Dietetic technology program loses ADA approval

By MELISSA WILTHEW
Jambar Editor

YSU's dietetic technology curriculum, a two-year associate program in the home economics department, was recently denied approval from the American Dietetic Association (ADA).

However, information released during the Board of Trustees meeting's Provost report last Friday stated that the dietician program (as a whole) lost its accreditation.

Actually, the two-year program cannot receive accreditation by the ADA but only approval, according to Dr. Mary J. Beaubien, chair of the home economics department.

Following the trustees' meeting, she released a statement to dietetic technology students explaining the circumstances of the program.

ADA's decision "was based on a lack of adequate supervised clinical hours in the early quarters of the program." Students' clinical hours are completed outside the University in area health care institutions.

Supervision must be done by a registered dietician, Beaubien said, explaining that the program needs an increase in that area.

The only YSU program accredited by ADA is the Coordinated Undergraduate Program (CUP) in Dietetics which is an extension of Food and Nutrition (Plan IV), a four-year bachelor program. This accreditation was initially awarded in June 1985 after an ADA campus visit. The ADA accreditation is renewable in four years.

Beaubien said ADA was impressed with "the quality of cooperation between area health care institutions and YSU."

The refusal of approval by the ADA for the associate degree was made after YSU sent a self-study, according to Beaubien.

Although the two-year program was not approved by ADA, graduates are continually sought for employment in Northeastern Ohio and Pennsylvania, Beaubien said.

She clarified in her release to students that "ADA is not preventing YSU from having a two-year program. However, the program cannot be called ADA-approved for students entering after Oct. 15, 1986."

Students entered before this date are still considered in an ADA-approved program.

Those graduating with the associate degree in dietetic technology are considered dietetic technicians. Dietetic technicians are employed in nursing homes, hospitals, commercial food service and restaurants.

The associate dietetic technology program requires 450 hours of internship; 300 of those hours must be completed under the supervision of a registered dietician.

Students in the CUP program complete 900 hours of clinical experience supervised by registered dietitians. Upon graduation, students are eligible to become registered through an ADA written examination.

YSU has 73 students currently enrolled in the associate program. According to Beaubien, the current trend is for fewer people to enter the program.

Senate votes on members' status

By SUEANN HINES
Jambar Copy Editor

Suggested changes in YSU Academic Senate membership were voted on last Wednesday.

The Senate's Charter and Bylaws Committee submitted the report which stated that the status of non-elected student representatives to the Senate, through virtue of the elected positions in Student Government, would be altered because there is no longer be a president of student council.

The report stated that the president, vice president and second vice president of Student Government shall have automatic membership into the Senate.

Student Government requested this modification because of the structure change.

The motion was approved by the Senate and will go to the faculty in the form of a written ballot. The motion will pass if a two-thirds vote approves it.

The Programs Division of the Academic Programs and Curriculum Committee submitted several reports to the Senate but a formal motion wasn't made on them.

One of the reports stated changes in the child care and nursing programs.

Robinson urges students to oppose all funding cuts

By LISA M. SOLLEY
Jambar Managing Editor

Student Government unanimously adopted a resolution to support the United States Student Association (USSA) and the Ohio Student Association (OSA) in opposing federal cuts to higher education proposed in the Reagan Administration's budget.

Student Government is also circulating and collecting signatures on petitions against Governor Richard F. Celeste's low growth 1988 biennium budget for higher education.

In response to the proposed federal and state 1988 budgets for higher education, the USSA and the OSA have decided to oppose the budget drafts submitted.

The USSA is asking for a $2.5 billion increase to the proposed Reagan budget and the OSA is asking for an additional $240 million to keep the cost of higher education at 36 percent.

Presently, Ohio students pay 36 percent of the total cost of schooling and the state picks up the rest of the bill. According to Robinson, if the Celeste's low-growth budget is approved, Ohioans will possibly have to pay up to 42 percent of their school cost. "Students may face up to a 16 percent increase in tuition if this budget is approved," Robinson said.

Student Government President Marvin Robinson explained that YSU would adopt the resolution to support the OSA in its attempt to gain enough signatures on petitions to present to state legislators, showing concern over the cost of education.

The Ohio Student Association is hoping the action will persuade legislators to vote down the governor's budget proposal.

Service offers individual help

Unknown to many students, assistance and counseling in a variety of problems is available free of charge in YSU's Counseling and Health Services.

Eating disorders such as anorexia and bulimia, and test taking skills such as memorizing and study habits are a few of the topics handled through quarterly workshops. Individual counseling is offered by licensed psychologists, not guidance counselors, through the service.

Dr. Judy Green, a counseling psychologist, stressed that the counseling services are available free of charge to all students who may seek the same services from outside sources.

For more information call ext. 3056 or visit the office in Room 3056 Jones Hall.

NTSO welcomes new members

NEWS SERVICE — The Nontraditional Student Organization at YSU will hold an orientation from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 7, in the Ohio Room of Kilcawley.

New and returning students, and anyone in the area considering attending or returning to college, are invited to attend.

The Nontraditional Student Organization is a student support group composed of older, or nontraditional, men and women.

The orientation will begin with a coffee and donut get-acquainted session followed by workshops to acquaint newcomers with YSU programs and procedures, including a review of available financial aid. Following luncheon, there will be tours of the campus.

There is a $5 charge to cover costs of refreshments and the lunch. For more information, call Dana Hall, 742-7253.

Hi. We're Kali and Dean. We forgot to tell you in our last few ads what we're all about.

We design clothing for men and women and market the Kali-Dean line in New York and Los Angeles. Presently we have stores nationwide, from New York to Hawaii.

We have recently opened a retail designer boutique and offer our designer line to the Youngstown public for less than retail costs.

We are located off of Elm Street, right past the highway entrances, and before the old Ohio Pig House. We are in the gray building on the left.

We hope this answers everyone's questions about Kali-Dean and our ads. We're sorry that we forgot to place this information in previous ads, but we figure...if Reagan could forget, so can we!!!

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

VIEWPOINT

Florida remains popular vacation spot for college break

It's almost here. Everybody's talking about it like the world will soon revolve around the southern tip of the eastern border of our country.

Spring Break in Florida is once again promising to be the most talked about vacation spot for winter-weary college students. Whether it be Fort Lauderdale, Daytona or Orlando, the advertisements are all the same — muscular, tan lifeguard drooling over skinny, tan woman on a beautiful, sandy beach.

I'm a senior and this is my last chance to "whoop" it up as they say, so I'm going.

I envision myself, the tan, lithe woman engaging in conversation with a muscular lifeguard — if they can actually hold a conversation. Aah, the things advertising will make you think.

The thought of arriving in 70 and 80 degree weather is exhilarating and the thought of lying around in the sand all day is tempting.

However, the thought of being several pounds overweight and the nightmarish thought of looking like a close relative of Casper the Ghost amongst tanned, healthy bodies has forced me to turn to methods of starvation and modern science for vanity's sake.

For the past few weeks, I've been living like a rabbit — eating nothing but salads. By the end of March, if I see another lettuce leaf or crouton I'll probably hop away.

Just two more weeks, I tell myself as I ignore the growling sounds being emitted from my stomach. I tell myself those dressing-coated green leaves really are filling.

I've never been one to change my appearance but to accept what God has bestowed upon me. In fact, each time I visit the tanning spa I feel a little vain — like I'm wasting my money. I know all those guilty thoughts will float away with the seaweed when my tan's got a head start on my beach buddies'.

But if I burn now, that means I'll tan later, I keep telling myself as my skin is turning rosy pink instead of a deep, dark brown.

The final blow occurred when I went to look for a bathing suit. Stores don't sell bathing suits anymore. Stores sell pieces of tiny material sewn together held up by a skinny strap. Somehow the Sports Illustrated bathing suits didn't look quite right on my body.

The search for the perfect bathing suit was exasperating.

I tried on 21 different bathing suits until I found the perfect one.

It's amazing the wonderful selection stores have near the end of February. Now I know, why in June, when the rest of the population is looking for a bathing suit, none can be found.

My friends and I are counting the days until we leave. We've permitted ourselves one piece of luggage each. We're Florida bound.

I just hope it doesn't rain for nine days.

— MELISSA WILTHEW

COMMENTARY

No matter what he says, the President is still responsible

Well, last night Ronald Reagan took his shot at rebounding. Almost a week after the Tower Commission made public its findings concerning the Iranian arms scandal, the president addressed the nation about the results.

To be sure, last night Reagan was Reagan. He looked and sounded sincere, he regretted what happened and he wants to go on.

Well, this time it may not be enough to just let Reagan be Reagan. Sure, he thought it was improper to come to the American people "with sketchy reports or possibly even erroneous statements." (I don't understand why. This never stopped him before.)

GEORGE NELSON

But now that he's got the information, what does he tell us?

He takes responsibility all right. Over half a dozen times in this one speech, in fact. It doesn't take Holmes and Watson (or even Hayes and Addison) to figure that out.

But how does he do it? "...it happened on my watch."

Translation: "It's my fault only because it happened at my house."

Wrong. With all due respect, Mr. President, this isn't a matter of a kid getting in trouble because one of his playmates broke a lamp while his mom's away.

To make use of your analogy, you didn't just get thrown on a boat with these folks who are causing all this fuss. You (or one of your aides) picked these cowboys. That makes you just a little more responsible than just by association.

Also, unlike your own presidential commission, you don't seem to think there was anything wrong with the idea of selling arms to Iran.

It may be a noble idea to try to convert friend to foe, but take a look at who was being dealt with in this case.

Mr. President, remember when you See Commentary, page 6

Student makes debut in summer release

Kirk Zellers is hoping he won't end up on the cutting room floor.

Zellers, a YSU student, is an extra in the upcoming prison movie Weeds, starring Nick Nolte.

Zellers was living in North Carolina 1½ years ago when he interviewed at a local casting company.

He had moved back to his home town of Salem to attend YSU when the call came asking him if he'd like a part in the Nolte movie.

Zellers said the reason he got the part was because he had the right look. In the photo Zellers submitted with his application to the casting company, he was wearing a tight T-shirt, leather jacket swung over his shoulders and, although he doesn't smoke, a cigarette propped in his mouth. Because of this tough physical image, Zellers said he was picked to play a prisoner in Weeds.

The junior telecommunications major said he didn't mind one bit missing the first week of winter quarter to be in the movie.

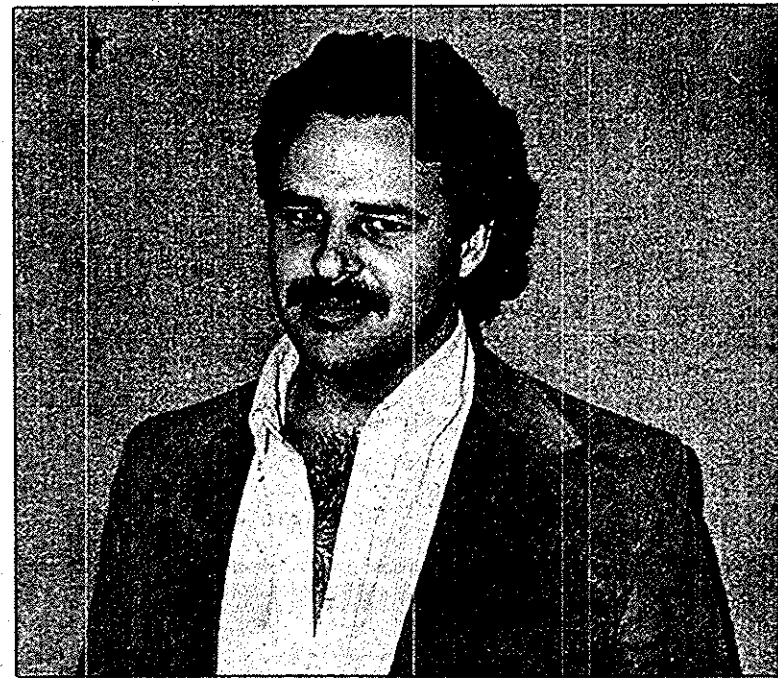

Weeds is about a group of ex-cons who form a theater company under the direction of Nolte, also an ex-prisoner who had received a pardon after being locked up for 14 years.

Zellers said he met Nolte briefly during filming and that he was very funny, often staging practical jokes during rehearsal.

Zellers was supposed to have filmed for four days but his first acting stint was cut short because of a knee injury he suffered during a staged prison uprising.

The movie was being shot on location in a renovated cement factory on the outskirts of Wilmington, N.C. During the scene the prisoners begin to rebel against their guards while viewing Nolte's play about prison uprisings.

were running for president in 1980? During that campaign, 52 Americans were being held captive in Iran, with what appeared to be popular support.

As a result, the U.S. Government looked pretty bad. This whole situation might even have helped you get elected in 1980. You came in, smiled, waved, and made everybody feel good. (Except maybe Carter and his supporters, but it is so difficult to please everyone.)

Yeah, we got the hostages back, but you'd have to look pretty hard to find an American citizen who feels all that friendly toward Iran.

So you decide to, in your own words, "develop relations with those who might assume leadership in a post-Khomeini government."

Now, given anti-U.S. sentiment in Iran, Mr. President, what do you suppose the odds are of a new Iranian leader taking office and announcing to his people, "Hey, folks, remember the United States, the people who took in the Shah? We're going to be friends with them."

What do you suppose that leader's odds are of surviving his first day in office?

Whatever the motives, it was a badly conceived idea.

Mr. President, you've taken the first steps of clearing this up. You've begun following the recommendations of the panel. You've gotten rid of Donald Regan, something which will come as a pleasant thought even to women that you aren't married to.

Eventually, the U.S. might again achieve the respect from its allies it had before this. Just don't do anything like this again, huh?

GOOD VIBRATIONS

Editor's Note: Good Vibrations is a monthly column written by a member of the Campus Ministry staff at YSU. The author this month is Rev. John Polanski of the Newman Center.

The tang of the salt air is finally starting to fade; the last grains of sand are being swept away and the deadly sea creatures are contained in their tanks. Yes, it is once again safe to think about going back into the water. Surf's Up has come to a close.

As everyone who has been through Kilcawley in the past few weeks has observed, many people put in long hours of work to produce this event. And they are all to be commended, because by just about everybody's standards, the fourth annual spring bash was a rousing success.

Why? Well, the hard work certainly had a lot to do with it. Planning, preparation, practice — as the saying goes, it pays off.

But there is another major factor, it seems to me — the date of the party. The folks who produced it knew what goes through the minds of northeastern Ohio residents in the month of February, and even after a relatively mild winter (by Youngstown standards), our imaginations can still turn a university student center into a "tropical paradise" with ease. We are ready for spring.

Long about this time of year, we're anxious for a change. We start to anticipate how much more pleasant life will be now that winter is behind us.

And if we think about it for awhile, we find that longing for a different scene goes beyond the weather. We decide that we really can become better people, once we make a few changes. We realize, in our more reflective moments, that we're not achieving all of our goals and we'd like to improve our performance.

All around the world, people recognize that feeling, and through prayer, fasting and other traditional penances make a serious effort to change their lives in response to a divine call.

For Christians, this time of personal renewal is the season of Lent, which began on Ash Wednesday.

For most of us here on campus, March 4 did not appear much different from any other Wednesday.

And maybe that's as it should be. On the outside, change is relatively easy.

But on the inside, where real See Vibrations, page 7

Cuts

Celeste has not allotted an increase in higher education for 1988 and a 4.7 percent increase for 1989. The budget proposed will force state universities to raise their tuition, according to Robinson, because there is no room for general rate hikes or inflation and schools must operate on the same budget they had for 1987.

Robinson and YSU's Student Government were exposed to the resolution at the monthly OSA meeting held in Toledo for February.

Robinson said that a legislative assistant to the president of The University of Toledo told the OSA group that students are not voicing their opinions on the cost of education. He further stated that all other organizations who are facing cuts are filing petitions and making their concerns heard through the legislators — all except students.

Robinson also announced that petitions will be collected by the USSA opposing the Reagan Administration cuts. The petitions will be taken to federal legislators in Washington March 13-16.

The resolution coming down from the USSA, taken by the OSA and adopted by YSU's Student Government, opposes the cut of $8.2 billion to $4.5 billion. The groups have combined their efforts in lobbying for the reinstatement of funds and an increase in funding to the ceiling levels set by the Higher Education Act of 1986.

The Reagan Administration's budget is seeking cuts in the following:

- Pell Grants will be cut by 31 percent.
- Guaranteed student loans will face a 61 percent reduction.
- Perkins loans providing lower interest rates to students would be eliminated.
- Income contingent loans will no longer be guaranteed, but face current market rates.
- The Trio program (offering education to disadvantaged students) would have its money cut from $176.3 million to $82.4 million.

Robinson is urging all students to sign the petitions. "My goal is to have every student's signature on these petitions. There is no reason why every student shouldn't be concerned about the cost of education and voice their objections," Robinson said.

Student Government will have tables set up in the Arcade to collect student's signatures.

Robinson also reported on his trip to Texas at the meeting.

Robinson and Michelle Donnelly, secretary academic grievances, attended the national conference. The purpose of the conference was to share information with Student Government representatives across the country, according to Robinson.

Robinson said that YSU far exceeds most other schools in providing services for students. Robinson also noted that YSU's general fee is not as high as most of the other schools and offers more services and programs.

Those that do enter are often currently employed in some type of food service and desire promotion, Beaubien said.

Approximately half of those in the associate program advance to the bachelor's program, she said.

An advisory committee for the two-year program is presently analyzing whether YSU possesses the resources to again seek approval from the ADA. Beaubien said the committee is surveying associate degree graduates to see if they have gone on to attain bachelor's degrees, their present employment status and if they are members of ADA.

Baubien said the ADA will distribute new standards in September 1987 in which outside experience will remain a large portion of the degree requirements.

Richard Maloney, director of food service at Trumbull Memorial Hospital in Warren and chair of the advisory committee, is also questioning employers of the associate degree graduates to determine if ADA approval is significant to the graduate's career advancement.

Zellers said he had killed his second guard and took his knight stick when three other guards overtook him. While he was lying "dead" on the ground a guard, who was also an extra in the movie, came upon him and smacked him in the knee cap with his knight stick.

The "jerk extra" hit him for no reason, said Zellers. "He just got carried away."

Zellers was taken to a local hospital and treated for a severely bruised knee. "If he hit me just 1 1/2 inches to the left, he would have shattered my knee cap," he said.

But Zellers wasn't too upset by his injury because he was able to stay in North Carolina a few days longer.

It was easy to get carried away while filming, Zellers said, because "you were a prisoner!" With guns being pointed at you, getting tear gassed constantly and being "locked up" in the prison set from 6 a.m. until 8 or 9 p.m., you started feeling like you were a criminal, he said.

In spite of his injury, the sometimes harsh conditions during filming and a salary that was "decent," Zellers said he would "do it again in a second." Although Zellers doesn't aspire to be an actor, he said "if it happens again, great."

While attending YSU, Zellers works in the operations department in Kilcawley. He really enjoys his job setting up audio/visual equipment for lectures and dances and other activities in Kilcawley.

"If he hit me just 1 1/2 inches to the left, he would have shattered my knee cap."

Kirk Zellers
— Junior, Speech Comm.

Zellers is certified by the Red Cross and the American Heart Association and has "helped save over 50 lives" during his 6 1/2 years working in hospitals.

Zellers is a member of the YSU chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho, a national broadcasting society. He "ultimately wants to work as a news anchor in a large market."

After a planned winter graduation next year, Zellers wants to return to North Carolina to begin his broadcasting career, possibly as a disc jockey.

Weeds should be out this summer, said Zellers. It will be featured this weekend on Entertainment Tonight.

Faculty, students act in award-winning play

YSU — The Northside Community Theatre is presenting the Youngstown area's first production of David Rabe's Streamers.

The play is running through March 21 at the theatre located at 2005 Ohio Avenue.

Streamers is a show about army life involving several young men who are to be sent ultimately to Vietnam and two older sergeants who have already experienced combat in other areas of the world.

Together these men epitomize the widely recognized differences that exist between individuals of varying backgrounds — individuals brought together by a government that believes its mission is to protect "freedom's frontier." Individual soldiers within the drama display numerous problems. They include homosexuality, fear, guilt, racism, blind obedience, glory and dedication to a cause.

Streamers, which won the 1976 Drama Critics' Circle Award as the best play of the year, uses the strong vernacular of army life and the brutal reality associated with individuals who have become emotionally disturbed.

The play is directed by Dr. Bill G. Hulsopple, speech and communication and theatre. Cast members include David Engler and Tim Morley, Dr. Timothy Lyons, dean of the College of Fine and Performing Arts, YSU alumni Mark Morelli, Pat McCleery and Michael Albani, Kenneth Brown and Glen Stallworth, YSU education ma-

made by calling 743-0460.

Tickets for the production are $4. Because of limited seating in the Northside Community Theatre, reservations are recommended, and can be made by calling 743-0460.

Streamers will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 6, 7, 13, 14, 20 and 21. For more information, call Robert Peterson at 743-3560.

Ashraf S. Zindah, junior A&S, twirls Cindy Peters, sophomore, F&PA, as Ruth Smrek, sophomore, F&PA, and Cindy Tobey, sophomore, CAST look on. The four are among 26 dancers, YSU students as well as students from other schools who will perform a modern dance concert, "Winter Dance," at 8 p.m. Friday, March 6 and Saturday, March 7 in Ford Auditorium, Bliss Hall. YSU students are admitted to the concert free, while YSU faculty and staff members, senior citizens and students under 18 are $2.50 and general admission is $4.50.

Alice examines women's issues

YSU — A . . . My Name is Alice, the 1984 winner of the Outer Critics' Circle Award for outstanding musical review, comes to life in Youngstown as YSU's Women's Resource Center presents the play at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 7 in the Spotlight Theatre, Bliss Hall.

Alice contains 20 songs and sketches, sometimes satirical, which focus on women and their relationships with men as well as other women. A trip to a male strip club, a competition on depression and an analysis of blues music lyrics are some of the topics presented in the play.

The material from the play was contributed from over 20 playwrights and screenwriters, many of whom are women.

Cast members for the YSU production include Joyce Moore, Brenda Burson, Shelley Bigby, Kathy Gabriel and Anne Finnerty. Bigby and Gabriel are current YSU students. The production is being directed by Alexandra Van Such.

Bigby and Finnerty appeared in the Youngstown Playhouse production of Alice in the fall of 1986, but this is the first time all five have performed together.

Admission to A . . . My Name is Alice is free, but reservations should be made in advance due to limited capacity. Call the Women's Resource Center at 742-7253 for reservations.

Rice wraps up hoop season

By RUSSELL FARMINTINO
Jambar Sports Reporter

The 1986-87 edition of the YSU men's basketball team fell short of Coach Mike Rice's expectations, but he said he looks to the 1987-88 season with a feeling of optimism.

"At the beginning of the season, we were really looking to be competitive in the OVC. Since we were able to gain a homecourt berth for the OVC Tournament our first three years, we were looking to continue that trend," Rice said.

The Penguins ended up at 11-17 overall and 4-11 in the conference.

"We knew going into the season that we had trouble at the guards, since both of the guards from the previous season graduated," Rice stated.

"It was hard to get this team ready because they didn't know how good they could be," the coach added. "After losing tough road games to St. John's and South Alabama early this year, I was hoping that would get their confidence up. We never really got five guys to play their best games simultaneously. All in all, it was a very frustrating year."

Rice also said he feels that this off-season will be one of soul-searching.

"This team will have to think hard about this past year and work hard to improve their play next year. The season ending loss to Akron is a key here. If we would have gone down to the wire and maybe beat them, we would have only fooled ourselves," he said.

"What that loss, especially the severity of it, did was make us realize we can't stand pat. We're going to have to get some help and the players coming back, especially the inside people, are going to have to work harder than they did this year or else things just aren't going to work out," he added.

Along these lines, Rice stressed that several needs are going to have to be filled for next year.

"We need at least two key rebounders next year," Rice said. "We can't have two guards, Tilman Bevely and James Gilmore, lead us in rebounding next season. Hopefully the addition of James McNair next season will help."

Rice praised his junior star forward Bevely. "Tilman had a great season. This should really give him a confidence boost for next season. We know that we'll be able to lean on him."

Bevely enjoyed a successful campaign. He led the Penguins and the OVC in scoring average with a 23.6 per game average.

That was also good enough for fourteenth place in the nation.

The coach also recognized the play of his two junior guards, John Robinson and Gilmore.

"These two had a lot of pressure on them this year. We're hoping that this year's experience will make them better next year," Rice said.

Rice is looking forward to next season with a great deal of optimism.

"Our goal next year is to finish in the top four in the OVC next year. We feel that this is going to be a better team next year."

He added, "We feel that our schedule next year will help us because a tough schedule makes a team better. Most importantly, if we fill our needs, we will be looking forward to a better season for 1987-88."

Intramural Beat Basketball teams finish

By GEORGE J. RUSNAK
Jambar Sports Reporter

As winter draws to an end, so does this quarter's intramural activities.

On Sunday, the men's intrabasketball semi-finals and finals took place. In the semi-finals, the Gigolos topped Salty Bros. by one point, 37-36, in an excellent matchup. The Idolmakers had no problem with the G-Men, winning 63-51. The Finals saw the G-Men and Salty Bros. battle for the third spot, with G-Men overcoming by a score of 63-54.

The championship took place between Gigolo and Idolmakers; and the Idolmakers copped the title, 45-40.

Wallyball playoffs took place on Tuesday, involving the Masters, the Jams, the I.E.E.E. Beach Bums and the I.E.E.E. The I.E.E.E. Beach Bums won over the Masters for third place; while the Jams and I.E.E.E. battled in the championship game. The Jams scored over I.E.E.E., 17-15 and 15-9.

Coed Badminton results are: first place — Rick Berger and Paula Czubek of Veni, Vidi, Vici; second place — Jamie Stabl and Patty Sigle of Unattached; third place — Marwan Maarouf and Sahar Mansour of F.I.S.; and fourth place — Dan Common and Heidi Raupach of Unattached.

In Women's floor hockey, the Delta Zetas forfeited to ROTC-SNAFU which means ROTC-SNAFU will play P.J.'s for the women's championship.

The intramural bowling and softball team registration deadline is March 16. For men's and women's intramural soccer, shallow water polo, tennis doubles, riflery, handball doubles and co-rec volleyball and racquetball doubles the last day to register will be April 13.

Registration deadlines for the men's and women's swim meet and darts doubles is April 20 and the intramural co-rec wallyball deadline is April 27.

This week's Dairy Queen/Jambar male and female athletes are Rick Berger and Paula Czubek. If these names sound familiar, it is because you have seen their names above in the coed badminton championships. Both have competed honorably in numerous intramural tournaments and team sports over the past three years.

Until Next week, the intramural "Beat" goes on!

Tennis Netters prepare for season

By MARK S. ARP
Jambar Sports Reporter

YSU's men and women netters are busily preparing themselves for this year's spring campaign under the guidance of first-year head coach Don Getz.

An avid player himself, Getz is also a professional instructor at the Youngstown Racquet Club.

Last year he was the boy's head coach at Boardman High School where he led the Spartans to an unblemished 16-0 mark and sent three players to the Ohio regionals.

Getz discussed his plan for this year's netters. "We look for physical potential and mental discipline" commented Getz, in reference to the first phase of his program.

His team is just now completing the second phase which involves footwork drills, physical conditioning and preparation for matches.

His final phase will focus on mental conditioning, which includes emotional discipline and concentration skills.

Getz's goal this year is Mainly to improve in the OVC standings compared to last year's 1-6 mark for the men. "If we could do that, I'd really be impressed with them" said Getz.

DON GETZ

Top returnees for the men's squad include Thad Hawkes, Paul Lieber, Rick Beachy, Clark Kent, Al Redmond and Larry D'Andrea.

Rounding out the roster are Scott Orlando, Rick Butterworth and Bob McGivern.

Getz said he feels that the men's roster is in good shape talent-wise for this season. His squad contains a combination of "strength and strategists" and is also lengthy in depth.

The men's team will be led by three recently elected captains: Hawkes, Beachy, and Redmond.

The women's squad includes veterans Heidi Raupach, Judy Ciacatello, Sandy Kocat and Michelle Julius. Raupach and Ciacatello will also serve as co-captains.

Completing the women's roster are Camilla Iannizzaro, Lynnette Yurcho and Jody Smith.

"I really do need two more women that can handle a racquet fairly well." He added that who he needs to complete his roster is probably right here on campus.

The men start their season today in an away match with Bowling Green University, while the women start theirs April 1 at Allegheny University.

Getz said he is optimistic about his teams and looks for success in the future. The netter's pilot stated, "We have a good team. We have a good chance of upsetting a few teams this year."

Professor named as chairman

YSU — Dr. H. Thomas McCracken, English, has taken office as national chairman of the Conference on English Education (CEE), an organization of teacher educators within the National Council of Teachers of English.

He will serve for two years.

Through its conference sessions, its journal, English Education, and its task groups, CEE provides a forum for sharing ideas on pre-service and in-service teacher education for English. Besides chairing the CEE Executive Committee, McCracken's duties include representing teacher educators on the Executive Committee of the National Council of Teachers of English.

McCracken, who joined the YSU faculty in 1970, resides in Canfield. He received his Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees from the State University of New York at Oswego, a Master of Arts degree from Middlebury, Vt. College, and a doctoral degree from the University of Illinois.

Before joining the faculty here, McCracken supervised student teachers of English at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, taught humanities at Parkland College, Champaign, Ill., and taught English at the State University of New York at Cortland.

The National Council of Teachers of English is a non-profit organization of teachers of English at all levels of education. Its aim is to improve the teaching of English.
