard and the Engineering Services Center under Dr. George Sutton, dean of the William Rayen School of Engineering.

All are now located in the North Annex on Spring Street between Wick Avenue and Bryson Street.

The Institute's Cushwa Center for Industrial Development was created in 1978 with matching endowments from Mrs. Charles B. Cushwa, Jr., wife of the late president and chairman of Commercial Shearing, Inc. of Youngstown and from the Commercial Shearing Foundation.

"The Center provides services to people who wish to start new businesses and for people with established businesses who need assistance," according to McBride.

He said that the main thrust of Cushwa is through four major programs: enterprise counseling; manufacturing consulting; market development; and product search.

Ninety percent of the center's effort is in enterprise counseling, McBride said. "We help entrepreneurs determine whether they have a business opportunity or just a nice idea," he said.

The businesses are counseled to structure the product for success, evaluate cash requirements for products, suggest ways the product may be financed and identify the key components that must be in place to make the product "go," McBride said.

Manufacturing consulting involves going out in the field to solve manufacturing problems. In market development, Cushwa Center helps people learn more about their market by pointing them to a source of information.

"We usually take them over to Maag Library. There is so much information there and the employees are very helpful people," McBride added.

The center is also involved in See Public, page 12

Yoga classes begin

YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY — The Women's Resource Center will once again offer Yoga Classes in Dana Hall winter quarter.

Pat Schneider of the Women's Resource Center will instruct the classes. They are designed to be "energizing, calming exercises and relaxation techniques," Schneider said.

Classes begin Wednesday, Jan. 21 and those interested are urged to sign up at the Women's Resource Center by Tuesday, Jan. 20 because there are only a few spaces left. Classes are offered 3-4:15 p.m. Wednesdays, and 10 a.m.-11:15 a.m. Fridays throughout the quarter.

product search. "People in business bring their new products here for evaluation, but we don't have the resources to evaluate them all," he remarked.

Aside from these four areas, Cushwa Center has been designated as a Small Business Enterprise Center by Ohio to assist small businesses in Mahoning, Trumbull and Columbiana counties.

The Mahoning Valley Small Business Enterprise Center, funded by the Ohio Department of Development, provides organizational, financial, marketing and technical expertise.

Through this, small businesses may receive assistance with management, technical and procurement matters, funding sources, export trade opportunities and small business incubator programs.

Technological information and assistance to business and industry in Mahoning and Trumbull counties is provided through the Ohio Technology Transfer Organization (OTTO), another important Cushwa Center assistance program.

OTTO operates within Cushwa under a grant from the Ohio Department of Development. Information and assistance not available through local sources are obtained from other Ohio colleges and universities.

William Cossler is YSU's Technology Transfer Agent for OTTO and works in Cushwa Center.

The Center for Human Services Development was established to provide the community with resources which supplement and complement service planning and delivery by local health and human service agencies.

"We're a middleman between the University and the agencies," Grossbard said.

Staff at the center work with a wide spectrum of people from the community to identify problems, meet needs, develop situations and evaluate activities in the health and human services field.

This is being accomplished by establishing and maintaining links among service providers and consumers, offering technical assistance for social service program planning and evaluation, working with organizations to identify and obtain grants, providing training for agency managers, boards and staff members and helping organizations develop marketing strategies and programs.

The center, for example, works very closely with the United Way. "They were instrumental in the development, recognizing a need for such a service center."

He added that Human Services and United Way work "hand in glove" in a complimentary fashion. However, the center does not limit itself to United Way agencies.

Human Services also makes use of YSU faculty. "We use the expertise available at the University," Grossbard said.

An advisory board, made up of representatives of varied organizations in Mahoning, Trumbull and Columbiana counties, sets broad policy for the center and provides community input.

"The Center for Human Services Development is truly that — we don't ask for anything," Grossbard said. "We're here to be responsive to human service areas. My goal is to see that agencies do as well as they can with the services they have."

The Public Service Institute's Engineering Services Center was designed to provide access to the significant technical and engineering expertise of the faculty and staff of YSU's William Rayen School of Engineering and the department of engineering technology in the College of Applied Science and Technology.

Sutton stressed that the services this center provides are not intended to be competitive. "We're here to provide engineering support to local clients, but not in competition with other engineers," he said.

Engineering Services, for example, is currently involved with Syro Steel Co. in specialized static and dynamic testing of devices for fastening railway rails to concrete supports. Dr. Frank Tarantine, YSU professor of mechanical engineering, specially designed and built the testing mechanism for this project.

"Our clients use us for product development," Sutton said. "We've got the equipment and the people. We've got a tremendous amount of talent."

Sutton pointed out that the Engineering Services Center does not seek "routine" projects. "We want creative projects. If we get into the routine ones, we'll be in competition. We don't want to do what other people do for a living!"

An advisory board of industrial executives who "come from a broad coverage of the region and diversified areas of operation" counsel the center.

"Universities have unique labs that other facilities just don't have," Sutton noted.

Aside from the four centers, two special University offices are associated with the Public Service Institute.

The Microbiology Testing Laboratory provides public health testing to more than 60 state and local public agencies, hosts meetings and seminars on community health and serves as a focal point for the dissemination of public information.

Leonard A. Perry is administrator of the lab. He is also a member of the Mahoning County Board of Health.

The Forensic Research Laboratory provides psychological diagnostic services to professionals and agencies and conducts basic and applied research into behavior disorders.

Director of the lab is Dr. Joseph A. Waldron.

YSU Wrap Up

YSU Wrap Ups are a weekly calendar of events happening on campus. Wrap ups are not advertising for events or organizations. When submitting a wrap up, please only include what the event is, who is sponsoring it, the time and location it is to take place. The information MUST be typed and affixed with the submitter's signature and telephone number. This information will not be printed, but used for our convenience if further information is needed.

Wrap ups are run on the availability of space in the newspaper. Therefore, all, some or none of the wrap up may be printed at the paper's discretion.

The Jambar's new policy on wrap ups is to only run upcoming events if the event is to happen that following week. Two week or more advances will no longer run.

Wrap ups cannot be submitted to be run throughout the quarter. If you want the wrap up to run all quarter, you must re-submit the wrap up every two weeks.

If these policies are not followed, wrap ups will not appear in print.

Native speaks on Nicaragua

YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY — Youngstown native Brian Schultz moved a long way from home — Nicaragua, in fact. What type of life does an American citizen lead in Nicaragua? He will address that question and more on the YSU campus at noon Tuesday, Jan. 13 in room 2069, Kilcawley Center.

For the past two years and eight months, Schultz has lived in Managua, Nicaragua, and has taught agricultural ecology at the Agricultural University.

Schultz will speak on "The U.S. and Nicaragua" and discuss his beliefs that "the Nicaraguans cannot become self-sufficient while the U.S. is funding the Contras in their fight against the Sandinistas."

The lecture is sponsored by Cooperative Campus Ministry and Students United For Peace.

 ministration to work toward establishment of an academic major in entrepreneurship, developing additional academic courses in that field and also recommendations to cooperate with the Cushwa Center for Industrial Development.

The Industrial Development is part of the University's public service institute that is funded by an endowment and assists persons who wish to start new businesses. The program provides assistance to established firms in Mahoning, Trumbull and Columbiana counties.

Monus is the president of Phar-Mor, Inc. and the vice president of the Giant Eagle Corp. and the Superior Beverage Group.

Monus stated that he made this gift with the expectation that YSU and WSBA will be challenged to develop an academic program teaching an entrepreneurship program. He added that many of the prominent business schools across the nation have developed similar academic programs and hopefully YSU will be able to attract an expert in the field of entrepreneurship.

"If this program eventually produces only a dozen students who remain in the area and are successful in developing their own businesses, the economic benefits to the Mahoning Valley will more than justify the value of the gift," Monus concluded.

Cars

 The report stated, "this was an attempted auto theft." The reporting officer stated that "he believed the car wasn't taken because of the anti-theft device installed on the vehicle."

Campus Security is still investigating.

Access

 that building.

"If a student has an access card and is authorized to go into the dorm, it's useless to try that card in other locations!" Sgt. Gray said.

"This system allows us to control doors without actually having an officer standing there," he said. "It's a fantastic piece of equipment!"
 Sgt. Gray praised the University's administration and Richard Turkiewicz, director of Campus Security, for "looking into the future" for this system.

The University has also installed a video monitor system in Stambaugh Sports Complex that allows Security to "monitor all crucial areas of the building," Gray said.

The video cameras are located outside as well as inside Stambaugh and are monitored by Security dispatchers. Three monitors in the dispatcher's office allow Security to constantly keep an eye on the building.

Apartment

 All students are welcome to attend the meeting and address Myers with questions pertaining to the new development.

Robinson reported that in his meeting with Myers, the developer said, "The Wick development that the University is proposing is taking too long and we had the land on Wick, so we decided to turn it into student housing."

Each apartment will consist of one bedroom, a living room and a furnished kitchen and will cost approximately $130.00 a month including utilities.

In other actions that occurred over the break, tackling the tuition reciprocity for Pennsylvania students is nearing completion. The issue needs student input from Pennsylvania students, according to Robinson.

Robinson said he hopes students from Lawrence and Mercer counties will be absolved of paying out-of-state tuition to attend YSU.

Robinson said that Governor Richard F. Celeste has already agreed to this measure and now the University is awaiting the Pennsylvania Board of Regents approval and also an exemption for Ohio students in certain Pennsylvania schools.

Robinson is urging all students who have questions concerning this issue to call a Pennsylvania student financial aid hotline that has been especially set up to answer questions during the week of

Jan. 12-16 between 5-9 p.m. The number is 1-800-762-1001.

"We hope to have this problem resolved in the near future," Robinson commented. Student Government is also sponsoring a Sexism in Communication seminar to be held at Bethany College in West Virginia.

Theodore Chandler of Florida Keys Community College will be the principal speaker at the seminar that is held annually for faculty, staff and students.

Participants will be furnished with transportation, food and lodging. Standard rooms are furnished with two double beds and participants will be housed four persons per room. A limited number of single beds are available. The cost of the seminar is $5 for double beds and $10 for singles.

The buses will depart from Beeghly Center at 3 p.m. Friday, Jan. 30 and will return at approximately 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 31.

Robinson said that sexism in communication will not be the only topic of discussion as other communication problems that occur at YSU will also be addressed.

Robinson said the meeting is very informal and is held at Bethany to break the ice and communication barriers between faculty, administration and students. "We usually get at least 40 persons to attend and this year we are hoping to have more participants from administration," Robinson concluded.

Romantic comedy comes to Spotlight Theatre

George Bernard Shaw's turn-of-the-century high comedy, Candida, will be presented in the Spotlight Arena Theatre of YSU's Bliss Hall Friday and Saturday, Jan. 9 and 10. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Candida is a witty comedy about the wife of a stuffy parson who finds herself in a romantic triangle with an 18-year-old poet.

Set in late 19th century London, playwright-philosopher Shaw uses it to poke fun at the traditional values of domestic tranquility and the stability of marriage.

Dr. Timothy J. Lyons, dean of YSU's College of Fine and Performing Arts and artistic director of University Theatre, is directing the comedy. Assisting him is Paula Rose McConnell, junior, theatre.

Scenery for the production is designed by Dr. Frank A. Castronovo, professor of Speech Communication and Theatre.

Appearing in the comedy's title role is Elsa C. Higby, senior, music and theatre. She graduated from Girard High School, but is originally from St. Croix in the Virgin Islands.

Her husband in the play, the Rev. James Mavor Morell, is portrayed by Todd W. Dicken, senior, speech.

Candida's father, Mr. Burgess, is played by Will Christy. Janet Oliver has the role of Prossy, the secretary. The curate is played by Chet Domitz and Greg Owen will portray the poet.

Candida will be presented Friday and Saturday, Jan. 9-10 and 15-17 at 8 p.m. There will also be a matinee at 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 18.

Tickets, which are $5, may be reserved by calling the University Theatre Box Office weekdays at 742-3105. Tickets may also be purchased at the door. There are discounts for students and senior citizens. YSU students are free with ID but must get tickets in advance.

A copy of the famous Titian painting, Assumption of the Virgin, is being prepared by Al Bright, YSU professor of art. The campus dramatics fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, will sell raffle tickets for the painting during intermissions, and a drawing will be held following the last show.

"I've always wanted to direct George Bernard Shaw's Candida ever since I first saw the show 20 years ago," Lyons said in a recent interview.

Lyons was an undergraduate majoring in theatre at the University of California's Santa Barbara campus, and the play featured Michael Douglas in his first big role. The future star of such films as The China Syndrome, and Romancing the Stone played the part of the eighteen year old lovestruck poet Eugene Marchbanks. "My memory is that Michael was very, very good," Lyons recalled, "and we knew from that production that he'd do very well."

Student marches in Rose parade

By DEB SHAULIS
Jambar Entertainment Editor

Viewers of this year's Tournament of Roses Parade may have seen a familiar red and white uniform among the many marchers, as YSU student Kurt Schnader was a member of the special herald trumpet section in the United Way Centennial Presentation.

"It was fantastic," said Schnader, senior, music education. "It was one of the biggest parades I've ever been in."

Schnader was one of three musicians from YSU nominated by marching band instructor Les Hicken and was later chosen as Youngstown's United Way representative in the herald trumpet section by a special committee.

"Kurt was selected to receive this honor because of his outstanding leadership, civic responsibility and musical talent," said Community Corporation President James E. Bennett Jr. "He joins a select group of college and university students chosen from across the country. Youngstown can be truly proud of him."

Schnader said the United Way band consisted of 106 trumpet players selected from colleges and universities across the country. In addition, 18 floats, over 100 low brass and percussion players from schools in California and 116 flag girls from high schools across the nation joined the herald trumpet section.

In all, the United Way unit was almost three blocks long, Schnader said.

"It was nothing like I've ever been in before," said Schnader, whose past performances include the 1980 Inaugural Parade, the 1982 Super Bowl Pre-game show and the opening ceremonies of the 1980 Winter Olympics.

During his one-week stay in Pasadena, Schnader also participated in workshops sponsored by the United Way on improving communication skills and volunteering. The workshops were designed to help commemorate the United Way's 100 years of services in health and human care.

New comedy featured at Playhouse

The Foreigner, a hilarious new comedy, will open at the Youngstown Playhouse on Friday, Jan. 9.

Directed by G. Arnold Johnson, executive director at the Playhouse, The Foreigner is about an Englishman who is extremely shy and suddenly finds himself stranded at a fishing lodge in rural Georgia. At first he finds it easier to pretend he speaks no English, but laughter and delightful comedy take over when complications arise.

The Foreigner will be performed at the Playhouse Jan. 9-10, 16-17 and 22-24 with an 8 p.m. curtain, a 7 p.m. curtain on Jan. 18 and a 2:30 p.m.

matinee on Jan. 11 and 25. The Friday and Saturday evening performances will be preceded by a buffet dinner featuring an exotic menu of continental delights which will be catered by Liz Majer and for which there will be an additional charge and reservations must be made in advance.

Lyons

scholarly research of American film history and service in college administration. "But it's a thrill for me to get back to theatrical production," he reflected. "There's simply nothing like the immediacy of live theatre." As artistic director, Lyons supervises the operations of University Theatre, which offers five major productions, an opera and a summer dinner theatre season.

Lyons joined YSU in the summer of 1985 and recently assumed the role of Artistic Director of the University Theatre.

Candida will be performed at 8 p.m. Jan. 8-10 and 15-17, with a 3 p.m. matinee on Jan. 18. It is one of Shaw's most famous comedies and features the romantic triangle of a stuffy parson, his seemingly virtuous wife and the flamboyant youthful poet.

"What drew me to this play was the sting that the comedy has," Lyons said. "It's filled with Shaw's famous wit, but it is equally a treatise on the social values we attach to the roles we play in our everyday lives."

The cast of six has been at work on the Spotlight Arena Theatre production since Thanksgiving. "They're a very talented group," Lyons assessed, "as good as any I've worked with in California. And it's exciting to watch them grow into their roles more and more with each rehearsal."

A year in review: OVC selections highlight 1986

YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY — The date was Nov. 21, 1986 — a date that will long be remembered as one of the highlights of the 1986 sports picture at YSU. That was the date that the underdog Penguins knocked off the playoff bound Akron Zips, 40-39, in one of the most exciting football games in recent years at Stambaugh Stadium.

The victory took a lot of the gloom off an otherwise disappointing 2-9 season record for first-year head coach Jim Tressel. The record was deceiving — in six of the nine losses the Penguins were within a touchdown of winning and in five of those games they lost by three points or less.

For Tressel, the victory over Akron for the season finale was tremendous. "It is the last thing that everyone remembers and it was a great feeling for our senior players as well as a big stepping stone for our returning players," Tressel said. It is also a great recruiting tool for the young head coach since he competes with the Zips for the top schoolboy talent in the area.

Individually, the Penguins were again led by footballer Rick Shepas, who for the second straight year was a first-team All-OVC selection and led the conference in pass receiving for the second straight year. In basketball, it was guard Bruce Timko becoming only one of 23 YSU players ever to reach the 1,000 point plateau. Dorothy Bowers, this year's women's stand-out equaled that task. Bowers led the OVC in scoring with a 23.9 average last year, but made only second team on the All-OVC squad. Teammate Danielle Carson landed a first-team berth and was ranked in the top five in the nation in assists, while leading the OVC. She closed out her career as the second all-time scoring leader at YSU with 1,697 points.

Other All-OVC selections in 1986 included pitcher Greg Solarz and third baseman Jeff Stofko in baseball and Jon Jones in golf. The women's swimming team garnered NCAA Division II All-American honors for Janet Kemper (5), Becky MacFadyen (2), Cathy Sipka (2) and Carol Sipka (2).

The following is a brief recap for each of the school's 1986 sports:

BASEBALL (16-30-1): Rookie head coach Greg Gulas got a real initiation as the Penguins were 16-30-1 overall, but their 4-13 mark in the OVC was the best conference mark since 1983 and doubled the conference wins of the past two baseball seasons.

Solarz, a sophomore pitcher, posted a 6-3 overall record, while Stofko was second on the team with a .322 mark. Solarz was voted the team's most valuable player.

MEN'S BASKETBALL (12-16): Head coach Mike Rice finished his fourth season at the helm of the Penguins with a disappointing 12-16 overall ledger, but the Penguins finished in a three-way tie for third place with a 8-6 record in the OVC, losing in the first round of Bowers became only the sixth player in Lady Penguin basketball history to reach the 1,000 career point plateau.

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY (4-2): Rigney's men were 4-2 in dual meet competition and also paced fourth in the OVC championship meet.

the OVC playoffs to Tennessee Tech on the Beeghly Center court, 71-68.

Timko's 1,000 career points puts him in a class with only 22 other YSU players in the 57-year history of the sport.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL (12-16): Ed DiGregorio concluded his third season with a 12-16 overall slate, but the Lady Penguins were 8-6 in conference play and a third place finish enroute to their very first OVC playoff berth.

The Lady Penguins dropped an 89-54 decision to Tennessee Tech in the first round of the playoffs held at Middle Tennessee State University.

Leading the way were outstanding performances by Bill Hess, Jeff Luther, Rich Price and Tom Bellish.

Price and Bellish return and will be looked to for leadership and improvement on their 25th and 26th place finishes in the championships.

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY (6-0): The best of head coach Jack Rigney's two cross country teams was the Lady Penguins who posted a perfect 6-0 dual meet record and topped it off by placing fourth at the OVC championships.

Multi-talented Heidi Raupach finished 12th in the conference and set two new course records during the season.

A very young squad returns next year for Rigney.

FOOTBALL (2-9): While the win over Akron and Shepas' contributions were the highlights, the Penguins also had fine performances from junior quarterback Trenton Lykes.

The Akron native led the OVC in total offense averaging 216.9 yards per game. He passed for 2,188 yards on 190 completions in 315 attempts and 10 touchdowns. Lykes received honorable mention on the 1986 All-OVC team.

The 1986 season leaves fans, administrators and coaching staff alike cautiously optimistic about the Penguins' possibilities next year in the OVC.

SPRING GOLF (55-52-3): Tony Joy's squad posted an overall 55-52-3 record, their first winning season in three campaigns. The Penguins hosted the OVC championships at Avalon Golf Course in Warren, but finished eighth. Jon Jones was named to the All-OVC team by virtue of his fifth-place finish in the tournament.

FALL GOLF (55-6): Coach Joy is hoping that his 1987 golf squad performs like his squad did this fall. Boasting the best record of any fall squad in the 42-year history of the sport at YSU, Joy's golfers posted a 55-6 state in four tournaments, captured top honors in the Malone College Invitational and didn't finish below fourth in a field of eighteen or better the entire fall season.

SOCCER (0-11): The first season under new head coach Joe Frivaldi wasn't a very cordial one as the Penguins were winless in 11 games and yielded 64 goals while scoring only four all season. Frivaldi took over the soccer reigns from the departed George Hunter, who had been head coach for the past nine seasons.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL (12-20): Head coach Ed Strauss completed his second year as the head of the Lady Penguin softball program posting a 12-20 overall slate.

Rose Gustafson, the NCAA leader in triples a season ago, led the Lady Penguins in hitting with a .320 average, while topping the squad with 26 runs batted in, 14 more than her nearest teammate.

Kelly Prow was 7-7 on the hill with a 3.73 ERA, while Chris Rohan posted a 2.66 ERA, despite a 5-13 mound mark.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING (5-3): Head swimming coach Tammy Searingen completed her second straight winning campaign with the YSU women as the Lady Penguins posted a 5-3 mark and are now 11-6 under Swearington.

Four swimmers reached the Division II national championships and walked away with 11 All-American honors.

Kemper was third in 50 free, fourth in 100 free, eighth in 100 fly, sixth in 400 free relay and eighth in 800 free relay; MacFadyen, Cathy and Carol Sipka swam on the 400 and 800 relay teams.

MEN'S TENNIS (5-11): The Penguins were 5-11 overall and 3-5 in the conference. Rick Beachy had a 9-7 overall mark in the No. 2 singles and Al Redmond was 8-7 in the No. 5 singles. The No. 1 doubles team of Phil Kaufmann-Thad Hawkes went 7-8 on the year.

WOMEN'S TENNIS (9-5): Rob Adsit's Lady Penguins posted a 9-5 ledger, his final at the helm of the YSU net program.

Lisa Pearce, a transfer student from Australia, posted a 13-1-0 overall mark in the No. 1 single spot, while Junior Terri Malarich was 10-4 at the No. 2 post. The two teamed up for a 10-4 overall mark as the No. 1 doubles team.

Taking over for Adsit in 1987 will be Don Getz, who will coach both the men's and women's teams.

WOMEN'S TRACK AND FIELD (1-1): In their first season of varsity competition, the Lady Penguin track and field program posted a 1-1 dual meet record and never finished below fifth in tournament competition under the tutelage of tri-coaches Ed DiGregorio, Pauline Saternow and Jack Rigney.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL (5-22): Second-year head coach Jack McKenna's squad was 5-22 and 0-10 in the OVC. Freshman Nancy Winkler and sophomores Laura Eden and Julie Sabatini contended for All-OVC honors.

AIDS

The guide addresses student, faculty and staff concerns dealing with AIDS operating on the main philosophy that "discrimination against individuals who have AIDS, who are thought to have AIDS, or who are identified as a member of a high risk group cannot be tolerated in a University setting."

Dr. Brendan Minogue, philosophy and religious studies and chairperson of the task force, said the information in the guide was compiled from the Center for Disease Control (CDC), the U.S. Public Health Service and the Department of Infectious Diseases at St. Elizabeth Hospital Medical Center.

The guide took several months to complete, according to Minogue and "correct and compatible information" collection coinciding with the task force program continues.

"Information must first pass the test of careful scrutiny," Minogue said. "We must screen out misinformation," he explained, noting the vast array of information available on AIDS.

Minogue said the guide will be distributed as University President Neil D. Humphrey sees fit. "The decision has to be made by the president," Minogue said. The task force will not distribute the guide.

The guide consists of 14 questions such as "What will be the response to students who wish to change class schedules because a person in their class has AIDS?" or "What will happen if a student living in the University residence hall is diagnosed as having AIDS?"

Faculty questions include "What will be done if an instructor has, or is suspected of having AIDS?" and "What if an employee in food service has, or is suspected of having AIDS?"

Many phrases are repeated in the guide which Minogue attributes to reinforcement of the facts collected: "Medical evidence reveals that an AIDS victim is at greater risk than the general population. AIDS victims have a greater susceptibility to diseases than does the general population" are two such often repeated phrases.

Minogue explained that an AIDS victim is "far more threatened by us," than vice versa.

"The general populous of the University does not have to be scared of an AIDS victim," he said. AIDS victims in "the normal university setting presents no serious threat" to others, Minogue said.

"This is the message we want to shout from the rooftops," he said. The task force based their information on the most recently released facts concerning AIDS.

The task force, which normally meets weekly, is presently working on a half-hour information presentation for the School of Applied Science and Technology. The presentation will involve consideration of the "moral, medical and legal" aspects of AIDS, Minogue said.

The task force includes Joan Boyd, allied health; Alice Hill, CCM Free Clinic; Carolyn Kolesar, classified personnel; Atty. Alan Kretzer, consultant; Dr. George E. Letchworth, Counseling and Health Services; Loretta M. Liptak, health and physical education; Dr. Charles McBriarty, vice president of student services; Dr. Chatrchai Watanakunakorn, consultant; Stevana Wilson, Student Health Services; and Daniel Mack, junior A&S, and David G. Smith, sophomore A&S, student representatives.
